SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

The Bombay mail brings us our usual papers, from Calcutta to the 3rd of June and Bombay to the 8th of that month.

The Calcutta papers were full of the Meerut panic, which turns out to have been even more ridiculous as regards its origin than was at first supposed. Particulars will be found elsewhere.

The Friend of India announces, on the authority of one of its London correspondents, that Sir John Lawrence will return to England next March, or ten months before the close of his term of office, adding—"That such is the expectation in England is further confirmed by our private correspondence. But it is a mistake to suppose that the present Viceroy cannot be allowed to go to Simla after this year. His Excellency may yield to public opinion on this point, in which case his resignation is almost certain, but it is quite in his power to spend another hot season in the hills after forty years' distinguished service. We learn by last night's mail that 'some stringent despatches' have been sent out on finance, that the barrack loan has been officially disapproved of, and that the annually increasing expenditure in India has been animadverted on."

"The famine," says the Friend, "is still sore in Orissa. As the season progresses the stocks of the people become exhausted and work diminishes. Take the last official information. Even in Pooree, which like Balasore suffers less than Cuttack, there is a great increase among the applicants for relief. But we are doing our duty this year, and the people apply for relief in time instead of waiting till it is too late. Even the priests, denied the rich offerings from a people now impoverished, and thousands of pilgrims who no longer come, suffer great distress. The Assistant-Collector of Cuttack estimates that the stocks in the hands of the people will be all consumed by the beginning of July. July and August will be the trying months, for the rains not only isolate villages and stop importation, except along the banks of rivers, but they arrest work and make the relief operations doubly difficult. At the end of August the Bealie crop of rice will give the first glimpse of hope."

A scheme for the establishment of Zoological Gardens in Calcutta seems likely to meet with success.

Reports had reached Calcutta that throughout the Lower Provinces the cry of drought was increasing. The fall of rain has been less than half the fall of last year. The prospects of the Aoush dhan, Teel, and Karpas crops is said to have been already seriously imperilled.

Up the country there was great alarm of cholera. Accounts, however, are somewhat contradictory. The Delhi Gazette of the 28th of May says:—"We are sorry to hear that cholera has made its appearance at Peshawur. Some cases occurred on the 20th instant simultaneously in the Horse Artillery and the 42nd Highlanders, three of the former and about fifteen of the latter having fallen victims to it. The troops attacked by it were moved into camp on the following day. Some few natives have also died of it." The Englishman, two or three days later, reports:—"We deeply regret to hear that telegrams, bringing intelligence up to yesterday, report that 80 Europeans have fallen before the outbreak of cholera at Peshawur, and that of these 60 belonged to the 42nd Highlanders (the Black Watch) alone." That the latter is an exaggeration seems probable from the following reference to another statement of the same journal, by a correspondent of the Delhi Gazette: "I notice that the Englishman mentions in his columns of the 19th that small-pox and cholera were prevalent in her Majesty's 19th Hussars, and not having heard it mentioned in the station, I determined upon satisfying myself as to the truth of such a statement, and for such purpose I visited the hospitals, only to find that there is no foundation in such report, and that the regiment is enjoying excellent health." There seems to be no doubt that the disease has been severely felt in her Majesty's 94th Regiment at Umballa. A letter in a Calcutta paper of the 22nd of May says:—"We hear that the 94th Regiment is suffering severely from cholera. Their camp has been several times removed, but apparently with no good result. The loss of men, we regret to say, is considerable. The last account we have received states that twenty-seven deaths had occurred." The Delhi Gazette's Umballa correspondent, however, writing on the 21st—a later date, of course, than that of the letter published in Calcutta on the 22nd, says:—"Since you last heard from me I am happy to say cholera has nearly disappeared from among the troops. The 94th Regiment has returned into barracks, not however until they had lost some twenty men, but the regiment looks healthy after the month's camp life." Letters from Mussoorie stated that the cholera had broken out at that station, its first victim being the wife of Colonel Twysden. It was prevalent in many parts of the Punjab, and it was also reported in Calcutta that the disease, in a most virulent form, had broken out in Bhootan as well as in the Terai, and to have caused a large number of deaths.

Intelligence had reached Bombay by telegraph, just before the departure of the mail, that the court-martial assembled for the trial of Captain Cunningham had given its decision. Captain Cunningham has been sentenced to be cashiered, to undergo five years' penal servitude, and to make good all the money deficient in the regimental cash-chest.

The Bombay Government has received despatches from Dr. Seward, the British Consul at Zanzibar, dated April 28, stating that many natives had just arrived at the East Coast from the country where Dr. Livingstone's murder is alleged to have taken place, but they had heard no rumours regarding it. Dr. Seward expresses strong hopes of the Doctor's safety.

It is also announced in Bombay that Colonel Merewether had just returned from Massowah, from whence he forwarded to the Emperor Theodoros an ultimatum, demanding in peremptory terms the release of the Abyssinian captives. Internal dissensions have deprived the Emperor of all but a small portion of his territory. The Colonel will not, it is said, go to Scinde until the Abyssinian difficulty is settled; and it is probable that in the autumn of the year, when the new transport service is fairly at work, decisive measures will be taken to enforce the liberation of the Emperor Theodore's captives.

Intelligence had been received from Afghanistan to the effect that Sirdar Fyz Mahomed Khan, together with Futteh Mahomed Khan, and a son of Sultan Jan, had entered Cabool on the 3rd instant, and taken possession of the city, and that Mahomed Afzul Khan, having left Killa Chundol, had shut himself up in the Bala Hissar, along with Surwur Khan, the son of Azim Khan. Forty guns have been captured by Fyz Mahomed Khan, and the road is closed between Cabool and Peshawur, no kassids being allowed to carry letters; Usmut Allah Khan and Meer Ahmud Khan have advanced on Jellalabad, where Nusroolah Khan is in command. Fyz Mahomed Khan has appointed one of the sons of Sultan Jan to act as governor of Turkistan, in accordance with the desire of Ameer Shere Ali. The latest rumours from Central Asia speak of the utter extinction of the Mahomedan power in Bokhara. The Russians appear to be in great strength, and to be intriguing with the rival factions in Cabool. It is said that they have promised the Ameer Shere Ali the assistance of a contingent of disciplined troops in his next attempt against Afzul Khan and Azeem Khan, on certain conditions.

One of the Bombay papers has heard what has only just been communicated to us in this country, of the decision in the case of Captain Jervis. We believe it was also expected in this country that the commentary of the Horse Guards would induce Sir William Mansfield's resignation.

The next arrival from India will be the Calcutta mail, which may be expected on the 15th inst.

THE ball at the new India-office to the Sultan is to be on a scale of oriental splendour worthy of the department, and will probably form such a spectacle as has never been witnessed in this country. To give an idea of the scale on which the festivity is to be conducted, it may be mentioned that the spacious quadrangle of the building, covered over for the purpose, is to form the principal apartment, the flooring being raised to a level with that of the interior proper. It is said that the committee of management have a carte blanche given them as regards expenditure.

WE hear that one of new Indian transport ships is to take part in the naval review at Spithead. There will be a splendid entertainment on board, for which invitations are being issued to a large extent. We presume that this ship will have the honour of conveying the Sultan and suite.

WE observe that the Army and Navy Gazette confirms our announcement that Major General McCleverty is to succeed Sir Gaspard le Marchant as Commander-in-Chief at Madras.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

SATURDAY, July 6, 1867.

A NEW TELEGRAPH TO INDIA.

THE Select Committee of the House of Commons appointed last year to enquire into the practical working of the existing communications between England and the East Indies, made a very unfavourable report in respect to the telegraph. The two principal alternative routes, through Turkey and Russia respectively, are both described as defective, and no one who has witnessed the results of their working can doubt the fact. By the Turkish route a message, before it gets to Constantinople, may be dealt with by the French, Belgian, Dutch, Prussian, Austrian, Bavarian, Minor German, Italian, Servian, or Wallachian administrations; and thence through the Turkish, and sometimes also the Persian systems, it reaches the Persian Gulf line, which is under the control of the Government of India. The Russian route, in a similar manner, involves dependence on the Dutch, Prussian, Russian, and Persian administrations, before the telegraph comes into the hands of any officer responsible to the British Government. Thus there is much difficulty in tracing the cause of delays in the transmission and defects in the rendering of messages, and the consequence is that the public are rarely successful in obtaining compensation for any disappointment.

After alluding to the various schemes for constructing alternative lines of telegraph to the East, the Committee concluded by recording their opinion that it is not expedient to depend upon any single line or system in the hands of several governments, and that the establishment of separate lines, entirely or partially independent of the present one through Turkey, is desirable. They therefore recommended that means should be taken to improve the lines connecting the Persian system with Europe, by way of Georgia, and to bring within the Turkish convention the line recently established through Syria, for connecting Alexandria with the main line to India at Diarbekir; that the communication by way of the Persian Gulf should be doubled, either by laying a second submarine cable or by continuing the land line from Gwadal to Bunder Abbas and Ispahan; and that serious consideration should be given to a proposition which had been made for the establishment of a direct communication between Alexandria and Bombay, by way of Aden, on the principle of a line practically under one management and responsibility, between London and India, to be afterwards extended to China and the Australian colonies.

The latter scheme has just come before the public, and with every promise of success. The present route is from London direct to Paris, thence in a straight line, via Susa, to Florence, on through the length of Italy into the Mediterranean, whence, via Modica and Malta, it takes a direct course to Tripoli, and thence, following the line of the African coast, to Benchaz and Alexandria. From Alexandria it proceeds in a straight line to Suez, thence, along the Red Sea, to Aden, and from Aden, still following the line of the Arabian coast, to Kooria Mooraa, from which it proceeds direct across the Arabian Sea to Bombay. In order to ensure uninterrupted communication by this route, provisional arrangements have been made for the transfer to the company when the line between Egypt and Bombay is completed, or earlier if desired, of a concession from the Italian Government for the exclusive use of the Italian part of the line, a lease from the British Government of the existing Malta and Alexandria cable, and a lease (with the option of purchase) of the existing land lines of the Telegraph to India Company, between Alexandria, Cairo, and Suez, together with the concessions and firmans held by that company for establishing telegraphs from Egypt to Aden and India.

Between Modica (in Sicily) and Malta the messages will for the present pass by the short line of the Mediterranean Extension Telegraph Company; but the Italian Government have granted a concession which will be vested in the company for continuing their independent line from Sicily to Tripoli, or some other point on the coast, by a submarine cable direct, and it is proposed to exercise this right at an early period in order to secure a second route between Sicily and Alexandria, for precautional purposes.

It is anticipated that the direct line between London and Suez will be in actual work during the present year; and the company have entered into a contract with the Telegraph Construction and Maintenance Company for making a line, about 3,650 nautical miles in length, from Suez to Bombay. The latter will be completed in the course of next year, or in the May following at latest. Thus the company will have under their own management, and worked exclusively by an English staff, the entire telegraph from London and Bombay, except as regards the French part and the short distance between Modica and Malta, the latter, however, being worked by English clerks.

For the commercial recommendations of the undertaking we must refer to an official announcement in another column; but it is worthy of note that the expected dividend of twenty-five per cent. per annum appears based upon very reasonable data.

Since the above was written we have seen an announcement in the Times that the prospectus of another company, to be called the India, China, and Colonial Telegraph Company, is to be issued in a few days. The proposed capital will be £700,000, and the route will be by cable from Falmouth to Gibraltar, and from Gibraltar to Malta.

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE LICENCE-TAX AND THE DEFENCE FUND.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—In compliance with Resolution No. 2 of the meeting, report of which is annexed, I beg to forward you a copy of counsel's opinion on the points, in connection with the Licence-tax, mentioned in the report of proceedings annexed. I trust that the importance of the subject will serve as a sufficient apology to Mr. Doyne for this departure, perhaps, from strict etiquette in thus making public his opinion.

(Signed) F. F. WYMAN, Chairman.

1, Hare-street, Calcutta, May, 1867.

POINTS SUBMITTED TO COUNSEL.

1. With reference to the 5th Section of the Licence-tax Act, how is a tradesman to calculate what tax he should pay?

2. If he does not send for his licence and pay the amount which, in the opinion of the collector, he ought to pay, or if, with reference to Section 10 of the Act, he does not pay the amount when assessed by the collector, will he not be liable (under Section 15) to such penalty, not exceeding five times, &c., as the magistrate may think proper to inflict?

3. What is the proper definition of a trading company as intended by Section 19?

4. By what process and by whom is the tax leviable under the Act to be recovered? For instance, supposing the Collector assesses a person under Section 10 at a certain sum for his licence, how and by whom is that sum to be recovered?

COUNSEL'S OPINION.

1. The Act itself, probably from a desire to avoid a distinct declaration of its being an income-tax, is wholly silent on the point as to whether the licensee's profits are to be computed with regard to the year ending on, or beginning with, the 30th April, 1867. The form of petition at the end shows that the framers, though they thought proper not to state this all-important matter in the Act, contemplated the profits of the past year, as objectors are desired to put forward as the ground of objection to the class in which the collector may put them, that "the profits of your petitioner's trade for the year ending the 30th day of April last were Rs. . . ."

2. This, however, is not a part of the Act itself, nor, according to the proper rule for constraining Acts imposing penalties, can it supply the deficiency of the Act. Probably, when the question is raised before the Collector, he will simply act on his instructions, and decline to decide as to any defects in the Act (although in doing so he will, in my opinion, act improperly), and will arbitrarily place the person in question in a certain class. Should this be confirmed on appeal, there is no doubt that the appellant, if he continue to exercise his calling without a licence, will be infringing the Act; but the question remains, whether a magistrate can impose penalties. I am of opinion he cannot. Under the 5th Section it seems clear that the magistrate is not to be guided, much less concluded, by the collector's decision. He is bound to construe the Act as a lawyer, and must decide for himself and upon the evidence adduced before him and the law, whether the person summoned were bound to take out a licence at all, and if so, in what class. This he must do, as well for the purpose of seeing if an offence have been committed as for the purpose of fixing the penalty, which is to be measured by reference to the amount to be paid for the licence. He must, in the cases of those who have been exercising their calling up to the 30th April, 1867, say whether the Act has declared the year of which the profits are to be looked at. This he cannot supply in a penal Act by implication or conjecture; and must, in my opinion, if he adhere to the due course of law, discharge the summons.

As an illustration of the extraordinary crudity of the Act, I may refer to another class of licensees under the Act, small in number, yet having an existence, whose cases will probably come forward, and will afford a pointed argument in any case which may arise. I refer to those who may have begun to exercise callings, falling within the provisions of Section 5, on and after the 30th April, 1867. They are equally enjoined to take out licences; but it is clear that if the past year's profits are to supply the basis of taxation, there can be none in their case, and as to them the Act fails, from its own oversights; while, if they are to be drawn in, it must be because the Act contemplates future profits, and in that case, as regards all persons, it appears clear no magistrate can take on himself to say whether any trade will live for a month; or if he do so, even for a year, what profits he will make.

3. The word "trader" is often defined by reference to the Bankrupt-law, which enumerates the persons who may take the benefit of that law, and includes several classes which would not fall within the common English meaning of the word. In my opinion, for the purpose of construing a penal Act, the Bankrupt-law cannot be looked at, and the word must be confined to those companies who habitually buy and sell as traders and merchants in British India. It will not include banking companies, brokers, tea or indigo companies not keeping a place of business to sell their produce, or insurance companies, or such like. Schedule B says "every company;" but as it is a mere rider to section 19, which says "trading company," it cannot enlarge or alter that section, and must be read as meaning "every trading company."

4. There is no mode of levying the amount at which the collector assesses an individual. If he do not submit and take out a licence, he exposes himself to penalties leviable under the 17th section before a magistrate, on satisfying the magistrate, as I have above shown, that an offence has been committed, that the collector was right in placing the defendant in a certain class, and that he exercised his trade without taking out such licence.

5. I do not think there is any doubt as to the jurisdiction of the Legislative Council to pass any measures of taxation they may think proper with regard to any persons residing or having property within British India. Where the individual resides here, they can legislate in personam as well as in rem; where he does not, they can always proceed in rem, and reach the property through the agent or custodian of the property resident in India; that is, if they adopt proper measures for so doing. The latter, I think, they have not done by this Act. In the case of persons or companies not residing here and having no property here, such as insurance and other companies carrying on business through agents in their own offices, this Act is, in my opinion, wholly ineffectual, as there are no means of enforcing penalties against the agents under the Act, and there is no property of the company to seize.

10th May, 1867.

R. V. DOYNE.

DEATH BY DROWNING.—We much regret to learn that Lieutenant F. W. Glasford, of the General List Infantry, and 1st Wing Subaltern of the 9th Regiment N.I., was drowned at Port Blair during the recent attack made on the Andamanese at Northern Andaman Island. He volunteered with the expedition, as he had reached Port Blair in command of a detachment of his regiment in charge of convicts. The boat in which he was in was upset with twenty-five others, but he was the only one drowned. He entered the service in June, 1861.—Indian Daily News.

THE ANNUAL EXODUS TO SIMLA.

It has been frequently predicted that the annual transfer of the Government offices from Calcutta to Simla would be stopped. The annual transfer, however, still takes place. Up to the present nothing has been put before the public or the Secretary of State which would show what is the cost of these yearly moves. In fact, the cost has been known to few, and the accounts are so kept that it is difficult for any one, except those who are interested in keeping the matter in the background, to form an accurate estimate of the expenditure incurred in this annual fitting. It is high time that this silence should be broken. We should be glad to see in the annual Budget some estimate of the amount of this perpetually-recurring item; not an abstract, but a detailed estimate, which should show exactly what the charges under this head may be, as measured by those in past years. We doubt, however, whether such accounts are ever likely to be rendered. The expense of the annual journey to Simla and back is so great that the Government will not, till they are compelled to do so, give any information on the subject.

We are in a position to state what the expenditure on this head really amounts to. Our readers will be astonished when they learn that the annual cost of moving the public offices to Simla and back amounts to no less a sum than nearly four lakhs of rupees; about one-twelfth of the expected yield of the licence tax is frittered away on this costly journey.

The figures are—

1865	3½ Lakhs.
1867 (budget estimate)	3	"	"

We do not suppose that any one would object to the absence of the Viceroy from Calcutta. His "masterly inactivity" is as equally conspicuous in his home as in his foreign policy, and it is a matter of little moment to India whether he plays croquet at Simla or awelters in Bengal. But this waste of public money, when money is wanted, has to be looked at from quite a different point of view. The expenditure incurred on this Simla tour is utterly indefensible. Why is the country to be taxed to allow each Government officer travelling allowance as compensation for breaking up an establishment which in many cases does not exist? It is notorious now that many of the highest officers in the Administration keep up no establishment in Calcutta, looking rather to Simla as their piéd-à-terre. But it is not so notorious, and yet equally a fact, that each member of Council, each secretary, is positively paid an additional travelling allowance for his trip. We call upon the Government to state whether it is not the case that the actual cost of the move to Simla and back did amount to 3½ lakhs of rupees in 1866, and we further call upon Government to state what has been the actual amount already expended on this account during the present year.

We sincerely hope that Lord William Hay or Mr. Ayrton, or some other member of the House who takes an interest in the welfare of England's great Empire in the East, will move for information on this subject from his seat in the House.—Englishman.

HOMEWARD BOUND.

Extract of a Letter from Bombay, dated 20th March, 1867, Describing a Trip from Lahore via Mooltan and Kurrachee, and thence to Bombay, to meet the steamer proceeding to England.

Our party made their start for England in the Northam yesterday, in very good case; and the trip down has altogether been most successful, and free from worry and trouble to an extent that the most sanguine could hardly have anticipated. The only trying portions were the railways, so it may be gathered how much more the party would have suffered if they had gone by Calcutta.

I may as well give you a brief account of the whole, for the benefit of friends who may have this route in their minds.

As you know, we left Lahore on the morning of the 8th, and reached Mooltan the same evening by train. We went to the dawk bungalow and found it comfortable and convenient from its neighbourhood to the railway. I took a run down to the steamer (of the Indus flotilla) by an early train on the 9th, having previously secured our passages (which ought to be done as early as practicable). I selected the cabins for the party, and had them recorded as engaged. On the morning of the 11th a special train took us passengers to the steamer. The passenger flat was set aside for those passengers who had families, which admitted of its being treated as a family vessel, with its saloon appropriated for the children and their meals.

The table for the grown-up passengers was good; that for the children not so good. This was due to the small number of cooks for the vessel, and the small size of the kitchen, which prevented the admission into it of the private servants for the specially simple cooking required for the children's meals. The goat was most useful, and in fact indispensable.

The captain and his mate were most obliging, and anxious to make things comfortable.

Owing to the bad state of the river we did not reach Sukkur till Monday forenoon, the 18th, having stuck repeatedly. On reaching Sukkur we learned that our steamer would not go on till the 20th. Also the steamer officers said that we could not in that case reach Kotree till the 24th at soonest; and as the mail steamer was to leave Kurrachee on the morning of the 25th, this would probably lead to our missing the steamer altogether. We accordingly remonstrated, and asked to have the steamer allowed to start from Sukkur early next day (Tuesday), instead of Wednesday. At the same time I wrote to Captain Wood, the superintendent of the flotilla at Kotree, and begged he would do what he could to get us pushed on to the mail steamer without being stopped at Kotree or Kurrachee, in case of our being very late.

Our request was complied with, and the steamer left Sukkur twenty-four hours after arriving there, instead of stopping forty-eight, as originally intended.

Leaving Sukkur at noon on Tuesday, the 19th, we reached Kotree (having met with no impediment) at noon on Saturday, the 23rd. Telegrams were despatched thence to Kurrachee for medical committee for the officers proceeding on leave, and for securing accommodation at the travellers' bungalows, &c. As there proved to be but scanty room in the bungalows, Captain Wood kindly telegraphed and arranged that, on behalf of those who had secured passages, the steamer from Kurrachee to Bombay, the train should run on beyond Kurrachee to the bunder (i.e., harbour), and that we should be received at once on board the steamer.

Consequently we remained comfortably on board the Indus Flotilla steamer till the time drew near for the train to start. We then went to the train at 9 P.M. We got ample room for the whole party to lie down and sleep, and at sunrise next morning we found ourselves at the Kurrachee pier, got a boat (the whole party luggage and all) on board the mail steamer ("the Punjab."). There we remained the whole day and night comfortable and cool. Early next morning I went on shore and transacted all the necessary business, the offices having opened early on purpose, and the steamer started at 10 A.M. on the 25th.

We were fifty-six hours in reaching Bombay.

Here again we had no moving, and were allowed to remain on board undisturbed till the time arrived for the P. and O. steamer to start, yesterday morning the 29th. After leaving its moorings the P. and O. steamer anchored for about one and a-half hours near the Kurrachee steamer, opposite the Apollo Bunder, and I moved my party over in a boat from our steamer to the other, luggage and all, so that excepting the dawk bungalow at Mooltan my party had only to move from the one steamer or train into the other, when the time arrived. There was none of the worry of going to and from hotels or bungalows. Of course, during the spare day at Bombay, I was occupied with the necessary business of passing the luggage, settling with the P. and O. Co., &c., &c. But in consequence of the facilities for remaining on board the steamers, there was no hurry-scurry in the transfers.

If, then, people will only take their passage beforehand, and write to the agents for permission to remain on board the steamers concerned—before and after the actual voyages, I confidently believe they will find this route, as I did, singularly free from trouble and fuss.—Lahore Chronicle.

THE INDIAN CIVIL SERVICE AS A CAREER.—No. III.

The term of service required from a civilian is 22 years' actual residence in the country. Absence on sick leave to Europe for one year is allowed to count towards this period of residence. The whole term of service is twenty-five years, but three years of this can be spent on furlough to Europe, and as this furlough is generally taken, civilians seldom retire before full five-and-twenty years after their first arrival in the country. Successful merchants, barristers, and other interlopers, often return to their fatherland with sufficient for competence, and some of them with considerable fortunes, after ten or fifteen or eighteen years' toil and sojourn in India. Of course we speak only of successful merchants and barristers. Many, no doubt, fail completely, and return as poor as they came, but their pursuits are such that they can follow them in England, and their Indian experience can be no disadvantage to them. Civilians, on the other hand, would be good for little at home, as all their experience is specially Indian, and the highest success to be acquired in the career offered them in the service brings to few, if to any, the realisation of anything that could be termed a fortune. We are aware that the advantages alleged to counterbalance this are the social position and high rank enjoyed by the members of an exclusive service, which are no doubt very flattering and soothing to human vanity; but we confess to being sufficiently radical to think the tone and feeling generated by these ideas to be some of the real drawbacks of the career. The value of being "monarch of all one surveys" depends considerably upon the nature of the kingdom and the competitors for the throne; the so-called aristocracy of this country gain little but a short satisfaction to their vanity from a position—self-assumed, shall we say?—which society at home in England does not concede to them, and which they leave behind them with the pilot at the Sandheads. Mr. Campbell, in his "Modern India," published fifteen years ago, fairly sums up the advantages offered by the service. He writes thus:—"Altogether, the difference between the extremes of success and want of success in the Civil Service is certainly not nearly so great as between the extremes of any other profession. All are well provided for; but it must be remembered that of eight hundred men seriously devoting themselves to any profession—say the Bar—some attain rewards such as do not fall to Indian Civilians." Further on he remarks, truly as we think: "There is an ancient popular belief that the Civil Service is a monopoly, and too highly paid. Now I believe the fact to be that it is only by entertaining an exclusive service from boyhood that the work is done so cheap as it is: and, secondly, that supposing the duties to be efficiently performed, the pay is not only not too high, but has become of late years too low. Work in India is not to be measured by the same standard as in England, but by the marketable value of the commodity. We must consider the nature of the duties and of the country, and then compare the remuneration with that of other professions and other countries. European agency in India must be expensive, and should be used as little as possible; but the appointments in which it is indispensable should be sufficiently paid. I think it may be fairly estimated that European labour in India is at least three times as dear as in England. Put the case practically:—Would most men who have appointments of £1,000 per annum in England think it a very great gain to get one of £3,000 in India? Would a Master in Chancery with £2,500 a year always care to accept an Indian Judgeship or seat in Council with three or four times that salary? And do not persons practising private professions charge and make profits three times as large as in England? To compare, then, we must divide all salaries by three." Mr. Campbell wrote this fifteen years ago. Salaries have since remained at the same nominal rates, while their values have considerably decreased, in consequence of the general rise of prices in India. "It must be borne in mind," also, as Mr. Campbell remarks, "that the fixed salaries are the only receipts of any kind, that there are no extra sources of gain whatever, and that every kind of private speculation is absolutely prohibited and prevented." The advantages then of a career in the Indian Civil Service are simply a fair provision for all who can work and stand the climate, a moderate competence on retirement, a bare pittance to those who break down before their term of service has expired. Physical health and strength are indispensable to secure the fair provision offered by the career, while no opportunities are afforded for making a fortune. This is the money view of the question, a view which now-a-days enters largely into the mind of every young man choosing his profession. The so-called monopoly has been abolished since Mr. Campbell wrote, and we think the result has verified the truth of his remarks. In the open market the advantages offered by an Indian career have failed to draw men as a general rule superior to the alumni of Haileybury. If the members of the Civil Service were paid higher than they were worth in 1852, it would have followed, as a necessary result of throwing open the service to competition, that better material would be procured for the money. With the exception of a few who formed a false estimate of the advantages of the appointment, and regretted their error of judgment ever after, can it be said for a moment that the general run of competition-wallahs is superior to the general run of Haileybury writers? Had the maximum of age for competing remained at 23 as at first fixed, we believe that the average would have fallen considerably, and that the class of men who would have been induced to come to India after the advantages and disadvantages of the career were better understood, would have been generally mediocre, if not altogether without those geniuses which were now and again secured by the Haileybury system, and which the existing system will also occasionally obtain by selecting young men, who, as having less experience of themselves and the world, and their chances of success, are more likely to close with an offer which would be refused by those who were better judges of their merchandise and the markets in which it would bear the highest value.

No. IV.

We have heard the career of a Civil servant expatiated upon as one that affords immense facilities of doing good; that the powers entrusted to these officers of the Government may be wielded for the benefit of thousands; and that, therefore, the career is a noble one, and one which young men should enter upon ardently and ambitiously. We are willing to admit the truth of all that can be urged in this direction; but, with all reverence, those who are likely to be influenced by these arguments will find a sufficient outlet for their abilities in missionary enterprise, and are much more likely to seek the reward of their labours in this than in any other direction. The present is entirely a practical age, and all questions of the nature of that under discussion are referred more and more daily to the single standard of expediency in a money-making point of view.

If the above be—as we have endeavoured to make it—a fair sketch of the prospects of an Indian Civil servant, can it be wondered that first-class men do not offer themselves as candidates in the open competition. We have not willingly exaggerated or depreciated a single fact, and should rather be surprised if the result were other than it has been.

The question, however, now-a-days is not whether first-rate men will compete, but whether good second-rate men can be procured who will be capable of fulfilling the duties intrusted to the members of what has been denominated the finest service in the world. It has been said, as already noticed, that the calibre and quality of the candidates has considerably fallen off of late years, and that the same class of men who at first came forward do not now offer themselves. The antecedents of the successful candidates certainly show a marked difference. Instead of young men who had distinguished themselves at college, and, having taken their degrees with some distinction were looking round for a profession, and chose the Indian Civil Service as such, we have mere schoolboys, untried in any intellectual struggle save that at which they obtained admission as selected candidates for Her Majesty's Indian Civil Service. The pros and cons of cramming have been discussed so often that we are not about to enter on that subject here, but shall merely remark, that when a long list of honours and prizes won at a University was finished up with success at the open examination in London, there was at least a presumption that the choice had fallen in the right quarter, which does not arise from mere school-boy antecedents. If then it be true that an inferior class of men now compete, is there no tangible reason for this? We believe there is a reason and a good reason. We have shown above, that about £500 per annum in India is all the young civilian can look forward to for the first six or seven years of his service. He enters the service by competition. He can compete to pass rapidly his examinations in the languages and the laws of India—but here there is an end of competition for him for ever. Let us see what he can gain by competition. First he gets into the service, and in the order in which he passes his final examination at home he stands on the general list. This entitles him to rank above those who stand below him; and formerly he had a right to a refusal of the vacant pensions in his order on the same list; but now any one who has served his full time can retire on his pension, and this privilege is worth nothing. Arrived in India, the passing of the preliminary examinations makes the difference of a small temporary increase in his salary; but upon the date of his passing the last examination depends his ultimate and real position in the service. Till he pass that he cannot be promoted beyond an assistant magistracy, and in the order in which he passes it every step of his further promotion is regulated. This examination is held at the head-quarters of the different Commissionerships, and, as often complained of in the Indian newspapers, the test varies with each Commissioner. Again, before and up to this final examination, the assistant is very differently employed in different districts. In some he has little or nothing to do. In others he is busily employed. The amount of spare time at his disposal for private study thus depends entirely on the demands made upon his time by Government, and his immediate superior. Further, as the usual time of passing this final examination is from two to three years after his arrival in the country, he may fall sick in the interim, and have—as is the case with many—to visit England for his health. He may thus, for no fault of his, drop years in promotion behind his contemporaries. We could give numerous other reasons to show the injustice of selecting this as the point where all competition must cease, but those already given will suffice. Now let us look at the impolicy of the thing. Young men, who have had the spirit of competition developed within them by all their early training, who have chosen an Indian career because they believed that merit would here be surely the passport to success, whose very appellation* stirs within them those feelings amid which “quiet to quick bosoms is a hell;” are quietly told to repress their energies, and to check their impetuosity, to “fling away ambition,” and be content to rise by the slow ladder of seniority, the time necessary to reach every step of which can be calculated with disgusting precision, and this, too, at a time of life when their comrades at school or college, emerging from the preliminary race, and the mimic battle, like the competitors at the great games in ancient Greece, prepare to run in public the real race, and to fight the great battle of life, with hopes and high ambition, all of them, those doomed to failure as well as those destined to success. Why is it that at the Bar, and in most professions at home, men are perpetually striving and competing and putting forth their best energies? † Why, but that success is uncertain, and depends for each upon his individual exertions. The consequence is, that every one does his best, and the public, the community, benefit accordingly. Take away rivalry, competition, and the uncertainty of future success, and who will say that all will not be changed?—Englishman.

* The bearing of this very question on the Indian Civil Service was similarly discussed in the Englishman of the 4th September last.

A ZOOLOGICAL GARDEN FOR CALCUTTA.

Proceedings of the Natural History Committee of the Asiatic Society of Bengal, with reference to the establishment of a Zoological Garden in Calcutta. Dated 23rd January, 1867.

The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, Dr. Fayrer made the following remarks:—

It is very desirable that a Zoological Garden should be formed in Calcutta for the instruction as well as recreation of the citizens and numerous visitors who frequent this great city.

Such institutions are found in most European cities, and they are always highly appreciated, not only as popular resorts for rational, but also scientific amusement.

At this moment Calcutta is not only without any such place of public entertainment, but it is also equally wanting in any other, except the Eden Gardens, where its inhabitants may enjoy the fresh air uncontaminated by city miasmata.

The Botanical Gardens are too far away, and other places purporting to be at all analogous to the people's parks in European cities, are at very inconvenient distances without the city.

As the object now proposed is essentially, though popular, a scientific one, I think that its institution may rightly be commenced by the Natural History Committee of the Asiatic Society, and therefore, we have met to consider and devise some plan for its completion.

First. We have to consider, how the necessary funds may be procured?

Secondly. Where the garden should be situated? Thirdly. How managed, and on what principle conducted?

Fourthly. Whether we can act in concert with any other society in accomplishing our object?

With reference to the first part of the question, I think we should initiate a subscription, inviting the contributions of the inhabitants of Calcutta, and asking influential representatives of all classes to take part and form a committee to devise ways and means. With this view I think a notice of the proceedings of the meeting might be sent to the newspapers, and their advocacy be requested. A circular should be drawn by the secretary in the name of the committee, and circulated, the object of the circular being to obtain subscriptions and donations.

Government might be asked to aid by a grant of land and money. As to the place, I should say that piece of land lying between the Alipore and Kidderpore bridges, on this side of the nullah might be asked for from the Government of Bengal.

The garden should be managed by the Natural History Committee of the Asiatic Society until thoroughly inaugurated, when it might be made over to a General Committee.

Proposed by Dr. Oldham, and seconded by Mr. Atkinson, and agreed to:—

That the committee are deeply impressed with the importance, both as a means of rational amusement and scientific study, of a Zoological Garden.

That a committee of three be requested to consider and carefully estimate the probable cost of inaugurating such a scheme, and to make inquiries as to the probability of obtaining a favourable site for the same, and to report to the committee within a fortnight.

Resolved, that Dr. Oldham, Baboo Debendra Mullick and Dr. J. Anderson be appointed a committee for the above object.

Report of Sub-Committee on the proposal to establish a Zoological Garden, submitted 20th February, 1867.

The sub-committee appointed to consider the cost, position, and annual expenditure necessary to be incurred in the formation and support of a Zoological Garden in Calcutta have to report:—

That they have made full inquiries as to the possibility of obtaining any plot of ground of sufficient area and favourably placed for such purposes, but that they have failed in finding any other locality so suitable as that proposed between the Kidderpore and Alipore bridges, or one which could be procured at any possible price.

That this ground is well placed, is sufficiently large, and might be made attractive to the public.

That they have estimated the cost of first establishment of such garden on a small scale, and have to submit the items to the committee:—

The ground measures approximately 3,000 feet in outer boundary say 1,000 yards
This must be well and strongly fenced with gates, &c., and your sub-committee estimate that to provide a good and strong and at the same time ornamental iron fence, with masonry basement and two gates, will require a sum of Rs. ...	30,000
A tank of superficial area corresponding to 500 feet by 200 feet ...	7,000
A lodge for gatekeeper ...	500
Monkey house ...	3,000
Aquatic birds ...	3,000
Carnivora ...	5,000
Deer ...	3,000
Roads, paths, small fences, &c. ...	7,000
Gardening, levelling, &c. ...	2,000
	60,500

So far as any provision for animals is concerned, they think this is the smallest amount that would possibly suffice. A reduction of the estimate might be made in the item of fencing, but it would not make a reduction exceeding 10,000 on the whole.

As to the monthly expenditure required for the support of such a collection as it is calculated that provision has been here made for, the sub-committee estimate that this will certainly amount to Rs. 1,000 per month, that to this must be added say Rs. 50 for mallies, garden shrubs, flowers, &c., while about Rs. 100 should be provided for current repairs and small contingent expenses, making a monthly charge of Rs. 1,150, or say Rs. 1,100 per month.

Your sub-committee, in laying this estimate before you, desire to add that they are unanimous in thinking that the present is a peculiarly unfavourable season for attempting to raise subscriptions for such purposes.

Resolved, that thirty or forty copies of the report, along with the proceedings of the previous meeting of the committee recommending that a Zoological Garden should be established in Calcutta, be printed for private circulation.

THE REPORTED MUTINY AT MEERUT.

Authentic intelligence has just reached us from Meerut with regard to the alleged “mutiny.” It appears that some excitement was caused in consequence of the collector having received a vernacular letter stating an outbreak would occur on Sunday evening last.

A report reached Gazeabad to the effect that the native regiment stationed at Meerut had mutinied, and that three hundred of the mutineers were on their way to Gazeabad. This created a panic, and all the women and children were sent to Delhi, where their arrival caused a great sensation, and the most ridiculous and unfounded rumours were flying about.

We are glad to hear the writer of the letter has been arrested, and found to be insane.

We hasten to publish this extra in consequence of a paragraph which appeared in our issue of yesterday, but which was excluded from our down-country papers in consequence of a short telegram received from Meerut.—Delhi Gazette Extra, May 22.

We published an extra yesterday giving an account of the panic at Meerut. The following further particulars may be depended on. A letter was found, some say in Meerut, some in Seharunpore, written in Hindee character, evidently a circular letter and forwarded by the commissioner to the magistrate, with instructions to take it to General Troup. There was considerable difficulty in deciphering it, for it was not considered judicious to employ a native to read it, and it is not a bad comment on our present system of examination for interpreters, &c., that in a large station like Meerut it was ever so long before any one could be got to read the letter! When read it was found to contain threats of rather a vague nature. Still it was deemed by General Troup wise to take precautions, and commanding officers were warned to be on the alert; this was on Saturday evening.

Stories got about, and the most extraordinary panic seized people, not only at Meerut, but at Delhi. At the latter place people had their carriages ready and things packed prepared to make a start. At Meerut it was equally great, while at the same time there were people there who never heard anything of it till it was all over. The panic lasted all Sunday, and culminated on Sunday night and Monday morning. Exaggerated reports were conveyed to Gazeabad by the railway people, and a regular panic ensued there. The railway employes and others having families with them, sent their wives and children into Delhi, and several cart loads of ammunition were sent out to the railway station. But the alarm at Gazeabad was mainly owing to reports brought in by some police sowars that “mutineers” were at Begumabad looting the place, and were coming on to Gazeabad. At the same time, by some strange coincidence, reports were spread at Meerut of imaginary disturbances at Delhi. It was “in the wind,” as the natives say.

Our readers may ask why Meerut being so close we should have given in Tuesday's issue the incorrect instead of the correct version of the affair. It would have been easy, one would think, to have obtained, not an exact account, for to this moment no two people in Meerut tell you the same story, but at any rate a more correct account than the reports, which, as we hinted, were not to be wholly depended on. The whole thing was a curious chapter of cross accidents. On Monday we telegraphed to a friend at Meerut, but got no reply. But on Monday afternoon the editor of this journal started himself to Meerut, reached it on Tuesday morning, and having ascertained how matters stood, sent a message to this office to stop all mention of the alleged "mutiny." This message concluded with the expression "all a fiasco," and as fate would have it the message was returned from the office and not sent, because the boys in charge could not understand what "fiasco" meant!

If the Meerut Telegraph-office had had a little experience in Reuter's messages they would not have refused to forward a message because they could not understand a word. It is very common to correspond by telegram in cipher, but we pity the unfortunate who should attempt to do so on any matter of importance through the Meerut Telegraph-office. We hope the attention of the Director-general will be drawn to this matter.

So far it has been a fiasco, as regards the alleged mutiny of the 36th N.I., but as regards the panic at Meerut and Delhi during Saturday night and Sunday the description we have given of it falls far short of the reality as represented to us by eye-witnesses and residents of the place.—Delhi Gazette, May 23.

MEERUT, May 21.—A curious instance of a panic being caused on very insufficient grounds occurred at this place and the neighbouring station, Gazeenabad, on Sunday last. It seems a letter was forwarded to the magistrate here containing vague threatenings of a rising and what not. The magistrate sent it to the general commanding, who deemed it advisable to take the precaution of having the troops under arms. Exaggerated reports of this movement were carried by the railway people to Gazeenabad, with sundry additions, viz., that the native troops at Meerut had mutinied in consequence of one of their number having been shot by sentence of a court martial. As far as I can make out there appears to have been no foundation at all for these "additional particulars." The effect of them, however, was disastrous, as a panic ensued. The wives and families of the railway people were sent into Delhi, and ammunition was called for from the arsenal there, which, I believe, was supplied. The rumour was supported by a story some police sowars brought in, that "mutineers" were at Begumabad, half way to Gazeenabad. The natives at the latter place took alarm and deserted the station for the time. So far as the Gazeenabad people are concerned, they acted according to their light, and could not avoid the conclusion that something was the matter. Accidents seemed to concur in lending colour to the improbable story, for about twelve o'clock at night the telegraph stopped working, and this, combined with the reports of the imaginary mutineers being on the road, confirmed the Gazeenabadites in their resolution to send off their wives and families; for the story spread was that the 36th had mutinied, and though some of them had been captured, the rest had got away and were roaming about the country.

Nor has the tongue of rumour stopped here, for I was informed at the railway station at Allyghur last night that there had been disturbances in that neighbourhood also. I need hardly add that I believe there is no foundation for this rumour either.

In Meerut and throughout the surrounding district the last eight-and-forty hours have been a period of suspense and alarm,—though happily a false alarm. Rumour upon rumour followed in fast succession; first of a mutiny of the police and native troops in Meerut; then of an outbreak on the part of the European troops in garrison; of an attempt to capture the Artillery park of guns; and of the approach of large bodies of mutineers from every side. With the memory of 1857 fresh upon us, the agitation and terror of the moment can be more easily imagined than described. Bad news is proverbial for the swiftness with which it travels, and messengers and telegrams from every part of the district were flying far and fast in a very few hours, although the authorities on the spot (putting little faith in the intelligence received) were anxious to keep the matter quiet in order to prevent unnecessary alarm.

Nevertheless, a telegram was received yesterday morning from Ghazeeabad, stating that information had reached that place, to the effect that Meerut was in the hands of the mutineers, and that a large force was at Begumabad, advancing upon Ghazeeabad, en route, we suppose, for Delhi, and begging for authoritative information—which was at once despatched in reply—and assistance, which happily was unnecessary. We mention this fact to show the ready credence given to a report of the kind, and the exaggeration and distortion of fact which, unfortunately, always takes place on an occasion of this kind; and also the great amount of trouble, inconvenience, and alarm caused through the agency of one wretched fanatic, who, as it now turns out, is a raving madman.

But in order to allay the agitation and excitement which has prevailed since Saturday evening last, as well as to a certain extent correct the errors and misstatements which on occasions like the present invariably creep into the columns of the public press, we have made it our especial care "to sift the story to its foundation," and we are glad to be able to place before our readers, upon the very best authority, the exact particulars of the case, as also of the precautions taken by the civil and military authorities.

On Saturday evening last a letter was received by the Magistrate and Collector of Meerut, giving cover to an intercepted communication of the most suspicious and alarming character in the vernacular—or rather Sanskrit tongue. At the same time, Mr. Watson received a telegram from the Commissioner of the Division, directing him immediately to submit the letter in question to the Major-General commanding at Meerut. This was done without delay, as the covering letter, forwarding the vernacular communication (which the authorities were unable to decipher at the moment) intimated that Sunday evening had been fixed for a demonstration of some kind, and immediate action was imperatively necessary.

Major-General Troup, we understand, however, refused to take action in the matter until the ill-written document in question was translated and understood. This was not accomplished until noon the following day, when it was found to be the most outrageous and ridiculous trash, which could only have emanated from the pen of a madman.

In the meantime, however, it was deemed advisable to warn commanding officers to be on the alert. This precaution was withdrawn as soon as an English translation of this mad production was available. During Sunday last a clue which had been obtained of the writer of the document was followed up, and the suspected man was apprehended. On being brought into the magistrate's court yesterday morning he at once acknowledged that he wrote and posted the letter; but as he is clearly a lunatic, criminal proceedings against him have been stayed for the present, pending a reference to Government.

It is much to be regretted that the covering letter forwarding this unintelligible production did not state how it had been obtained, or that an English translation did not accompany it. The statement that "a demonstration of some kind" was to take place, was naturally looked upon as reliable information, and was acted upon accordingly.—Mofussilite, May 25.

Although it now appears that there was not the slightest foundation for the rumours that frightened the European inhabitants of Meerut and Delhi with suggestions of 1857, yet it would be well if we always remember the late panic as the "mutiny of 1867." There was no mutiny, but to name it one is to give expression to that peculiar process of thought which as frequently results in an appreciation of the ludicrous, as in the more serious suggestions of comparison, and reflection. Already we perceive a little of the ridiculous in certain newspapers to which the alarm was telegraphed, but which, not having received further intelligence, gravely hazard conjectures as to the power and stability of the empire, and the extent of the disaffection, and already discuss the policy with which the rebellious should be dealt. This, however, only shows how serious a matter a mutiny is considered in this country, and how readily the occurrence of one is believed. True that the time and place named were singularly suggestive. The human mind has an instinctive belief in the likelihood of parallel instances; and as it was on a Sunday in May that the mutiny broke out in 1857, so it was the strange coincidence of it again being a Sunday in May that led to the mutiny of 1867 being so readily accepted as a fact. A knowledge of the number of European troops stationed at Meerut ought to have dispelled all fear; but since 1857 there is such a thoroughly fixed belief in the possibility of such a contingency that most Europeans are ready to credit the wildest rumours on such a subject. These are facts worthy of consideration in themselves; but there are other suggestions due to "the mutiny of 1867." Supposing that it was a reality, would the heads of the Government and of the army have occupied an advantageous locality at Simla for initiating measures for its suppression? Sir John Lawrence and Sir William Mansfield are both on the hills; but would they, for the particular purpose of suppressing a revolt in the North-West, have been more advantageously stationed in Calcutta? In considering such a question, we must remember that the North-West is the most likely scene of revolt. Calcutta is the headquarters of the Indian Government, and as such, it may be preferable that Government House here should not be empty in times of danger and emergency; but it strikes us that the metropolis is totally unadapted to be the headquarters of the Indian army. Another point that suggests itself in connection with this subject is the reticence of Government. Notwithstanding that both Meerut and Delhi are connected with Calcutta by telegraph and by railway, an alarm that occurred at those stations on a Sunday was not known of here until a week after, and even up to this day—after the lapse of more than a fortnight—Government has preserved a remarkable silence. The intelligence that a mutiny had broken out must have been transmitted to all parts of India, and there is no doubt that in England many hearts are now filled with sickening anxiety. Ten years are not quite long enough to destroy the remembrance of events like those of 1857, and men are not likely to receive announcements of another mutiny with indifference. Government would have only done its duty if it took prompt steps to dispel all alarm; but up to this day it has preserved a very imprudent inactivity, so far as the publication of all information on the subject is concerned.—Indian Daily News, May 29.

It is to be regretted that the Delhi Gazette gave such ready credence to the stories about the mutinous spirit shown by the 36th N.I. at Meerut on the occasion of the late panic, and yet it is difficult to see on what grounds.

the reports which reached the editor were to be discredited. For several months prior to the panic stories had come down country which seemed to invest Meerut with the interest belonging to a great centre of disaffection, while the whole history of the British empire in India had rendered the sepy an object of 'suspicion. Paget and Napier had each nipped a mutiny in the bud, and each foreseen the storm which burst in 1857. With all the memories of that fearful time it was not to be wondered at that one of the first effects of the news of an outbreak at Meerut was to raise suspicions of the fidelity of the native troops quartered at that station. Still the publication of such a suspicion is to be regretted, as we have said, because of the effect such publication may have, not only on the regiment named, but upon the native soldiers of the empire in general. The article in the Delhi Gazette has given great offence to the 36th N.I., but we are quite sure that a calm revision of the whole of the facts of the case will, on the one hand, lead the editor to do justice to the regiment, and, on the other, lead the regiment to see that where no offence was meant none should be taken. It is satisfactory to learn that there was no disturbance amongst the native troops, and that nothing could have been better than their attitude and bearing. So marked was this, that the General commanding never once thought it necessary to send any European troops to the part of the station occupied by the native lines, whilst the officers' quarters were, during the 19th and 20th, guarded by detachments of their men. This is the more important as the officers' quarters are between the lines and the Sudder Bazaar, and the general opinion seems to be that the outbreak was a planned attempt to effect the murder of as many officers as possible, a deed which was to have been accomplished by a body of fanatics and the bud-mashes of the Bazaar. But then this story must be taken as only one of the many rumours which have sought to account for the Meerut panic. On the general subject we shall reserve our remarks until we have received further and more correct details of an alarm the reasons for which are at present somewhat inexplicable.—Englishman, May 28.

For forty-eight hours the station was in a panic. On the three black crows principle, the news reached Gazeabad that the demonstration had taken place, and the unarmed residents sent their families into Delhi and implored assistance for themselves. General Troup refused to do more than warn commanding officers to be on the alert until the mysterious document could be translated, which was not till Sunday at noon. The warning was then at once withdrawn, the letter being discovered to be the production of a lunatic, a suspicion further confirmed by his appearance in court on Monday morning. Government should at once publish the letter and all the facts relating to its writer, who is in custody. Meanwhile the Commissioner of Meerut must be blamed for the gross indiscretion of using a letter whose contents he did not know, to set in motion both the civil and military authorities at a time when they seem to have been dwelling on the events of the 10th of May, 1857. If he had reason to suspect evil and could not obtain a translation of the letter, he should have personally communicated with the General instead of sending a letter and a telegram which could not be concealed. We have yet to learn how the letter was intercepted and how it was known that it referred to a demonstration, if no translator could be found till Sunday noon. It is well that all Delhi was not roused. Colonel P. W. Luard, commanding the 25th (Punjab) N.I. there, seems to have acted with praiseworthy discretion. The wild rumours and demands from Ghazeabad did not make him fussy, and cause him to agitate his staff and the troops unnecessarily, but seem to have kept him awake to his duty. With a European army increased to 60,000, a native army reduced to 130,000, and railways all over the country since '57, such panics as these are ridiculous. But they show the necessity of every Englishman being trained to arms and having them at hand—unlike the good folks of Ghazeabad.—Friend of India, May 30.

The Times of India gives the following as a translation of the letter, which sufficiently shows the absurd nature of the "mare's nest":—"The following translation is authentic, as indeed we feel satisfied is the whole of the above; but we are inclined to think that the translator has given to the missive a little more coherence than characterised the original. The letter was written in the Sanscrit character, addressed to Roorkee, to Atmaram, Canal Moonshiee, and Jowalla Nath, Tehsildar, and purports to have been sent from Meerut by one Byjnath:—

Hail fortunate Roorkee.—On the inhabitants of Saharunpore, Deobund, Burdwan, Julahore, Kunkul, and Landour 50,000 will be levied, and on the Bungahs of Purayhee 1,000; on the Goojur zemindars of Gunnespore 5,000; and on the mechanics of Roorkee 100,000.

Having got the white people to write letters, take rent from the Europeans (Feringhees) living in bungalows, in accordance with their incomes. Also take half a beegah of sown wheat from the shopkeepers on each side of the canal. Also start horses and carriages on both banks of the canal, from Hurdwar to Allahabad. The zemindars and putteedars will give help. First, send intimation by post in order that shops and houses may be got ready.

And on the reverse of the letter was written:

The anniversary of the death of Shama Duttjee, Pandey, will be on Jet Buddee Ekum go dovey (corresponding with May 19th and 20th); all friends of his are invited to the feast. Let Teaja Sing, the ruler of Lahore, the powerful one of Cashmere and Jummo, of Roum, of Khorassan, of Toondree Tumtol, of Afghanistan, those of Mecca, Buddreanauth, Jowalla, Rawul Pindia, and of the Kylas hills of the Himalayas, being prepared, be present, bringing gifts. Fakeers, officers, landholders, coming to the cantonment of Meerut—come, bringing supplies to the kotwallee near the collectory house.

DEATH OF MR. WALTER WOODROFFE.—In our issue of last Wednesday we noticed the death of Mr. Walter Woodroffe, acting master pilot, and therein stated that the accounts we had heard of the accident by which he died were conflicting in the details, though all agreed in the main facts. A friend of the deceased has furnished us with the following, which we believe to be substantially correct. Last Sunday evening, while sitting on the window sill of a three-storied house in Entally, his feet being off the floor, he lost his balance, and failing to save himself by grasping at the window, fell backwards out of it. He was picked up with his thigh broken in two places, chest smashed, bowels ruptured, and it is thought, brain concussed. He lingered fifteen minutes, during which time Drs. Dickenson, Fitzpatrick, Shircore, and Palmer were called in, but in vain. Mr. Woodroffe was considered a smart and energetic officer, and his untimely end will be regretted by a large circle of friends. It seems deceased had been suffering from ill health and depression of spirits for some time previous to his death, which had greatly reduced his strength, and it is believed he overbalanced himself from sheer weakness.—Indian Daily News, June 1.

BAD NEWS FROM ORISSA.—The latest reports received from Orissa state that distress has increased, that the supplies of rice are not so plentiful as they were, but that as yet there had been no great demand for Government rice. In northern Balasore but little distress is anticipated, and rice is cheaper. The spring crop has in general been fair in the neighbourhood of Pooree, though affected by the drought in some parts; but as a greater breadth of land than usual was sown, this ought to make up for the deficiency. The condition of the people is improving, as they have at present the means of purchasing the necessary food; but the very poor are still obliged to have recourse to wild roots and herbs. The beginning of the rains is looked forward to with some anxiety, as, owing to the difficulty which will be then experienced in procuring work, the distress must increase, and already the applicants for relief are on the increase. The priests of the Copheshur and Bhubamussur temples are reported to be in great distress. Crime and sickness have not increased. The district superintendent of police reports that the works near Pattamondai are stopped, and the people suffering in consequence; but Mr. Malony says that such is not the case. He also reports that great suffering is caused by the ruinous state of the huts, owing to the increased price of grass preventing the people re-thatching them. A notice has been sent to the Zemindars, as directed by Government, that they must render assistance to their ryots in repairing their houses.

THE TENDERS FOR THE NEW LOANS.—The Englishman says:—Mr. Massey announced in his Budget speech an intention of raising £3,000,000 by loan, and a few weeks since invited tenders for half that amount. These tenders were opened yesterday, at the office of the comptroller general, and gave the following general result:—

Amount required	£1,500,000
Amount taken	1,421,800

Deficiency	£78,200

Subjoined we give the results under each division of the loan:—Fifteen years' loan of Rs. 60,00,000. The highest tender was 103. Above eight annas premium, tenders for Rs. 51,34,000 were accepted. At eight annas premium, tenders for Rs. 8,66,000 were accepted. Ten years' loan of Rs. 50,00,000. Above par, tenders for Rs. 33,28,000 were accepted. At par, tenders for Rs. 11,52,000 were accepted. Deficiency Rs. 5,20,000. 5 Years' loan of Rs. 40,00,000. Above par, tenders for Rs. 11,00,000 were accepted. At par, tenders for Rs. 26,38,000 were accepted. Deficiency Rs. 2,62,000. The loan cannot be considered a success, and may perhaps serve to show Mr. Massey that his financial policy is more unpopular than he is willing to allow. We have yet to wait to see what was the total amount subscribed, and in what proportions the three Presidencies tendered. We have reason to believe, as in the Public Works loan for Bombay, Calcutta has tendered for the lion's share. Report gives the largest tenders to the Bank of Bengal, and the Oriental, and Chartered Mercantile Banks. [The later account, received by telegraph, states that the whole of the loan has been taken up, the greater part of it in Calcutta.]

THE COMMITTEE OF THE RELIEF FUND on the 10th instant applied to the Government of Bengal for an assignment of cash, amounting to Rs. 800,000, for carrying on their relief operations. The Lieutenant-Governor, however, does not see the necessity for any such assignment at present; as he considers that a sum of at least Rs. 533,905 will be available for the use of the committee from balances in hand, the proceeds of sales of rice, and of manufactured articles, and labour returns, whilst he considers it unadvisable to grant the sum of Rs. 300,000 asked for the support of the orphans, at any rate before the expiration of this year; stating as reasons that the committee had made no allowance for the interest that would accrue on such a large sum, or for any reduction in the number of orphans. In order, however, to give as much assistance to the Committee as possible, his Honour has directed that the cost of rice supplied to them shall not in future be paid for in cash, but shall be debited to the relief account, and credited to the importation fund, as there is little doubt that this charge will ultimately have to fall upon the Government.—Englishman, June 10.

HONORARY MAGISTRATES.—We should like to see the appointment of honorary magistrates extended to the native nobility of the country, and not confined to wealthy Zemindars, half-educated Baboos, and learned Moulvies. There have been a few such instances, but it would be more promising if we saw a few more. The latest is the appointment of the Nawab of Ashtee, in the Wurdah district of the Central Provinces, to be honorary magistrate. He is invested with the powers of a subordinate magistrate of the second class, to be exercised within the precincts of the town of Ashtee.—Indian Daily News.

MILITARY JUSTICE IN INDIA.—Imprisonment for four and a half months without trial! This is the present state of an officer of her Majesty's Indian forces. Captain Dobbin, late barrack master at Darjeeling, was placed in arrest on or about the last day of 1866, or the 1st day of January, 1867, and though not yet brought to trial, he has already undergone a punishment more severe than what is inflicted upon many criminals under the penal code. It behoves the authorities to look into this matter immediately.—Darjeeling Advertiser.

MR. MASSEY, in his haste to get up to Simla, overlooked the fact that some articles on which duty was formerly paid have been omitted from the tariffs. We believe amongst others are "corals," which yielded Rs. 10,000 per annum, and "matches." Through the fertility of the imagination of the deputy collector, duty on the latter is now levied under the class "fireworks." What are matters coming to?—Indian Daily News.

THE FRENCH GOVERNMENT have appointed Lieutenant-Colonel Elphinstone, agent to the Punjab and Delhi Railway, as unpaid French Consular Agent for the Punjab and Cashmere.

COAL-SEAMS have been discovered by Capt. Lucie Smith, Deputy Commissioner of Chanda, in the neighbourhood of that station, in two localities, both upon the banks of the river Wurdah, the left bank of which belongs to the Nizam of Hyderabad. The localities where the coal has been found are on the navigable portion of the Wurdah, and if the Godavery navigation be improved as proposed by Mr. Temple, it will assist the working of these seams very materially. The uppermost part of the seams is somewhat decomposed, but the lower parts are declared by Mr. Blandford, of the Geological Survey, to be decidedly superior.

HEAD-QUARTERS OF THE ADMINISTRATION OF THE CENTRAL PROVINCES.—Everybody says that it is in contemplation to transfer the head-quarters of the local administration to Jubbulpore. But what everybody says happens, this time, at least, to be without any foundation in truth. No transfer of the kind is contemplated, or even practicable, and on the best possible authority we now, with all due courtesy, beg to contradict the statement which appeared in a recent number of the Pioneer, to the effect that Sir John Lawrence has approved the scheme.

THE COMMAND OF THE NAGPORE FORCE.—Brigadier General Brice, Royal (Madras) Artillery, has been appointed to the command of the Nagpore Force. He may shortly be expected here.—Central India Times, May 18.

THE AMALGAMATION OF THE BANKS.—A meeting of the shareholders of the Bank of Bombay has been held for the purpose of enabling the shareholders to declare their views as to the future of the Bank, whether it is to be reconstituted or whether it is to be amalgamated with the Bank of Bengal. The directors were unanimous in favour of amalgamation, the Chairman observing that any one who ran his eye over the list of shareholders would see how hopeless it would be to expect to raise new capital among them to reconstitute the Bank, and he moved a resolution in favour of amalgamation. An amendment was moved in favour of reconstruction and the result was that of the shareholders present 19, representing 27 votes, voted in favour of reconstruction, and 20, representing 56 votes, voted in favour of amalgamation. The proxies recorded on each side gave a final majority of 3 in favour of amalgamation. The reconstructionists tried to make a good deal out of a telegram published in the Times of India to the effect that a deputation, consisting of Mr. Crawford, M.P. for London, and Mr. John Fleming, had a very satisfactory interview with the Secretary of State, who was adverse to amalgamation. The result of the meeting shows very clearly what is the opinion of persons on the spot as to what should be done with the bank. Of the votes held by shareholders present at the meeting there were two in favour of amalgamation to each one against it; and notwithstanding the unsparing use of proxies, there was still a clear majority for the only practical scheme which has yet been brought forward for creating a new bank in Bombay. This victory has been gained in spite of an opposition of no very scrupulous character, for we may point out that at the meeting it was distinctly stated that the directors were unanimous for amalgamation, though the Times of India had over and over again audaciously asserted, in order to mislead the public, that there was a division of opinion among them; and it was also ascertained that the deputation to Sir Stafford Northcote had made a precisely similar application to that which Mr. Fitzgerald replied to a month ago, so that our daily contemporary, who professes to be in the confidence of the reconstructionists, must have known when he published on Monday the telegram to Sir Charles Forbes & Co. that the answer of the Secretary of State must have been conditional and not absolute. Effect cannot be given to the resolution passed at the meeting until another meeting which must be called within the next two months has determined by a majority of we believe not less than two-thirds to wind up the present Bank. It is probable this majority will be obtained, for no one can wish to let matters remain as they are, and, as reconstruction has been shown to be impossible, we may now fairly anticipate that the precise proposals of Mr. Dickson will be finally accepted.—Bombay Gazette.

DEATH OF MAJOR-GENERAL SWINLEY.—We regret to have to announce the death of Major-General Swinley, Inspector of Artillery, Southern Division, Bengal Presidency, which took place at his Simla residence on the 31st ultimo. The remains of the deceased were interred next morning with military honours, the funeral party consisting of the Governor-General's band, the Simla Volunteers, pallbearers of high rank, and a numerous cortege of civil, military, and un-official mourners. The Viceroy, the Commander-in-Chief, and their respective staffs, attended. The Major-General was in his fifty-ninth year, and had served forty-three years and some months at the period of his decease. He had been ailing for some time.—Times of India.

NEW LIGHTHOUSE.—The light at the new lighthouse which has been built on the Island of Kenery, at the entrance to the harbour of Bombay, was shown for the first time—in accordance with previous notice, published in England in November last—on the night of the 1st instant. It is a fixed bright light, and is thus easily distinguishable from the Colaba light, which revolves.

"BLOOD RAIN."—A fall of "blood rain," or red coloured rain, is said to have been witnessed at Galle several weeks ago.

THE ABYSSINIAN CAPTIVES.—By the arrival of H.M.'s steamer Victoria, from Aden yesterday afternoon, we hear that Colonel Merewether has returned from Massowah, where he had been for the purpose of forwarding an ultimatum from Government to the Emperor Theodorus, informing that potentate that unless he gave up Mr. Rassam and the other prisoners within a stated time coercive measures would be taken against him. There is no truth in the rumour circulated by our contemporary on Wednesday last, that Colonel Merewether had proceeded to Massowah in consequence of a report that the power of the Emperor had collapsed and that he was a fugitive. There is, however, reason to believe that Theodorus has lost a very large portion of his empire in the late internecine wars! But at the time when the Victoria left Massowah he was at Magdullah, where the captives are likewise. A letter which has been written by Dr. Blanc, one of Mr. Rassam's companions in the unlucky mission for the release of Consul Cameron, to an Indian officer, and which bears so late a date as 31st March last, will be found in another column and will be read with much interest.—Bombay Gazette.

SURGEON SYLVESTER.—It affords us much pleasure to notice the re-appointment of Surgeon J. H. Sylvester to the Grant Medical College is a post for which he is eminently adapted—that of second physician of the Jamsjee Jeejeebhoy Hospital with the chair of physiology in the college. The governor and Dr. Arnott have, in this selection, made one of the very best appointments as regards the Grant College, while they have only rewarded Dr. Sylvester as he deserved.—Times of India.

No. 515.—The following letter from the Right hon. the Sec. of State for India, is published for general information:—

India Office, London, April 8.

To H.E. the Right Hon. Gov. gen. in Council.
Sir,—I have to inform you that the Queen has approved of a proposal to substitute a royal crown on the colours of regiments of native infantry for the lion and crown, the crest of the East India Company.

2. This alteration will be made as demands for new colours are received.—I have, &c.,

(Sd.) STAFFORD H. NORTHGOTE.

THE STAFF CORPS.

May 15.—No. 516.—The Right Hon. the Gov. gen. in Council is pleased to publish, for general information, the following extract from a despatch from the Right Hon. the Sec. of State for India, No. 95, dated March 30, paras. 1, 2, 3, and 4:—

1. My attention has been drawn to the large number of officers of all grades belonging to the Indian army who have availed themselves of the opportunity offered them to join the several staff corps under Lord Cranborne's despatch No. 159, dated August 8, 1866, and to the probable effect which will result from the continued operation of the rule laid down in paragraphs 79 and 80 of military letter to India, No. 194 of June 17, 1864, by expediting the regimental promotion of the comparatively small number who may have preferred to remain on the list of the Indian army, and of the officers of the general list, who have hitherto had considerable advantages in promotion.

2. It seems certain that the promotion of both these classes of officers will be now greatly accelerated by the operation of the rule in question, so that they will probably gain an advantage in this respect over the officers who have joined the staff corps. The probability of such a result was not lost sight of in the preparation of the despatch of August 8 last; but it was not thought advisable in giving to the officers of the Indian army the choice of either remaining on the list of that army or of joining the staff corps to interfere with the free exercise of that option between the two lines of promotion as then standing, by the withdrawal of a concession which had been deliberately granted to the officers of the Indian army.

3. It was, therefore, not proposed in that despatch to interfere with the rule under which the names of officers of the several staff corps, on being brought up to the position of lieutenant-colonels on the regimental list of the arm of the service to which they formerly belonged, are removed from that list, and promotions made in their places.

4. Whatever may be the effect of the continued operations of this rule upon the relative rate of promotion among the officers who have and those who have not joined the staff corps, under the conditions of Lord Cranborne's despatch No. 159 of Aug. 8, 1866, the choice on both sides has been freely made, and I do not propose to make any alteration.

The foregoing decision does not apply to the officers of the gen. list, regarding whose promotion a special reference has been made by H.M.'s Govt., the result of which will be hereafter promulgated.

No. 517.—The undermen. officer is perm. to proceed to Europe on furl.:—Major F. A. Dickins, of the Bengal staff corps, dist. superint. of police, 3rd class, Seonee, for 2 yrs., from date of embarkation from Bombay.

SPECIAL LEAVE PRIVATE AFFAIRS, C.S.

May 17.—No. 218.—Read the following despatch from the Right Hon. the Secy. of State for India:—

Financial.

India Office, London, March 23.

No. 88.—To H.E. the Right Hon. the Gov. Gen. in India.

Sir,—Para. 1. I have considered in Council your financial letter dated Jan. 10 last, No. 12, submitting for favourable consideration an application from Mr. M. J. Shaw Stewart, Bombay Civil Service, requesting that civil servants, who, at the date of the publication of the financial despatch, dated Nov. 25, 1862, No. 193, "were entitled to leave of absence on urgent private affairs, and had not previously availed themselves of it, should be permitted to count the time of such leave of absence, when afterwards granted, as part of their period of residence."

2. As special leave on private affairs was only to be granted by the several Govts. of India on very urgent grounds, and could never be claimed as a matter of right, I do not consider that any officer can be held to have been "entitled" to such leave at any specified period, and I must decline to sanction a modification of the rule which provides that leave of absence, taken under section 9 of the Civil Absentee Rules, shall not be counted as residence.

I have, &c.,

(Signed) STAFFORD H. NORTHCOTE.

No. 294.—Mr. R. W. Mathews is apptd. to offic. as 2nd asst. acct. gen., Bombay, in the 4th class of the financial dept.

Mr. C. J. Fleming, att. to the office of the acct. gen., Bombay, to offic. in the 5th class of the financial dept.

FURLOUGHS UNCOVENANTED SERVICE.

Financial.—No. 18.

India Office, London, Feb. 7.

To H.E. the Right Hon. the Governor in Council, Fort St. George.

My Lord,—I have considered in council your revenue letter dated Dec. 11 last, No. 57, forwarding a memorial from N. C. Gopala Charry, late treasurer in the office of the collector of Bellary, praying that he may either be allowed a furlough for one year in continuation of the two years' leave on medical certificate granted to him by your Government, or that those two years may be allowed to reckon as service qualifying for pension.

2. Both of the requests made by the memorialist are inadmissible under the rules for the grant of leave of absence and pensions to uncovenanted servants in India, and I concur in the opinion expressed by you that there are no special grounds for relaxing them in his favour.—I have, &c.,

(Signed) CRANBORNE.

OFFICERS TRAVELLING ON LEAVE.

No. 545.—With reference to G.O.G. No. 190 dated Feb. 20, the following letter from the Right Hon. the Sec. of State for India is published for general information:—

Military.—No. 113.

To H.E. the Right Hon. the Gov. Gen. of India in Council.

Sir,—I have received and considered in Council your military letter, dated Feb. 28, 1867, No. 40, having reference to Lord Cranborne's despatch, No. 288 of Dec. 24, 1866, extending to all officers of the Bengal and Madras armies, holding permanent appointments, situated above Allahabad and north of the Kistnah respectively, the rule which allows regimental officers whose corps are similarly situated to land at Bombay, and to enjoy, on reporting their arrival at that presidency, the same advantages as they are entitled to on arrival at Calcutta or Madras; and suggesting for consideration further modifications of the existing rules affecting officers proceeding to or returning from England on leave.

2. In consideration, mainly, of the improvement that has taken place in the facility for officers to travel throughout India, your Government propose—

1st.—That the existing restrictive limit as to the part of India whereat on officer returning from England shall report his return to duty be altogether removed, and that "an officer's return be considered to commence on the date of his report of arrival at whatever port he may in good faith disembark with that object."

2nd. That, in order to place all officers serving in India on a fair and equal footing, the present regulation may be so far modified that "officers who may be absent on sick leave at other than their own Presidencies may proceed thence direct to Europe, if granted leave on medical certificate by the Local Government, such leave being reckoned to commence from the date of embarkation, or that on which the pilot quits the vessel, as the case may be, according to the practice of the Presidency from which they embark."

3. I approve of the existing rules being modified, in the manner proposed by your Govt. in both the above cases; the revised rule in the latter case being brought into operation from the date of publication of your G.O. upon the subject, and made applicable to all officers whose leave to Europe may be published in the Gazette upon a date subsequent to that order.—I have, &c.,

(Signed) STAFFORD H. NORTHCOTE.

No. 547.—With reference to G.G.O. No. 76, dated Jan. 23, 1866, H.E. the Gov. gen. in Council is pleased to direct that the station of Darjeeling be retransferred from the Eastern Frontier Brigade to the Presidency div., and that of Dacca from the latter to the former.

"I have considered in Council your military letter, No. 243, dated Sept. 21 last, transmitting correspondence regarding the title of an asst. surg. in med. charge of a British regt. or brig. of art. during the absence of a surg. on 'priv. leave,' to the special remuneration of Rs. 150 per mensem, laid down in para. 9 [G.G.O. No. 507 of 1864] of Sir Charles Wood's despatch, No. 152, dated May 16, 1864.

"In reply, I beg to inform you that the special grant of Rs. 150 referred to, was sanctioned to asst. surgs. of H.M.'s service in India who might, by the exigency of the service, be placed temp. in med. charge of a British regt.

"It should be allowed, therefore, in all cases of an asst. surg. succeeding to the temp. charge on the death, removal, or absence on m.c., of the surg., but it was not intended that any such extra charge should be incurred as a consequence of the regtl. surg. being absent on private leave, and for his own convenience."

PASSAGE MONEY TO MEDICAL OFFICERS.

No. 366.—The following despatch from the Sec. of State to the Govt. of India, No. 66, dated Feb. 28, is published:—

"The Government of Madras have referred to me the case of an officer who had been recommended by a board of medical officers to proceed to England by the overland route leaving India by the first opportunity, and inquire, with reference to para. 9 of Lord de Grey's despatch of 9th June, 1866, No. 87, whether in future similar cases the steamer rate of passage money, or the lower rate for a sailing vessel, be granted.

"2. I referred the question to the Secretary of State for War, with the view of ascertaining the practice in like cases under his department, and I have been informed that, in the case of an officer coming home from the colonies to appear before a medical board, the route by which his passage would be provided would depend on the recommendation of the medical officers on the spot. It therefore appears to me desirable that only in those special cases where the overland route is expressly sanctioned by a medical board, or the exigencies of the service require it, should the higher or steam rate of passage be granted. In all other cases of officers entitled to passage, the sailing allowance only should be granted.

"3. I request that you will communicate the subject of this despatch to the Governments of Madras and Bombay respectively, for their guidance in all such cases."

DR. LIVINGSTONE POSSIBLY ALIVE.—Yesterday morning the Bombay Government received despatches from Dr. Seward, the British Consul at Zanzibar, dated the 28th of April, in which the writer expresses strong hopes of the safety of Dr. Livingstone. It appears from the despatches that Dr. Seward had instituted inquiries concerning Dr. Livingstone amongst the people who had recently arrived at the East Coast from the part of the interior where the Doctor is alleged to have been murdered; but none of them had heard any rumours concerning his death. The news thus received by Government is exactly a month later than that brought by the Nadir Shah, which was to the 28th March; and although it is of a negative character, the Consul at Zanzibar appears to consider it to be of hopeful significance.—Bombay Gazette.

HOME.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—JULY 1.

THE SIMLA COURT-MARTIAL.

Mr. OTWAY asked the Secretary of State for India what was the exact sum which it was proposed to pay to Captain Jervis in consequence of the decision of the Simla Court-martial; whether any order for the payment of that sum had been given; and, if so, by whose authority, and from what fund the money to be paid to Captain Jervis was to be taken. He also wished to ask whether the Subsistence Fund had not hitherto been entirely devoted to providing soldiers with subsistence money on the way from the place where they were dismissed from the service to the place of destination, and had not been devoted to any other purpose.

Sir S. NORTHCOTE said the sum proposed to be paid to Captain Jervis was £1,800. He did not agree that this was a commutation of the subsistence sum which would be paid to that officer upon his removal from the army. The order had been made by the authority of the Secretary of State for India in Council, and the fund out of which it would be paid was that of the general revenues of India. Subsistence allowance was made in all cases in which officers were removed from the service, either for misconduct or for other reasons. He held in his hand a paper containing a list of subsistence allowances which had been granted, the substance of which he would state to the House, suppressing the names of the gentlemen who had received them. One officer of the Bengal army had been removed from the service on account of a gross abuse of official authority, and he had received a pension of £292. A second had been removed from the same army for falsehood and fraud, and had received an allowance of £50—(laughter). Another had been removed for drunkenness, and received £30. A fourth had been removed for fraud, and received £35—(laughter). A fifth had been removed for the same reason, and received £20. A sixth had been removed for drunkenness, and received £50; and a seventh had been removed for embezzlement of the public money, and received £50—(laughter). He had thought it desirable, although the question hardly pointed to it, to mention these cases for the information of the House. It appeared that it had uniformly been the practice of the Indian Government to grant a subsistence allowance to officers removed from the service, although they had been removed for offences of the character he had described. When the question was put to him by the Secretary of War what the Indian Government would do in the event of Captain Jervis's removal from the service, he (Sir S. Northcote) being then new to office, had naturally inquired what the practice had been, and he had been informed that it had been uniform to grant allowances more or less to all officers, according to the circumstances of the case. When, therefore, Captain Jervis was removed, some allowance was of course made to him. He believed that the highest allowance to which he would be entitled would be £127 a year, and when it was represented to the Indian Government by the Commander-in-Chief and the Secretary of State for War that an officer of the Royal army would be allowed to sell his commission and that the value of that commission would be about £1,800, the Indian Government ascertained that that was rather less than the maximum, and they therefore stated that they would be ready to grant that amount. He was not responsible for the practice which had prevailed, but the case of Captain Jervis was one in which he thought no deviation should be made from the ordinary custom.

Captain VIVIAN: Will the right hon.

gentleman have any objection to a lay a copy of the paper he has read from on the table?

Sir S. NORTHCOTE: I have no objection to do so, omitting the names of the officers.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—JULY 2.

THE SIMLA COURT-MARTIAL.

Mr. BRETT, in moving an address for the copy of the proceedings of the Simla court-martial, said the Secretary for War had communicated to him his intention to accede to the motion, and he should not therefore discuss all the circumstances of the case. He wished, however, to make one observation. The House was aware that Captain Jervis was tried by court-martial upon charges of fraud, committed by him against Sir William Mansfield, his commanding officer in India, and also upon a charge of insubordination arising out of those charges. The court-martial acquitted him of the fraud, but found him guilty of the insubordination, and sentenced him to be dismissed the service, adding, however, this recommendation to their sentence:—"The Court having awarded a sentence of dismissal, and marked their sense of the prisoner's military misconduct, do now beg to recommend him to mercy in consideration of the extenuating circumstances disclosed in the proceedings." The extenuating circumstances were that he had been wrongfully charged with fraud, but the commanding officer confirmed the sentence of dismissal, which was the only punishment that could have been inflicted on him had he been guilty of the fraud. Under those circumstances it was apparent to him that the confirmation of that sentence by the Commander-in-Chief in India must have been transmitted to the Commander-in-Chief in this country, and that the Commander here must have written a despatch to the Commander in India. He thought it material that that despatch should be laid on the table of the House, and he, therefore, gave notice that on Tuesday next he should move for its production.

Mr. OTWAY wished to move an addition to the notice of the hon. and learned gentleman, as he believed there was something farther which it was necessary to lay on the table. The Secretary for India stated in the House yesterday, to the astonishment of many members, that it had been for a long time customary to bestow on officers dismissed from the service in India for offences of the most scandalous and disgraceful character a very considerable pension, granted out of the taxes which were raised from the people. The decision arrived at in India affected the discipline of the whole of the Indian army; and he asked how, after an officer in India had been convicted of forgery and drunkenness, and then been given such a pension, it could be supposed that officers in England who had committed similar offences could sit down without the same reward? It was absolutely essential that the proceedings of the court-martial should be laid before the House, and also those in reference to the grant of £1,800 to Captain Jervis.

Sir J. PAKINGTON said it was quite true that he had stated it to be unusual to produce the written proceedings of courts-martial; but there had been exceptions to the rule, and in this case, as his hon. friend had stated that he intended to move that Captain Jervis be reinstated in his position in the army, he (Sir J. Pakington) could not withhold these papers. His hon. and learned friend had intimated his intention to move for despatches and the honourable gentleman opposite to move for further papers; but he hoped that they would not press those parts of the motion at present, as he (Sir J. Pakington) had not had an opportunity of consulting the Commander-in-Chief, who was at present in Paris; but so far as he (Sir J. Pakington) was concerned he was willing to produce the papers and correspondence. After this intimation he hoped that the House would not at present discuss the matter further, and he also hoped that the hon. gentleman opposite would not complicate the matter by mixing up the practice of courts-martial in India with the practice of the Indian Government in reference to the disposition of the subsistence fund.

Mr. D. GRIFFITH said he did not clearly understand when the papers would be presented; but, looking at the late period of the session, he hoped there would not be any unnecessary delay on the part of the authorities. The House and the public were anxious to ascertain what were called "the rights of the case."

The amendment was then withdrawn and the original motion agreed to.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—JULY 4.

THE CENTRAL INDIA PRIZE MONEY.

Mr. T. CHAMBERS asked the Secretary of State for War when the Central India prize money would be distributed, and what had been the cause of the long delay of nine years.

Sir J. PAKINGTON said there could be no doubt that great delay had taken place, and that it was vexatious—(hear, hear)—but every possible exertion would be made to prevent further delay. It had arisen from protracted litigation, which had been brought to a close by the judgment of Dr. Lushington. Nothing remained to be done but to communicate with the Government of India.

THE DISCONTENT IN CEYLON.

Mr. WATKIN asked the Under-Secretary of State for the Colonies whether the attention of Government had been called to the discontent at present prevailing in Ceylon on account of the unfavourable contrast presented by the constitution and operation of the existing Government in Ceylon as compared with those of Jamaica and Trinidad, and of the West Indian colonies generally; and to the fact that several of the most eminent non-official European residents and influential natives had formed a "league" with a view of still further pressing for some alterations in the constitution and powers of the legislative council by increasing the number of unofficial members and making their office elective, and by giving to the council so constituted that freedom of control and appropriation of the public revenue drawn alone from the colony which has before been promised but never granted; and whether any memorials from the colony or other papers would be laid before the House.

Mr. ADDERLEY, who spoke with his back to the gallery, was understood to say that the memorials had been received, and that it was not the intention to grant the requests of the colonists. The memorials and papers would be presented to the House.

SCINDE RAILWAY COMPANY.

The twelfth annual general meeting of shareholders in this railway was held on Tuesday, the 25th ult., at the London Tavern; W. P. Andrew, Esq., the chairman of the board of directors, presiding.

The notice convening the meeting having been read by Mr. S. H. R. Parry, the acting secretary, the report, which has already been published, was taken as read.

The Chairman, in moving its adoption, said: Gentlemen, the report which has been in your hands now for several days contains as usual a full, detailed, and truthful account of the various undertakings committed to the charge of your directors. Before I go into further details, there are four points to which I shall refer, because they are particularly deserving of notice. One is the great improvement of the harbour of Kurrachee, the second is the steady increase of the traffic of the Scinde Railway, and the diminution of its working charges; the third is the fact that we have been able to conclude the arrangements for the purchase of a rival undertaking, which has exercised a most prejudicial influence on the success of your flotilla, and the fourth is the opening of the first section of the Delhi Railway to Meerut. The traffic return has not been sent to me in an official shape, as I expected, by the last mail, but in amount it has exceeded expectation, and taxes to the utmost the resources of the company. That part of the country through which the section passes is very densely peopled, and in the highest state of cultivation. It is known intimately to several distinguished persons in this room, and one who has held high office recently in India will, I have no doubt, be kind enough to give you information which his high position and recent experience will render extremely valuable and interesting. When I first brought the Delhi Railway under your notice I then stated, from statistical details compiled on the spot under the direction of the present excellent Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab, Sir Donald McLeod—then the Financial Commissioner of the Punjab—how densely peopled were the districts through which the Delhi line was destined to pass. I stated that the population was from two hundred and fifty to five hundred to every square mile, and that statement has been corroborated by the valuable report by Mr. Chicheley Plowden, regarding the statistics of the North-Western Provinces, printed by order of the Government of India. Amongst other things he states that in the district through which the first section of the Delhi Railway proceeds, the population per square mile is 508, and that the population generally in the north-west exceeds in density that of all the countries in Europe, Belgium excepted. There is another remarkable fact mentioned in that report, namely, that there is proportionately more cultivated ground in the North-West Provinces than in Great Britain, so that you have in the Delhi Railway a magnificent property, and one that must return a very large percentage on the capital embarked, for you have in the country all the elements to bring about so desirable a result. The country between Lahore and Delhi is fertile, level, and densely peopled, the natives being a thriving and stirring people. I may mention also that the Delhi Railway is, in fact, the continuation of the East India Railway, and if the East India Railway is already paying a higher dividend than the guaranteed interest, and requires but additional rail and rolling stock to enable it to give a still larger return, I say if you consider these facts, and also that the Delhi line will only cost £15,000 per mile, instead of £20,000 per mile, which the East India cost, I think anything I may state as to the prospects of the line, when viewed through the light of such favourable circumstances, cannot appear as exaggeration. The Delhi Railway will proceed section by section every year, I trust every half-year; and I hope to be able to report to you the opening of an additional section before long. No part of it can be opened without adding enormously to the traffic and profit of the part already open. When completed it will join the Punjab line at Umritsur, the great commercial emporium of the Punjab, and will thus have communication with Lahore, the ancient capital of the Sikhs. The Punjab Railway has suffered, like other railways in India, from the recent floods, and it has suffered more through the loss of the traffic that would naturally have flowed into it by the destruction of the common roads of the country. Still, it increased in traffic up to the end of the year, but it can never fulfil the just expectations formed of it until it is continued down the valley of the Indus and joins the Scinde Railway at Kotree. The line, until it is connected with Delhi and Lahore, and all the cities in upper India and the Punjab, and finds its way to the sea at Kurrachee, can never have the full tide of prosperity it ought to enjoy. The flotilla has worked without sustaining any loss, but for the last half-year with diminished profit. From the first inauguration of the enterprise we have suffered severely from a most pertinacious opposition—an opposition which has injured us and destroyed the just expectations in a great degree of the proprietors, but finally ended in perfect destruction to its originators. That opposition is now happily ended. We have applied to the Government for sanction to the arrangements entered into for the transfer of the vessels of the Oriental Inland Steam Company on the Indus at a rate which will be considered, when I am in a position to communicate the exact terms, highly advantageous to our proprietors. We shall be enabled not only to work the flotilla with better profit, but to improve immensely the accommodation for receiving the traffic of the Punjab and Scinde lines. We shall soon have our additional fleet of four large steamers, which have been built by the best builders in this country, namely Messrs. Samuda Brothers, Laird Brothers, and Napier and Sons. When I name those firms, if success and efficiency be not obtained the efficient navigation of the Indus may be given up as hopeless. Before I leave the subject of the flotilla I will refer to a matter which has given uneasiness to certain shareholders. It has been said that there is something different in the contract between the Government and the company regarding the guarantee. The guarantee is precisely the same, and if there be any difference, my learned friend sitting next me (the solicitor of the company) says the guarantee on the flotilla is, if anything, the better of the two. I can see nothing better than the guarantee which the Government have been enlightened enough to give to the railways, and I can assure you that the guarantees on the flotilla and railway are substantially the same. The Scinde line, as I remarked, has been steadily progressing in profit, and steadily diminishing in the working expenses. But you will see the working expenses are still excessively high, and I must give two reasons for it. One is a reason which I am afraid we cannot remove under existing circumstances. It arises from the enormous quantity of sidings. Everybody knows how expensive shunting is, and how destructive it proves to engines. We have altogether about forty miles of sidings, twenty of these being at one terminus at Kotree, where we are obliged to have them for the transfer of goods to the flotilla. This may be dispensed with when we come to continue the line, as I trust we shall, to the valley of the Indus. Then the workshops and other sources of expenditure will be spread over a much larger and more important work. The other cause of the largeness of the working expenses has been the over-zealous—in fact, the misdirected zeal which led to a diminution of expenditure more rapid than should have been attempted, and the result has not been so favourable as could have been wished; but I trust that may be remedied. I now come to the most important subject connected with your railway, namely, the harbour of Kurrachee. I am exceedingly anxious that the state of the harbour may be laid before you. It has been said that the Government are not going to improve the harbour, and that the money spent has been thrown away; but, if the harbour is incapable of improvement, how is the railway to succeed? The impressions regarding the want of progress in the improvement of the harbour have arisen from a theory set afloat by a gallant officer in the service of the Government. That gallant officer stands alone in his opinion, and you will see what that opinion is worth when I place the theory before you with facts which I shall adduce. This gallant officer imagines there is a current along the coast at the mouth of the Indus which conducts the silt of the Indus into the harbour of Kurrachee, that the coast has increased by the deposit, and that therefore, in process of time the harbour of Kurrachee must be silted up. The gallant officer, after making this statement and reading it before a scientific institution, afterwards finds that when he compares the charts of the harbour recently made with the charts made twenty years before, that it (the harbour) had improved. He then starts another theory, upsetting his previous theory, and states that the silt was met by another current which sent it somewhere else. This gallant officer floats 800 bottles from the mouth of the Indus to show that where the bottles would go the silt would go, expecting that the bottles would go into the Kurrachee harbour; but strangely enough not a single bottle got into that harbour. Even if they had gone in it would not have proved that the silt, which is heavier, would have gone in. The improvements in Kurrachee, I do not hesitate to say, have been most successful. The Government have thought fit to do only part of the plan designed by Mr. Walker, the late eminent engineer, leaving the most important part undone, and expecting that some improvement would be obtained before they undertook more extensive works. That had been done, but it was most illogical to expect that anything satisfactory would result from a part. The works for the removal of the bar cost £75,000, and not a million, as somebody said, and the result had been that the acreage for vessels had been augmented from 70 to 109 acres. That the trade of Kurrachee has gone on increasing has been denied on equally unstable foundation. The municipal dues, which in the years 1855-56 were £4,000, were in 1865-1866 £24,001, and the commerce, which was in 1855-56 £1,200,000, amounted in 1865-66 to nearly five millions. The population has also increased in the same period from 40,000 to 60,000. There are several gentlemen here who can speak from experience of the capacity of the harbour, and I trust that one gentleman at least, if not two, will say a few words regarding it. My honourable friend Sir Herbert Maddock will second the adoption of the report, and afterwards, perhaps, Mr. George Campbell will say something regarding the prospects of the Delhi Railway.

Sir Herbert Maddock then seconded the motion in favour of the adoption of the report.

Mr. George Campbell (Chief Commissioner Central Provinces) bore his personal testimony to the fertility and productiveness of the district between Delhi and Lahore. He knew almost every village between those two places, and the result of his experience, derived from an intimate knowledge of the country, induced him to take the most sanguine view of the future prospects of the Delhi Railway. The country through which the line ran was very populous, and the people were a very energetic race. There was also a concentrated traffic at that part where India was naturally divided, and an immense amount of interchangeable commodities. The climatic condition was such that when there was a bad season in Hindustan there was a good one at the Punjab, and vice versa. In all great famines that had been the case, and during the recent famine which affected Bengal and Orissa there was an unusually prosperous crop in the Punjab. Unfortunately the railway did not at that time go beyond Delhi, and the station there was blocked by enormous quantities of traffic. When there was a railway capable of carrying the present traffic of men, grain, and goods, how much more would the traffic be?

Mr. John Fleming (of Messrs. Smith, Fleming, and Co.), a merchant intimately connected with Kurrachee, said that the prosperity of that port, so far as the harbour was concerned, was perfectly certain. The expenditure of the £75,000 referred to by the chairman had effected great improvement in the harbour. If Mr. Walker's plan had been carried out the entire opening of the harbour would be free; but as it was, he found that within the last ten years the trade of Kurrachee had more than quadrupled. In its present state it was second to no harbour in India except Bombay, and except during the stormy months of July and August it could be entered by vessels of the largest class.

Captain Carpenter, in the course of some remarks, urged the desirability of a speedy and satisfactory arrangement with the Oriental Inland Steam Company. With regard to the experiment of floating the bottles at the mouth of the Indus, speaking as a sailor, he said the way in which the bottles would go was the test of the way in which the silt would go.

The Chairman, having expressed his gratification at the remarks of Mr. Campbell and Mr. Fleming said, in reply to a question from a Shareholder, that the capital of the Delhi Railway of two and a-half millions was about to be increased by the addition of a similar amount. When they had completed the undertaking they would have a magnificent property.

Mr. Fleming, again referring to the harbour of Kurrachee, said that in March last twenty-six feet of water were found at the bar. Last spring vessels of 1,400 tons register entered the port and took away troops.

The Chairman having replied to other questions, the report was unanimously adopted.

Mr. King, in moving the re-election of the chairman, warmly eulogised the ability, energy, and efficiency of that gentleman.

Sir Herbert Maddock seconded the motion. He had for fifteen years the privilege of the intimate acquaintance of Mr. Andrew, whose energy and ability in the promotion of the railways in India elicited general admiration. The services of the honourable chairman were beyond their praise, but still the proprietors might greatly aid his exertions by bringing the force of public opinion to bear upon the Government in urging the construction of the connecting line on the Indus; for unless that was accomplished they would never realise the full value of the associated undertakings.

The motion was carried by acclamation.

The Chairman briefly acknowledged the compliment, and moved the re-election of Col. Sir Frederick Arthur as a director.

The motion was carried unanimously, as was also one in favour of the re-election of Mr. Edward Thornton, C.B., as auditor.

A cordial vote of thanks to the chairman terminated the proceedings.

MISCELLANEOUS.

BILLS ON INDIA.—The biddings for Government bills on India took place on Wednesday, the 3rd inst., at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were: to Calcutta, 11,33,600 rupees; to Madras, 2,60,000 rupees; and to Bombay, 70,000 rupees. The minimum price was fixed at 1s. 11d. on all the presidencies. Tenders at and above the minimum will receive in full. These results show a further diminution in the demand for means of remittance to the East, inasmuch as, of the £270,000 of bills offered, only £146,360 have been taken at the official minimum.

THE DEPARTURE OF THE NEW INDIAN TRANSPORTS.—The first of the new Indian transports will leave Portsmouth on the 15th of September, with, we believe, the 4th Hussars and detachments for Calcutta, where the troops will be due on the 29th of October. The second will leave Queenstown on the 9th of October with the 2nd battalion 60th Rifles, which will arrive at Bombay on the 12th of November. The subsequent departures outwards will be the 1st battalion 6th, 92nd, and 85th Regiments, and detachments for Bombay on the 19th and 27th November, 4th and 12th of January, and 19th and 27th of February, the passage in each case being about a month and four days. The first departure homewards will be from Calcutta with the 2nd battalion Rifle Brigade, probably on the 21st of September, arriving at Portsmouth on the 4th of November; the next from Bombay with the 35th (probably) on the 11th of October, arriving home on the 12th of November; the next from Calcutta with the 7th Dragoon Guards, on the 11th of November, arriving on the 25th of December, and five others from Bombay, the last reaching England on the 3rd of April. The transports stop at Malta for two days on this side of the Isthmus, and two at Aden between Suez and Bombay, to coal. The new troopships (Euphrates, Junna, and Malabar) have positive orders not to touch, on their passage out, at the Mauritius, owing to the alarming prevalence of yellow fever at the island.—Army and Navy Gazette.

INDIAN RAILWAY DEBENTURES.—It appears that at the date of the last return the amount of Indian railway debentures outstanding was £16,123,460, of which £7,249,460 were convertible into stock, and £8,873,000 inconvertible. These debentures, which are all guaranteed by the Secretary of State for India in Council, are divided as follows between the various companies:—East Indian, £6,642,600; Madras, £1,795,550; Great Indian Peninsula, £4,000,000; Scinde, £330,800; Indus Flotilla, £25,400; Punjab, £500,000; Bombay, Baroda, and Central India, £1,249,595; Eastern Bengal, £610,500; Calcutta and South-Eastern, £112,850; and Great Southern of India, £204,800. It has been determined to restrict as far as possible the raising capital by means of debentures, especially by those debentures which are not convertible into stock.

DEPARTURE OF THE CALCUTTA AND CHINA MAILS.—(SOUTHAMPTON, July 4.)—The Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamship Nyanza sailed hence to-day with the mails for Gibraltar, the Mediterranean, Egypt, Aden, Ceylon, Calcutta, and China. She took out forty passengers and a general cargo, including gold coin, £677. 10s.; silver coin, 7s.; gold thread, £1,681. 4s. 6d.; and watches and jewellery, £838. 5s.

ARRIVAL OF THE HEAVY INDIA AND CHINA MAILS.—(SOUTHAMPTON, July 2.)—The Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamship China, Captain Roskell, with the heavy portion of the above mails, arrived this afternoon. She brings sixty-five passengers, and specie, value £7,134. 18s.

TEMPORARY OFFICES.

26, Old Broad-street, London, E.C.

The object of this Company is to establish, under one control and management in London, a direct and thoroughly effective line of telegraph, via Egypt and Aden, to India, with extensions hereafter to Singapore, China, Japan, and Australia. The route of the proposed line (which is shown on plans, to be obtained at the offices of the Company), is the route by which all the mails, passengers, troops, and overland merchandise between this country and the East are forwarded.

The present condition of telegraphic communication with India is most unsatisfactory. Commercial messages usually occupy many days in their transmission, and arrive, not only in a mutilated and frequently unintelligible form, but also without regard to priority of date, thereby misleading those who place any reliance upon them. From the many countries, differing in language and administration, through which the messages pass, it is impossible to obtain either explanation or redress; while the cost, distance, and delays are too great to admit of corrections being obtained by repetition.

The necessity for a thorough change of the existing system has been repeatedly urged by the several Chambers of Commerce in India, and is universally felt in this country. The establishment of the direct telegraphic route to India, by way of Aden, as proposed by this Company, forms one of the most important recommendations of the recent Parliamentary Committee on East India communications.

Under a well-organised system, the average time of transmission of a message between London and Bombay ought not to exceed six hours. In order to effect this, and to secure uninterrupted communication between England, Egypt, Aden, and India, provisional arrangements have been made for the transfer to this Company, when the line between Egypt and Bombay is completed, of earlier in this Company desire, of—

1. A concession from the Italian Government for the exclusive use, for forty years, of a line of telegraph from Suez (where the French line terminates) to Modica, in Sicily, to be worked by English Clerks appointed by this Company.

2. The agreement for a lease from the British Government of the existing Malta and Alexandria Cable for the term of forty-two years from May, 1865.

3. The agreement for a lease for twenty-one years (with the option of purchase) of the existing land lines of the Telegraph to India Company, between Alexandria, Cairo, and Suez, together with the concessions and franchises held by that Company for establishing telegraphs from Egypt to Aden and India.

Between Modica and Malta the messages will, for the present, pass by the short line of the Mediterranean Extension Telegraph Company; but the Italian Government have granted a concession, which will be vested in this Company for continuing their independent line from Sicily by a submarine cable direct to Tripoli, or other point on the African coast, and it is proposed to exercise this right at an early period in order to secure a second route (available in the event of interruption on the existing lines) between Sicily and Alexandria.

The direct route from London to Suez will, it is anticipated, be in actual work during the present year, and the Company have entered into a contract with the Telegraph Construction and Maintenance Company for making and laying a thoroughly efficient line of telegraph (about 3,650 nautical miles in length) from Suez to Bombay, including station buildings, instruments, and all expenses, for the sum of £1,100,000, of which £100,000 is to be retained by this Company until the successful completion of the whole of the work, £95,000 of the contract sum is to be paid in shares of this Company, and £95,000 in debentures. The contract provides for the completion of the entire line from Suez to Bombay, in working order, to the satisfaction of this Company's engineers. The entire line is to be completed in the course of next year, or at latest in the May following.

It will be seen therefore, that, except through France and over the short line of sixty miles from Modica to Malta (which, however, is worked by English clerks), this Company will have under their own management, and worked exclusively by an English staff, the whole line of telegraph from England to Bombay, an advantage, the possession of which will tend greatly to ensure a rapid and accurate transmission of messages.

It is scarcely necessary to remark upon the vast commercial as well as national importance of this undertaking. The number of messages transmitted between England and India by the present slow and uncertain route, via the Persian Gulf, with all the objections and uncertainties attending it, was last year over 30,000, with an average of thirty words per message; and the directors of this Company are assured by India merchants and other competent judges that, with a direct and reliable route worked as now proposed, the number of messages by the new line will at once be treble those now sent.

The cost of acquiring the lines from Suez to Modica and Malta to Alexandria will be £100,000, payable in cash or shares, plus any necessary expenditure or liability incurred with the sanction of this Company.

The rent payable under the lease from the Telegraph to India Company will be £1,500 per annum, to be increased to £5,000 on completion of this Company's line to India, the higher rent being payable only while the submarine line is in work. The Company have the option of redeeming this rent, and of purchasing the whole property of the lessors for £50,000 in cash, or shares, at the choice of the purchasers.

The return from the Company's lines, when completed to Bombay, is estimated upon the basis of the present charge of £5. 1s. per message of twenty words from London to Bombay, as follows:—

ANNUAL RECEIPTS.

Proportion due to the lines between Suez and Alexandria in respect of traffic between England and Egypt (the actual average of the receipts on the Malta and Suez Lines for the last four years) ... £58,550
 Proportion due to the lines between Suez and Bombay (6,307 miles) in respect of traffic between England and India—estimated at 100 messages per day each way, averaging thirty words each ... 446,210

Gross receipts ... £504,760

ANNUAL EXPENSES.

Rent to English Government for Malta and Alexandria Line ... £15,000
 Ditto to Telegraph to India Company (maximum amount) ... 5,000
 Special Reserve Fund for maintenance (including outlay on Malta and Alexandria Line as provided by the lease) of the whole of the Company's lines, as hereafter explained, say ... 125,000
 Working expenses ... 30,000
 175,000

Net revenue per annum ... £329,760

This revenue will yield a dividend exceeding £25 per cent. per annum upon £1,300,000, which it is anticipated will cover all the operations of the Company now proposed between England and Bombay.

As evidence of this being a reasonable estimate, there is the fact that the receipts for messages between this country and America by the Atlantic Cable were, for the first six months of its working, at the rate of £291,000 per annum, and that now, at the end of nine months only, those receipts are at the rate of £430,000 per annum; and it is beyond question that the mercantile transactions between Great Britain, India, China, and Australia exceed in magnitude and value those between this country and America.

The extension of telegraphic communication throughout the East will unquestionably develop additional traffic in proportion to the facilities afforded, and the Company's lines will possess abundant capacity for earning a larger profit at greatly reduced charges.

It is proposed, immediately upon the completion of the cable to Bombay, to establish land wires along the line of railway thence to Calcutta. These wires are estimated to cost not exceeding £100,000, and the additional revenue derivable therefrom is calculated at £15,000 to £30,000 per annum.

Entire identity of interest between this Company and the Telegraph Construction and Maintenance Company, both as respects the manufacture and laying of the new cable and the future working and commercial success of the whole line, is established by means of a contract which has been entered into with the latter Company for the repairing and maintaining of them of all the cables, wires, stations, and works of this Company, between Suez and Bombay, as and when the several sections are opened for traffic and transferred to this Company, for a period of ten years certain, on equitable and mutually beneficial terms. For the repayment of the expenses incurred by the contractors for vessels, cable, materials, and services of officers, engineers, and others provided by them under this agreement, they rely upon a fund to be thus formed—25 per cent. of the revenue is to be credited each year to a reserve fund in the joint names of the two companies, which fund, after meeting the actual cost of repairs and maintenance, is to accumulate until the clear amount thereof, after deducting all payments made or due therefrom, but including vessels, cable, stores, &c., then forming part of such fund, not exceeding £100,000 in value, shall amount to £350,000, after which the surplus from time to time existing beyond that amount is to be divided each year between the Company and the contractors, half to each. At the end of the term the whole balance of the maintenance fund will belong to this Company.

A copy of the Memorandum of Association is annexed to the prospectus, and copies of the Articles of Association and of all the concessions, agreements, and contracts can be inspected at the Offices of Messrs. Bircham and Co.; and all applications for shares will be considered as made subject to the provisions of those documents.

Applications for shares, addressed to the Directors, must be made in the form accompanying the prospectus, but no application will be considered without the previous payment to the Bankers of the deposit of £1 per share, which will be returned in case no allotment is made. If a less number be allotted than is applied for the surplus deposit will be appropriated towards the payment due on allotment. If the balance due on allotment is not paid within the time appointed by the allotment letter, the Directors may cancel the allotment and forfeit the deposit.

The deposits on applications for shares will be returned, without deduction, if two-thirds of the capital be not subscribed and allotted.

July, 1867.

CHLORODYNE.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is a certain cure in Cholera, Dysentery, Diarrhoea, Colics, &c.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Extract from the General Board of Health, London, as to its efficacy in Cholera.—"So strongly are we convinced of the immense value of this remedy, that we cannot too forcibly urge the necessity of adopting it in all cases." From A. Montgomery, Esq., late Inspector of Hospitals, Bombay.—"Chlorodyne is a most valuable remedy in Neuralgia, Asthma, and Dysentery. To it I fairly owe my restoration to health after eighteen months' severe suffering, and when all other remedies had failed."

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. Page Wood stated publicly in Court that Dr. J. Collis Browne was undoubtedly the inventor of Chlorodyne; that the whole story of the defendant Freeman was deliberately untrue, and he regretted to say it had been sworn to.—See the Times, July 13, 1864.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—The Right Hon. Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians and J. T. Davenport that he had received information to the effect that the only remedy of any service in Cholera was Chlorodyne.—See Lancet, Dec. 31, 1864.

DR. LOWE, Medical Missionary in India, reports (Dec., 1865) that in nearly every case of Cholera in which Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne was administered the patient recovered.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is the best and most certain remedy in Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Consumption, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, &c.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is publicly acknowledged by the most eminent Physicians of London to be the most effectual remedy every discovered. To prevent fraud, the Government have authorised a Stamp, with the words Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne engraved thereon, without which none can be genuine. Sole Manufacturer, J. T. DAVENPORT, 33, Great Russell-street, Bloomsbury, London. The immense demand enables the proprietors to reduce the price; it is now sold in bottles, 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s.

SARSAPARILLA.

WILKINSON'S (late Bridge's) ESSENCE or FLUID EXTRACT of RED JAMAICA SARSAPARILLA, prescribed by the Faculty for purifying the blood, debility, liver complaints, and freeing the system from the effects of mercury. Exclusively used in India and the Colonies as a prevention to tropical diseases.

“Superior preparation that may always be relied upon.”—Sir Astley Cooper.

“We are in every respect satisfied with it.”—Lancet.

“We recommend your Sarsaparilla as the best.”—Medical Review.

Sold in quarter, half, and pint bottles.

CAUTION.—Many spurious, worthless, and injurious preparations are offered to the public. See that both bottle and label have the name and address.

Quintessence of Jamaica Ginger and Camomile.

WILKINSON'S PREPARATION of GINGER and CAMOMILE has long been deservedly known as an excellent domestic medicine. It is a most efficient stomachic tonic, and the best remedy for flatulency and disorders arising from impaired digestion.

It is not affected by climate.

No European in India or tropical countries should be without it.

Sold in one-eighth, quarter, and half-pint bottles.

Aromatic Tincture of Quinoidine,

For the prevention of Fever, Ague, and effects of Malaria. An untailing remedy. It may be mentioned that those who, during the campaign in the Crimea, daily took a small quantity, passed entirely unharmed through the raking fire of fever and dysentery that thinned the ranks around them.

Sold in half and quarter-pint bottles.

Prepared by THOMAS WILKINSON (late Bridge and Co.), 270, Regent-street, London, W.

COUGHS, ASTHMA, and INCIPIENT CONSUMPTION ARE EFFECTUALLY CURED BY KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES.

This world-renowned medicine, which has obtained such celebrity in all parts of the globe, for curing the above-named complaints and other affections of the chest and pulmonary organs, is strongly recommended to all suffering from any of the above disorders, as one trial will be sufficient to prove their undoubted efficacy, being frequently used under the recommendation of the most eminent of the faculty.

Prepared and sold in boxes, 1s. 1d., and tins, 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 10s. 6d. each, by THOMAS KEATING, Chemist, &c., 79, St. Paul's-churchyard, London. Sold retail by all Druggists and Patent Medicine Vendors in the world.

N.B.—To prevent spurious imitations, please to observe that the words “KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES” are engraven on the Government Stamp of each box, without which none are genuine.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—This medicine has resisted every test which time, prejudice, and vested interests could impose upon it, and it at length stands forth triumphant as the most reliable remedy for those derangements of the system so common at the change of seasons. When the air grows cooler and the functions of the skin are retarded, an occasional dose of Holloway's Pills will call on the liver and kidneys for greater activity, and compensate the system for diminished cutaneous action. As alteratives, aperients, and tonics, these Pills have no equals. To every aged and delicate person whose appetite is defective, digestion infirm, and tone of health low, this medicine will be a precious boon, conferring both ease and strength.

DR. E. I. LAZARUS'S ESSENCE of CHIRETTA.

This celebrated Indian remedy for bilious and liver complaints, indigestion, costiveness, and general debility, especially that arising from a long residence in India and other warm climates, can be obtained at EDWARD CLEAVER'S (late Hannay and Co.), 63, Oxford-street, London, Sole Agent for England.—Price 11s. per bottle.

STOPPING and RESTORING TENDER

S and DECAYED TEETH.—Anodyne Cement instantly as hard as enamel, allays pain, and restores the tooth to use, even though broken nearly to the gum. An entirely new description of Artificial Teeth, without springs or wires, lighter, more durable, and economical than any yet introduced. Supplied only by Mr. ALFRED JONES, Surgeon-dentist to their late R.H. the Princess Augusta, the Duchess of Gloucester, &c. Daily from Eleven till Five. Mr. Alfred Jones has no connection with any person assuming his name—64, Grosvenor-street, Grosvenor-square.

KEATING'S PERSIAN INSECT DESTROYING POWDER.

THIS POWDER is quite harmless to animal life, but is unrivalled in destroying Fleas, Bugs, Flies, Cockroaches, Beetles, Gnats, Mosquitoes, Moths in Furs, and every other species of insect.

Being the Original Importer of this now invaluable article which has found so great a sale that it has tempted others to vend a so-called article, the public are therefore cautioned to observe that the packets of the genuine Powder bear the autograph of THOMAS KEATING.

Sold in Packets, 1s., and Tins, 2s. 6d., 4s. 6d., and 6s. each; or 1s. Packets, free by post, for fourteen postage stamps, and 2s. 6d. on receipt of thirty-six. Also in Bottles, 1s. 2d.; with Bellows, 1s. 6d. and 3s. each, by THOMAS KEATING, Chemist, 79, St. Paul's Churchyard London, E.C.

RUPTURES.—BY HER MAJESTY'S ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS,

Perfected and Exhibited in the Great Exhibition of 1851, is allowed by upwards of 200 Medical Gentlemen to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so often hurtful in its effects, is here avoided; a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected, and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit) forwarded by post on the circumference of the body two inches below the hips being sent to the Manufacturer, Mr. WHITE, 228, Piccadilly London.

Price of a Single Truss, 16s., 21s., 36s. 6d., and 51s. 6d.; postage, 1s. Price of Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d.; postage, 1s. 8d. Umbilical, 42s. and 52s. 6d.; postage, 1s. 10d.

Post-office Orders payable to JOHN WHITE, Post-office, Piccadilly.

NEW PATENT.

ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEE CAPS,

&c.—The material of which these are made is recommended by the Faculty as being peculiarly elastic and compressible, and the best invention for giving efficient and permanent support in all cases of weakness and swelling of the Legs, Varicose Veins, Sprains, &c. It is porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and is drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price, 4s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 10s. to 16s. each; postage, 6d.

JOHN WHITE, MANUFACTURER, 228, PICCADILLY LONDON.

CHILDREN'S WORM TABLETS

(KEATING'S).—The recently-discovered unfailing remedy for worm disorders in children and adults has now been concentrated in the form of a purely Vegetable Sweetmeat. The Tablet is eagerly taken by children, and one to three given twice or thrice a-week, will effect a safe and certain cure.

Sold in Tins and Bottles of various sizes, by THOMAS KEATING, Chemist, &c., 79, St. Paul's Churchyard, London. Sold Retail by all Druggists and Patent Medicine Vendors in the World.

Observe the words “KEATING'S WORM TABLETS” are engraven on the Government Stamp of each Tin, without which none are genuine.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

THE Calcutta mail, which is just a week overdue, brings us papers from the Presidency to June the 6th, only two days later than those previously received. The Madras date is June 14th.

The Bengal news is unimportant. The principal topic in Madras was the question of the Banks. It was resolved, as our readers are aware, that the amalgamation of the Bombay Bank with that of Bengal should be carried into effect; and it is now announced that the directors of the Madras Bank have resolved to establish a bank in Bombay, but it is stated that so long as the Bank of Bombay remains open no other Presidency Bank could set up a Branch Bank in Bombay. The consent of the Bombay Government would be needful in any case, and that consent, it is added, is not likely to be given until the Bombay Bank proprietors announce their inability to continue their business. This determination on the part of the Madras Bank seems to have excited considerable surprise. The reason for this determination is explained by the Madras Times. "Hitherto," says that journal, "the Bank of Madras has been represented in Bombay by the local Presidency Bank, and during the last year or two Rs. 600 per mensem have been paid to a clerk in the latter establishment, whose special duty it was supposed to be attend to the interests of the Bank of Madras. We are not going beyond the truth in stating that this arrangement has proved a total failure, and that through carelessness or forgetfulness the Bank of Madras has actually lost money at what may be termed its present Bombay agency. We believe, too, that the information as to the money market and as to the rates of local exchange which is essential to the proper manipulation of the Bank's funds in Bombay has been of the most ludicrously inadequate description, and it has had to be extracted by the strength of wild horses, as it were. Naturally, therefore, those responsible for the good management of the Bank have been anxiously casting about for a remedy to the state of affairs we have described. It was little good to be doing an apparently profitable exchange business between Cochin and Bombay, and Calicut and Bombay, if whenever the money reached the latter place, it practically passed into "some cold region beyond the reach" of the authorities here. To get the money out of Bombay in the absence of all information as to the best means of remittance is a task which even Mr. Dickson would fail to make profitable, and we are not surprised therefore at the Bank of Madras failing. Besides, it must be remembered that so far as exchange operations between Bombay and Calcutta are concerned, the Bank of Bombay is a competitor with the Bank of Madras, and that voluntarily to remit the funds of the latter in the above direction, so as to make a profit for our Bank, is to assume that the Bank of Bombay is managed by men more than humanly disinterested. We are safe in asserting that no suggestion to benefit the Bank of Madras has ever been made by its Bombay agency, and that the latter has contented itself with a tardy action upon the explicit instructions received from here. Our only surprise is that this state of things has been allowed to go on so long, but patience is essentially a Madras virtue."

The death of the Inspector-General, Dr. Duncan Macpherson, has caused deep regret throughout the Presidency, and the feeling will be shared, not only by his friends elsewhere, but by all who knew him by reputation. "The deceased," says the Athenæum and Daily News, "though by no means the senior from age, or date of first commission, in the Madras army, was in official seniority the head of the department. This anomalous fact was due to the rank he held, that of Inspector-General of the Madras Medical Department. This appointment, then the second in the Department, was conferred on him in 1858 in recognition, we believe, of his organisation of the Medical Department of the Turkish Contingent in the now partially forgotten Russian war of 1854-55. His appointment, which happily sounded the death knell of pure seniority in a scientific service, gave grievous offence to many who considered that they had a prior claim upon Government, and so it happened that his position was one of great difficulty to hold with dignity, for he had to contend with much opposition. Resolute to prove his own deserts, Dr. Macpherson applied himself to his new duties with a zeal that few could equal, and during the five years of his tenure of this office he performed an amount of public work, and travelled over an extent of country, by land and sea, that have probably been rarely if ever equalled by any medical or military officer in this Presidency." The same writer adds:—"He contributed not a little to literature, and though it can be easily understood that the busy life he led afforded little repose for literary exertions, yet he found time to afford to his Indian friends a good 'account of the war in China,' and of 'the antiquities of Kertch;' and the Government of Madras considered his 'Reports on the Mountain and Marine sanatoria—in the neighbourhood of, and available for, the European troops of this Presidency, so valuable that they were published as a record of Government. The further confidence of the authorities was evinced by his appointment as acting President of the late Sanitary Commission, and subsequently acting Sanitary Commissioner, during the absence in England of the Hon. Mr. Ellis. In this appointment he failed to overcome the well-marked and persistent firmness of the then Governor (Sir William Denison), who pooh-poohed sanitation, and considered doctors as not the most deserving class of public servants."

Lord Napier was expected to return to Madras on the 14th ult., the day of the departure of the mail.

The next arrival from India will be the Bombay mail, which left Marseilles last night, and will arrive in London to-morrow.

We publish in another column an account of the ball to the Sultan at the India-office last night, from which it will be seen that the entertainment was a great success, and one of the grandest spectacles ever seen in this country.

We are sorry to say that Madame Musurus, wife of the Turkish Ambassador, who was seized with a fit whilst at the ball, as noticed elsewhere, died almost immediately she reached the Embassy.

The new troop ships Malabar and Serapis conveyed a number of distinguished personages connected with the Indian Department, and their friends, to the Spithead Review. They are both splendid vessels, and possessed ample accommodation, as may be supposed, for the visitors, who were most hospitably entertained on board. Among the guests in the Malabar we noticed General Sir R. J. H. Vivian, Sir H. C. Montgomery, the Hon. Gerald C. Talbot, General T. T. Pears, General W. E. Bakers, and General M. F. Willoughby.

THE OFFICIAL PAPERS ON THE FAMINE.

THE Parliamentary return of papers connected with the Bengal and Orissa famine occupies nearly four hundred pages of "Blue-book." In addition to the correspondence connected with the subject it includes the report of the Commissioners appointed by the Government of India the minute of the Lieutenant-governor of Bengal in justification of his own conduct, and the opinion of the Governor-general upon the question involved. The decision of the India-office has yet to be issued; and pending the publication of the latter document, an examination of the case as it stands will probably be acceptable to our readers. The inquiry of the Commissioners was of a thoroughly comprehensive character, and the facts and conclusions which it has elicited are valuable in the highest degree. It would be impossible in the present place to deal with so vast a range of subject matter in detail; but fortunately the process is not necessary, for the minute of the Viceroy on the subject embodies all the chief points of the report, and sufficiently indicates the opinions of the reporters, with which Sir John Lawrence, "with few exceptions of no material importance," concurs.

It is not doubted that the failure of the autumnal rains of 1865 was the real cause of the famine which desolated Orissa. This was aggravated by the inundations in August, 1866, and by the peculiarly isolated and at times almost inaccessible position of that province. The drought extended in a lesser degree over a large portion of Bengal also, where considerable distress and misery were experienced by the people; but, generally speaking, there was not absolute famine beyond the boundaries of Orissa. The suffering and mortality were great in parts of Midnapore and Nuddea, districts adjacent to Calcutta, and also in Maunbhoom and Singbhoom, districts of Chota Nagpore, which adjoin Orissa on the north and east. The Commissioners consider that timely measures were not taken to meet the evil, either when threatened or when it became a fact; and they are of opinion that valid reasons cannot be adduced for this neglect. And the Viceroy adds his own impression that "there was a want of foresight, perception, and precaution, which are quite unaccountable, even when allowance has been made for the fact alluded to by the commission that the officers under the Government of Bengal had, with scarcely an exception, no previous personal experience of the character of famines." It is stated that, "in most instances, those on the spot who were earliest brought face to face with the signs of coming famine could not bring themselves to speak out as firmly and decisively as they should have done, while the more distant and superior officers appear to have accepted a foregone conclusion, and to have been unable, on that account, to discern in the reports which they received sufficient grounds for special interference while there was yet time."

The Viceroy then proceeds to say that the evidence brought together by commission proves beyond doubt that late in 1865 and early in 1866 it must have been apparent that the produce of the harvest of the year would not be sufficient for the three districts of Orissa, not to mention the adjacent tributary mehals, to feed the people until the next two harvests could be reaped; also that private enterprise was quite inadequate to the requirement, and that the State ought, early in the day, to have undertaken the work. When the Lieutenant-Governor visited Orissa in February, 1866, he had quite enough before him, Sir John Lawrence considers, to show that there was at least much danger of the occurrence of the calamity. And Sir John adds:—"It seems to me scarcely credible that all the different individuals with whom he personally conversed should have been altogether silent at such a momentous period, and that they should have given no expression to the anxious fears and doubts which they cannot but have felt. But at any rate the very clamour from the starving multitude, which beset him when at Sooree, ought to have led him to make special inquiry, which could not have failed to lay bare the real condition of the people at that very time. It was certainly the duty of the Lieut.-Governor to have done this." But up to the middle of May, and even a later date, "his Honour was of opinion that the statements of the distress would prove to have been much exaggerated."

The Viceroy fully agrees with the Commission that it was a mistake of serious moment on the part of the Lieutenant-Governor to have allowed Mr. Ravenshaw to leave the seaboard. That was obviously his proper position. There he could best consult with the district officers, and judge of the state of things as they changed from day to day. There, too, he was in easy communication, by telegraph, with the Board of Revenue and the Lieut.-Governor. But he left Balasore on the 20th of April, and did not return until the 10th of May, at a time when the state of the people was of a most deplorable character. He left, too, a position where he was easily accessible, without making his promised report, so that during his absence the reports of the district officers, upon which at the time so much depended, had to follow him in his wanderings instead of going direct to superior authority. In like manner there can be no question, says Sir John, that Mr. Schalch, the only member of the Board of Revenue who had any knowledge of Orissa, ought not to have been allowed to go to Darjeeling when he did. It was clear that he could have been employed far more usefully in Calcutta, for it is certain, even to those who were most sanguine at that time, that the people in Orissa, and in many parts of Bengal, would suffer much distress even if unvisited by absolute famine. If his absence from Calcutta had been considered permissible, he should rather have been deputed to Orissa than have been taken to Darjeeling. Again, it appears to the Viceroy "impossible to acquit the Board of Revenue of serious errors in their management of affairs in Orissa from the very commencement of the crisis even to the end. The members of the Board at the outset set their faces against the wish of the officers of districts to go about and ascertain the real state of things and the actual out-turn of the harvest, under the delusion that inquiry was useless and even pernicious, unless followed by remission of revenue, which they had determined not to grant or recommend." And the Board "having once taken up the opinion that importation of grain by State agency was inexpedient, adhered to that conclusion, it may be said, to the last. Even when the Lieut.-Governor, on the 10th and 17th of May, suggested to them the expediency of reporting, the Board declined to do so, and nothing, therefore, was done until the 29th of that month, when his Honour directed that grain should be imported. Thus, at a very critical time, nearly a fortnight of time, that it is difficult to value, was lost. On the 9th of June, in like spirit, the Board thought it unnecessary to send down more grain. Hence it was that the importation of food in all June was quite inadequate to the urgent demand."

It is admitted that Mr. Ravenshaw was in a difficult position; but he had the best opportunity of ascertaining the real state of things, and his persistency in maintaining that there was sufficient grain in the province to meet the wants of the people is condemned as a great error of judgment.

"He should, on the contrary," says Sir John, "have attached more weight to the views of those who held a contrary opinion, such as Colonel Rundall, Mr. G. N. Barlow, and Mr. H. Muspratt, and have helped them to combat the opinions of the Board, and convince them of the real state and wants of the province."

Of all the Government officials in Orissa the Viceroy mentions Mr. Barlow as deserving of the greatest credit. Others he blames for not keeping the Lieutenant-governor properly informed, blindly adhering to their first false impressions, or feeblingly evading the assumption of responsibility. To most of those concerned, however, Sir John gives the credit accorded by the Commission for their exertions when the real nature of the calamity was known. Among non-official services those of Mr. Sykes, Mr. Scott Moncrieff and the Rajah of Paricood are especially acknowledged.

With regard to the action of the Government of India in the matter, the Viceroy's notice of this part of the subject indicates what was already understood to be the state of the case—that as the responsibility belonged to the Government of Bengal, the Supreme Government had no other information than it received through that channel, and no alternative but to accept the information furnished as conveying the real state of the case. The conduct of the subordinate government in this respect may be best characterised in the words of Colonel Durand, who, in a minute concurring in the views expressed by his Excellency, says:—

The report of the Commissioners in their paras. 266, 269, 280, and 286, shows sufficiently the state of ignorance in which the Government of India was left up to a date already far too late for effective operations in relief of the famine. Neither in 1865 nor in 1866, until too late, was any information, that I am aware of, laid before the Government of India by the Bengal Government that was in any degree indicative of the real state of affairs in Orissa. A subordinate Government which, under such circumstances, leaves the Supreme Government to gather from newspaper reports the hopeless condition of an important province, is either strangely remiss in the duty it owes to the Supreme Government, and still more to the people under its charge, or else fails to realise the terrible magnitude of the impending calamity. In either case, the negligence is a grave reflection on any administrative system, and is sure to heap upon it heavy obloquy. In the present instance, it is clear that the appalling nature of the famine was as little realised as was the principle that the first duty of a Government is the preservation of the lives of its people. A visitation of this awful character is not to be met by recourse to the local charity of the Mofussil stations, nor by that of the capital of the presidency; but by the free and timely application of the revenues of the empire. The measures of relief can only thus be proportionate to the magnitude of the catastrophe, which in this case demanded imperial, not petty exertions. To this fact the Bengal Government and its subordinate officers awoke too late; although practically, to quote the words used by the Governor-General in the Council at Simla in April, his Excellency had given the Government of Bengal carte blanche in the matter of expenditure, and was prepared to sanction calls on the imperial revenue to any amount.

To the remedial and preventive measures proposed by the Commission we may advert upon another occasion.

BENGAL.

THE INDIAN OFFICERS' GRIEVANCES.

The Right Honourable the Governor General in Council is pleased to publish, for general information, the following extract from a despatch from the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for India, No. 95, dated 30th March, 1867, paragraphs 1, 2, 3 and 4:—

1. My attention has been drawn to the large number of officers of all grades belonging to the Indian army who have availed themselves of the opportunity offered them to join the several Staff Corps under Lord Cranborne's despatch No. 159, dated the 8th August, 1866, and to the probable effect which will result from the continued operation of the rule laid down in paragraphs 70 and 80 of Military letter to India, No. 194 of 17th June, 1864, by expediting the regimental promotion of the comparatively small number who may have preferred to remain on the list of the Indian army, and of the officers of the General List, who have hitherto had considerable advantages in promotion.

2. It seems certain that the promotion of both these classes of officers will be not greatly accelerated by the operation of the rule in question, so that they will probably gain an advantage in this respect over the officers who have joined the Staff Corps. The probability of such a result was not lost sight of in the preparation of the despatch of the 8th August last; but it was not thought advisable in giving to the officers of the Indian army the choice of either remaining on the list of that army or of joining the Staff Corps, to interfere with the free exercise of the option between the two lines of promotion as then standing, by the withdrawal of a concession which had been deliberately granted to the officers of the Indian army.

3. It was, therefore, not proposed in that despatch to interfere with the rule under which the names of officers of the several Staff Corps, being brought up to the position of lieutenant-colonels on the regimental list of the arm of the service to which they formerly belonged, are removed from that list and promotions made in their places.

4. Whatever may be the effect of the continued operation of this rule upon the relative rate of promotion among the officers who have and those who have not joined the Staff Corps, under the conditions of Lord Cranborne's Despatch No. 159 of the 8th August, 1866, the choice on both sides has been freely made, and I do not propose to make any alteration.

The foregoing decision does not apply to the officers of the General List, regarding whose promotion a special reference has been made by her Majesty's Government, the result of which will be hereafter promulgated.

THE RED SEA MAILS.

The public attention, called early last year to the defective working of the postal system between England and India, New Zealand, and Australia, has borne good practical fruit. A Royal Commission, after investigating the subject, has suggested many improvements, among others the termination of the contract with the Peninsular and Oriental Company. The Government of New South Wales has also resolved to terminate its contract with the same company, which, therefore, is beginning to work a little more actively than hitherto for the benefit of the public, and has recently placed more steamers on the Red Sea, where competing ships are now running.

Then, again, Captain Tyler has visited Italy for the British Government, and ascertained that the sending of the Indian and Australian mails to Alexandria via Brindisi, instead of via Marseilles, will be cheaper and cause a saving of 35½ hours, including their carriage by mules over Mont Cenis. But when the railway over the mountain is finished 4½ hours more will be gained, making a total saving of 39½ hours. This railway is likely to be finished in three or four months' time, and when the Mont Cenis tunnel is completed, probably in 1871, the saving in time will be 42½ hours, or nearly two days quicker than by the present route through Marseilles. The sea passage also will be shortened from 150 to 82 hours, a great boon to passengers. The Italian Government not only offers to carry the mails at moderate rates, but to fit up commodious sleeping carriages for passengers, who will be conveyed in them at the rate of 2½d. per mile. This subject will shortly occupy the attention of the House of Commons, when it is probable that Captain Tyler's suggestions will be adopted.

The best of all the routes to India would be by the Euphrates Valley Railway proposed by Mr. W. P. Andrew, Chairman of the Scinde Railway Company; but owing to political complications there will be much delay in its execution. This route will cut down the distance to India to a thousand miles less than at present. The promoter is at the present time trying to induce the Government to give him active support.

While we are forced to adhere to the old route down the Red Sea, it is desirable to shorten it as much as possible by substituting the railway for the steamboat where such a plan is practicable; and a very valuable report has recently been furnished to the Government by Lieut.-Col. W. L. Merewether, C.B., Political Resident at Aden, pointing out how more than one-third of the Red Sea passage may be saved.

Colonel Merewether in H.M.S. Victoria carefully examined the western coast of the Red Sea, and in the course of his explorations touched at Berenice, an ancient Roman city and port founded 300 B.C., but now almost utterly unknown. It was established by Ptolemy Philadelphus, who for the purposes of trade founded three ports on the Red Sea—Arsinoë (Suez), Myas Honnus (Cosseir) and Berenice, the latter proving the most flourishing of the three. It seems wonderful that this port should have been overlooked so long, in days when boats laden with European passengers are constantly traversing the Red Sea, but such is the fact. The port might be utilised by the construction of a railway 160 miles long to Assonan, the place of the first cataract on the Nile, whence the river is navigable to Cairo. This route would be very interesting to travellers who do not object to alligators and fleas, since they would pass through Thebes, the ancient city of a hundred gates, now a profusion of pillars, ruined temples, and colossal statues of granite and basalt. An avenue of sphynxes two miles long leads to the temple at Luxor, now a heap of ruins a mile in diameter, composed of hundreds of columns, the smallest seven and a-half feet in diameter. Outside this magnificent temple are interminable monuments, gateways, subordinate temples, and rows of sphynxes. Near at hand also is the Necropolis, or City of the Dead, consisting of mountains hollowed out for the tombs of the inhabitants, and consisting of painted halls and rooms innumerable. What passenger to India would not prefer this to the stifling passage of the Red Sea? The distance from Berenice to Assonan is 160 miles, and from Assonan to Cairo 300; total 460 miles for a railway constructed the whole distance.

In the course of his description of Berenice, a port which once had 10,000 inhabitants, Colonel Merewether states that the best passage to Berenice is between Macour Island and the mainland; coral reefs exist on the edges of both, and rocks also on the mainland side, but between them is deep water and a channel quite two miles broad between the reefs. After running seven miles through this channel open deep water is reached. The actual harbour of Berenice is a creek running about N.N.W., having the mainland on the west side and a sandy spit on the east. It is more than two miles wide, extends with diminishing breadth for nearly two miles, and is perfectly protected. The entrance by day is most simple and easy, and with one lighthouse on the reef at the north-eastern end of Macour Island and another on the reef at the end of the sandy spit where the harbour commences, steam vessels could enter at any hour of the night. He inspected the shore and the ancient city of Berenice, a heap of ruins nearly covered by sand, except in one spot where a portion of a building, probably the temple, was exposed. This had been done by excavation, most likely by Capt. Mousley, of the Indian Navy, when surveying this coast thirty years ago. The mounds of sand were strewn with fragments of glass, pottery, stones, bits of copper, and here and there a few coins were picked up. The tracks of two men, three camels, some antelopes, a hyena, and a fox, were the only signs of living creatures observed, and probably the spot has been seldom trespassed upon since the port was abandoned 2,000 years ago.

Col. Merewether also visited Cossier, a little known port, higher up the Red Sea, and nearer to Suez. Cossier has no harbour worth the name. It is a town handsomely built of stone or chalk, and has a pier eighty yards long. Since the railway was completed to Suez the town has declined in population and commercial prosperity; but it is healthy, and has a better climate than could be expected on the shores of the Red Sea.

By adopting Berenice as a port, then, more than one-third of the passage down the Red Sea may be saved, but the expense of constructing 460 miles of railway to Cairo is necessitated unless the route via the Nile be chosen. By the latter alternative it is not apparent that there would be any saving in time over the present route, and it is not likely that 160 miles of railway to Assonan will ever be made simply to make the journey pleasanter than by the present route; but the 460 miles of line which would be a great boon to travellers to India, and save time on the journey, will be worthless should the Euphrates Valley line ever be made afterwards. The Euphrates Valley line has the additional advantage of being liable in future years to form a portion of a direct railway from England to India, whilst a line to Berenice can lead nowhere else, unless to the Abyssinian and Somali dominions. Consequently Col. Merewether's report, though very interesting, seems unlikely to attract capitalists, whilst there is a chance of the construction of a railway down the Euphrates Valley.—The (Calcutta) Engineer.

MISCELLANEOUS.

MAJOR-GENERAL LANE.—We observe by Government General Orders that Major-General J. T. Lane, C.B., of the Royal Artillery, has, after a service of 46 years, come into receipt of the Colonel's allowances "by the death of Major-General A. Abbott, C.B." This is exactly eight years in excess of the period a Staff Corps officer has to serve to entitle him to the same, and which all officers of the local army are eligible for; but General Lane having responded to the invitation to volunteer for the Royal Artillery has been debarred admission to the Staff Corps, and it may be expected that those below him in the Royal Artillery will be even less fortunate than he has been, as the number of "Colonel's allowances" (now eleven) are to be gradually reduced to seven. Notwithstanding his services in the Cabul, Gwalior, Sutledge, and Punjab Campaigns, Major General Lane was not in receipt of a good service pension.—Delhi Gazette, May 28.

CHOLERA STATISTICS IN THE PUNJAB.—We learn that on the 24th instant there were 12 cases of cholera, 5 of which were fatal, amongst the labourers on the bridge works at the Sohan, near Rawul Pindee. The same evening two natives and two children were seized with choleraic symptoms in the cantonments. The coolies employed at the Sohan are chiefly Pathans, who are extremely filthy in their habits and mode of living. Their quarters were, very properly, at once cleansed and purified. In the Goordaspore district there were 10 cases and 4 deaths on the 27th, 2 cases and 1 death on the 28th, and 1 case and no death on 29th May. In the Delhi district and city there were 58 cases and 47 deaths on the 26th, and 28 cases and 19 deaths on the 27th instant. In Ferozepore itself there were no cases on the 28th and 29th, but 17 deaths in the district (out of these 6 were doubtful) on the former date, and 3 only on the latter. It is said that cholera in an epidemic form is raging in the villages of the Ferozkote State, adjoining the Mookutsur Tehseel. On the 30th there was one admission into the Ferozepore city hospital, and 12 deaths were reported from the district.—Indian Public Opinion and Punjab Times, May 31.

ATMOSPHERIC PHENOMENON AT LAHORE.—Few of the residents of this station are, we think, aware of a phenomenon which occurred at Lahore on the 22nd inst., at 6.30 A.M. A large blaze of light in a circular form, about a yard in diameter, was seen at that hour on the Meean Meer-road, increasing in thickness as it descended from the sky. Its particles spread in different directions, as they fell on the ground. At Chanboorjee, near the parade ground, a similar sight was witnessed on the same day. At the village Sandhaasme a similar phenomenon is reported to have taken place, which was followed by a sound more or less resembling that of thunder. A correspondent writing from Shorekote, in the Jung district, under date the 18th inst., brings to our notice a similar occurrence. He states that at 7 o'clock in the morning of that day a blaze of light appeared in the sky, forming a lustrous line from west to east; during its progress in an eastern direction it dissolved, covering the earth with fiery masses, much to the dismay of the natives.—Indian Public Opinion, May 21.

CIVIL WAR IN THIBET.—Recent news from Thibet states that civil war has again broken out between the party of the Grand Lama and the Kanjees. The quarrel began as usual in a dispute about some religious matter, in consequence of which the Grand Lama appears to have seized on and executed twenty-one of the Kanjee leaders. This severity defeated itself, for their followers, instead of being, as was anticipated, disheartened by the death of their chiefs, at once retired to their fastnesses, and took up arms. The condition of Bhootan and Thibet are singularly alike. Of no political importance, and with no political field open to their chiefs, they seem only to emerge from one revolution to enter on another.—Englishman, May 28.

PROMOTION CONSEQUENT ON THE RETIREMENT OF LIEUT. COL. DRUMMOND.—The retirement from the service, on the 1st of June, of Lieutenant-Colonel P. Drummond, will promote Majors and Colonels J. B. Dennys, 38th N.I., W. T. Hughes, 48th N.I., and P. H. K. Dewaal, 34th N.I., to Lieutenant-Colonels. In the 38th N.I., Captain (Lieutenant-Colonel in the Staff Corps) A. D. Dickens will be promoted to Major, and Lieutenant J. M. Glubb to captain. In the 48th Regiment N.I., Captain (Major in the Staff Corps) J. J. Hume will be promoted to major, and Lieutenant E. B. Ward to his captaincy.—Indian Daily News.

THE RAILWAY FROM NEEMUCH TO DELHI.—We are very glad to hear that the Bombay Government has now given authority to the Bombay, Baroda, and Central India Railway Company to carry out a complete survey of the projected line from Neemuch to Delhi, with a branch to Agra. The survey from Baroda or Wassud to Neemuch, which was sanctioned some time ago, is nearly finished. There is now, therefore, at last, a reasonable prospect of the extensions which are necessary to the full prosperity of this Railway Company being accomplished.

A BOON FOR UNCOVENANTED OFFICERS.—Officers in the uncovenanted branch of the public service will be glad to learn that a despatch has been sent to the Secretary of State by the Government of India, soliciting the sanction of her Majesty's Government to a measure proposed by the Governor-General in a council to grant an out-of-employed allowance to uncovenanted officers holding respectable posts, and drawing high salaries when thrown out of employ by reduction of establishments or abolition of their offices, and not incapacitated by sickness or age, until they are otherwise provided for.—Indian Daily News, May 17.

WRECK OF THE STEAMER "HURRINGHATTA."—We regret to hear that the steamer Hurringhatta, belonging to the Sylhet and Cachar line of steamers, whilst running through the Hindoor Katty River on the 11th May, took the ground, and is expected to become a complete wreck, as five pumps at work could make no impression on the leak. It appears that she has started her plating and angle irons. The flats in tow are safe, and the cargo is reported to have been landed without damage.

THE OPENING OF THE JUBBULPORE BRANCH LINE.—We understand that Captain F. S. Taylor, secretary to the Government of Bengal in the Railway department, objects to the opening of the Jubbulpore Branch line until 1st August, because of the incompleteness of the station accommodation. He has, however, no objection to the running of mail trains. This decision will, it is rumoured, be contested by the company, who argue that if the line be fit for mail trains it is surely fit for ordinary trains.—Englishman, May 21.

CASHMERE A REFUGE FOR DESERTERS FROM ENGLISH REGIMENTS.—It would seem that several deserters from English regiments have lately sought refuge in Cashmere, and the Government has therefore sent a request to the Rajah that he will refuse encouragement to deserters, and take steps to make them over to the custody of the nearest British officer.

MADRAS.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE HON. A. J. ARBUTHNOT, Chief Secretary to Government, being about to go on two months' leave, his place will be taken by the Hon. R. S. Ellis, President of the Sanitary Commission. A good appointment is now therefore at the disposal of Lord Napier, and we trust we shall no longer see the curious anomaly, peculiar to Madras only, of a square man in a round hole—or, to be more explicit, a non-medical man at the head of a sanitary commission. Mr. Ellis undoubtedly filled the office efficiently, but Mr. Ellis is a man of varied and exceptional ability, and would probably command the channel fleet with credit if called upon to undertake that service. It is believed that the appointment would have been offered to Dr. Macpherson had he lived. There are many other able men in the Madras Medical Service, and Lord Napier should have little difficulty in deciding upon the most competent man for the office. Rumour is already busy that the appointment is to be conferred on a military officer, a gentleman who is fortunate enough to be a relation of the Governor's. The public, however, will expect some more appropriate qualifications than relationship in the official appointed to this responsible post.

THE MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS OF MADRAS are again exciting considerable discussion. The select committee of the Legislative Council have just presented their report on the amended Bill that is now under the consideration of Government. The committee suggest some important changes in the constitution of the municipality. They recommend that the city shall be divided into eight wards, and that each ward shall be represented by four commissioners, to be nominated by Government.

Should this recommendation be carried out, Colonel Denison will have something like a Parliament to preside over. The proposed change is objected to by many on the ground that, while it places an immense amount of patronage at the disposal of Government, it leaves the rate and tax payers just as they were before. It is feared, too, that such a large board of commissioners will be unwieldy, and, consequently, obstructive. The committee have suggested a more equal distribution of the Licence-tax, and recommend that the sea toll should be levied on boats or rafts carrying goods, merchandise, and luggage at the rate of one anna per ton, instead of on every separate package or parcel, as at first suggested. The Bill will be considered at the meeting of Council to-morrow, and we imagine that the changes recommended by the committee will generally be adopted.—Madras Times.

MR. BLISS, the principal assistant magistrate in Vizagapatam, has been getting into trouble through using rather unparliamentary language towards the Hon. J. D. Mayne, the Advocate-General, and a member of the Legislative Council. In the case of defamation, Dr. Andrews v. Nursing Row, that was tried recently before Mr. Bliss, Mr. Mayne in his capacity as barrister had acted as the legal adviser of the defendant. In referring to the advice given by Mr. Mayne to his client, Mr. Bliss said that, "considering the Court allowed a reference to Mr. Mayne on one point only, it was quite unnecessary and somewhat impertinent for Mr. Mayne to return the answer he did." Mr. Mayne submitted to Government that such language "was uncalled for and improper when addressed by a magistrate to a gentleman who was no party to the proceedings before him" (Mr. Mayne was not at the trial), "and who was simply discharging a plain professional duty." The Government at once came down with an "order" on Mr. Bliss's "very improper and uncalled for remarks," and declared that they would have ordered them to be expunged if Mr. Bliss had made the remarks in his administrative instead of his judicial capacity. The moral we derive from this is that it is a fine thing to be a judge. Here is a young civilian of three or four years' standing positively snubbing the principal law officer to Government, and nobody apparently can prevent him!—Madras Times.

A VESSEL ON FIRE IN THE ROADS.—It has only just come to our knowledge that on last Tuesday night (the 11th June) a fire broke out on board the Petunia, one of the vessels in the roads loading for London. The fire was first discovered in the hold near the after hatch at about half-past nine o'clock, and by the exertions of the officers and crew of the barque it was completely extinguished about an hour later, but not till several bags of turmeric, part of the cargo, had been destroyed. On observing that something unusual was astir on board of the Petunia, boats were promptly despatched from the Old England and Sea Queen, with hands from these vessels to render any assistance that might be necessary, but happily their services were not needed. The causes from which the fire originated remain, we believe, undiscovered.—Athenæum and Daily News.

THE MEMBERS OF THE LONDON MISSION SOCIETY residing in the territories of the Maharajah of Travancore have presented addresses to his Highness and to the Dewan, Sir T. Madava Row, on the occasion of their receiving the Order of the Star of India. The missionaries took the opportunity of expressing their sense of the freedom and comfort they enjoyed throughout the State in the exercise of their religious duties, and of the liberties allowed by the native Government to its Christian subjects. In reply the Maharajah states that in religious matters Travancore has always been anxious to act upon the great principle of toleration. Sir Madava Row went still further and gracefully acknowledged "the considerable benefit that the administration has undoubtedly derived" from the existence of a body of gentlemen like the missionaries in the country.

LORD NAPIER is expected to return to Madras to-day (June 14). His tour through South Arcot has not been a very extensive one, as so far as we have learnt, his lordship, after partaking of the warm hospitality of our lively neighbours at Pondicherry, is quietly staging along the main road from Cuddalore to Madras. Under these circumstances, the formal notification as to how public business was to be carried on during the Governor's absence was hardly necessary, and looks rather like a parade of official zeal. His lordship has never been more than a day's post from Madras, and during the whole time, we imagine, has been within a few hours' telegraphic communication. Fancy Lord Derby, in going to Scotland for a week's holiday, notifying in the Gazette how the business of Government was to be conducted during his absence!—Madras Times.

COLLISION AT SEA.—The Superintendent of Marine has reported to Government that on the night of 4th April a very serious collision took place between the B.C.R.S.N. Co.'s steamer Lord Clyde, and the French barque Marie Gabrielle. The steamer was proceeding south from Madras, and the French craft was on her way to this port from Pondicherry. The French captain imputes the accident to gross negligence on the part of those in charge of the steamer, but the local agents of the Lord Clyde have challenged an investigation into the matter, and a Marine Court of Inquiry has therefore been ordered to inquire into, and report on, all the circumstances connected with the collision. The court will be composed of the master attendant, as president, the deputy master attendant, and the commander of one of the ships in the roads, and will assemble as soon as the witnesses it is proposed to examine can be got together at Madras.—Athenæum and Daily News, May 16.

DEATH OF DR. DUNCAN MACPHERSON.—It was only a fortnight ago that we had to announce the death of Dr. Robert Cole, late Principal Inspector-general and senior Medical Officer of the Madras army. We have now to record the death of Dr. Duncan Macpherson, late Inspector-general of Hospitals, who stood second on the list to Dr. Cole. Dr. Macpherson had already completed his term of service in the army, and had retired to his coffee estate at Mercara, in Coorg, where he died on the 8th June. He had seen a great deal of active service in China, in the campaign of 1841-2, in the Nizam's service in 1843-4, and above all during the Crimean War, when he organised the medical establishment of the Turkish Contingent. His last service in Madras was as Acting President of the Sanitary Commission.—Madras Times.

OFFICIAL CHANGES.—It is no doubt now pretty generally known that under medical advice Mr. J. R. Boyson does not intend to return to India, and that he has tendered his resignation of the appointment of Government Solicitor, an office which he has held for the past twelve years, and performed the duties of it with great zeal and ability. We have not heard who is likely to succeed Mr. Boyson as Government Solicitor; the appointment is made by the Secretary of State, and we can only express a hope that merit and ability, and not interest, will guide him in his selection of a gentleman to fill this important office.—Athenæum and Daily News.

THE RAVAGES OF A LITTLE INSECT CALLED THE "BOYER" in the coffee plantations in Coorg are just now occupying much attention. It seems to be generally admitted that the only practical remedy against its attacks is to plant in the shade. This, indeed, is only a partial remedy; but it is shown that plantations in the shade suffer less than those in the open. We are afraid this experience has come rather late in the day for many of our poor coffee planters.

INVESTITURE OF MAJOR-GENERAL DURAND AND MR. MUIR WITH THE STAR OF INDIA.

On May 24, her Majesty's birthday, his Excellency the Viceroy and Governor-General of India held at mid-day an investiture of the Order of the Star of India, for the purpose of conferring on Major-General Durand, C.B., and on William Muir, Esq., Secretary to the Government of India in the Foreign Department, the dignity of knighthood, and of investing them respectively with the insignia of Knight Commander of the Order. The civil and military officers of Government at Simla attended by invitation to witness the ceremony, and besides these not a few ladies and non-official persons were present. All that ceremony which is calculated to make the investiture an imposing spectacle was duly observed at Peterhoff, the residence of the Viceroy. Civilians donned their blue and gold, and higher functionaries and dignitaries their robes and insignia of office; and the proceedings were opened and closed with a royal salute from the battery. Before decorating Major-General Durand the Viceroy addressed him as follows:—

Major-General Sir Henry Durand, her Majesty the Queen of England and India having nominated you to be Knight Commander of the Most Exalted Order of the Star of India, it becomes my duty to carry out her commands. It is now nearly forty years since you left the Military College at Addiscombe, the first cadet of your day. In 1839 you were the engineer officer who blew open the gates of Ghuznee, and thus, under very critical circumstances, enabled the British army in Afghanistan to carry by storm that important fortress. In subsequent years you have played a distinguished part both as a soldier and as a politician, more especially during the mutiny in 1857.

Major-General Sir Henry Durand, in the name of her Majesty, and by her Majesty's command, I have much pleasure in investing you with the insignia of a Knight Commander of the Most Exalted Order of the Star of India, and in proclaiming you to be a Knight Bachelor of the realms of Great Britain.

Her Majesty's warrant, conferring the like dignity upon Mr. William Muir, having been read, he was likewise addressed as follows:—

Sir William Muir, I am commanded by her Majesty the Queen of England and India to invest you with the Insignia of the Most Exalted Order of the Star of India. It is with great satisfaction that I obey this order. Like the distinguished officer whom I have just invested with similar insignia, you took the first place at college in early life. Since your arrival in India you have become one of the first Arabic scholars of the day, and have gained much reputation in the different administrative posts which you have held in the North-West Provinces. On all questions connected with the tenures of land, as well as regarding the social usages and feelings of the people, you are justly considered a great authority.

Sir William Muir, in the name of her Majesty, and by her Majesty's command, I now invest you with the Insignia of a Knight Commander of the Star of India, and declare you to be a Knight Bachelor of the United Kingdom.

After the newly-created knights had received the congratulations of the Viceroy and those about him, the assembly broke up.—Times of India.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE STAR OF INDIA.—The new list of the Knights of the Star of India contains two names that every one will be glad to see graced with such a distinction. It was the general feeling, we believe, when the division of this Indian order into various grades was announced last year, that Mr. Temple, then Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces, had been alighted in being made only a Companion, when he ought certainly to have been raised to the rank of Knight Companion of the Star of India. Now that the honour which his signal public services have well deserved has at last been conferred upon him, we may congratulate Sir Richard Temple on having gained a step of social rank, the denial of which seemed to be an act of injustice, though its concession was not needed to establish his reputation as one of the foremost of our rising Anglo-Indian statesmen. Our Bombay readers will also welcome with peculiar pleasure the name of Sir Henry Lacon Anderson among the new knight companions. As secretary to the Bombay Government during the troublous years of mutiny, Mr. H. L. Anderson displayed an ability and zeal that was justly considered to have entitled him to some higher distinction than the mere honorary mention accorded to him by the Home Government; and in the subsequent years of his Indian service Mr. Anderson gained great repute as a legislator and orator, both in our local Council and in that of the Government of India. His labours were, however, ill requited in Bombay, where he was passed over when the seat in the Executive Council that ought to have been his became vacant; and he went home in 1865 with the intention, it was understood, of entering public life. But Sir Charles Wood, appreciating the excellent qualities of the ablest and wittiest member of the Bombay Civil Service, offered him in the autumn of 1865 the honourable appointment of Judicial Secretary to the Council of India, which Mr. Anderson accepted, abandoning the prospect of a political career in the House of Commons. Sir Henry Anderson has numerous friends among both Europeans and natives in Bombay, and all will be delighted to hear of this fresh recognition of his worth by the new Secretary of State.—Bombay Gazette.

AFFGHANISTAN.—When the last mail left we were able to state, from our correspondent at Cabul, that Sirdar Fyz Mohammed Khan, the valiant general of the Ameer Shere Ali Khan, the successor-elect of Dost Mohammed, had entered Cabul, and that the rival claimant of the supreme power, Afzul Khan, was closely besieged in the fort of Balla Hissar. Our later advices inform us of a sudden turn of fortune which has brought the hard-pressed Ameer some short respite from his troubles. Azim Khan, his supporter, who was opposing near Candahar the progress of the young Yakoub Khan (son of the Ameer Shere Ali and Governor of Herat), has adroitly stirred up a movement in General Fyz Mohammed's provinces of Turkistan in favour of his own father-in-law, the former ruler of the province. Fyz Mohammed, to save his own province, which in fact he had wrested from his master, raised the siege of Balla Hissar, left Cabul, deputing the command of the besieging army to one of his followers, with instructions to watch Cabul until his return. Meanwhile the son of the besieged Ameer pushed on from Candahar with 6,000 men to bring his father relief, and he had scarcely left Candahar when the young and valiant Yakoo Khan (he is not yet twenty years of age) pounced upon his uncle, Azim Khan, who was keeping him at bay at the river Gurishk, and drove him into Candahar, after capturing some guns and war stores. Peaceful counsels, rendered more palatable by the hard shifts he has recently been put to, and the likelihood of Fyz Mohammed's immediate return to renew the siege, are prevailing with the Ameer Afzul Khan at Cabul, who has sent overtures for peace to his brother, the Ameer-elect of their father, proposing that each should hold what he already possesses. We observe that the Calcutta Englishman states that the Ameer Shere Ali has been promised a powerful contingent of disciplined Russian troops, to enable him to recover his possessions, and if the statement be true he can only return one answer to his brother's proposal. To the enmity which Sir John Lawrence's recognition of his rival must engender must be added a feeling of gratitude to Russia; and Russia generally begins her conquests and annexations in the guise of a friend. The same journal states that the latest rumours from Central Asia speak of the utter extinction of the Mahomedan power in Bokhara. Our own correspondent informs us that the ruler of Bokhara has given over charge of the Amou Daria to the Russians, who are already laying down a railway to Kokan, and are about to lay a telegraphic wire from that city to the very palace of the King of Bokhara.—Bombay Gazette.

TIGER-HUNTING.—DEATH OF CAPT. CALDECOTT.—We are sorry to have to record another fatal accident to a tiger-hunter. The occurrence is thus related by a correspondent:—Captain Caldecott, of the 103rd Regiment, with a party of two officers, left this for tiger shooting in the jungles adjacent to Sepree about a month ago. They had partial success—shot somewhere about nine tigers. Three or four days ago they were about 30 miles from Sepree, watching for a tiger in a well-known beat. He came out and advanced on Captain Caldecott, who was seated on a low tree, from which at present it is believed he must have delivered his shot. The tiger saw him, rushed at him, seized him by the right arm, and tore him out of the tree. A young officer, who was with him and near at hand, whilst Capt. Caldecott was in this perilous position, delivered his ball, and the tiger bolted, but not before he had inflicted severe injuries on Captain Caldecott's right arm. The surgeon was sent for and wandered about the jungle for nine hours and could not find the party. At last Captain Caldecott was brought into Sepree. His arm mortified, and last Friday night an amputation took place. He died at 3.30 A.M. on Sunday morning, the 2nd June. He was as fine an officer as ever lived, in the prime of manhood, cool, daring, courageous, without a knowledge of what fear meant. He had just been promoted to his captaincy. His loss has thrown a gloom over the entire regiment.—Delhi Gazette, June 4.

ENTERTAINMENT TO MR TEMPLE.—From a letter received very recently from Hyderabad we learn that the Prime Minister, Sir Salar Jung, K.C.S.I., gave a grand party to welcome Mr. Temple on his appointment and assumption of the duties of Resident. About a hundred and eighty ladies and gentlemen were present. An excellent band was in attendance, and the entertainment was followed by a splendid pyrotechnic display. The letter goes on to state that Mr. Temple is becoming daily more and more popular. He is already spoken of by the natives as "the father of the people," his fame as Chief Commissioner of Nagpore having preceded him and added to his good name. His accessibility is remarkable and is much appreciated. High or low, rich or poor, meet with a ready reception and are treated with the utmost politeness, without any distinction being shown as to "caste, colour, or creed." He is also much liked by the Nizam, with whom he is on very good terms, and who is anxious to cultivate Mr. Temple's friendship, as a very worthy representative of the British Government at his Court.—Delhi Gazette.

THE PLAGUE AT KERBELA.—Intelligence has been received by the Government of Bombay from the Vice-Consul at Busrah that the plague had broken out with some virulence at Kerbela, but up to the date of the telegram its ravages were confined to that district. We do not know of any occasion on which the true "Egyptian plague" was conveyed to India by pilgrim or other vessels. But as this intelligence was evidently intended to put the authorities in India upon their guard in respect to this disease, we would draw the special attention of the sanitary authorities in Bombay at other Indian sea-ports to the subject, so that very special examinations may be made of all vessels arriving from the Gulf. As we have said, the true Egyptian plague has not appeared in India that we know of, and its manifestation in the Gulf is very unfrequent. Nevertheless, if, as we may suppose, the epidemic at Kerbela has been truly distinguished, it would not be very difficult to import it to Bombay, as the run between Busrah and Bombay at the present season may be accomplished in a sailing vessel in a very few days. It is not likely that any affected individuals would be permitted to leave the Gulf; but it is possible that men might embark in whom the plague-poison had not exhibited itself by outward symptoms at the date of sailing.—Bombay Gazette.

ARRIVAL OF THE HEAVY BOMBAY MAIL.—(SOUTHAMPTON, July 11.)—The Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company's steamship Syria, Captain Christian, with the heavy portion of the above mail, arrived this afternoon. She brings 123 passengers; specie, £4,831; and a general cargo. The Syria experienced strong north-easterly winds and fine weather across the Bay and up Channel. On the 6th inst. she spoke the barques Erromanga, Don of Shields, and Vedra; 7th, steamer Nyanza; 8th, steamer Britannia; and on the 10th, steamer Shannon.

THE BANK OF BENGAL.—A telegram, dated Calcutta, the 4th of July, has been received from the Bank of Bengal, announcing a dividend at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum for the six months ending June.

BOMBAY, June 24.

The Bombay Government is said to have received intelligence of the death of one, if not two, of the British captives in Abyssinia.

A meeting of the shareholders of the Bank of Bengal was held on June 17, at which a resolution was unanimously adopted in favour of amalgamation with the Bank of Bombay. It is understood, however, that Government will not sanction amalgamation until satisfied that the reconstruction of the Bank of Bombay is impossible.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—JULY 8.
INDIAN RAILWAYS.

Mr. FINLAY asked the Secretary of State for India the amount of guaranteed capital, in addition to the sum already announced, which it was proposed to raise for railway works in India during the present year.

Sir S. NORTHCOTE said that the total amount to be raised in 1867-68 would be between eight and nine millions, to meet the current expenditure and the Government debt. A portion of it would be calls on capital already issued, and the rest deposits or calls on new capital.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—JULY 11.
THE INDIA LAND TAX.

Mr. WATKIN asked the Secretary of State for India whether the statements in a letter from the Times correspondent at Calcutta dated the 3rd of June, viz., "that the Secretary had given orders that no part of India was to receive a permanent settlement of the land tax which was likely to be effected by canal water within the next twenty years, such orders being a reversal of the policy of Lord Canning and of Lord Halifax, and likely to be injurious to many native land-owners, and to the survey and settlement which were going on at a cost of a quarter of a million sterling," were founded in fact, and whether he proposed to lay any papers before the House.

Sir S. NORTHCOTE said the question of the hon. gentleman, although founded in fact, was so based as to lead to an erroneous impression. Lord Canning and Lord Dalhousie had differed as to the policy to be pursued with respect to the settlement of the land tax; and finally the whole matter had come before Lord de Grey, who, in a despatch dated 1866, laid down the principle that no permanent settlement of the tax should be granted in cases where the land was likely to have the benefit of canal irrigation. That despatch was not by some people in India considered very clear, and he (Sir S. Northcote) had been requested to explain it, which he had done by intimating that he was prepared to carry out the policy of his predecessors in the matter. He would lay all the papers, including the three despatches, on the table. He had not revised the policy of his predecessors, but had simply given what he believed to be a definition of its meaning.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—JULY 12.
EDUCATION IN INDIA.

Mr. G. DUFF moved an address for a copy of the correspondence between the director of public instruction at Bombay and the secretary to the Government at Bombay with respect to the constitution of a small covenanted educational service in that presidency. He stated that the views of the director-general approved themselves to the Government of Bombay, but not to the Government of India, probably because it was feared that this might be the beginning of a heavy expenditure, but the cost would really be trifling. They had made an admirable beginning with respect to education in India, and the natives were not only becoming more and more disposed to approve of our exertions in this respect, but they would gladly pay any tax which was to be directly applied to education.

Mr. KINNAIRD expressed a hope that the Government would carry out the principle laid down by Sir C. Wood, namely, grants in aid.

Sir S. NORTHCOTE was ready to accede to the motion and lay the papers on the table. He had received a despatch from the Indian Government upon the subject, in which the proposals were not altogether approved of. He, however, thought the matter deserved careful consideration, and, therefore, he had directed a despatch to be sent to the Indian Government, directing them to communicate more fully their views on the subject. What was most desired was that the educational service should be placed on a footing of its own, and be made equal in rank to the other services in India.

The motion was then agreed to.

THE ABYSSINIAN CAPTIVES.

Colonel SYKES asked the Secretary of State for India whether there was any and what foundation for a rumour circulating in Bombay that troops had been told off for an expedition into Abyssinia.

Sir S. NORTHCOTE replied that there was no truth in the rumour. No troops had been told off for an expedition into Abyssinia. Her Majesty's Government were at present engaged in correspondence which they hoped might lead to the release of the Abyssinian captives—(hear, hear)—and no measures of force were at present in contemplation. He had requested the Governor of Bombay to inform him confidentially what could be done in case measures of force should be at any time resorted to, but no instructions had been sent out, and the correspondence had been of a most private character.

THE ORISSA FAMINE.

Mr. H. SEYMOUR asked the Secretary of State for India if he had written a despatch reviewing the circumstances of the Orissa famine; and if he would lay it upon the table of the House as soon as it had been prepared; and, as the further correspondence on the Orissa famine would take three weeks printing, if he could make a selection of the papers which could be printed in the course of next week.

Sir S. NORTHCOTE had been in communication with the printer, and he believed that all the most important part of the correspondence could be in the hands of members on Monday next. He was desirous as quickly as possible to send out a despatch to India reviewing the commissioners' report, because he was aware that it was a matter on which considerable anxiety was felt in India, but those who had looked at the Blue-books, which formed only a small portion of the voluminous matter he had had to examine, upon a matter so gravely affecting the personal character of many most distinguished officers at a great distance, would recognise the necessity for a careful examination and consideration of the evidence before any despatch was sent out—(hear, hear). He was preparing a despatch on the subject, and hoped to be able, with the consent of the council, to lay it on the table in the course of next week.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—JULY 16.

THE BALL AT THE INDIA-HOUSE.

Mr. FAWCETT asked the Secretary of State for India whether the expenses of the ball about to be given to the Sultan at the India-house were to be charged upon the revenues of India; and further, to ask why, when a European monarch visited this country the only public state entertainment given to him was to be paid for by the people of India.

Sir S. NORTHCOTE said that the ball which the Secretary of State for India was about to give at the India-office would be paid for out of the revenues of India. With respect to the second part of the hon. member's question, it must have been put under a certain misapprehension. He (Sir S. Northcote) always referred with reluctance to statements which had appeared in the newspapers, but he thought the misapprehension had arisen from the manner in which the proposed entertainment to the Sultan was announced in the newspapers. It was said that her Majesty's Government proposed to give a ball to the Sultan, and had delegated the duty to the India-office. Now, if the Government had done anything of the kind it would not have been very creditable to India or to the Government, and he could certainly say that if such a proposal had been made to the Council of India it would have been rejected. But that was not what had taken place. The Government had nothing to do with the organisation of this matter in the first instance. Government had made certain arrangements, but it had occurred to him in the first instance that it would be right in the Council of India, on the arrival of the Sultan and the Viceroy of Egypt, to take some means of acknowledging our obligations to both sovereigns for the facilities they had given with respect to India, as well as for the telegraph by land and sea. Another consideration which had weighed with him was that the new India-office was near completion, and it appeared desirable on an occasion of this sort, which was sure to attract considerable notice in India, to show that the India-office was a separate institution, and was looked on with high respect by the great potentate to whom both our Mahomedan subjects in India, and the Mahomedan independent princes looked up with reverence. It occurred to him, therefore, that it would be judicious to receive the Sultan and the Viceroy at the new office. He made the suggestion to the council, and they felt as he felt, that such an act would be agreeable both to our Mahomedan subjects and our Mahomedan allies. Therefore, with their consent, he requested the Foreign Secretary to forward the invitation on the part of the India Board, and communicated with Lord Derby to know whether he had any objection to it. Lord Derby saw no objection, and his noble friend undertook to forward the invitation in the regular manner. The entertainment had not proceeded in any way from the Government of this country, but simply from the Government of India. He did not think this at all an improper way of expending a small portion of the revenues of India—(hear, hear). These were questions which interested the feelings of the Mahomedans and of all the natives of India. Hon. gentlemen who remembered the sort of feeling there was in India at the time of the mutiny would recollect the way in which the Sultan was spoken of, and the reference that was made to him as the natural head of the Mahomedan power, and it was desirable in the interests of our Indian empire that we should treat him with proper respect when he came to this country, and that he treated the Indian Government with respect by paying them the compliment of accepting their invitation.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—JULY 18.

THE BALL AT THE INDIA OFFICE.

Mr. H. B. SHERIDAN asked whether the members of the House of Commons are to be invited to meet the Sultan and Pasha, and if not who are the persons invited to do honour to the personages,—and will there be any objection to give a list of them; and whether in the opinion of the Secretary of State for India, instead of burdening the resources of India by expending the funds in parties of this sort—which it is reported is to be strictly private or confined to officials and their friends—it would not be better to charge for the tickets, and amongst others to invite the members of the House of Commons to meet these distinguished guests?

Sir S. NORTHCOTE said it was his wish to have invited all the members of both Houses of Parliament. But as these number at least a thousand, to say nothing of double tickets, this was impossible. A selection had therefore to be made, and though from four thousand to five thousand persons who ought to be asked were necessarily passed by, the invitation committee, he thought, had discharged their very difficult duty with discretion.

Mr. SHERIDAN, with a view to ascertain the principle of selection, gave notice of a long series of questions for to-morrow, each item in the list as read being received with a chorus of "Oh," and laughter.

Mr. D. NICOL gave notice of a motion for a list of the persons invited.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—JULY 19.

THE ABYSSINIAN CAPTIVES.

In reply to Mr. B. COCHRANE,

Lord STANLEY said some recent correspondence connected with the Abyssinian captives will be laid on the table in a few days, and, as there will shortly be an opportunity of discussing the whole subject, it will be better to postpone answering questions as to the possibility of liberating the captives until that time.

THE INDIA-OFFICE BALL.

Mr. H. SHERIDAN put a series of nine questions, occupying half a folio page of the order paper, as to the principle upon which the selection of members had been made to meet the Sultan at the State entertainment to be given by the Council of India in the evening, and the real object of which seemed to be to ascertain why certain gentlemen had not been invited.

Sir S. NORTHCOTE, with all deference and respect to Mr. Sheridan and the House, refused to be drawn into a discussion of such a formidable list of questions, and contented himself with giving an assurance that no invidious distinctions had been made in distributing the invitations, and that, so far as the members of the Council were concerned, they had only obtained one ticket each for their families.

On going into Committee of Supply, Mr. H. SHERIDAN raised a discussion of a somewhat personal and acrimonious character in moving for a list of the persons invited to meet the Sultan at the State entertainment given by the Indian Government. The motion was opposed by Mr. CLAY and Mr. FAWCETT, and ultimately negatived without a division.

THE INDIA-OFFICE BALL.

Of all the festal scenes that the Sultan has witnessed during his short visit to the West of Europe none has exceeded, few have approached, the entertainment given to his Majesty last night at the India-office. It was a goodly thought to hold this entertainment in, and thus inaugurate, the new India-office, lying between Downing-street, Charles-street, and St. James's-park. Its rich sculpture, its tinted marbles, its elaborate decoration, its fine proportions, were all in keeping with the object of the entertainment. Palatial its very nakedness, the building last night became for once something more than an ordinary abode of Royalty. Outside long rows of jets of gas, creeping along temporary arcades, revealed the fine exterior, but inside the scene was not merely grand, it was entrancing. From the entrance, along the corridors the guests walked through groves of palm trees and other tropical plants at once majestic and graceful. Large palmettos stood in the well of each grand and open staircase, and pots of the choicest flowers were so arranged around the groups that, while nothing appeared but the glowing blossoms, these, sorted into bands and ribands of the brightest colours, produced effects which could hardly have been anticipated even when they were decided upon. Ferns and creeping plants decorated the sides of the corridors and the staircases, and in many a niche stood large terra-cotta vases, over the rims whereof crept tendrils, ferns, and lithe-branched fuschias, which harmonised well with the soft colours of the carved stone-work. Off the corridors lay some of the retiring-rooms, refreshment-rooms, supper-rooms, to be used during the evening, and in nearly all of them the utmost care had been taken that the decoration should be at once subordinate to those of the more important parts of the building, whilst they should be at the same time both in keeping with the purposes to which the apartments were devoted and sufficiently ample in themselves to satisfy the greatest expectations. But it was in the ball-room that the magnificence of decoration reached its climax. The inner court of the office, rich in marble, in carving, in majolica; richer still in its well-balanced proportions and in its complete internal harmony, was set apart for dancing. Hither were none allowed to go save the creme de la creme; court dress was indispensable; every man on the boards which had been laid over the ground of the courtyard was in his own way a man of note, every lady was attired as for a Queen's drawing-room. High over the elegant arcading of the courtyard, which was covered in with double folds of canvas, hung little bannerets of blue and red, the former bearing in gold the monogram of her Majesty with a myrtle wreath; the latter the crescent and the star of our Imperial guest. The windows of the lower corridor were draped with crimson velvet and gold; and not a little of the general effect was due to these hangings, which were all that the court needed to make it seem as though it had been specially constructed for this particular purpose. At one side of the court a large crimson dais was placed and covered with crimson cloth. Here were hundreds of chairs in white and gold, with crimson seats. In the middle three larger chairs were intended for the use of the Sultan, the Prince of Wales, and the Secretary of State for India. Tripods containing the rarest flowers that bloom were placed to the left and right of the thrones; and on each side, also, were gilt candelabra bearing dozens of wax candles. Behind the dais a rich embroidered hanging, bearing in the centre the toura or sign manual of the Sultan, hung, and added not a little to the tout ensemble. Tripods with flowers were further set in appropriate places round the court; and long before any but the very earliest of the distinguished visitors had entered the court looked like a modern edition of one of the saloons in Aladdin's Palace, as revealed to us all in the dreams of our childhood. The supper for the Imperial and Royal party was laid in the Council Chamber overlooking the court. Although the table was very richly decked, there was nothing particularly worthy of note in its appearance, save the magnificent service of gold plate lent by her Majesty for the occasion. Flowers were, of course, used, and used with taste and discretion; but, take it all in all, the supper-table was less remarkable than almost any other part of the entertainment. The supper-tables for the general company were—always excepting the plate—almost as beautifully decked as the Royal table itself; and the refreshment counters provided in the corridors were fitted with great good taste.

Before ten o'clock several hundred personages had arrived. Rich State uniforms and uniforms of both services were decidedly in the majority. It was only here and there that the more sombre hues of a Court dress lent to the scene a shadow which was almost a relief. The Prince of Wales, imitating the punctuality of his Royal mother, came up to time. His Royal Highness had a considerable time to wait for the Sultan, who had been dining with the Duke of Cambridge at Gloucester-house. The Prince and Sir Stafford Northcote went to the bottom of the stairs to receive him. The bulk of his Majesty's suite had arrived beforehand, and, consequently, the procession was only a little one. His Majesty took upon his arm the Princess Alice, the Prince of Wales following after with the Duchess of Mecklenburg, while the band of the Grenadiers, under Mr. Dan Godfrey, assisted by his brothers, of the Scots Fusiliers and the Coldstream Guards, performed the Turkish national air, and the guard of honour of the Grenadiers presented arms. Up the new staircase and through the corridors the Imperial and Royal party went, and entered the ball-room at ten minutes past eleven. Shortly after two o'clock his Majesty retired. The Prince of Wales and Sir Stafford Northcote conducted the Sultan to the park entrance, from which he went to Buckingham Palace, receiving the same honours as on his arrival. But although the Sultan went away the company did not. There was too much attraction in the most wonderful ball that ever was given in England. The Guards' ball was previously the finest thing known to London society. But this India ball fairly beat it. No description could do the scene justice. It was unique in our land; it is likely to remain unique for many a year.

We very much regret to learn that the festivities of the evening were somewhat marred by the sudden illness of Madame Musurus, wife of the Turkish Ambassador, who was seized with a fit shortly after one o'clock, and who remains in a precarious state.—Standard.

MISCELLANEOUS.

BILLS ON INDIA.—The biddings for Government bills on India took place on Wednesday, the 17th inst., at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were: to Calcutta, 4,13,000 rupees; to Madras, 100,000 rupees; and to Bombay, 10,00,000 rupees. The minimum price was fixed at 1s. 11d. on all the presidencies. Tenders at the minimum on Calcutta and Madras will receive in full, and on Bombay about 63 per cent. All tenders above the minimum will receive in full. These results show little sign of revival in the demand for means of remittance to the East.

PROMOTION OF ENGINEERS.—We understand that it is in contemplation by the authorities in India to second a number of officers of the Corps of Engineers. This, if carried into effect, will afford some promotion to that branch of the Indian service.

DESPATCH OF THE BOMBAY MAIL.—(SOUTHAMPTON, July 12.)—The Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamship Delta, Captain Babot, sailed hence this afternoon, with mails for Gibraltar, the Mediterranean, Egypt, Aden, Bombay, and Upper Bengal. She took out twenty-five passengers and a general cargo, including gold, emeralds, jewellery, and bonds, value £1,044. Amongst the passengers are Ensigns Burn, Denning, Towill, and Harrison, and Lieut. Todd.

Whitmore's Compound Liniment of Arnica,
A SPECIFIC for the CURE of RHEUMA-
TISM, LUMBAGO, SCIATICA, SPRAINS, CONTU-
SIONS, WEAKNESS of the JOINTS, CHILBLAINS, &c.
It is also an excellent remedy as a stimulating application to the surface of the chest and back in bronchitis, inflammation of the lungs, pulmonary consumption, and whooping cough.
When the liver is inactive, rubbed over it, its stimulating properties have a beneficial effect, and in all cases where counter irritation is desirable, it will be found invaluable.
In bottles, quarter-pints, half-pints, and pints.

Wilkinson's Bronchio-Thoracic Lozenges.
Prepared from the receipt of an eminent Physician, and experience has fully justified their recommendation as the most speedy remedy in irritation of the throat, catarrhal coughs, bronchitis, incipient consumption, spitting of blood, &c., &c.
To public speakers and vocalists they will be found invaluable.
When they impart a clear and beautiful tone to the voice. Free from any preparation of opium, and of an agreeable taste, they are applicable to all.

Whitmore's Stomachic Dinner Pills.
No Pill is so efficacious in promoting digestion, strengthening the stomach, correcting acidity, preventing or removing headache, giddiness, &c., arising from a costive habit, debilitated stomach, or torpid liver.
They require no change of diet, and those of the most delicate constitution may take them with safety.
Taken as an adjunct with WILKINSON'S SARSAPARILLA
with the greatest success.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT and PILLS.
ACUTE RHEUMATISM.—In all severe pains in the joints and muscles, after due fomentation with hot water, the soothing action of this Ointment is most remarkable; it seems at once to lessen inflammation, ease pain, reduce the swelling, restore the free circulation, and expel the disease.
In these complaints, indeed, Holloway's Ointment and Pills are an invaluable specific. The Ointment should be rubbed as near the part in pain as the patient can bear; it is absorbed, and directly conveyed to the diseased textures, when, acting on nerves, vessels, and guiders, it will arrest disease, and again establish healthy action. The aperient and purifying qualities of the Pills have the happiest effect in assisting the Ointment.

HUNGARIAN WINES.—MR. MAX

GREGOR (from HUNGARY), Sole Proprietor of the two bottles of six different kinds of such Wines which are highly recommended by the Medical Faculty. Prices at 80s., 36s., and 42s. per case. Carriage free. Cash on delivery.

Country orders to be accompanied by P.O.O., or Cheques crossed the Bank of England.

A Entirely new description of ARTIFICIAL TEETH, without springs or wires, lighter, more durable and economical than any yet introduced. Tender and decayed Teeth stopped with anodyne cement, which becomes instantly hard as enamel, and restores Teeth to use even though nearly broken to the gum. Supplied only by Mr.
ALFRED JONES, Surgeon-Dentist to their late R.H. the Princess Augusta, the Duchess of Gloucester, &c., 64, Grove-nor-street, Grosvenor-square. At home from Eleven till Five.

COUGHS, ASTHMA, and INCIPENT CONSUMPTION ARE EFFECTUALLY CURED BY KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES.

This world-renowned medicine, which has obtained such celebrity in all parts of the globe, for curing the above-named complaints and other affections of the chest and pulmonary organs, is strongly recommended to all suffering from any of the above disorders, as one trial will be sufficient to prove their undoubted efficacy, being frequently used under the recommendation of the most eminent of the faculty.

and Patent Medicine Vendors in the world.

N.B.—To prevent spurious imitations, please to observe that the words "KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES" are engraved on the Government Stamp of each box, without which none are genuine.

RUPTURES.—BY HER MAJESTY'S ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS,
Perfected and Exhibited in the Great Exhibition of 1861, is allowed by upwards of 200 Medical Gentlemen to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so often hurtful in its effects, is here avoided; a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected, and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit) forwarded by post on the circumference of the body two inches below the hips
being sent to the Manufacturer, Mr. WHITE, 328, Piccadilly London.

Price of a Single Truss, 16s., 9s., 7s. 6d., and 5s. 6d.;
postage, 1s. Price of Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d.; postage, 1s. 8d. Umbilical, 42s. and 52s. 6d.;
postage, 1s. 10d.

Post-office Orders payable to JOHN WHITE, Post-office, Piccadilly.

NEW PATENT.

ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEE CAPS,
&c.—The material of which these are made is recommended by the Faculty as being peculiarly elastic and compressible, and the best invention for giving efficient and permanent support in all cases of weakness and swelling of the Legs, Varicose Veins, Sprains, &c. It is porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and is drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price, 4s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 10s. to 16s. each; postage, 6d.

KEATING'S PERSIAN INSECT DESTROYING POWDER.

THIS POWDER is quite harmless to animal life, but is unrivalled in destroying Fleas, Bugs, Flies, Cockroaches, Beetles, Gnats, Mosquitoes, Moths in Furs, and every other species of insect.

Being the Original Importer of this now invaluable article which has found so great a sale that it has tempted others to vend a so-called article, the public are therefore cautioned to observe that the packets of the genuine Powder bear the autograph of THOMAS KEATING.

Sold in Packets, 1s., and Tins, 2s. 6d., 4s. 6d., and 6s. each;
or 1s. Packets, free by post, for fourteen postage stamps, and 2s. 6d. on receipt of thirty-six. Also in Bottles, 1s. 2d.; with
ist, 79, St. Paul's Churchyard London, E.C.

TEXTILE MANUFACTURES and COSTUMES of the PEOPLE of INDIA

BY J. FORBES WATSON, M.A., M.D., F.R.A.S.,

Reporter on the Products of India.

Imperial 4to, morocco back, cloth, with numerous Coloured Photographs. £3. 5s.

This work—by affording a Key to the Fashions of the People, and to the Cotton, Silk, and Wool Textiles in actual use in India—is of special interest to Manufacturers, Merchants, and Agents; as also to the student and lover of ornamental art.

"If the manufacturer studies this book carefully he may add thousands a year to his profits, and there are not five books in the world of which that could be said. Altogether this book is thoroughly creditable to Dr. Forbes Watson's industry and acumen, and to the liberality of the India-office."—Spectator, Jan. 5, 1867.

"The conception of this splendid work reflects the highest credit upon the wisdom of the department to which we are indebted for its publication; and the manner in which it has been executed by its author, Dr. J. Forbes Watson, is conclusive evidence of his being the right man in the right place. No one can fully appreciate the value of this work without seeing it, because neither analysis nor extracts can give any idea of the immense mass of minute facts which it contains and the admirable manner in which they are grouped and made subservient to the practical requirements of the manufacturer and the merchant, and the cravings of the student of ornamental art. The illustrations are as magnificent as they are appropriate. In fact, as mere productions of beauty and taste, they give the work the air of a book of art luxury, and we have no doubt that from this feature it will find many admirers and purchasers beyond the ranks of trade and commerce. We ought to state that the Secretary of State for India not only deserves the highest praise for having had this work prepared and distributed, but likewise for having allowed a publisher to use the type and photographic plates so as to be able to produce a certain number of copies for sale. In no other way could copies of this unique and costly volume have been offered to the public at a reasonable price."—Morning Post, Jan. 3, 1867.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

The Bombay mail brings us our usual papers, from Calcutta to the 19th of June, Madras to the 18th, and Bombay to the 24th of that month.

There was very unsatisfactory news in Calcutta concerning the Orissa famine. An appeal had been published asking for £30,000 to support 1,500 children who have been left orphans by the famine. A native gentleman has offered £1,000 to the Famine Fund, provided that nine others subscribe each a similar amount.

It is stated that the prospects of the indigo season are unusually good.

The Licence Tax Act was subjected to a material amendment at the last meeting of the Governor-General's Council. The new Bill was introduced and passed at a sitting. The amendments introduced are to compel the collector of the tax to give seven days' notice, which he was not required to do, to any negligent or refractory tax payers before he proceeds to apply the penal clause. This penal clause is the one of which Mr. Massey did not know the meaning, and the new and substituted section fixes the maximum penalty at the highest amount of duty leviable under the Act. The doubt that the section has removed is this—whether, in the case of a disputed assessment by the collector, the magistrate had any discretion in fixing the amount. The amending Act leaves him no such power, the amount of assessment being definitively settled by the machinery of the principal Act. It will be seen from an account in another column that there has been a serious disturbance in Bengal connected with the assessment of the tax, which is still loudly condemned as a mischievous piece of legislation.

The tea planters in Assam have memorialised the Home Government, praying a separate administration and the appropriation of all revenues of Assam for the sole benefit of that province.

Advices from British Burmah say that there is every prospect of an abundant harvest. There are more troubles at the native Court, where, in consequence of an alleged conspiracy, the Padeing Mentha, eldest son of the late heir-apparent, and nephew of the reigning king, had been executed. "It is true," says a Rangoon paper, "that the young Prince, who has just fallen, did for a time appear in opposition to the King, when he collected troops around him for his own protection to the north of Mandalay, after he had fled from the city, under well-founded apprehension that his life was not safe; but his offence was very venial compared to the great and signal services which he rendered to the King in the hour of his greatest peril and suffering."

The Royal family of Oude are keeping up the character as a nuisance which they have enjoyed ever since their settlement at Garden Reach. It is not very long since the son of the ex-King was rescued by Government from proceedings in the High Court and enabled to live independently of his father. We learn from Calcutta papers that that measure has been found to work so well that the relatives of the King and the nobles about him, who like himself have retired from business, are to be pensioned, and the stipends of the household are to be reduced. The saving thus effected will be applied to the reduction of the debt due by the King.

The Commander-in-Chief has confirmed the sentence upon Captain Cunningham, of the 88th Regiment.

The fate of the eight Europeans—the captain and seven men of the ship Assam Valley—who were made prisoners by the cannibal savages of one of the Andaman islands, has now, after several efforts to trace them, been set at rest. An expedition, consisting of some men of H.M.'s 24th regiment, proceeded in the screw steamer Arracan, and the troops and marines having effected a landing, not without opposition from the Andamanese, in which several soldiers were wounded, discovered the bodies of the eight missing Europeans buried in a circle, and their faces exposed above ground. There can be no doubt of their identity. About twenty or thirty savages were killed by the exploring party before they left the island.

The Madras papers contain full reports of Lord Napier's visit to Pondicherry, taken principally from the Government Moniteur of that little settlement. We have not room for the speeches delivered on the occasion, and can only mention that they were very complimentary on both sides.

There was bad news in Bombay. It was reported that the Government had received intelligence of the deaths of one or two, at least, of the Abyssinian captives. It was confidently believed that the proposed expedition would be sent on behalf of these unhappy people, and the only doubt expressed was whether its object would be to rescue or avenge them. It was, of course, not known in Bombay that the Government do not intend to send the expedition at all.

Accounts had been received from Aden that one of the results of the peace which was brought about by the chastisement of the Foudehli Arabs has been a convention between the Resident and the Sultan of Lahaj for supplying the station with water. The water will be brought in through the territories of the Sultan by means of an aqueduct from a place called Sheik Othman. A new jail is also in contemplation, which will be large enough to accommodate 270 prisoners, and a European general hospital and quarters for military officers are also about to be erected.

"Nothing is ever settled in Bombay," says the Times of India. "We now hear that the great scheme of stationing all the European and native troops forming the Bombay garrison in a camp at Colaba has been abandoned, and that many of the civilians who were ejected from their houses in Colaba six months ago have obtained permission to return. The military objections taken to Sir R. Napier's scheme were that, although it would always secure to the troops a safe retreat to the ships, it would place the camp at the mercy of an enemy's squadron attacking the island, and, in the event of a rising in Bombay itself, would allow rebels to shut out the garrison from all access to the town. We do not know how far these objections have prevailed at head-quarters; but, at all events, the scheme has fallen into abeyance. It is a pity the matter was not more fully considered before the civil population of Colaba were ejected."

The Indian public were feeling renewed uneasiness at the progress of Russia in Central Asia. The latest accounts from the frontier inform us that not only Samarcand but the whole of Bokhara down to the borders of Afghanistan has fallen into the hands of the Russians. It is added that military cantonments are being built by the conqueror almost within sight of Herat. The Emir of Bokhara is said to be praying for the restoration of Samarcand, and the heir to the Bokharian throne is about to set out for St. Petersburg to prefer his request to the Czar himself.

A telegram had been received from Calcutta, dated the 22nd ult., stating that the United States war frigate Sacramento, while proceeding on a visit to Calcutta, had been wrecked on the preceding day near Cocanada. The crew were saved. We are not informed of the cause of the wreck, nor whether the frigate has been totally lost.

The next arrival from India will be the Calcutta mail, which is due in London on Saturday next.

The Secretary of State for India has refused his sanction to the raising of capital for the Indus Valley and Lahore and Peshawur Railways.

MISS CARPENTER has written a pleasing letter to her native friends in Bombay and elsewhere. She says, "I went as a stranger uncertain of the future. I sailed away from your shores feeling that all my warmest hopes were more than realised, that the reality had far surpassed my expectations, that your country is no longer as a strange land to me, but one full of those who regard me as a friend and extend to me their confidence. I shall go to London next week to confer with Sir Stafford Northcote, and then I shall learn what course will be best to carry out the special objects which I have in view. I shall at once commence revising the public addresses which I made in India and printing them in a small volume, and I shall commence the preparation of a volume entitled 'Six Months in India,' in which I shall endeavour to give the English much information respecting your country which I have gathered on my travels, and especially to state fully my views on many important subjects. I had the pleasure of landing in Malta, and of seeing Sir Bartle Frere, who looks wonderfully well. I also saw Prince Alfred walking very briskly by himself in the streets of Malta on duty. He is the commander of a vessel, and attends to his business himself. How you Hindoos would have been astonished! He is a very fine young man, of whom England may well be proud."

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

MONDAY, July 22, 1867.

A NEW EMPLOYMENT FOR EUROPEAN TROOPS.

It is becoming more and more apparent that our army cannot be much longer maintained at the necessary degree of force and efficiency without some important changes in the conditions of service. Private employment of almost any kind "pays" better, and men are getting too intelligent to remain nothing more than machines, while submitting to a discipline which they consider to be required only for the coercion of bad characters. It is inevitable, therefore, that we do something to render the service more pleasant as well as more profitable—something, in fact, to make the soldier content.

The latter object might be attained, supposing that the State could bear the expense, by giving the soldier a great deal more pay and a great deal more freedom. But we need scarcely point out the consequences of every man having plenty to spend and nearly nothing to do: discipline would be at an end, and the army would not hold together for a month. But no such objection applies to giving our soldiers work, or allowing them to take it, in addition to their military duties, and this policy we shall undoubtedly have to adopt one of these days. The Volunteer movement has shown that very considerable efficiency is not incompatible with the practice of other occupations, even when the other occupations are the rule and military exercise the exception, which would not be the case where the "regulars" were concerned; and any political drawbacks upon the closer association of the soldier and the citizen would be more than counterbalanced by the popularity given to the service. There are many difficulties, of course, in the way of a scheme of divided employment which would have the effect of placing the army upon something of the footing of the militia, with training all the year round and availability for foreign service; but it would be easy enough to carry out the principle to a limited extent, and the fact is fast being recognised by high military authorities.

It is in India that the idea took root, and we are glad to see that it is being developed in that country. The soldiers' workshops, introduced by that true soldier's friend, Lord Strathnairn, have become an institution in the land, and are found a source, not only of profit, but of relaxation, to thousands of men who would, in the good old times, be wasting their money, their time, and their health in doing battle against Indian ennui. And now we find Sir William Mansfield—who is always well employed when he is not troubling his head about the currency or having petty quarrels with subordinate officers—going a step farther, and making an important experiment of another kind. The nature of this experiment and its results are detailed in a report just published in the Gazette of India concerning the employment of European soldiers upon the Murree and Abbottabad road during the season of 1866. The men engaged upon this work were, it seems, 648 in number, and consisted of the head-quarters of the 3rd battalion, a detachment of the same regiment, and some men of the 79th Cameron Highlanders. They commenced operations at the beginning of May, and concluded them at the beginning of October, when they were marched back to their old quarters at Rawul Pindee. In the interval they had been in camp, and during the rainy season were lodged in huts. The work consisted in widening the present narrow four foot mule path into a good road for guns, twelve feet wide, and the portion completed during the season is the most difficult and dangerous. The report states that although the road is closed for three months in the year by the snow, it would still pay a considerable toll; and further, that it is a very important military line, running along the top of a high mountain range in the centre and watershed of the Huzara district, entirely commanding many villages difficult of access from the plains by any other road. The value of the work done by the men is estimated at Rs.60,000, and the expenses incurred, including of course the hire of the labour, was Rs.76,100. But what is more important is the high satisfaction with which the men took to the work, and its beneficial effect upon their health. It appears that the number of men treated in the head-quarters hospital of the 3rd battalion Rifle Brigade from the 18th of April, 1866, to the 3rd of November, 1866, was 164. The average strength during the period was 330; the proportion of admissions to strength, 49·69 per cent.; the proportion of sick to strength, 2·20 per cent.; and the average daily sick was 7·29. The largest number of admissions arose from intermittent fever—viz., 48. No death occurred. The returns of the other working parties, consisting of a detachment of the Rifle Brigade, and another of the 79th Cameron Highlanders, show the following results as regards the Rifles:—Average strength, 130; proportion of admissions to strength, 57·69 per cent.; proportion of sick to strength, 1·92; average daily sick, 2·50; no deaths; admissions from fever, 28. The Highlanders had an average strength of 168; average daily sick, 2·74 per cent.; died, 1·19 per cent.; admissions to strength, 26·78 per cent.

The two deaths were the result of an explosion. There was no death from disease during the five months' work. So impressed is the Executive Engineer with the sanitary advantages of the expedition that, after having had another year's experience with European working parties, he feels convinced that it will repay Government to employ volunteers on all the hill roads in the Hazara district; and that no amount of sanitary arrangements in the plains can drive the Peshawur fever poison out of a man's constitution and secure the men such health as will life and hard work in these Himalayan glens, far away from the temptation of liquor.

Colonel Macdonell, of the 3rd Battalion Rifle Brigade, gives a more important opinion upon the subject. He says: "It seems to me a wise measure which, to the change of climate, adds constant exercise, and it is to the latter that very much of the benefit on the health and spirits of the men may no doubt be attributed. We are told that, and we do not wonder at it, the volunteering for this service was very brisk, and that the men after a long sojourn in the Peshawur valley eagerly sought such a favourable opportunity for a change of climate. The men benefited, however, in every way. The conduct of the Battalion," Col. Macdonell reports, "while employed in road-making, was most exemplary; and that punishment even for slight irregularities was of rare occurrence; and with regard to the effect of the change and work upon their health," he says that "it is pretty conclusive, from the general appearance of the men, how much good the most salubrious climate in India, combined with the employment of road-making, can do." And farther on he adds, that "it cannot be a question whether the battalion has been benefited in health and improved in physique by the work and climate. No troops, as far as regards health and appearance, could vie with it. On the other hand, the familiarity and skill the men have acquired in the use of the pick and spade has, in forming men into valuable pioneers, not detracted from their merits as light troops. The same men who a few months ago could scarcely wield an implement, could now on the shortest notice and the slightest training execute a formidable field-work."

The Government, it is satisfactory to find, have been impressed with these highly satisfactory results, and are of opinion that the re-employment of the troops upon similar duty, during the ensuing season, is very desirable. There seems, too, no doubt of the men being willing. Colonel Macdonell says they will volunteer with alacrity. If this be the case it would really seem that we had hit upon an important aid to the popularisation of Indian service; for every regiment taking its turn of duty near the hills could also take its turn at the employment, and in the Huzara district alone it seems there is work enough of the kind to last for the next ten years.

THE REPORTED RETIREMENT OF THE VICEROY.

—A correspondent of the Times of India, writing from Simla, says:—The story that Sir John Lawrence intends to take his departure from this country in March next is wholly without foundation. I perceive it came out from England, where, it is but fair to infer, people consider they have a right to know his Excellency's intentions better than himself. Sir John Lawrence, though (as I have been informed) not at all desirous of a very prolonged stay in this country, will serve out the usual period of five years. It is not difficult to premise what gave rise to the report of his leaving in March next. Lady Lawrence, on account of domestic affairs, intended to have gone to England this year, several of his Excellency's children being, for educational purposes, &c., at home at present. Her ladyship has, however, postponed her departure until, probably, next March. Out of this prospective departure of her ladyship (necessitating, as it probably would, certain beforehand household modifications, both in this country and in England) has, it is likely, originated the gratuitous assumption that the Viceroy himself had made up his mind not to remain his full time. Unfounded reports of this kind, though productive of no serious harm, frequently cause great annoyance. Let but a plausible story of a Viceroy intending to go home get wind, and you may be certain that every person in the country who fancies he has "claims," writes, forthwith, somewhat to this purport:—"Now that Sir John is going home, I confidently reckon on being immediately gazetted superintendent of Turnip Agriculture in the provinces immediately adjacent the sanatoria (Murree preferred, on moral and religious grounds); or if, on financial considerations, such an appointment should be objected to, I would accept a well salaried commissionership to report on the sanitary condition and commercial prospects of that important and fast-rising place Nynee Tal." No joke for a private secretary to receive a dozen or more such missives daily, until the false report has died out. While on this subject, I may as well add that, notwithstanding the various reports to the contrary, Lord Napier's visit to the Viceroy at Calcutta a few months ago was a purely social affair, without any political or administrative significance whatever.

THE MILITARY ELEMENT IN THE PUNJAB COMMISSION.—Our attention has been called to the enormous preponderance of the military element in the Punjab Commission. We believe that of the thirty-three deputy-commissioners only four belong to the Civil Service—Mr. Aitchison, Mr. Macnabb, Mr. Smyth, and Mr. Elliott. To these, perhaps, may be added Messrs. Blyth and Wakefield. The ranks bristle with majors of various calibres. Some letter A No. 1 in all branches; some mediocre, steady, and honest; some crotchety and opinionated, yet hardworking.—Chronicle, June 15.

BENGAL.

UPPER BURMAH.

MANDALAY, May 26.—On the 13th a deep conspiracy was fortunately brought to light. The Poodein Mentha's sister managed to bribe two eunuchs of the king's body guard, and got an interview, dressed up in a man's clothing, with her brother. Eunuchs have great power in the palace, and in the present instance they rather exceeded their power, for unfortunately the conversation between the prince and his sister was overheard by some of the guards and reported. It was the intention of the conspirators to set the palace on fire, and during the confusion the Poodein Mentha was to make his escape. On the night of the 14th, so late as eight o'clock, the High Court was sitting in judgment, and then and there passed sentence of death upon five princes and two eunuchs. On the morning of the 15th Captain Sladen heard that the executions were ordered for that day, and met the procession at the Ahlowee gate, bearing the princes to the scene of execution. Captain Sladen at once applied for an audience. The King immediately came out, and jocularly asked him if he could eat mangoes. "My Lord!" said Captain Sladen, "I have come for the express purpose of begging your Majesty to spare the lives of the Poodein Mentha and his brothers, and to guarantee, if your Majesty considers it necessary for the safety of your kingdom, to have them properly secured at the Andamans." The King at first did not believe that the princes were to be executed, but immediately gave orders that they should be pardoned. If any of their lives had been sacrificed, the Wondouks were there and then to be executed. The Resident retired to the eastward, and was talking to some of the officials, when the messenger who had been despatched with the reprieve returned, reporting that the Poodein Mentha had been executed. The Resident then begged that the lives of these officials too might be spared. After some hesitation the King granted the request. This act of humanity on the part of Captain Sladen has given him such general praise amongst the Burmese that his name hereafter will always be held in grateful esteem by all classes.

When Captain Sladen met the procession at the Ahlowee gate he called out to the Wondouks to go slowly, and told them the purport of his visit to the palace. The Wondouks, wishing to gloat in the blood of their victims, hastened on the procession, and on arrival at the burial ground, contrary to all custom, pitched upon the Poodein to suffer death first. The cords having been adjusted, a blow from a club was given on the back of his neck, and at that moment three horsemen were seen to gallop as if for their lives. The mob cried out "a reprieve, a reprieve," and as soon as the officials heard this they hurried on the death of the poor Poodein, whose breath left his body with pardon ringing in his ears. The officials who took upon themselves the responsibility of the whole proceedings deviated from the usual custom. The High Court was opened at night. When a sentence of death is passed upon princes of royal blood it is customary to report the same to the King, which is done by the chief eunuch placing the report on the King's bed just before he retires to rest, the eunuch remaining at the door. If in three hours the report is not returned sentence is confirmed. At an execution of princes of the royal blood the youngest should suffer first and at sunset. One of the princes and a eunuch, who were to have been executed, have become idiots.

To make up the deficiency in the Exchequer occasioned by the duties being reduced, the King has levied a sort of income-tax. The officers to whom was entrusted the levying of this tax commenced right and left in good earnest, but his Majesty has ordered a refund to all the foreigners.—From a Correspondent of the Friend of India.

RUSSIAN TURKISTAN, CABUL, AND CASHMERE.

Our latest authentic news tends to show that in the territory recently conquered by the Russians in Central Asia matters are not proceeding in nearly so couleur de rose a fashion as the official reports of General Romanovski have hitherto induced people to believe. The inhabitants, though in the main not displeased with the novel advantages of a civilised Government, have several grievances against their new masters. And the relations of Russia with the Khan of Khokand, Khuda Yar Khan, are of so unsatisfactory a character that war may at any time be the result. The impetus, too, which the recent conquests of Russia were said to have given to her trade is now declared to be illusory. In fine, General Romanovski has been removed from the government of Turkistan in disgrace. The position our maps have hitherto assigned to Russia's latest conquest, Jeezukh, is incorrect. It lies not due south but north-west of Oratippa, so that Oratippa, Jeezukh, and Chinaz form a more or less equilateral triangle, of which Fort Chinaz on the Jaxartes is the apex. This discovery explains the reason for the capture and occupation of Jeezukh. In its real situation it consolidates the strategical position, whereas, on the southern side of the Ak Tau Mountains, where it was believed to be, it would have been an unsupported outpost challenging attack.

Every day should bring us intelligence of the final throw by the Ameer Shere Ali Khan for the recovery of Cabul from the Wullees whom we have recognised, Afzul Khan. Our latest authentic intelligence from Cabul itself is to 26th May, when the position of parties was this. The Wullees had encamped his army outside of Cabul and had made the Bala Hissar his stronghold. He had been joined with a force of 3,000 foot, 1,000 horse and 12 guns by his son Abdoor Ruhman Khan from Candahar, and had resolved to devote ten lacs of rupees to the extinction of his enemy. On the other hand Fyz Mahomed, who is really fighting Ameer Shere Ali's battles, had been joined by the Ameer from Herat with two lacs of rupees and a considerable force, at Tashkurghan. Fyz Mahomed has declared himself the servant of the Ameer and fired a salute of 121 guns in his honour, while the Ameer has trusted him so far as to give him the cash and place him at the head of the united armies along with his son, Ibrahim Khan, giving him the title of Furzund or son. The Ameer's army, under these leaders, began its march on Cabul on 16th May, 16,000 strong with 16 guns. The Kohistan tribes were to join it with 8,000 men and guns. Only in the event of Afzul Khan taking the field in person will Shere Ali appear at the head of his troops. The advanced guard reached Roodee on the 26th. The chances are greatly in favour of Shere Ali. All the chiefs of Balkh, with the Meer of Maimunna at their head, have tendered their allegiance, and the Turkomans have supplied levies of horse. All the hill tribes have promised or sent assistance. Shere Ali has money, Afzul Khan only hopes to squeeze it out of the people. Not only they but his own troops are disgusted by his tyranny. Many of his chief supporters are deserting him. And worse than all, he cannot hope to have both his son Abdoor Ruhman and his brother Azim Khan on his side, for neither will yield to the other the claim to be heir apparent, and it required the union of both to put Afzul Khan where he is. Afzul has nothing but Cabul and its vicinity, and Candahar is in a state of anarchy, that old Abithophel, Shureef Khan, and Shanawas Khan, from whose father Dost Mahomed took Herat, having risen against Azim Khan. On the other hand, Herat, Furrak and Ghurriak was faithful to Shere Ali throughout and all Balkh has been secured to him by Fyz Mahomed. If that general is true—and all depends on that—there is no reason why Shere Ali should not once more be master of Cabul. Meanwhile he remains behind at Tashkurghan, where he holds court and invests the local notables with dresses of honour. Whatever happens, the position of the British Government remains unaltered. Afzul Khan was recognised as Ameer only of so much territory as he actually held, and even in the act of recognition pity was expressed for Shere Ali, and a declaration made that Shere Ali would still be recognised as Ameer of whatever portion of Afghanistan remained to him.

The prospects of free trade and of the abolition of slavery of the worst kind are somewhat brighter in Cashmere. Lord Cranborne, when Secretary of State, sent out a despatch approving of a mission to Khoten. We trust the Governor-General will, in this as in the Burmah expedition, subordinate his own views to those of the Home authorities and send an English officer to Khoten. Of the two contradictory stories told by Mr. Johnson the first, which represented the ease and advantages of a journey to and residence in Khoten, is generally believed to be the true one. All Chinese Tartary is now open to our influence in a way it will never be again. The agency at Leh, small as that measure is, has already done good, even before Dr. Cayley joined his post. The Maharajah has changed his Wuzer in Ladak. Will not this encourage the Governor-General to go on? If his Excellency will not cross the frontier, will he not use his influence to stop the Maharajah and his Ministers trading? It is quite true that no order prohibiting this can be issued, but what have our politicals been created for, if not for the purpose of effecting reforms in feudatory States by persuasion and advice. It does seem most extraordinary that while even the King of Oudh in former times, and all other tributary princes, could not oppress their subjects without the constant and earnest remonstrance of some resident or agent, Cashmere is allowed not only to do as he likes to his own people, but may stop our trade, bully our traders, and assume an air of independence which the natives interpret as a sign of our weakness. A native merchant the other day, who had been literally driven out of the market by the Maharajah's exactions, when told that an agent was going up to Leh to look after the interests of the traders, said: "It's of no use one attempting to trade in those parts until the Government compel the Maharajah and his Ministers to give up trading. Surely the Maharajah, with his sixty-five lakhs a year, might be content to busy himself with the cares of good government, instead of putting all his money into trade, and forcing prices to suit his demands for profit." Meanwhile, we are doing our utmost to improve the communication with Ladak. The road through Lahoul is being freed from impediments, and a new mule road is being made in Koolloo so as to shorten the journey by two marches. Bungalows and serais are being built at each stage. A cart road is being rapidly pushed forward to Palumpore from Noorpore, and now it is proposed to hold a large fair at Palumpore every autumn where the hill traders will come down with their goods and exchange their commodities for Kangra tea. But all these efforts are rendered nugatory so long as the Maharajah and his ministers forget their duties as rulers and dispensers of justice, and enter the market with a capital of sixty or seventy lakhs yearly to command prices and even to confiscate goods when it suits their convenience. What chance of justice, let alone profit, have our traders, when judges are creditors and execute their own decrees without going through the form of a trial?

It is a work not beneath a Governor-General of Sir John Lawrence's antecedents to free Cashmere and our trade from the shackles imposed by the policy of a grasping ruler who owes everything to us from whom he derives the power to oppress. Call Cashmere Spain, and Jowali Sahai, Narvaes, and think how soon ironclads and armies would be brought to the front to check a hundredth part of the insults which are constantly being heaped on British subjects. But they are black.—Friend of India.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE CASE OF CAPTAIN CUNNINGHAM.—Our readers are aware that the Rawulpindee Court-martial, presided over by Colonel Priestley, sentenced Paymaster and Honorary Captain Michael Joseph Cunningham, of the 88th Regiment of Foot (the Connaught Rangers), to be cashiered, and to undergo penal servitude for five years, and further to make good the sum of Rs. 20,115-11-8. The Commander-in-Chief confirms this sentence in the following remarks:—"After the most attentive consideration of the proceedings of this trial, including not only the evidence in support of the prosecution, but also the admissions of the prisoner, the Commander-in-Chief in India is, to his great regret, unable to discover any extenuating circumstances which would justify his Excellency in mitigating the sentence of the Court." His Excellency approves of the rejection by the Court of questions and documents submitted by the prisoner. "If, however, it should be conceded that some of the questions might have been exceptionally permitted as tending to impeach the credit of witnesses, it cannot be gainsaid, on the other hand, that extraordinary license of statement and allusion was allowed to the prisoner in his defence; a license which many Courts-martial would have checked; and which, indeed, served to show that the Court had been right in its appreciation of the drift of the rejected questions." The sentence, we presume, is intended to be carried out in England, where, however, an appeal is to be made against the sentence, on the ground of illegality.

THE FAMINE REPORT.—The Friend of India says:—"The Secretary of State has sent out orders by telegraph that every official mentioned in the report of the Orissa Famine Commission shall be at once furnished with a copy. The Home authorities are evidently not satisfied, either with the remarks of the Commission or with the decision of the Government of India. The Commission's report praises only three officers—Mr. Barlow, of Pooree, Lieut. Money, of Maunbhoom, and Mr. Dampier, Commissioner of Nuddea, and one of its members. Many of the other officials, from Sir Cecil Beadon downwards, having obtained a perusal of the report and even of the remarks of the Government of India, have already circulated among their friends confidential replies. Sir Cecil Beadon, for instance, quotes a letter from the Hon. W. Grey to the Viceroy, in which the present Lieutenant-Governor is said to have expressed a doubt whether, even in June, importation of rice into Orissa was wise. He also cites a letter to himself from Mr. Buckley, the senior missionary in Cuttack, in which that gentleman, in the middle of April, is asserted to have expressed the belief that there would be no famine. Sir Cecil Beadon is unnecessarily sharp in hinting that Sir John Lawrence charged him with a want of veracity when his Excellency wrote that it was 'incredible' that the late Lieutenant-Governor should not have seen signs of the coming calamity during his visit to Orissa in February, 1866. Sir John evidently meant only to express surprise by the use of that word, a surprise shared by the whole public. The Secretary of State's order is just, for all who are implicated ought to have the opportunity of defence in an open and satisfactory manner."

DEATHS BY DROWNING.—It is with regret we notice the deaths by drowning of Messrs. Evans and Moss, the former lately in the Harbour Master's department, the latter late first officer of the S.S. Catherine Apar. A letter from Domrah, near Point Palmyras, describes the melancholy accident by which these two gentlemen met their death:—"A gentleman named Evans, who was sent down here to assist me, was drowned in my boat, together with Mr. Moss, late chief officer of the S. S. Catherine Apar, and five lascars. They were attempting to get near a pariah sloop anchored out here, when a violent squall sprung up. I made signals for them to return, which they tried to do, but failed. I then intimated to them to anchor, and when about 300 fathoms from the sloop they did so. By this time it was blowing a gale, and a heavy sea had got up. We tried by means of a line and life buoy to reach them, when, seeing our intention, they hove up, and bore away under a reefed lug sail, towards the reef near South Beacon, where the breakers were terrific. The boat behaved remarkably well, but of a sudden disappeared in the surf. We thought we saw her pulling through the surf, but were deceived. On looking through a telescope, we perceived one man holding up a piece of cloth tied to a bamboo as a signal of distress, and two others were afterwards made out sitting on the sand. Next morning (8th instant) we took the three men off the reef, and learned from them that all their companions were drowned. They saved themselves by clinging to the mast."—Indian Daily News, June 14.

THE FRENCH POSSESSIONS IN INDIA.—The weary negotiation about the French possessions in India has entered on a new phase. The Imperial Government consents, it is said, to give up all its outlying possessions for a pecuniary consideration, but decides to retain Pondicherry and Chandernagore. Now, as far as the information before the public goes, there has never been any question of the purchase or exchange of Pondicherry. The English Government were anxious only to take possession of Chandernagore, a place of no political importance, and of no real value to France, since it is surrounded on all sides by English territory. The size of the settlement again ought to make the question of a transfer a mere matter of detail. Small as it is, however, it serves as a refuge for persons anxious to avoid the action of the law in the capital of British India, and hence the English Government proposed that Chandernagore should be added to the British possessions, an equivalent portion of territory being added to the settlement of Pondicherry. It is to be regretted that this simple and reasonable proposal has not met the views of the French Government.—Englishman.

RAILWAY MISMANAGEMENT IN THE PUNJAB.—Indian Public Opinion has published an article on railway mismanagement in the Punjab, every line of which is a libel unless it is true. Lieutenant-Colonel Elphinstone, the agent, cannot remain quiet under the serious charges even if the directors of the Punjab Railway allow them to pass in silence. The Englishman has of course promptly disclaimed the imputation cast upon it. The fact is no longer to be concealed that what with the Kupertulla business, the testimonial business, and now these railway contracts, the management alluded to has long been the subject of far from flattering rumours even in Calcutta and in the highest quarters. In Bengal the complaint is that Government interferes too much in railway matters; in the Punjab it seems to shut its eyes to them.

RESISTANCE TO THE LICENCE-TAX.—An attempt to levy the Licence-tax has resulted in what threatened to be a very serious affair in Monghyr. The native traders simply shut their shops, and the crisis was such that Mr. A. Money, the commissioner, hastened to the spot and harrangued the people. The police were on the alert. The immediate occasion of this was, we believe, the assessment of a bunnia, who had been in the lowest grade of the Income-tax, at Rs. 500 a month. On the other hand the tax is being quietly raised in the Punjab in spite of the opinion entertained of it by every official. Take the Lahore district as an example. The Deputy-Commissioner seems to have been forced to devote the whole month of May to the duty of assessment. Excluding officials the tax has yielded only Rs. 22,000 from 2,400 licences. Of these no less than 1,800 are of the 6th class, and only forty of the 2nd and two of the 1st. The tax is thus essentially an impost on the poor. The wealth of the district is not even touched. So much for a silly Act and a bad tax—nothing from the rich, absolutely little but comparatively much from the poor, and general discontent among all classes, official and non-official. The heaviest Income-tax in war times could not have done half the mischief, and it would have yielded from two to five millions sterling.

THE DEATH OF THE FIRST AND ONLY HIGH COURT NATIVE JUDGE IN INDIA, the Hon. Sumbhoonath Pundit, has naturally excited discussion in Bengal. No native has yet been found worthy of a seat on the bench of the High Courts of Madras, Bombay, and Agra. The experiment was tried in Bombay, but failed. This is deeply to be regretted, but with our courts and native society in their present state, incontrovertible purity is almost an impossibility. This can be asserted of Sumbhoonath, and because the same can be said of Baboo Hurrochunder Ghose, one of the judges of the Calcutta Small Cause Court, we trust he will be promoted to the High Court bench. Ability is much, and there is no lack of it at the Bengalee bar. But uncompromising probity is far more indispensable. The deceased judge was a Cashmere Brahmin, whose family had settled in Oude, which he recently visited to marry his daughter. A branch had been settled in Bengal for six or seven generations, preserving their own usages, and refusing to intermarry with Bengal Brahmins. From an assistant to the Sudder Court Record Keeper on Rs. 20 a month, Sumbhoonath Pundit rose through the various grades of the native bar to the bench, and there so impressed his colleagues as to call forth the eulogy of the Chief Justice and of Mr. Justice Jackson, representing both sides of the Court. On points of Hindoo law, and on all zemindary and ryottee questions, his knowledge was accurate, varied and extensive. He died at the age of 47.—Friend of India.

THE "PLEASURES OF HOPE" IN BENGAL.—The Friend of India says:—"One Baboo Doorgadass Mookerjee has translated the 'Pleasures of Hope' into Bengalee, 'with great credit to himself,' according to the Hindoo Patriot. Is there no chance of a Bengalee Campbell? Dr. Carey made the language and gave it the foundation of a literature, and good prose writers in it are to be found. But is there any Bengalee national poet? We suppose that it is impossible till there is a nation, and not merely, as at present, a mass of ignorant peasantry, a few absentee zemindars, a small number of public spirited landlords, and a large class of office holders—97 per cent. idolaters, 2 per cent. secularists, and 1 per cent. 'feeling after God.'"

MASTERS V. BROADHURST AND BAILEY.—Doubtless the public has almost forgotten the sensation that was created in the little "Pedlington" of this station in January last by the defamation case of Masters v. Broadhurst and Bailey, 20th Hussars. The matter is about to be revived, as the plaintiff has appealed, and in a few days the case will be reviewed by the Hon. Mr. Brandreth, our commissioner, who has lately taken up the appointment at Rawul Pindee. I need scarcely add that the appeal is looked upon with much interest, as the decision given by the learned judge before whom the case was tried is not generally considered satisfactory, and has been a matter of much comment by the public.—Delhi Gazette, June 15.

THE ENGLISH CAPTIVES IN THE ANDAMANS.—The Rangoon Times gives a detailed account of the expedition in the Arracan to discover the fate of the crew of the Assam Valley among the savages of the Little Andaman Island. A party of eighteen or twenty men of H. M. 24th, under Lieutenant Much, and accompanied by Dr. Douglas, of the same corps, with six or eight marines, landed at a spot where they saw the remains of a sailor's dress. They were met by showers of arrows, and in self-defence, as well as afterwards in revenge, killed from twenty to thirty natives, for they found a curved line of eight graves of the crew who had been murdered, the head of one man touching the feet of another, and the face of each just visible on the surface of the ground. One of the boats had been smashed in the surf and the other was without a rudder. The party made a raft in order to return to the steamer, but were washed off by almost every wave. Dr. Douglas showed great courage in frequently rescuing drowning men, and finally all was saved except Lieut. Glassford, who was so eager to go that he took leave and paid his passage as a volunteer. H. M. surveying ship Sylvia had arrived at Port Blair on her way to the Corea, where the commander is to enter into treaty relations with the king if possible. It is stated that he had never heard of the existence of the convict settlement at Port Blair, which seems incredible.

RAWUL PINDEE, June 6.—This station continues free from cholera, the general health of the troops, both European and native, being exceedingly good. The last accounts from Peshawur describe the disease there to be abating, so let us trust in a day or two it will disappear altogether. Our deputy commissioner, Major Hall, met with a very disagreeable mishap last week. Whilst driving over the bridge over the Leh river on the Murree road, the boarding gave way and his horse was precipitated below. This bridge has been in a most dangerous state for more than a year, but although repeatedly brought to the notice of the executive engineer, it has been allowed to remain in this insecure state without any attempts being made to repair it. Under these circumstances Major Hall has claimed compensation for the value of the horse, and it is to be hoped the executive engineer will have to stump up. What with the disgraceful state of the greater portion of the station roads and the insecure state of the bridges, the Public Works Department is a bye-word here.

ACCIDENT TO MAJOR PALLISER.—Another accident has occurred at Seepree to an officer of the irregular cavalry. Major Palliser, when on a shooting excursion, lost a part of his thumb through the bursting of the left barrel of his piece. The gallant major, at the time of the accident, had only just recovered from a wound he had received when on a tiger-shooting excursion, a bullet from a friend's rifle having grazed his left leg and inflicted a slight wound.—Pioneer, June 7.

DEATH OF MAJOR C. M. FITZGERALD.—It is with sincere regret that we have to announce the death from cholera of Major C. M. Fitzgerald, of the Bengal Staff Corps, and Deputy Commissioner General at the Presidency. The remains of the deceased officer were removed for interment at 6 P.M. yesterday evening. The funeral was attended by a party of 200 men under the command of a field officer from the 2nd Battalion Rifle Brigade.—Indian Daily News, June 15.

OUTBREAK OF CHOLERA IN BHOOTAN.—We very much regret to hear that a virulent type of cholera has broken out in Bhootan. The heat has been excessive, although, according to modern theory, that has less to do with the disease than is generally supposed. We trust to announce its speedy subsidence.

COLONEL HUGHES, Commandant 1st Punjab Cavalry, has been appointed to officiate as Commandant of the C. I. Horse and Political Agent in Western Malwa.

CHOLERA.—We are sorry to hear of cholera having made its appearance in the north-eastern parts of the province of Oude. The disease has visited the Roy Bareilly district and the neighbourhood of Luckimpore. At one time it was within twelve miles of Lucknow, and one or two cases occurred at a village only three miles from Dilkosha, but its further advance seems, and we hope effectually, to have been checked.—Delhi Gazette, June 20.

INSPECTOR-GENERAL, R.A., SOUTHERN DIVISION.—We hear that there is some chance of the Inspector-generalship of the Royal Artillery, Southern Division, being conferred upon Brigadier-general J. W. F. Fitzmayer, C.B., Royal Artillery, at present officiating in command of the Oude Division.—Indian Daily News and Bengal Hurkaru, June 11.

THE BISHOP OF CALCUTTA IN BURMAH.—After a very unpleasant passage the Bishop of Calcutta arrived at Rangoon in the Coringa on the 24th May, and left for Moulmein on the subsequent Saturday. On his return to Rangoon he is to go to Thyetmyoo.

DISCOVERY OF SILVER IN THE KHEENE HILLS.—We hear from Rewah that a Mr. L. von Clair has discovered a vein of silver in the Sir Kheene Hills, and that the Maharajah has given orders for mining works to be commenced upon at once.

THE NAWAB AHMED ALI of Lucknow, who was seen in the act of attempting to murder his wife after a dispute about the servants, and then to cut his throat, has been sentenced to transportation for life. The unfortunate Begum tried to shield him by perjury, but in vain.

MR. O. A. HUME, C.B., has been appointed Commissioner of Customs in the N.W.P., Punjab, and Central Provinces, in succession to Mr. Wigram Money.

LORD NAPIER'S VISIT TO PONDICHERRY.

Our readers cannot fail to be interested in the details of H.E. the Governor's recent visit to Pondicherry, where his lordship met with a very flattering reception at the hands of our French neighbours. We may therefore be excused for somewhat overstepping the usual limits of the space devoted to subjects of this description, in giving the following translation of an article which appeared in the Moniteur Officiel of Pondicherry on the 14th June:—His Excellency the Right Hon. Lord Napier, Governor of the Presidency of Fort St. George, arrived at Pondicherry on the evening of the 7th instant by the French steamer Meinam, on board of which was also Lady Napier, who is returning to England owing to the state of her health. The high surf and the lateness of the hour prevented his Excellency from landing immediately. His lordship therefore did not leave the steamer till the following morning.

At daylight the Master Attendant and the Chief Secretary proceeded on board to wait upon Lord and Lady Napier, and to welcome them on the part of the Governor; Mr. Norfor, the British Consular Agent, and the Assistant Collector of South Arcot, accompanied them. It had been hoped up to that time that Lady Napier would honour the town of Pondicherry with a visit during the short stay of the Meinam in the roads. The Governor was on the beach with a view to having the honour of personally welcoming her ladyship, but this of personally welcoming her ladyship, but this hope was not realised, the health of her ladyship precluding her from acting up to her first intention. Lord Napier was received on land-ship by the Governor, the Chief of the Administration, the Mayor, the Chief Military Officer, and the Collector of South Arcot, the Hon. Mr. Reade. His Lordship was accompanied by his Private Secretary, Mr. Garstin, and his Aide-de-camp, Captain Graham.

A salute of 17 guns was fired on his Excellency reaching the shore, and he immediately proceeded to Government House. As he was entering, a sepoy guard under the command of an officer saluted his Excellency, the band playing at the same time. An immense crowd had gathered on the road by which his lordship had to pass, and it was with no small difficulty that the carriages advanced through the large concourse of natives who were crowding the esplanade and other places near the Government House. His lordship having intimated to the Governor his desire of being received without the customary ceremonials, his visit not being of an official character, no other preparations had been made for his reception.

After being welcomed by the Governor's lady, Madame Trillard, and resting a brief while, his lordship re-entered his carriage in order to visit the principal institutions of the town, accompanied by the Governor and the leading functionaries of the colony. His lordship stopped first at the Hospital, and inspected all the wards. The cleanliness, thorough ventilation, and excellent arrangements of the establishment, attracted his attention, and he expressed his satisfaction to the surgeon in chief and the lady superioress of the Convent of the Sisters of St. Joseph, who attend upon the sick. Lord Napier next visited the schools of the Mission conducted under the supervision of the Rev. Mr. Dupuis. The institution for young native girls, both Christian and heathen, successively attracted his attention. The excellent manner in which these educational establishments are conducted, producing results to which he was enabled to testify, drew from his lordship encomiums upon the directors of these institutions. Addresses in Tamil and French were presented to him by some of the young native girls, who acquiesced themselves of their parts with aptness and presence of mind. One of the notable natives, Sandirapillay, addressed his Excellency during his visit to the school for native girls. Want of space prevents our publishing these speeches; suffice it to say that the ideas expressed on these occasions, both in prose and in poetry, were all dictated by the same feeling, viz., one of thanks to the patrons of these useful and prosperous institutions, which are calculated to regenerate native society by means of female education, and will be a lasting memorial of his Excellency Monsieur Bontemps, who has not ceased since the beginning of his administration to foster and encourage the educational projects of the reverend fathers of the mission, and who is himself the founder of the school for caste native girls; and lastly, they suggested a pleasant recollection of Lord Napier for having given, by his visit to these institutions, a pledge of the interest and importance his Excellency attaches to them.

His lordship also visited the Church of the Mission, the seminary, the grand Jail, the market fountain, and the Protestant church. A brief interval was also spent at the Colonial College, where the boys were impatiently awaiting the arrival of the noble lord, in the hope of having a holiday, the announcement of which was received with cries of "Vive le Gouverneur!" His Excellency, on leaving, expressed in flattering terms to the Principal, the favourable impression he felt. A visit to the school of the Ladies of St. Joseph, where his lordship also gave a proof of the earnest interest he felt in these visits by making minute inquiries, brought his circuit of the town to a close. In taking leave of the Superioress, his lordship congratulated her upon the success of her labours.

In passing the parish church of Notre Dame des Anges his lordship inspected this elegant structure, after which he returned to Government House. His lordship was evidently pleased with what he had seen, and expressed his regret at not being able to spare more time for visiting the various establishments of Pondicherry. At eleven o'clock the Governor, his lordship, and the officers who accompanied them, as well as the members of Council, sat down to breakfast. At dessert the Governor of Pondicherry, in drinking the health of the Governor of Madras, thanked him for his visit, and expressed all the satisfaction which the inhabitants felt at it. He added that, in accordance with his lordship's wishes, he could not, he was sorry to have to say, receive him officially with all the honours due to his high position, and such as Pondicherry would have been too happy to render to the representative of England—that great nation, the friend of France.

His Excellency left Government House at half past four, to proceed to Cuddalore, under a salute of 17 guns. Accompanied by the Governor of Pondicherry and the members of Council he proceeded along the beautiful promenade known as le Cours de Chabrol, and stopped at the cotton manufactory of Messrs. Tardivel and Co., where he was received by Messrs. Cornet, Bayal, and Tardivel. His Excellency seemed surprised to encounter here a branch of industry of a kind so little understood in India, and by the multiplicity of his questions and the satisfaction expressed by him to the director of the establishment, he exhibited the interest he took in an undertaking so happily adapted to native industry.

Here we must bring to a close our account of a day which terminated too soon for those who approached his Excellency the Governor of Madras, and appreciated his perfect courtesy, and an affability which was rendered more attractive by the remarkable facility with which he speaks our language. Shortly afterwards Lord Napier bade adieu to the Governor of Pondicherry and those who had accompanied him. His stay here was very short, and the manner in which it was employed rendered it shorter still, but its remembrance will ever remain engrafted upon the memory of us all.—Madras Times.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THERE WERE MEETINGS OF THE LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL on Saturday and yesterday (the 15th and 17th of June), to consider the report of the select committee on the Municipal Bill. Most of the recommendations of the committee have been adopted, and the Bill will in all probability be passed at the next meeting of council on Saturday. One of the most noticeable features in connection with this Bill is the apathy displayed by the native community on the question of popular election. The Government, we believe, were quite willing to yield to a demand for a modified representation, but to a demand for a modified representation, but strange to say many of the principal natives have not only shown a lukewarm interest in the matter, but are decidedly opposed to the representative system. We have endeavoured to ascertain the cause of this, and conclude that it is founded on a belief that it is a greater honour to be nominated a municipal commissioner by Government than to be elected by fellow-citizens! The native mind still clings to a belief in the infallibility of the Sirkar. The Hindoo has become so wedded to despotic government that he even shrinks from the responsibilities of a municipality! This is a "sign of the times" that is worth noticing.

It shows at all events that England has not yet accomplished the mission she has undertaken of teaching India how to govern herself.—Madras Times.

THE INDIAN OFFICERS' TESTIMONIAL.—The subscriptions that are being raised by the local officers of the Madras army for presenting a testimonial to Messrs. Jervis and Sykes are at last beginning to assume respectable proportions. Great apathy has been displayed hitherto, but allowances must be made for a body of men who have quite as much as they can do in these days of famine prices to make both ends meet. Great credit is due to Captain Rowland Farrer and one or two other officers for the perseverance they have displayed in raising the testimonial—a perseverance that promises at last, we think, to be rewarded.

THE VACANCY IN THE SANITARY COMMISSION, the Madras Times thinks, will be filled by one of the Deputy Inspector-Generals of Hospitals. By the recent order of Government cutting down the administrative offices of the medical establishment some of the senior surgeons would have been compelled to retire. Lord Napier seems desirous of remedying this hardship as far as possible. His determination to place a medical officer at the head of the Sanitary Commission is to be commended, and may be looked upon perhaps as an attempt to heal the old sore caused by the Coimbatore despatch.

A TERRIFIC THUNDERSTORM OCCURRED AT RAMANDROOG, the sanitarium of the Bellary station, a few days before the departure of the mail. One of the soldiers of the 76th regiment was killed in the barracks by lightning, another was so seriously injured that it is questionable if he will recover, and two others were hurt. The man who was killed was sitting directly beneath a lamp that was suspended by an iron rod from the ceiling. The Government gardens appear to have been almost destroyed.

BOMBAY.MISCELLANEOUS.

THE AMALGAMATION OF THE BANKS.—We have already, referring to the characters of the presidency banks, remarked upon the extreme improbability of the Government of India allowing either the Bank of Bengal or that of Madras to put any obstacle in the way of the reconstruction of the Bank of Bombay; and we may now add that this view has been confirmed by the opinion of those who may be supposed to have special knowledge of the subject. It is generally believed by those who should be well informed as to the official view of the matter that the amalgamation scheme is doomed, and we have been assured on undoubted authority that while the Bank of Bombay keeps afloat neither of the other presidency banks will be allowed to establish a branch here. So the Madrases will have to devise some other means of recovering the money they lost in Bombay, and Mr. Dickson will have to devise some other field for the investment of his spare cash, if he desires to maintain his dividends at the former standard. The capital of the Bank of Bengal has long been seen to be much too great for its business, and this will be felt even more in the future. But for the sums borrowed by Government during the past eight months it would have had a considerably smaller dividend to declare for last half-year. As much as half a million has been borrowed by Government at one time, and now that the Debenture Loan has supplied funds for expenditure on public works all this will be put a stop to, and that half millions will be allowed to be unproductive in the bank's coffers. This, we suppose, Mr. Dickson has sufficient foresight to understand, though by seeking so largely to increase the capital he evidently does not see how to turn his foresight to account; while the chairman of the Bengal Board still grasps after a return of the currency business to the bank, an event about as likely as the restoration of the Stuarts.

THE CURRENCY ACT.—At a meeting of the Viceregal Council held at Simla on the 5th June, the Hon. Messrs. Massey, Maine, and Strachey were appointed a Select Committee to report on the Currency Act Amendment Bill, with instructions to report in a week. In moving that the Bill should be referred to a Select Committee the Hon. Mr. Massey said that he "had already explained that, under the Currency Act Government promissory notes not issued in the presidency towns were payable only at the place where they were issued, and at the chief town of the Presidency within which such place was situated. The present Bill proposed to remove this restriction, which had proved inconvenient, and to accommodate the provisions of the law to the exigencies of trade and commerce. The Bill accordingly empowered the Governor-General in Council to transfer, for the purposes of the encashment of notes, any place of issue from one presidency to another. He had explained that the Bill had been suggested by the case of Nagpore, the course of whose trade was now almost exclusively directed to Bombay. The Nagpore traders were desirous of availing themselves of the facilities afforded by Government notes, but were precluded from doing so by the circumstance that the notes obtainable as Nagpore could be cashed only there and at Calcutta. Should the Bill become law it would, in the first instance at all events, be brought into operation only so far as regarded Nagpore."

ACCIDENT ON THE G.I.P. RAILWAY.—We are informed that a down goods train was thrown off the line of the Nagpore Extension, between Mulkapoor and Nandora, on the morning of the 9th inst., when the engine and twenty-one waggons were upset, and the driver, a man named Freshwater, was injured. The traffic was temporarily suspended, but great exertions were made to clear the line, which it was expected would take about three or four hours to complete. The accident occurred owing to a loaded waggon at Nandora having been blown six or seven miles out of the station. The station-master has been suspended, but according to his statement it would appear that the loaded waggon had been detached by some mischievous person, and was blown out of the station to the distance above stated without its having been seen.—Deccan Herald, June 14.

THE POONA SEASON.—During the past week there has been a perfect rush to Poona of all the notabilities who usually make this station their residence during the monsoon. We have now in our midst their Excellencies the Governor and the Commander-in-Chief, with their respective suites; the Hon. Messrs. Ellis and Mansfield, members of the Executive Council; Mr. Chapman, Mr. Gonne, Colonel Marriott, Mr. Wedderburn, and Colonel Kennedy, secretaries to Government; Messrs. Hadow and Rogers, revenue and police commissioners; the head-quarters and divisional staff; and all the heads of departments. Every bungalow in the camp and civil lines has, we understand, been taken up, and in a few days hence the station will be full to the brim, if not to overflowing. We understand that the Public Works Conference will again be held here this season, and that all the collectors and other officers will assemble about the middle of next month, about which time it is also expected that the first meeting of the Legislative Council will be held.—Deccan Herald, June 17.

GHEE.—There are two great Ghee-making districts in the Bombay presidency, Thur and Parker, in which a fee of four annas was imposed on every maund of exported Ghee, in substitution of the income-tax. Now that the income-tax has ceased, and the licence-tax come into operation, his Excellency the Governor-General has, in consideration of the charge on exported Ghee, added the inhabitants of Thur and Parker to the list of those who rejoice in exemption from the licence-tax. The result of a question of a general Ghee-tax versus a licence-tax would, we fancy, cause serious collision between two important elements of society.

Article 4.

Subject to the above limitations, any person who shall be charged with having committed within the territories belonging to, or administered by the Government making the requisition, any of the undermentioned offences, and who shall be found within the territories of the other, shall be surrendered. The offences are—mutiny, rebellion, murder, attempting to murder, rape, great personal violence, maiming, dacoity, thuggee, robbery, burglary, knowingly receiving property obtained by dacoity, robbery, or burglary, thefts of property exceeding Rs. 100 in value, cattle-stealing, breaking and entering a dwelling house and stealing therein, setting fire to a village, house, or town, forgery, uttering forged documents, counterfeiting current coin, knowingly uttering base or counterfeit coin, embezzlement, whether by public officers or other persons, and being an accessory to any of the above-mentioned offences.

Article 5.

In no case shall either Government be bound to surrender any person accused of any offence, except upon requisition duly made by, or by the authority of the Government within whose territories the offence shall be charged to have been committed, and also upon such evidence of criminality as, according to the laws of the country in which the person accused shall be found, would justify his apprehension and sustain the charge, if the offence had been there committed.

Article 6.

The above treaty shall continue in force until either one or the other of the high contracting parties shall give notice to the other of its wish to terminate it, and no longer.

Article 7.

All existing engagements and agreements shall continue in full force.

STAFF OFFICERS' QUARTERS.

No. 579.—In continuation of G.G.O. No. 859, dated Oct. 11, 1866, H.E. the Governor General in Council is pleased to notify, under instructions from the Right Hon. the Sec. of State for India, that whenever staff officers, for whom public quarters are not generally provided, and who, when stationed at presidency towns, are entitled to the superior public presidency rate of house-rent, may occupy public quarters (which, when available, they should be required to do), they are to forfeit presidency house-rent in full payment of the rent of such quarters.

No. 582.—The undermentioned officer is admitted to the Bengal staff corps, with effect from the date specified opposite to his name, subject to the confirmation of the Right Hon. the Sec. of State for India:—

Lieut. F. A. Darley, of the gen. list, inf., qmtr. 8rd regt. N.I., May 6.

May 31.—No. 583.—The following order, issued by the Govt. of Bombay, is confirmed:—

No. 188, dated March 18.—Granting leave of absence to Europe on m.c. to the undermentioned officer:—

Lieut. C. McNeile, of the Bengal staff corps, asst. comr., Punjab, for 20 mo.

COUNTING SERVICE FOR PENSION.

No. 585.—With the sanction of the Right Hon. the Sec. of State for India, H.E. the Governor General of India in Council is pleased to notify that all officers of the late Indian brigades of art., who may have served, or who may hereafter serve at the depots in England, shall be allowed to count as service for pension the whole time they may have so served, provided they are not in excess of the authorised establishment of those depots.

QUALIFYING SERVICE FOR PROMOTION.

No. 586.—The following despatch from the Right Hon. the Sec. of State for India is published for general information:—

No. 119.—Military.

INDIA OFFICE, London, April 25.

To H.E. the Right Hon. the Governor General of India in Council.

Sir,—With your military letter, No. 89, dated Feb. 28, para. 2, you transmit correspondence relative to the qualifying service for promotion of majors and brevet lieut. cols. under the Royal Warrant of Jan. 31, 1859.

2. As the C. in C. considers the point raised open to question, you state you are desirous of being informed whether the decision contained in your offic. secretary's letter, No. 889, dated Feb. 11, is accurate, viz.: That no portion of the time passed on leave by a major and brevet lieut. col. (for field service) comdg. a regt., can count as qualifying service for promotion to col., under the provisions of Clause 10 of the Royal Warrant of Jan. 31, 1859.

3. The clause referred to is as follows:—
"That the rank of colonel be given to officers who obtain the rank of brevet lieutenant colonel for services in the field after eight years of actual service with that rank."

4. When the period qualifying the lieutenant colonel for the rank of colonel, which had been fixed by the Royal Warrant of 1854 at three and six years respectively, was raised by the Warrant of 1858 to the periods of five and eight years, it was understood that no deductions from the extended periods were to be made on account of leaves of absence. It was subsequently determined (July, 1860) a that, in respect of lieutenant colonels in India, a limit should be placed "on the period of absence to be reckoned as part of the five years qualifying for promotion to colonel; and that fifteen months, being one-fourth of the whole period of five years, will be the term allowed exclusive of leave obtained on medical certificate in consequence of wounds received in action."

5. This regulation was to apply both to her Majesty's British and Indian forces serving in India.

6. Very shortly afterwards your Government were informed that, on a reference to the General Commanding in Chief, it had been ruled that leave of absence taken by a brevet lieutenant colonel, who had obtained that rank for service in the field, was to reckon as part of the eight years' service required under the warrant of 31st January, 1859, to qualify for the rank of colonel. This decision was published in orders by your Government on the 21st September, 1860.

7. You were informed recently that the practice under which leave of absence had been deducted from the five years' qualifying period was to cease, and that the Field Marshal Commanding in Chief had seen the necessity of rectifying the position of all colonels promoted since October, 1858, who might have had their promotion retarded by the practice of limiting the leave of absence to fifteen months in the five years.

8. Your Government were directed to adopt a similar course in respect to the colonels of her Majesty's Indian forces.

9. Your Government will thus observe that, although a limit was at one time placed on the leave of absence to be taken by a lieut. colonel qualifying under the five years' rule, it has at no time been intended that any deduction on account of leave of absence should be made from the service of the brevet lieut. colonel qualifying under the eight years' rule, under Clause 10 of the Royal Warrant. The only qualification required under this Clause is that an officer should continue to serve on full pay for the period of eight years from the date on which he obtained the rank of lieutenant colonel for service in the field.

10. The questions put by Sir William Mansfield to your Government were as follows:—

1st. Whether the period passed on leave by a major and brevet lieutenant colonel commanding a native regiment is to be reckoned under Clause 10 of the Royal Warrant of Jan. 31, 1859?

2nd. Whether leave of absence, which has been allowed to count as service for pension, is to be deducted from the qualifying service of captains and majors holding command of regiments with the army rank of lieutenant colonel?

11. With regard to these questions I have to remark as follows:—

12. Under the decision communicated to your Government on Oct. 27, 1859, No. 380, and Dec. 31, 1863, No. 445, the command of the Native Regiments held by substantive majors being brevet lieutenant colonels, is to qualify for promotion to the rank of colonel under the five years' rule, in accordance with the provisions of clause 9 of the Royal Warrant. Under the rulings of the Secretary of State for War, published in orders in India on Jan. 13, 1865, in respect to clause 9, a regimental major being a brevet lieutenant colonel, can only count the period he actually held command of a regiment towards the five years. On ceasing to exercise the command, he would, if a brevet lieutenant colonel for service in action, be in the same position as the captain and brevet lieutenant colonel referred to in Sir Charles Wood's despatch of Nov. 17, 1864, No. 356, para. 5, that is, he would revert to clause 10 of the Warrant whilst on leave. The decision of the Field Marshal Commanding-in-Chief to this effect was communicated to you in Lord de Grey's despatch dated May 31, 1866, No. 115. In this despatch you were informed that, by the rules which govern the promotion of officers of the British service, the period during which an officer, not a substantive lieutenant colonel, is absent from his command on any account whatever, can only be allowed to reckon as qualifying for the rank of colonel under the eight years' rule.

13. The privilege under which leave of absence is in certain cases allowed to count as service for pension, relates to retirement on full pay only, and has no bearing on promotion under the Royal Warrants.—I have, &c.,

BRITISH MEDICAL SERVICE.

June 6.—No. 602.—With reference to G.G.O. No. 901 of Oct. 26, 1866, H.E. the Gov. Gen. in Council is pleased to notify that the circles of med. superint. attached to the British and Indian med. services will henceforth, or until further orders, comprise the stations detailed below. (Here follow the names of the several stations, both for the "British Medical Service" and the "Indian Medical Service.")

2. The Barrackpore, Benares, and Sealkote circles are abolished, and the stations on the Arracan coast are transferred to the Pegu circle of med. superint.

3. The arrangements now notified will have effect from the dates on which the dep. inspectors gen. may assume charge of their respective circles.

4. With advertence to para. 7 and 13 of the G. O. of Oct. 26, 1866, the distribution of duties between the dep. inspectors gen. of the two services will be regulated as follows:—

I. Duties strictly connected with the British troops, whether professional, economic, or sanitary, will be vested solely in the administrative or senior officers of the British med. service, and those connected with the native army, and bodies of men belonging to it, in the senior med. officers of the Indian service.

No returns or reports connected with such duties will consequently be required by officers of one service from those of the other, excepting those referred to in rule VIII. below.

II. The senior medical officers of the two services on the spot, whatever their rank may be, will act as the sanitary officers and advisers of the officer commanding the station in all matters relating to their respective departments, or duties, as above indicated; and they will have the entire superintendence of the sanitation of the lines, bazaars, and establishments attached to them, of the regiments belonging to their respective services.

III. Questions relating to the general health of the station as a whole, or those in regard to which there is any doubt as to the jurisdiction, should be considered and reported on by the cantonment board of health, of which the senior medical officers present of the two services should be ex-officio members; or, if the question be a purely medical one, it may be considered by a board of medical officers of both services, the senior presiding.

IV. The president of any medical board, on officers or soldiers of either service always, if practicable—and the members also of such boards as far as can conveniently be arranged—should belong to that service.

V. The arrangements for hospital servants for British troops will be carried out by the dep. insp. gen., or senior medical officer, British service, in communication with the commissariat department, under the rules which have hitherto guided the dep. insp. gen. of the Indian army in similar matters.

No. 604.—With advertence to the foregoing order, the undermentioned med. officers are brought on the Bengal estab. to complete the administrative med. staff of H.M.'s British forces from the date of their arrival in India, and are app. to the Meerut and Lahore circles respectively:—

Dep. inspectors gen. H. G. Gordon, M.D., and W. H. Jepson, M.D.; date of arrival in Fort William, May 11.

The following med. officers, already in India, are app. to the circles of superintendence opposite their names:—

Dep. inspector gen. J. Summers, M.D., Peshawar.
Dep. inspector gen. W. Munro, M.D., C.B., Umballa.

Staff surg. major E. Menzies, Gwalior.
Staff surg. major J. A. W. Thompson, M.D., Allahabad.

MARINE DEPARTMENT.

No. 605.—With reference to the accompanying copy of a resolution of the Govt. of India in the home dept., by which all the marine business of the Govt. of India is transf. from the home to the mily. dept., it is announced that the secy., dep. secy., and asst. secretaries in the mily. dept., will hold the same positions ex-officio in the marine dept., and that the marine orders and notifications will be published as such, entirely separate from those of the mily. dept.:—

No. 627.

Extract from the Proceedings of the Government of India in the Home Department, dated Simla, May 27.
Read the undermentioned papers regarding the new troop transport system between England and India, via Egypt.

From the Secretary of State, No. 86, dated August 81, with enclosures.

Endorsement to Military Department, No. 5,302, dated Oct. 11.

From the Secretary of State, No. 2, dated Jan. 17, with enclosures.

Endorsements to Military and Financial Departments, Nos. 3,021 and 3,022, dated March 23.

Resolution.—The result of the introduction of the new troop transport system will be that the most numerous and most important references to the Govt. of India, on marine subjects, will be of a partly military character. On this account, and also with a view to relieve the Home Department, in some degree, from its present great pressure of work, H.E. in Council determines that, from and after the 1st proximo, all marine business coming before the Government of India shall be conducted in the Military, instead of the Home Department. Order.—Ordered that the foregoing resolution be communicated to the Military Department.

(Signed) E. C. BAYLEY,
Secy. to the Govt. of India.

No. 606.—The following order, issued by the Govt. of Bombay, is confirmed:—
May 29.—No. 354.—Granting leave of absence to Eur. on m.c., to the undermtd. officer:—
Major (brevet col.) G. W. G. Green, C.B., of the Bengal staff corps, comdt. 2nd regt., Punjab inf., for 20 mo.

COMPENSATION FOR LOSSES: RETIRING FUND.

June 7.—No. 607.—In G.O. No. 212, dated Feb. 25, rules were laid down for the grant of compensation for loss of sums subscribed by officers of the late Indian army for the purpose of assisting their seniors to retire.

2. These rules were issued under the authority of Lord Cranborne's despatch No. 160 of Aug. 8, 1866, published in G.O. No. 808 of Sept. 26 last; but, inasmuch as it appeared to the Govt. of India that a literal adherence to the terms of paras. 12 to 17 of that despatch would be contrary to the spirit of the despatch, and in fact lead, save in very rare cases, to no payments at all, a departure from the precise letter of the instructions was decided on, and without going into minute and often almost impracticable investigations as to all the payments made by officers in each rank and grade, and as to the benefit received in consequence of those payments, the Govt. settled to pay in full whatever sum an officer had disbursed towards the purchase of steps in the rank he held on Feb. 13, 1861, subject only to the deductions ordered in paras. 13 and 17 of Lord Cranborne's despatch No. 160 of August 8, 1866.

3. The Government of India was advised that "it was more to the interests of the officers concerned to give them the full benefit of any sums they may have paid in the grade they held at the date of reorganisation than to investigate the claim of each from the date of his entering into the service, and accord him the balance in his favour on the general account; and that 'a very few could submit the requisite details or substantiate their claims;' and, further, that 'it is believed that those few a very small percentage would be able to show any balance in their favour.'"

4. The Government of India acted on this view in the G.O. of Feb. 25 last, in the 6th paragraph of which the terms on which payment was to be made were laid down; but it was also notified, in the same paragraph, that "very exceptional cases (in which, in fact, a claim might not be met by the rule then laid down) would be specially considered."

5. Copy of a despatch from the Secretary of State for India, No. 124 of May 2, 1867, is published for general information, from which it will be seen that H.M.'s Govt., while not objecting to the rule laid down in para. 6 of the G.O. by which an actual payment can, under certain circumstances, be received by an officer without reference to advantages gained, still desire that the payments in previous grades may be also calculated, as well as the advantages gained by such payments.

6. In pursuance of these orders the payments due under para. 6 of the G.O. will still be made in full, irrespective of any account of the sums paid in ranks below that which an officer held on the 18th Feb., 1861.

7. At the same time each officer's claim on account of payments made while in a lower rank will be investigated, and if a balance appears in his favour after the deductions made in paras. 13 and 17 of the despatch of Aug. 8, No. 160, it will be credited to him; but in no case will any debit that may appear against him in consequence of such investigation be deducted from a payment due under the preceding paragraph.

8. The burden of proof of payment must, in each case, rest with the officer preferring a claim; and it will remain with the committee already appointed in each presidency to decide on the sufficiency of the evidence brought forward by officers as to the different payments they may have made for the purpose of assisting their seniors to retire; and, to carry out the provisions of paragraph 7 of this order the money gained by each step so purchased will be debited against the sums proved to have been paid in ranks lower than that held on Feb. 13, 1861.

For instance, a lieutenant who purchased one step, and by this became a captain ten months earlier than he otherwise would have attained the rank, will be debited with a sum equal to ten months' difference of pay between lieutenant and captain; while an officer who had aided in purchasing three steps while in the rank of lieutenant, and thereby became a captain three years earlier, would have to be debited with three years' difference of pay between lieutenant and captain.

9. In making these calculations the committee will not take into account any deaths of officers subsequent to retirement as affording a claim to a credit, on the ground that the purchase of the step had not produced the full benefit anticipated, but will simply estimate the money value of each step purchased, according to the earlier promotion to the next higher rank thus gained.

10. No sums paid to officers transferred to the invalid establishment can, under the orders of the Secretary of State, be credited to an officer under any circumstances; and in all cases deductions from sums due under paragraphs six or seven of this order, must be made to the extent of any amount the retired or retiring officer may have received, or may receive from the juniors of his regiment or cadre, or from his regimental retiring fund, and also on account of the value of any special annuity a retired officer may have received in addition to his regulated pension.

11. Applications for compensation will continue to be submitted as directed in G.O. No. 212 of the 25th February last; but amended forms of application will now be used, copies of which will be supplied on application to the secretaries of the several compensation committees.

12. The Governments of Madras and Bombay, and the president of the Compensation Committee in Bengal, will forward to the Secretary to the Government of India in the military department, on the 1st of each month, a statement of claims submitted and of the decisions thereon which have been arrived at.

Military.—No. 124.

India-office, London, May 2, 1867.

To H.E. the Rt. Hon. the Governor general of India in Council.

Sir,—I have received and considered in Council your military letter No. 43, dated 8th March, 1867, forwarding papers connected with the operation of the proposed compensation for the loss of money contributed by officers of the Indian army, prior to the reorganisation, towards regimental retiring funds, or for purchasing out their seniors, with copy of general orders on the subject.

2. The general principles which, on the recommendation of the committee of officers in Bengal, you have laid down for the guidance of the committees at the three Presidencies, are calculated to simplify and facilitate the investigation of officers' claims. I do not consider, however, that the adoption of the general rule proposed by your Government will carry out so fully the intentions of H.M.'s Government in this respect as the more particular investigation of each case, contemplated by the instructions conveyed in the 13th paragraph of Lord Cranborne's despatch No. 160 of August 8, 1866, and in the first paragraph of that of Dec. 15 last, No. 284.

3. To the rule laid down in paragraph 6, so far as it concedes compensation in full to officers for sums paid in the regimental rank which they held at the date of the reorganisation of the army, I have no objection; but it appears to me that the denial, save in very exceptional cases, of all compensation for sums paid in previous grades, is inconsistent with the instructions contained in those despatches.

4. The actual investigation of each officer's claim will, no doubt, as you observe, be attended with difficulty, but the difficulty is not insuperable; and it is most desirable that the intention of her Majesty's Government, expressed in the above despatches, should be borne in mind—viz., that each officer concerned should, as far as possible, be secured from absolute loss upon the money he has actually paid throughout his entire service with a view to the purchase of promotion; and it seems to me that this object cannot be sufficiently attained in any other manner than that described in the despatch of Aug. 8 last—viz., considering each case upon its own merits.

5. I should wish, therefore, that you should take such steps as may appear to you to be necessary to give full effect to the intentions expressed in Lord Cranborne's despatches of Aug. 8 and Dec. 15.—I have, &c.,

(Signed) STAFFORD H. NORTHCOTE.

UNATTACHED.

The commission of Capt. J. Hopkins, Bengal unattached list, to be antedated from Feb. 18, 1866, to Oct. 19, 1865.

A NEW GUN.—We have had the pleasure of seeing a model of a gun, made by Mr. T. Dobson, and which possesses several new features which may be of interest to our military readers. One of these features is the introduction into the body of the carriage of a spring intended to take off the recoil of the gun after firing; another and the chief feature is a traversing screw, to impart a lateral motion to the gun without moving the carriage. This is different from the system introduced by Colonel Fraser, R.A., in that his guns are turned upon a pivot near the breech, while Mr. Dobson's have the pivot midway between breech and muzzle. The third feature is that the gun has an oval muzzle, which causes canister shot to spread in the shape of a fan, and not to proceed in the form of a cone, as is more or less the case with other guns. This model of Mr. Dobson's has been inspected by Colonel Worgan of the Arsenal and other officers, who, we believe, were greatly interested and pleased with it.—Times of India, June 5.

DOMESTIC.

BIRTH.

JACKSON.—The wife of Elphinstone Jackson, Esq., Bengal Civil Service, of a daughter, at Ryde, on July 14.

MARRIAGES.

COTGRAVE—EMERY.—Lieut. colonel Cotgrave, late Bombay Horse Artillery, to Edith, widow of Heberden F. Emery, Esq., of the Grange, Banwell, Somerset, at Trinity Church, Bath, July 18.
 LUCK—ADAMS.—George Luck, Esq., of the 6th (Inniskilling) Dragoons, to Ellen Georgina, daughter of Major general Adams, C.B., commanding Mhow division of the Bombay army, at Farnham, Surrey, on July 16.

DEATH.

MILNE—Harriett, the only daughter of Colonel R. Hughes, and wife of Staff-Commander J. D. Milne, at Elm-house, Loughton, Essex, aged 39 years, July 14.

THE UNCOVENANTED MEDICAL SERVICE.—We understand that, with reference to a recent notification of the Government of India, granting the members of the Uncovenanted Medical Service the boon of a regular graduated scale of pay, instead of the fixed allowance of Rs. 300 per mensem, those gentlemen have submitted a memorial in which they ask to be placed on the same footing, as regards pension, &c., as the members of the educational and other branches of the Uncovenanted Service. There is nothing unreasonable in this request, a compliance with which would remove an anomaly under which this branch of the public service has too long laboured. There is no reason why a man, who has taken his degree as physician, should occupy a less favourable position than a man who, having taken a lay degree, is employed in the work of education. Again, the dearth of medical men in the regular service makes the establishment of the Uncovenanted branch of the department upon a well-defined and recognised basis a measure consonant with sound economy as well as sound policy.

SEVERE HAILSTORM AT BIJNOUR.—We hear that a hailstorm of unprecedented severity visited the quiet little station of Bijnour on the 9th. Our informant assures us that the hailstones were as large as small apples, and that some were picked up weighing singly Rs. 17! A couple of maunds of hail were collected in a few minutes to store as ice, and nearly every pane of glass on the north-west side of the houses in the station was smashed. The dilapidation was universal; and the effects of the visitation will be most severely felt by the poorer classes, whose main staple of diet at this time of year has been taken away by the destruction of the fruit. Hardly a single mangoe has been left on the trees.—Pioneer, June 14.

DYSENTERY, CHOLERA, FEVER, AGUE, ETC.

CHLORODYNE.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is a certain cure in Cholera, Dysentery, Diarrhoea, Colics, &c.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Extract from the General Board of Health, London, as to its efficacy in Cholera.—"So strongly are we convinced of the immense value of this remedy, that we cannot too forcibly urge the necessity of adopting it in all cases." From A. Montgomery, Esq., late Inspector of Hospitals, Bombay—"Chlorodyne is a most valuable remedy in Neuralgia, Asthma, and Dysentery. To it I fully owe my restoration to health after eighteen months' severe suffering, and when all other remedies had failed."

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. Page Wood stated publicly in Court that Dr. J. Collis Browne was undoubtedly the inventor of Chlorodyne; that the whole story of the defendant Freeman was deliberately untrue, and he regretted to say it had been sworn to.—See the Times, July 13, 1864.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—The Right Hon. Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians and J. T. Davenport that he had received information to the effect that the only remedy of any service in Cholera was Chlorodyne.—See Lancet, Dec. 31, 1864.

DR. LOWE, Medical Missionary in India, reports (Dec., 1865) that in nearly every case of Cholera in which Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne was administered the patient recovered.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is the best and most certain remedy in Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Consumption, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, &c.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is publicly acknowledged by the most eminent Physicians of London to be the most effectual remedy ever discovered. To prevent fraud, the Government have authorised a Stamp, with the words Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne engraved thereon, without which none can be genuine. Sole Manufacturer, J. T. DAVENPORT, 38, Great Russell-street, Bloomsbury, London. The immense demand enables the proprietors to reduce the price; it is now sold in bottles, 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d. and 11s.

SARSAPARILLA.

WILKINSON'S (late Bridge's) ESSENCE
or FLUID EXTRACT of RED JAMAICA SARSA-PARILLA, prescribed by the Faculty for purifying the blood, debility, liver complaints, and freeing the system from the effects of mercury. Exclusively used in India and the Colonies as a prevention to tropical diseases.

"Superior preparation that may always be relied upon."
Sir Astley Cooper.
"We are in every respect satisfied with it."—Lancet.
"We recommend your Sarsaparilla as the best."—Medical Review.

Sold in quarter, half, and pint bottles.
CAUTION.—Many spurious, worthless, and injurious preparations are offered to the public. See that both bottle and label have the name and address.

Quintessence of Jamaica Ginger and Camomile.
WILKINSON'S PREPARATION of GINGER and CAMO-MILE has long been deservedly known as an excellent domestic medicine. It is a most efficient stomachic tonic, and the best remedy for flatulency and disorders arising from impaired digestion.

It is not affected by climate.
No European in India or tropical countries should be without it.

Aromatic Tincture of Quinoidine,

For the prevention of Fever, Ague, and effects of Malaria.
An unfailing remedy. It may be mentioned that those who, during the campaign in the Crimea, daily took a small quantity, passed entirely unharmed through the raking fire of fever, and dysentery that thinned the ranks around them.

Sold in half and quarter-pint bottles.
Prepared by THOMAS WILKINSON (late Bridge and Co.), 370, Regent-street, London, W.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS and OINTMENT.

—NATURE'S MONITOR.—Pain is the indicator of some disorder or disease, and should never be neglected, for the disorder of to-day may prove the agony of to-morrow. Holloway's medicines stand pre-eminently forward, and are everywhere commended for quickly removing all maladies when the least uneasiness has discovered their seat and kind.

These remedies so purify the blood and regulate its circulation that every organ acts perfectly, and every secretion is natural, which is health, and may be secured by every invalid at a trifling outlay. The purpose of Holloway's remedies is to mitigate suffering, abolish pain, and extinguish disease; and they nobly effect this object. One trial will convince the most sceptical.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS,
Perfected and Exhibited in the Great Exhibition of 1851, is allowed by upwards of 200 Medical Gentlemen to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so often hurtful in its effects, is here avoided; a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected, and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had,
and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit) forwarded by post on the circumference of the body two inches below the hips
being sent to the Manufacturer, Mr. WHITE, 238, Piccadilly London.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

The Calcutta mail brings us our usual files of papers from Calcutta and Madras. The former are no later than those received by last mail; the latter are to the 28th of June.

The Calcutta papers, for the reason stated, do not present much novelty. The relief operations in Orissa and the tea question still continue to occupy attention. With regard to the latter, the Landholders' Association is about addressing the Secretary of State, representing the absence of any necessity for special legislation. The Bengal Council is, in the meantime, engaged in amending the Acts relating to the subject. Measures of relief are still carried on energetically, and on a very large scale; but although there is no apprehension of an increase of distress, yet these operations must be maintained for many months to come. Notwithstanding the liberality that Government has manifested, subscriptions are still needed, and the Relief Committee, with this object, lately gave large circulation to a map of the famine-stricken district, which showed very strikingly the extent of the distress and the magnitude of the operations. It is chiefly, however, for the support of the large number of orphans in the province that subscriptions are needed; for although Government has made temporary provision, yet a large sum of money will be required to establish some support for them in future years. The agricultural prospects of the country are said to be favourable; the coming crops promising plenty.

"Calcutta," says the Englishman, "had scarcely recovered from the severity with which punishment was meted out to one attorney, ere it is called upon to witness the trial of another on charges which, if established, will result in the striking of his name from off the rolls. Whatever of scandal there may be in this matter has, however, been dwarfed by the virulent and libellous attacks directed against Colonel Elphinstone, agent to the Punjab and Delhi Railway, by Indian Public Opinion.

The articles have been of a character to call down the unanimous reprobation of the Indian Press. In fact, the general opinion calls upon Colonel Elphinstone to prove to the editors and publishers of Indian Public Opinion that no amount of assumed zeal for the public service can justify an attack as dastardly as it is scandalous. The storm raised in the Punjab is likely, however, to attract serious attention in high quarters. People do not hesitate to ascribe its rise to the easy good-nature of Sir Donald McLeod, and the extra officiousness of a subordinate of the railway branch of the Punjab Secretariat. If it attract attention to the general subject of Government interference with the servants of the guaranteed railway companies it will do good. This is a subject which has not hitherto received that prominence which it deserves. A great scandal, however, involving various Punjab functionaries, is likely to do more in this direction than untold reams of masterly minutes."

The report of Mr. Cockerell—the Famine Commissioner deputed by the Bengal Government before the appointment of the commission by the Government of India—is attracting a great deal of attention. We publish its conclusions elsewhere. In winding up a review of the document, the Englishman says:—"In thus glancing over the remarks on each district by the Famine Commissioner, our object has been to allow our readers to discover for themselves how terrible was the calamity, straggling fugitives from which came tottering into the depots at Howrah and Calcutta. The light of publicity seems to have been shut out from the districts beyond the hills, in a great measure, whilst the few revelations of the state of the population which found their way into print were received with coldness and doubt. One conclusion from all that Mr. Cockerell has said is inevitable. The measures of relief set on foot in June were too late by three months, and were moreover miserably insufficient. The public meeting held on the 13th of August ought to have been held in February or March at the latest, and the letter in which Sir Cecil Beadon asked the committee to extend their operations, instead of being dated September 19th ought to have formed part of the proceedings of such a meeting."

The epidemic which threatened the North-West has subsided, and the majority of stations are pronounced free from cholera. Accounts from Mauritius, of the fever raging there, are still so unfavourable that a quarantine order has been promulgated with regard to all vessels arriving thence.

The principal items of news from Madras will be found elsewhere. The local council is busily engaged on what is virtually a new Municipal Bill for the town of Madras, so many changes having been made in the original draft by the Select Committee, the provisions of which are in many respects considered objectionable. The Bill contemplates a heavy increase of taxation and an entire alteration of the constitution of the board by which the municipal affairs are managed; and, although these changes were only made known to the public on the 12th June, yet three days afterwards the Council proceeded to its passing. A protest against this proceeding has been sent in by the Trade Association, and public opinion has been otherwise so unmistakably expressed that it was supposed the scheme of the Select Committee will not be adopted without careful and full debate. The Stamp Act also is to be revised and consolidated next session. Certain recent amendments referring to judicial stamps promise to be attended with beneficial results, the increase to the revenue at one small station having been threefold in one month.

The Commander-in-Chief is at loggerheads with the Government. It appears that Sir Gaspard le Marchant's order of the 1st of April, regarding the reposting of officers, has been taken up by the local Government, who have requested Sir Gaspard to reconsider the measure. Should the chief decline to alter his decision the question will then be referred through the Government of India for the disposal of the Secretary of State. The Lieut.-Colonels who have been deprived of their commands through the above order are determined not to let the matter rest, and may be considered fortunate in having enlisted the sympathies of the Madras Government on their side. In case the decision should be against the Commander-in-Chief it becomes a question whether the Lieut.-Colonels will not have a claim against Government on account of the allowances of which they have been deprived by Sir Gaspard's order.

The next arrival from India will be the Bombay mail, which is due in London on the 6th August.

In the course of a debate last night in the House of Commons upon the case of the Abyssinian captives, Mr. Henry Seymour, in advocating a forcible demonstration for their release, recommended that the expedition should be despatched from India. Sir Henry Rawlinson, who seconded the motion, remarked that as the question of maintaining our prestige in these parts is of more importance to India than to England, the former country should pay at least a share of the expense. The general opinion expressed was in favour of the expedition, which, it seems, has not been condemned by Government, as was supposed the other day. On the contrary, Lord Stanley, though as unwilling as ever to resort to hostilities in a savage and nearly unknown country, recognises the possible necessity, and has directed the Indian Government to despatch some officers to confer with Colonel Mereweather at Aden upon the means of obtaining transport and supplies in the interior. Until this enquiry shall have concluded, no further steps will be taken in the matter.

Sir James Fergusson has been appointed Under Secretary at the Home-office, and will be succeeded, in all probability, by Lord Clinton at the India-office.

Her Majesty has been pleased to approve of Major-general William Anson McCleverty being placed on the staff of the army in India as a lieutenant-general, with local rank, with a view to his commanding the troops in Madras.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

SATURDAY, July 27, 1867.

WHAT SIR CECIL BEADON AND MR. GROTE HAVE TO SAY FOR THEMSELVES.

ANOTHER portly Blue-book upon the Famine in Bengal! The second part of the Parliamentary papers, just issued, consists mainly of the evidence upon which the Commissioners founded their reports, with the answers of the Lieut.-Governor of Bengal and the Board of Revenue to the judgment passed upon their conduct by the Government of India. The latter documents are forwarded by the Government of India for the information of the Secretary of State.

Sir Cecil Beadon leads the way. He begins with something more than an insinuation that the report of the Commissioners is not justified by the evidence, and that the Viceroy in Council did not make a sufficiently careful investigation to find out the fact. The first point of any importance which he disputes is in reference to his disbelief in the danger while at Orissa in 1866, which the Viceroy considers "scarcely credible" considering the opinions which he heard expressed, apart from the clamour of the starving multitude which beset him at Soorie. The fact was, says Sir Cecil, that nobody then believed in the danger, and the starving multitude alluded to exists only in imagination. When accounts of the severity of the distress really reached him he made every inquiry and did everything that was to be done, with no idea that the statements made to him were exaggerated. As for Mr. Ravenshaw being allowed to leave the seaboard, it was not supposed that his absence from Balasore would impede the measures of relief, and his presence was urgently required at Mohurbunge, where he was within easy communication by telegraph. Moreover, long before that gentleman urged the importation of rice as a vital necessity, measures had been taken for that purpose. Again, as regards Mr. Schaleh's absence in Darjeeling, it was not considered that the executive action of the Board of Revenue would be impeded by the loss of only one member, and Mr. Sohalch's personal knowledge of Orissa was confined to Balasore, so that he would not have been of much use in other parts of the province. As for the other officers whose proceedings have been impugned by the Commission, Sir Cecil claims for them the right of not being condemned until they have been heard in their defence. In the opening of his despatch, it may be here observed, he represents them, as well as himself, as being inexperienced in famines, and complains that the Government of India, which was well acquainted with such calamities, offered him no warnings, and not a single word for his guidance! In reference to the Viceroy's remarks upon his being opposed to the importation of grain in December, 1865, Sir Cecil declares it to be written "under a totally erroneous apprehension of the facts, as shown in the correspondence and the evidence." As for Mr. Barlow, whose conduct received the especial praise of the Viceroy, it is added:—"As Mr Barlow himself never advocated the importation of rice even on a small scale, unless it could be landed cheaper than it could be obtained in the district, and had never even thought of importation on a large scale, it is easy enough to understand why he did not press the matter on me when I was on the spot, without having recourse to the monstrous supposition broached by the commission that he lacked official boldness to speak out his mind, or the utterly gratuitous insinuation that he was in any way discouraged from doing so. I venture to affirm that there was not an officer under the Government of Bengal who would not indignantly deny the existence of any such feeling, and that Mr. Barlow himself would be among the first to repudiate it." In conclusion, Sir Cecil Beadon calls attention to the case of Ganjam (Lord Napier, it may be remembered, was praised as well as Mr. Barlow), and proceeds to show that the indications of scarcity appeared there precisely as in Bengal; that the same reliance was placed, up to a certain period, on private charity and the efforts of local officers; and that there was the same, or even greater, hesitation in adopting the decisive measure of the Government importation of grain. The comparison is made avowedly, "as showing how unreasonable it is to condemn the Government of Bengal for a course of action exactly similar to that which in another Presidency has commanded unqualified approval."

Next come the Board of Revenue, in the person of the senior member, Mr. Grote, who writes an elaborate defence of their conduct from first to last. It is the old story. From the information they received they did not suppose that the distress would prove to be so serious, and as soon as they were made aware of the urgency of the crisis they exerted themselves in a wonderful way to meet it. "We have been charged," he adds, "with inaction in having failed to import food, despite the warnings of the non-official community of the Province, conveyed to us through the press. On such statements, all unsupported as they were by those of our own local officers, we have been held to blame for not doing in February and March what we had at last to do in May. I will venture here to refer to Sir C. Trevelyan's account of the second Irish famine in 1846, which will show what the Government of that day thought of State interference in a crisis which differed from the late crisis in Orissa in that the potato famine in Ireland was not unexpected. . . . The question which so anxiously occupied the Home Government in 1846, and which was finally dealt with by adopting measures confining their interference in Ireland to a minimum, did not, until the end of May, come before us in the same form. It was only then that the actual crisis presented itself to the Commissioner of Cuttack, and that with him we saw the necessity for sacrificing every consideration to that of humanity," &c.

The Government of India transmits Mr. Grote's minute to the Secretary of State without comment; but in another despatch, enclosing a letter from the Board of Revenue to the Government of Bengal respecting the alleged communication of the Report of the Famine Commissioner to the Friend of India, the Viceroy in Council (after denying the charge of having favoured the Friend) takes occasion to comment upon Sir Cecil Beadon's explanation in rather a decided manner. With respect to the opening paragraph, he observes, "We consider it necessary to say that the late Lieut.-governor is well aware that for nearly a full month before the despatch to England of the Commission's Report, the first part, and the entire correspondence regarding it, had been before us, and had been most fully and most anxiously examined by us. The unworthy imputation, therefore, that it had not received our 'attentive consideration' is, we regret to say, one that Sir Cecil Beadon should not have allowed himself to make." Referring to several letters addressed to the Government of India which Sir Cecil Beadon considers sufficient to have warned them of the nature of the crisis, Sir John describes the character of the documents in question, and sums up the result by saying:—"Of the six letters, therefore, from the Government of Bengal to which the Lieut.-governor alludes as sufficient to have warned the Government of India of the advent of a famine, one has no connection with the subject; two expressly assured the Government of India that there was no prospect of a famine; a fourth, written upon another subject, incidentally referred to a local scarcity of food in parts of the Pooree district. Two only expressly referred to that scarcity, but as a partial scarcity; the first proposing certain measures for its relief, the second stating that these measures had met the evil noticed." And even these letters, it seems, were, with the exception of the last, received by the Government of India before the return of Lieut.-Governor from Orissa, and therefore before the interview in which he personally assured Sir John Lawrence as the result of what he had seen during his visit, that no famine was to be apprehended, and that no importation of food was necessary!

On the whole, it seems clear that Sir Cecil Beadon would have done well to have allowed his case to rest where it did without putting forth this second defence. It is impossible to accept such pleas as want of information and guidance in the case of a high authority, whose business was to keep himself informed, and to know how to act on the information. The charge against the Governor-general of not bestowing sufficient attention to the report, is about as dignified as the reference to Ganjam. As for the Board of Revenue, it stands neither more nor less condemned than before Mr. Grote's appeal. The public in England would require facts and arguments far stronger than any to which these writers pretend, before they could be brought to believe that everything was as it ought to be and that half-a-million of persons perished of starvation!

CALCUTTA SMALL CAUSE COURT.—His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor has strongly recommended to his Excellency in Council the appointment of a fifth Judge for the Calcutta Small Cause Court. He says in his letter that he deferred making this recommendation till he had compared the work, the income, and the expenditure of the Calcutta Small Cause Court with those of the Small Cause Court at Bombay. The comparison showed 37,324 institutions in the Calcutta Court in 1865-66, against only 22,362 institutions in the Bombay Court during the same period, and as the surplus revenue of the Court can well bear the charge on account of the appointment of a fifth judge, the Lieutenant-Governor trusts that the appointment will be sanctioned by the Government of India.

MORTALITY IN JAILS, N.W.P.—We are glad to learn that in the North-West jails the percentage of deaths to strength in 1866 was but 2.50. The highest percentage of deaths to strength was in the Futtehpore jails, where there was an outbreak of cholera, and the deaths amounted to 7 per cent. The second highest percentage was 6.27, and the next 5.07. In no other of the 35 jails in the North-Western Provinces was the percentage so high as 5, and in 13 jails it was less than 1. In 1865 the percentage of deaths, though not so low as in 1866, was still only 3.17. How different this from the period from 1856 to 1861, when the percentage varied from 10.02 to 14.22. All must admit that 2½ to 1.6th per cent. is a small average mortality. It would compare favourably with many European prisons.

THE INDIAN CIVIL SERVICE AS A CAREER.—No. V.

See what has happened amongst those communities whose manners and institutions leave no scope for competition. Men will not strive, or put forth their energies, to obtain that which time will bring them without labour on their part, and the advent of which no exertions of theirs can accelerate. To those who have any familiarity with human nature it will require no words of ours to demonstrate the great political mistake which has been committed in stereotyping the position of the young Civil servant who has passed his final examination. We have seen books laid aside, sometimes burned by those who intended to study no more; for was not further exertion useless? The apathetic subside into their apathy and lethargy, glad to have no more source of trouble or annoyance. The intellectual and eager thirsters after knowledge turn back to their classic lore, or their mathematical problems. Some hobby of former busy days is now pulled forth from the mental lumber-room, and followed at leisure. A few may write or seek the pleasant walks of literature, but must fall back to a level as even and monotonous as the flat plains of Bengal. No one thinks of devoting his whole soul and energy to his profession, or any particular walk in it, for he cannot, as a rule, by the most superhuman exertions, hasten his promotion by an hour, or raise himself to any post he may desire, and would delight to struggle for, were there a chance of succeeding. He cannot achieve success, and he resigns himself to achieve nothing. Is not this a great waste of energy, and vigour, and strength that the State might appropriate and utilise? Is it not as if the boiler of some mighty piece of machinery was not steam-tight; and the precious vapour was allowed to escape and be lost, every square inch of which represents so much power and capacity of motion?

What, then, is the result of all this to the Government service in the first place? The Civil servants who came out in the early years of the new system have, many of them, become dissatisfied; they are often compelled to serve under men in every way their intellectual inferiors, but who have been promoted to their present posts by the force of seniority. Most civilians rest satisfied with learning and performing their mere routine duties, and have no ambition after excellence. There is no haste to qualify for higher posts, the duties of which are left to be learned when the wheel of seniority, gradually revolving, brings promotion. All are satisfied to do their duty in that station in which they are placed without learning higher duties; and when the higher duties come, they sometimes find those on whom they devolve unqualified for their performance. Within the last year or so two civil servants have been reduced from the grade of magistrate and Collector for inefficiency, and two other gentlemen at home on leave have been told that, on their return to India, they must commence to learn their duties again in a subordinate post. In no portion of the service is the deficiency more marked than in the Judicial Department. In order to occupy a seat on the bench with propriety, and fulfil its duties with efficiency, a moderate knowledge of law, judicial training, and some previous preparation are indispensable requisites. But, what is the state of things in India? Men are raised to the Mofussil Bench as district judges* from a post, nearly all the duties of which are executive. One gentleman was, a short time ago, made a judge from being a salt agent, engaged in superintending the manufacture of salt for Government. His judicial career, as might have been expected, was a failure. There is a tradition, that when a man is fit for nothing else he is usually made a judge—appointed to a post, for which, above all others, personal fitness should be a sine qua non. That which has happened was to have been expected, and the reformation of the Indian judicial system has engaged the attention of every Indian statesman who has studied or looked into the subject, but little has as yet been done. Occasionally a case of gross inefficiency occurs, and a judge is removed from the bench, to which he ought never to have been raised. Within the last couple of years there have been two such instances. Englishmen in India are tried, not by these tribunals, but by the High Courts in the presidency towns, and they content themselves with a laugh. John Bull is proverbially selfish. So long as his own corns are not trod upon he does not care for other people's necks. The plain remedy for this state of things is to make personal fitness and not seniority the passport to the judicial office, and to hint pretty plainly that if this kind of fitness could not be had in the service it would have to be sought for out of it. That it could be obtained in the service we have no doubt, if the judicial department were separated from the executive. Judicial patronage should be taken away from the subordinate Local Governments, and placed under the Government of India. Entrance to the judicial department should depend upon an examination in general and Indian law, and we have no doubt the Inns of Court in London would co-operate with the cause of legal education in India, so as to enable members of the Civil Service to obtain the proper qualifications without eating their dinners in England. A suitable test by examination could easily be provided, and doubtless the barrister judges of the High Courts would assist in the matter. To give some idea of the encouragement now afforded to those desirous of fitting themselves for the bench, we may mention that a few years ago a gentleman in the Civil Service got called to the bar while in England, and on his return to India he was made a—surveyor. Mr. Campbell, in his "Modern India," wrote thus fifteen years ago:—"The judicial part of the work is very indifferently performed. It has long ago been remarked that they (Mofussil judges) are not iuris periti, and they are not likely to become so unless we have, first, good clear, intelligible, codes; and second, a good judicial training." We have got three codes and part of a fourth, since Mr. Campbell wrote, but nothing has yet been done to obtain the "good judicial training"—the necessary in a case not provided for by law, and the sentence was carried into effect. The High Court were "surprised that an officer of his experience could have passed such an illegal sentence, which was quite beyond remedy." Another judge refused to examine witnesses for the prisoner's defence. The High Court trusted that a third judge would not again "exhibit such ignorance of the law of evidence as to take an unproved letter as evidence without subpoenaing the writer of it." A fourth judge admitted police reports as evidence against a prisoner, without calling for any proof whatever. The receiving of written papers, letters, &c., without proof is a common incident. A fifth judge was of opinion that a man ought not to be punished capitally for murder, because there were no eye-witnesses to the fact, and was requested "not to import into criminal law notions inconsistent with common sense." A sixth had to be told that "the evidence in a former trial against the prisoner's brother was not legal evidence against the prisoner himself." A seventh was reprimanded for convicting a prisoner on evidence recorded in another case, to which he was no party. Where the jury system has been introduced sessions judges seem to fall completely in their addresses to the jury. They have to be repeatedly told not to "dictate the verdict," and one judge actually acquitted and discharged the prisoner after the jury had convicted him, because he did not concur in the verdict!

The above are a few specimens taken at random. Any one who will take the trouble to read the published reports can increase the number to any extent. We have been told on good authority that, before the establishment of the High Court, it was forbidden to publish the general criminal reports of the Nizamut Adawlut. The reason is obvious. Can it be wondered at that Englishmen in India object to be tried by such judges?

The following description, also taken from Mr. Campbell's work, will show that we have not overdrawn the picture, and will also point to some of the causes of the evil:—"When a collector is old enough, he is made a judge, and to this step there is almost no exception, if it is wished for. It seems to be considered that if at this time of life a man is fit for anything at all, he is fit for a judge; and if he is fit for nothing better, make him a judge and get rid of him; for, once in that office, he has no claim to further promotion by mere seniority alone. The judicial department, being in a less satisfactory state than any other, is less sought after; and the ill effects of mismanagement being less immediately startling, the principle that, in a choice of evils, any man will do for a judge, seems to have become established. Some who mismanage their districts are said to be promoted to judges against their will. Moreover, all who can get anything out of the 'regular line' have by this time got it. A crack magistrate and collector probably prefers a commissionership in the Punjab, or to wait for one in the provinces, and men are now nearly entitled to their pensions before they get judgeships. Altogether, it happens that comparatively few above mediocrity remain to be judges, and that of those who do, many are disappointed, and many hang on, when they are old and worn out. A bad department is thus made worse." How very strange this must read to those in England, who are accustomed to regard the judges as the most able men of the most able profession, and to look upon the rising of a man to the bench as a public acknowledgment of his superior capability. The phrase "learned judge" is no misnomer there. In India it would scarcely apply to the judiciaries of the Mofussil.—Englishman.

TEA PLANTERS' MEMORIAL.

On Thursday we published the tea planters' memorial to the Secretary of State for India, as amended by the meeting held on the 12th June, at the room of the Landholders' Association. The amendment consists only in the omission of the first clause of the prayer of the draft memorial, which was as follows:—

1st. That the impossibility of properly governing these out-lying provinces of Bengal from so distant a centre as Calcutta, which has already been admitted by the appointment of a mixed commission with a separate judicial commissioner and superintendent of public works to administer its affairs, be more distinctly recognised by the formation of the districts of Eastern Bengal into a separate Government, with the chief commissioner, under the direct control of his Excellency the Governor-general in Council.

We regard this clause as one of the most vital importance, not only to the prosperity of tea planting, but to the proper administration of the affairs of the three provinces of Eastern Bengal, Assam, Sylhet, and Cachar.

It has been admitted by Sir Cecil Beadon that the Presidency of Bengal is too large for government by a single individual; and if a reduction in the area is to be made, no fitter portion could be selected for excision than the provinces before mentioned. In point of postal distance, these provinces are more distant than Peshawar, Bombay or Madras. They are hemmed in by hills inhabited by wild tribes of Bhootas, Nagas, Abors, Kookes, &c., and the difficulties and complications that sometimes arise from incursions or collisions with these tribes, require the immediate attention of a high functionary, residing at a point much nearer than Calcutta. A Chief Commissioner would acquire the necessary local knowledge to originate plans for roads and bridges, and to apply for the requisite funds in his budget. He would overlook the working of tea plantations, and see justice administered to all her

* The District Judge, called also "the Civil and Sessions Judge," is the highest judicial functionary in the Mofussil. As a Sessions Judge he can sentence to death (subject to the confirmation of the High Court), transportation, imprisonment, and fine to any amount. He performs, in fact, the same duties as her Majesty's judges at the Assizes in England. Let us should seem to assume, without proof, the inefficiency of some of these functionaries, we give the reader instances taken from the published reports of the Calcutta High Court, which exercises a supervising authority over them. One Sessions Judge sentenced man to Majesty's subjects, planters and labourers, &c. All these functions cannot properly be performed by a Lieutenant-Governor residing at a vast distance, and charged with the administration of the affairs of a Presidency too large for the superintendence of a single individual.

This important clause, we regret to see, has been omitted by the meeting, and on very insufficient grounds. The chairman, in proposing its omission, said "that the Government of Bengal of late had shown a little more interest in tea estates, and it was generally believed that this had been brought about through the interference of the Government of India, and that Sir John Lawrence would appoint a Special Commissioner if he could put his finger upon the proper man." This, the chairman thought was a sufficient reason to leave out the 1st clause of the prayer. Mr. Young said that in his opinion the appointment of a special Commissioner would be very desirable, as more specific information could be received as to what was going on in Sylhet, Cachar, and Assam. It was then proposed by Mr. T. M. Robinson, "that the draft memorial submitted to the meeting be adopted and forwarded to the Secretary of State through the Government of India, the first prayer for the establishment of a special commissionership for tea districts under the Government of India being omitted. This resolution was carried, and the clause was omitted.

But the clause did not pray for the establishment of a special commissionership for the tea countries, but for the formation of the districts of Eastern Bengal under a separate Government and the appointment of a chief commissioner. Sir John Lawrence promised the deputation that waited upon him some time ago to appoint a special commission to inquire into the state of the tea countries, and the justice or otherwise of the complaints of the tea planters. But he said nothing of separating the tea countries from the Government of Bengal and appointing a chief commissioner to administer their affairs. With the report of such a commissioner as Sir John Lawrence will appoint, the functions of such commission will cease, and the tea countries will be governed, as they are now, by officers powerless to promote internal communication, or to deal with refractory tribes, except by perpetual references to the distant Government of Calcutta, always overwhelmed with more business than it can attend to.

The mischief, however, is now done, and the prayer of the memorialists is confined to the following clauses:—

1st. That the whole of the revenues of the tea districts of Eastern Bengal be expended in the civil administration of these provinces, and that a sufficient sum in addition be provided (annually, either from the immense surplus revenues of Bengal Proper, or from loan specially raised for the purpose as has been lately done in other cases, for the early completion of a system of bunds, roads, and bridges which shall improve the sanitation of these districts, place them in communication with the neighbouring and more populous provinces, and generally improve the internal communications of the country.

2nd. That measures be adopted for giving effect to the desire expressed in Lord Cranborne's despatch (Public, No. 3, dated India Office, London, the 3rd December, 1866) "to facilitate the acquisition on the part of the planters of an adequate supply of labour to the utmost possible extent," and that labour be imported also by Government in sufficient quantities for the execution of public works.

3rd. That courts of justice be increased to such an extent as will enable Government to enforce the due performance of contracts in the tea districts, and to mete out impartial justice to all her Majesty's subjects, whether employers or labourers or other persons, and that all special legislation, other than what as aforesaid may be considered necessary for sanitation transport, be at once withdrawn.

We have received the draft of the Bill to amend Act III. of 1863, and Act VI. of 1865, as amended by the Select Committee, but we do not think it necessary at present to notice the alterations proposed by the Select Committee. It is not probable that the Government of Bengal will complete this piece of legislation in the face of a memorial from the whole body of tea planters to the Secretary of State, praying for the withdrawal of all special legislation, except that which provides for the safety and health of the coolies while at any of the depots, or in course of transport, or the giving of such powers to the ordinary local authorities as may be deemed necessary for enforcing such obligations as the law may impose upon planters with regard to the sanitary arrangements for coolies on tea estates. All other special legislation they object to, and it is needless for us to discuss the many clauses of a Bill which may never become law, or having become law, may be speedily abrogated by order of the Secretary of State.

Dr. Walter Bourne has offered his services to act as secretary in obtaining signatures, &c., and that gentleman has given notice that the memorial will not be presented to the Government before the 1st of July. He calls upon tea planters at a distance to send him authority to affix their signatures to the memorial; and informs those on the spot that copies of the memorial lie for signature at the Exchange, the Bonded Warehouse, the Trades' Association, Messrs. Mackenzie, Iyall, and Co., and Messrs. Bathgate and Co.—Englishman, June 17.

THE BENGAL GOVERNMENT REPORT UPON THE FAMINE.

The Bengal Government had deputed a commissioner, in the person of Mr. Cockerell, to inquire into the famine, before the appointment of the Commission by the Government of India. Mr. Cockerell has just made his report, which concludes with the following severe comment on the action of the authorities:—

"With regard to the action of the officers of Government, there can be no question now as to the fact of the too tardy recourse to measures of public relief, which the plain indications of the miserable condition of a large mass of the people in most of the districts under notice, but especially in those belonging to the Patna division, should have called for at a much earlier period. The relief measures eventually adopted were initiated, not as they should have been, under a proper system of acquaintance with the condition and wants of the people by the spontaneous action of the district officers, but by the Commissioner's circular letters, which first directed attention to the existence of general distress, and the necessity of providing for its relief. In October, 1865, the attention of the collectors of those districts had been drawn to the necessary effect of the high prices of food upon the poorer classes, and the then threatened failure of the rice crop. Special inquiries were set on foot, the result of which was, as the reports of those officers show, to create a decided apprehension and forewarning of the impending severe distress amongst the poorer classes.

"Had this apprehension led to such extended inquiries as to the effect of the failure of the crop upon the general condition of the working classes, as the occasion manifestly required, and had the subsequent progress of events been carefully watched, and relief applied in the way of giving employment on works of public utility on a very large scale, after the rice harvest was over, much of the suffering and loss of life that subsequently occurred would have been prevented, and the money which was expended at a later period in the mere attempt, which it may be assumed from the excessive mortality which is known to have occurred was in a great measure unsuccessful, to save people from perishing through want of food, might have been made reproductive.

"The reliance generally placed upon the rubbee crops by the Collectors in their subsequent reports, a reliance which appears to have diverted their attention from devising any provision for the contingency of famine, seems to have been hardly warranted by the circumstances of the case, both because, owing to the early cessation of the rains, a considerably less area than that which is ordinarily appropriated to this cultivation was sown, and much of the seed, which had been used by the ryots, was bad, owing to its having been stored in unseasonable weather, so that, without taking into account the risks of weather, a greatly diminished rubbee produce, as compared with that of ordinary seasons, might have been anticipated; and because, looking to the proportion in which the food of the people is dependent on this crop, the produce, however abundant, could have exercised no material influence towards the general and permanent reduction of prices in the then exhausted state of previous stocks of grain, the utmost relief that was likely to be secured by it, being the temporary employment and food which it would give to the agricultural labouring class, while the operations of gathering the plant and threshing out the grain lasted."

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE EXTRADITION TREATY BETWEEN THE GOVERNMENT AND THE NIZAM.—The Gazette of India of the 1st of June contains the Extradition Treaty recently entered into between the Government and the Nizam. Sir Richard Temple, K.C.S.I., the Resident at Hyderabad, represented the British Government on the occasion, and Sir Salar Jung, K.C.S.I., the Nizam. The treaty, after stating that the two Governments agree to act upon a system of strict reciprocity, goes on to provide that neither Government shall be bound in any case to surrender any person not being a subject of the Government making the requisition; but in a case where the person claimed may be of doubtful nationality, he should, with a view to promote the ends of justice, be surrendered to the Government making the requisition. The third article provided that neither Government should be bound to deliver up debtors, civil offenders, or any person charged with any offence not specified in the treaty. The next article provided that any person charged with having committed any of the following offences within the territories of the Government making the requisition, and who should be found within the territories of the other, should be surrendered. The offences named are as follows:—Mutiny, rebellion, murder, attempting to murder, rape, great personal violence, maiming, dacoity, thuggee, robbery, burglary, knowingly receiving property obtained by dacoity, robbery, or burglary, thefts of property exceeding Rs. 100 in value, cattle-stealing, breaking and entering a dwelling-house and stealing therefrom, setting fire to a village, house, or town, forgery or uttering forged documents, counterfeiting coin, knowingly uttering base or counterfeit coin, embezzlement whether by public officers or other persons, or with being an accessory to any of the above offences. The fifth article stipulated that neither Government should be bound to surrender any person accused of any offence, except upon a proper requisition made by, or by the authority of, the Government within whose territories the offence had been committed, and also upon such evidence of criminality which, according to the laws of the country in which the accused person was found, would justify his apprehension and sustain the charge, if the offence had been committed there. The two remaining articles, which are merely formal, provide that the Treaty shall continue in force until one or the other of the contracting parties shall give notice of its wish to terminate it, and also that all existing arrangements and agreements shall remain in full force.

THE PROSPECTS OF ORISSA.—Notwithstanding the indefatigable exertions of the officers employed in the distribution of the relief funds, the reports assume weekly a more and more unsatisfactory aspect. The latest report of the special Commissioner states, that in Balasore, owing to the illness of Mr. Sinclair, the stocking of the depots had been somewhat delayed. Sales have been commenced at Kottar and Bhuddruck, but at Kolho, where an arrangement had been made for a Zemindar's Golah, the agreement was not carried out, and the owner had to be prosecuted. Huts were being erected for the paupers, boats are to be provided for the relief of those tracts which become isolated by inundations, and where, in consequence of having no means of communication, persons, with means in their possession, actually perished last year from starvation. In Cuttack it has been found necessary to add another deputy collector to the relief staff. The Zemindars have been ordered to supply grass for thatching the paupers' huts, but have not as yet complied with the orders, being afraid that any assistance given to the ryots will be looked upon as a Tuccavee advance. The ignorant inhabitants are frightened by all sorts of reports; that for every rupee advanced the Government would exact five a month hereafter; that ryots would only be allowed to remain three years on the land, and that the Government would compel them to eat rice cooked by Mussulmans. The want of conveyance for the supplies to the relief depots was beginning to be felt, owing to the bullocks being employed in cultivation. The demand for Government rice had increased, owing to the general rise in prices, whilst the importations from the Gurjats were not sufficiently large to affect such rise. Light labour to a considerable extent was going on, and it was intended to establish pauper camps for those so employed during the rains. The returns furnished by the police of the mortality cannot be relied on, but a few undoubted cases of deaths from starvation have been already reported. In Pooree Mr. Toynbee has been pushing on the Golah buildings, which were not completed. Scales and weights had arrived, which would put a stop to the reports of short weight rations having been distributed. Various employments have been devised for the paupers during the ensuing rains, but still the Commissioner anticipates severe distress amongst the non-agricultural classes during the next four months, although at present neither sickness nor crime is reported as on the increase. —Englishman, June 13.

ANOTHER PANIC.—A letter from Futtehgurh, dated June 15th, in the Delhi Gazette, contains the following:—A few days since a party of strange-looking foreigners pitched their camp in a grove near Furruckabad. In appearance and dress and language they differed materially from anybody these staid stay-at-home citizens are accustomed to see, so at once everybody was on the qui vive. This party numbered perhaps a couple of hundred men and women, and were probably a party of humble traders from Khorasan, bent on looking about a little to benefit their fortunes. But wonderful was the excitement they caused. Wherever they appeared in the streets crowds followed them, and the strangest guesses were made as to who they could be. Some one started the report that they were a vanguard of the dreaded Russ, and the report gained credence on all sides, and increased the confusion tenfold. Things were in this state when people began to assemble at the Singerrampore mela, a fair which is held twice a year at a village on the Ganges some fourteen miles from Futtehgurh, the spot, by the way, from which the boats of the Futtehgurh fugitives were fired upon in 1857. In a beautiful and extensive grove by the river side, thousands of men, women and children were gathered on Tuesday, the 11th. Long lines of shops stretched through the grove and down to the ghat, and the sweetmeat and ornament-sellers were driving a thriving trade, as is their wont on such occasions. Most persons had bathed in the morning and returned, the women to their lounging and chatting and singing under the trees, the men to their chaffering over the wares of the shopkeepers, when suddenly about one o'clock the clatter of a drum and some excited shouts were heard from one corner of the grove. The people who had come there with the excited restless uneasy feeling resulting from the disturbing rumours which had been allowed to circulate unchecked, started up as one man, and began to ask in terror "What? Where? What is it?" Some budmashes at once raised the cry "The Russ, the Russ are coming! They are on you!" At once there ensued such a panic flight as beggars all description. Husbands left their wives, mothers dropped their children, men left their property, women stripped themselves of their veils and everything which could impede their flight. Over hedges and ditches, blindly stumbling over carts and tumbling into wells; an eye-witness declares he could think of nothing else but a herd of sheep into which a wolf had suddenly sprung. As the disturbance had commenced in the grove, the greater part of the crowd was between it and the river, and thousands fled and plunged headlong into it. Fortunately the river channel is this year on the opposite side miles away, so that for two miles there was no water to be met much over knee deep, so that it is to be hoped that the poor terrified fugitives had time to come to their senses before they reached deep water. Had the channel been near the western bank the loss of life must have been frightful. Even as it was the fright and heat and exertion must lay the seeds of hopeless disease in hundreds. That same evening there was great excitement in the villages about Futtehgurh consequent on the reported discovery of the dead bodies of two women who "had been murdered and stripped by the Russ," the fact, probably, being that they had fled from the scene of the panic twelve miles away, and fell dead from heat and thirst and fright where they lay. . . . That the whole thing was a concerted piece of villainy on the part of some one is shown by the great numbers of persons who were stand-about the shops with articles in their hands, with which they fled on the first alarm. There is no doubt but vast quantities of property changed hands during the tumult; persons were met the next day wandering about in search of their lost children. What, then, must have been the fate of their property?

CASH BALANCES.—In continuation of Notification No. 2,169, dated April 18, 1867, the following statement of cash balances, as reported up to this date in the Government Treasuries in India, at the close of the month of March last, contrasted with that of the previous years, has been published for general information:—

ICE FOR THE NORTH-WEST PROVINCE.—The public in the Mofussil will be glad to hear that the enterprising ice company, Tudor and Co., are about to extend their operations. We are authorised to state that they will sell ice at Calcutta rates, with freight only added, to any club on the line of railway. The company will bear wastage in transit themselves, that is when the clubs get ice daily from the Howrah ice-house. When ice is brought direct from the ship the charge is 3-8 per maund, provided 3,000 maunds are taken. This quantity can be forwarded to any station by special train at one-third of a pie per mile. If a depot for American ice is opened at this station (Agra) the charge would not be over three annas a seer. We believe the company intend opening a depot here on their own account. Railway employes have carriage free and can obtain the American ice at any station at two annas a seer, in consequence of the ice company's allowance for wastage. Railway clubs for this object are now being formed at the chief stations. To those who undertake the honorary management of clubs the company offer a fair share of ice for personal use, gratis. —Delhi Gazette, June 18.

CURRENCY NOTES IN CIRCULATION.—The amount of Government currency notes in circulation on the 30th April last at the different circles of issue was Rs. 8,39,29,160. From this, however, should be deducted a sum of Rs. 55,74,270, the value of notes of other circles cashed at Calcutta, Madras, and Bombay, leaving a balance of Rs. 7,83,54,890, as the actual amount of notes in circulation. Against this the Government hold—silver coin reserve, Rs. 3,82,25,129; Gold coin reserve, Rs. 1,47,495; silver bullion reserve, Rs. 74,61,718; and Government securities held in Calcutta, Rs. 3,25,20,548. We observe that in the Calcutta circle notes of other circles have been cashed to the extent of Rs. 49,89,830; in the Madras circle to the extent of Rs. 4,10,380; and in the Bombay circle to the extent of Rs. 1,74,110. —Englishman, June 6.

SILVER COINAGE.—The following statement shows the amount of silver received and coined in the Mints of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay during the month of March last. In the Calcutta Mint a sum of Rs. 23,672 in bullion or coin was received from the Government, and Rs. 19,79,180 from merchants. The amount coined and examined during the month was Rs. 27,89,923. In the Madras Mint a sum of Rs. 14,973 was received from merchants. There was no coinage during the month. In the Bombay Mint Rs. 7,500 was received from the Government, and Rs. 23,850 from merchants. The amount coined and examined during the month was Rs. 99,974.

DECREASE IN THE PRACTICES OF SUTTEE AND SUMADH IN RAJPOOTANA.—The report of Colonel Eden, Political Agent in Rajpootana, draws attention to the fact that the practices of Suttee and Sumadh and Female Infanticide have been largely discontinued in the countries under the Agency. The number of births of female children reported during last year exceeds for the first time the number of births of male children; during the same period not a single case of Sumadh or Suttee was reported to the Agency. In commenting on this great improvement the Viceroy observed that such a favourable result of his exertions in the cause of humanity was exceedingly creditable to Lieutenant-Colonel Eden and the officers of the Agency.

RUSSIAN TRADE IN BOKHARA.—The Russian papers represent that no military operations are going on in Bokhara, but the Russians have succeeded in putting down brigandage, and in establishing postal communication. The Emir of Bokhara finds it difficult to suppress revolt in his dominions. On the other hand, the Russian trade with Kokan is becoming profitable. One Russian merchant sold goods there to the value of 400,000 roubles, and gained 60 per cent. profit.

EARNINGS OF THE DELHI RAILWAY BETWEEN GAZEEBAD AND MEERUT.—The total coaching receipts of the section of the Delhi Railway between Gazeabad and Meerut, for the week ending 28th April, 1867, were, for passenger traffic Rs. 1,618-4-3; for parcels, passengers' luggage, &c., Rs. 66-2-3; and for carriages, horses, and dogs, Rs. 2-8-0; making a total of Rs. 1,686-14-6. Nothing is set down for the carriage of merchandise either up or down; the fact is the company were not then in a position to take up the goods traffic which found its way along the trunk road to Gazeabad. Of the total amount of earnings first-class passengers contributed 11-77 per cent. of the whole; second-class 7-45; and third class 80-78, or upwards of four-fifths.

THE JUBBULPORE BRANCH OF THE EAST INDIA RAILWAY.—We are happy to learn that orders have been sent from England for laying a double line of rails on the Jubbulpore branch of the East India Railway. The earthwork for this purpose between Luckeeserai and Allahabad is to be proceeded with at once, and arrangements have been made for supplying one-third of the permanent way materials at once, another third in six months, and the remainder in the early part of 1868. There is stated to be some practical objection to forwarding the whole of the materials at once.—Englishman, June 6.

THE PUNJAB MEDICAL COLLEGE.—With a view to place the Punjab Medical College on the same footing with that of the Calcutta institution, the Punjab Government, at the instance of the director of public instruction, has proposed to increase the number of professors and teachers, and to assimilate their pay to that of the professors of the Calcutta institution, and also to bring out a competent officer from England for the post of principal, on a salary of Rs.1,200 a month. It appears that during the last five years only one or two students have passed in the grade of sub-assistant surgeon, and as it is expected that the medical wants of the Punjab will be supplied by this local institution, the director of public instruction in the Punjab and its dependencies is said to be of opinion that the position of the institution should be improved, in the interests of the public service. The Government of India has approved of the proposition, subject to the confirmation of the Secretary of State.—Indian Daily News, June 17.

SELF-ACTING BED PUNKAH.—Messrs. Saintyves and Fleury, of this city, have patented a self-acting bed punkah, which does the work of the punkah coolie noiselessly, regularly, and well, and at a far less cost. The Engineers' Journal and other authorities speak favourably of the invention. The machine can be seen daily at work at No. 9, Bentinck-street, or Cosmitolah, as it was formerly called, until an aristocratic majority of the justices did away with the vulgarity of that name.

THE SETTLEMENT OF THE DERAJAT by sections of the neighbouring hill tribes promises to be a great success. Portions of the Buttanee and Momund tribes have sought lands in British territory, and have received a succavee advance to enable them the more readily to carry out their object. It is hoped that as this measure succeeds the peace of the neighbouring frontier districts will be more and more secured.—Englishman.

THE VACANT JUDGESHIP.—Notwithstanding the hints and recommendations given by some of our contemporaries, European and Native, we have reason to believe the vacant judgeship of the High Court will be bestowed upon the junior Government Pleader, Baboo Juggodanund Mookerjee. This has not yet been officially notified, but we derive our information from a source likely to be well informed on such matters.—Englishman.

THE RUINED CITY LATELY FOUND NEAR THE SYR DARIA.—Enquiries regarding the ruined city, lately found near the Syr Daria, show that in the 13th century the valley of the Syr Daria contained many fine towns, which were subsequently abandoned. A merchant of Orenburg has offered a handsome prize for the best treatise on the antiquities of the Syr Daria.—Englishman, June 12.

FORGING LABELS.—A case has just been committed to the sessions by Mr. Roberts, the magistrate, in which a native was charged with forging the labels of Price and Gosnell, Coward, Crosse, and Blackwell, and other merchants. The prosecution against the offender was brought about by a native offering Mr. Superintendent Green for sale a pot of pomadeas Coward's. On the pot being opened, it was found to contain a stuff which did not at all correspond with the article sent out by that celebrated perfumer. Mr. Green asked the vendor where he got the pomade, and he said that a native had sold him some perfumery as genuine. Mr. Green advised the seller to prosecute the party, and this led to the defendant's arrest. On his house being searched, a variety of forged labels of well-known manufacturers of perfumery and oilmen's stores were found. Cases of this kind show how very cautious the public ought to be in making their purchases.—Indian Daily News, June 11.

SOMETHING THE MATTER AT PORT BLAIR.—We hear that things are not running quite so smoothly at Port Blair as they ought to do. The matter at issue is, we are told, a question regarding the superintendent's accounts. The head clerk is said to be under arrest. The chief commissioner has, we understand, deputed Captain Davis to inquire into and report upon the matter.—Englishman.

MADRAS.

MISCELLANEOUS.

OFFICIAL MOVEMENTS.—Lord Napier is still at the Presidency, but contemplates an early visit to Bangalore, whence he will be accompanied by the Commissioner to Mysore, for the purpose of investing the Maharajah with the Order of the Star of India—an event which will be celebrated in right regal style, if the rumour that 80,000 Rs. are to be expended on the entertainments to be provided on the occasion is correct. The Hon. A. J. Arbuthnot, Chief Secretary to Government, has proceeded to the Hills on two months' leave, and shortly after his return will take his seat in Council, in succession to the Hon. T. Pycroft, whose term of office expires. The Hon. Mr. Ellis now acts as Chief Secretary and will be duly confirmed in the office on its being permanently vacated. Dr. Montgomery officiates as Sanitary Commissioner, but it is understood that the appointment is intended for a senior member of the Madras Medical Establishment, to two of whom it is said to have been already offered and by them refused.—Athenæum.

THE NEW MUNICIPAL COMMISSION.—The transactions of our Legislative Council of eight or nine members have, during the past few days, attracted unusual attention, consequent on the discussion of the principal provisions of the New Municipal Bill. We may now count on its being decided that our future Municipal Commission is to consist of one paid commissioner as president, and thirty-two honorary commissioners, four from each of eight wards into which the city is to be divided, all nominated by Government. Municipal notions have made such an advance in Madras of late that we have only narrowly escaped having to elect half the number of the honorary commissioners, one of the most conservative of Indian legislators proposing the introduction of the elective principle. Five members of Council were, however, of opinion that we are hardly fit to be trusted with so much of the management of our own affairs yet, and voted for Government nomination. Thus the Council have left undone the very thing the ratepayers wished them to do, when they would have been satisfied with the half measure as an experiment. Another important change contemplated is the increase of the salary of the President of the Commission, who is to draw from our already too scanty funds from Rs. 1,200 to Rs. 2,000 per mensem, according to the pleasure of the Government, instead of Rs. 1,000 as at present. In spite of the many minutes he inflicts on us, no one would begrudge an energetic, enthusiastic president like Colonel Denison such a salary, but we cannot afford to give it. Our legislators are striving to make us as much like the other presidency towns in municipal matters as possible; but both are immensely richer than we are, Bombay, which is far in advance of us in most municipal particulars, spending annually on the repair and construction of roads alone as much as all our municipal income put together.—Athenæum and Daily News.

COTTON IN MADRAS.—There was a striking feature in the returns of traffic on the North-West line of the Madras Railway for the week ending 15th June, 1867. The gross receipts per mile in that week were Rs. 213, against Rs. 88 in the corresponding week of last year. The heavy demand on the cotton presses shows to what the increase is mainly due. The natives, after thoroughly disbelieving in low prices, have now begun to throw their cotton into the market at prices which secure them a sale. It is said that heavy shipments are being made from Bombay, and the holders of cotton are consequently rushing in for fear of another fall. This morning a telegram, dated afternoon of the 21st instant, was published in the Athenæum, containing the words, "Madras Cotton, 9½d.," and another one, dated afternoon, June 22nd, saying that "the cotton market is quiet and unchanged," while a private telegram of the latter date, circulated yesterday, quotes, "Fair Westeros, 8½d." There is a suspicion that the latter telegram may have been circulated with a view of bringing down the price of cotton. Its accuracy or otherwise will probably be known to-day.—Athenæum and Daily News, June 28.

COFFEE UNDER SHADE.—In most parts of Mysore, like Munzerabad and the Nuggur division, the heat and drought in the dry months are so severe that coffee planted in the open will not thrive. This has been tried and determined. Shade, therefore, is indispensable to the successful cultivation of the plant. It is no question of the borer; though naturally where there may have been a fight against the lessons of experience, the open cultivation has been the first to imbibe disease. But in respect of Coorg, we are not aware that in ordinary seasons the same prolonged and severe drought occurs, while the rains of the monsoon months are continuous and heavy. Now, what are the effects of shade, as experienced in Wynas? We write from an accidental test afforded by the cultivation of coffee in broad belts of forest, which belts were left through and across certain estates as a protection against wind. The coffee thus grown was drawn up, with a tall thin stem, whippy primary branches, very little secondary wood, large dark leaves, and bore very little crop; in every particular being in marked contrast to the neighbouring coffee grown in the open. After the lapse of many years, the standing belt was felled, with of course a great smashing of the coffee trees below. But the effect of the admission of light and air was magical. The leaf changed, the stem thickened, the primaries grew stout and threw out abundance of new wood, and the branches that were left furnished abundant crops. And the same was found to be the case wherever coffee had been thus planted under shade, and when it came to be relieved from it. In respect of this borer, too, we have known one instance at least where it chanced to be found more largely where there was an accident of some shade than in places that were without this. With such experience before us we cannot assent to the dogma that shade is essential, or even calculated to further (save under exceptional circumstances) the successful cultivation of coffee.—Colombo Observer.

SIR GASPARD LE MARCHANT STOPS THE WAY.—The Commander-in-Chief it is stated declines to cancel his recent postings to the command of regiments, and the question will have to be referred to the Secretary of State for final orders, but before these are received the army is likely to have seen the last of its present Chief. In the meantime the Local Lieutenant-Colonels who have been "degraded" from Commandants to Senior Wing officers maintain as steady an opposition to the order as the rules of the service permit. The locals are supported in their views by all the members of the Staff Corps who are field officers according to cadre rank. But the locals have clearly a monopoly of the grievance. Each member of the Staff Corps gave up all his right and title to regimental rank when he accepted Staff Corps, which is now called Army rank. The locals simply ask for their natural right and privilege, namely, that no one of them shall be commanded by any officer unless the latter is senior in the line of field officers to the former. The present grievance, acknowledged virtually by the local Government, is that a Lieutenant-Colonel after commanding a regiment for years is placed under the command of or superseded by a regimental Major or a regimental Captain.—Madras Times.

COMMERCIAL MORALITY IN MADRAS.—The Madras Times, commenting on the utility of certain innovations about to be introduced into the Madras Custom House, has the following, as to the respectability of Madras merchants. The italics are ours. "Shortly after Mr. Blair's return from Calcutta, where he had been employed on the Tariff Committee, a rumour went abroad that in future 'more wigger' was to be the motto of the Custom House. Now, vigour in the performance of any duty is highly commendable, but misplaced vigour is a nuisance, and is 'tolerable—not to be endured.' In pursuance, however, of the new policy, it was intimated that in future no consignment of goods was to pass from the Custom House until at least one package from it had been opened and its value appraised. The object of this was said to be to check the valuations certified to by the importers of the goods. But as these valuations are supported by bona fide invoices, and are certified to be correct by the consignees, Mr. Blair plainly inferred his belief that the merchants here and the framers of the invoices are in league to defraud Government by false valuations. We are not consequently surprised to learn that in the Chamber of Commerce some stir was made about the matter, and so far at least as the members of that body are concerned, Mr. Blair has not enforced what he intended, we believe, to be a universal rule. We are not aware what the practice is in Calcutta and Bombay, but in these places, and especially in the latter, extra precautions may be necessary, as so many of the importers have no character to lose. But in Madras it is different, and good cause would require to be shown for the introduction of a novelty which implied a disbelief in the respectability of the Madras merchants."—Indian Daily News.

MR. JOHN MILLER.—The extraordinary reports that have, during the last two or three days, been flying about Madras regarding the fate of this gentleman (the coroner of Madras) are, we are very glad to hear, utterly without foundation. One story was that he had fallen a victim to cholera; another that he had succumbed to sunstroke; and a third that he had been attacked and murdered by dacoits. It would be interesting to know how on earth these rumours originated. There can be little doubt that they had a native source, as they appear to have been first heard and propagated in the bazaars. The accounts given, however, were so circumstantial that even Mr. Miller's legal brethren feared that there was some truth in them. Mr. Miller's friends and the public generally will be glad to hear that instead of meeting the fate rumour had assigned him he reached Madura quite safely, and was, when last heard from, in the enjoyment of his usual health, little dreaming probably of the anxiety people in Madras had felt on his account.—Madras Times.

THE CASE OF THE "LORD CLYDE" AND "MARIE GABRIELLE."—Messrs. Clarke and Crowther have delivered the judgment of the Marine Court of Inquiry on the above case. It was a long and elaborate judgment, delivered by Mr. Clarke, the result of which is that the second officer of the Lord Clyde has had his certificate suspended for six months, he having in the opinion of the Court neglected to keep a good look out while on watch when the collision occurred. With regard to the master of the steamer, Captain Moylan, it was the opinion of the Court that he had done his best as the master of the vessel, and that the accident could not be attributed to any carelessness on his part. A report of the inquiry will be forwarded as early as possible to Government. Many gentlemen belonging to commercial houses were present in the Court, among whom were the agents both of the steamer and the barque.

A NEW TELUGU JOURNAL.—We have pleasure to announce to students who contemplate going up for the University examinations in the Telugu language, that a Telugu journal has been started on exactly the same plan as the "Madras Journal of Education," which explains and otherwise facilitates the study of the several subjects appointed in English for these examinations. The journal is conducted by the pundits of the Government Normal School and Govindoo Naidoo's school, and is devoted to explaining, translating and otherwise elucidating the Telugu text books appointed for the University examination by the Syndicate.

A MEMBER OF TWO PROFESSIONS.—Dr. J. Marcus Joseph, LL.D., M.D., Civil Surgeon of Madura, and Barrister-at-Law of the Inner Temple, London, was yesterday enrolled as a member of the local bar. But we believe the learned doctor does not intend to practise as a barrister at present. Dr. Joseph was, after keeping full terms, called to the bar in 1866; and though it is perhaps not uncommon for the professions of physic and law to be represented by a single individual in England and other countries, the case of Dr. Joseph is certainly unique in Madras, and we know of no similar instance in either of the other presidencies.—Athenæum and Daily News, June 4.

PUBLIC BUILDINGS IN OOTACAMUND.—That portion of the court house which is allotted to the Joint Magistrate is undergoing the necessary alterations, for which purpose Government have sanctioned Rs. 600. The seats and other furniture for this court, estimated at about Rs. 300, have not yet obtained the approval of the High Court. The Government have also sanctioned the sum of Rs. 50,000 for certain alterations and repairs to the native jail. Both these works are being carried out with his usual alacrity by our energetic Executive Engineer.—Neigherry Excelsior, June 1.

PEOPLE'S PARK.—A female elephant has been presented to the Park by the Mysore Government from the Lal Bagh at Bangalore. She is about three years old, is perfectly harmless, and is located under a thatched shed near the superintendent's quarters.

IMPORTS.—There have been fair sales of cotton goods during the fortnight, but the market during the past week has been characterised by dulness and inactivity. Piece goods are rather weaker in price, and while mule twist remains in good demand, coloured yarns are very dull. 7lbs. grey shirtings have jaw, and even scattered fragments of it about the spot, but the beast effected a retreat, and night coming on the party returned to camp. The following morning they were again a-field, eager to try conclusions with their now disabled foe, and on reaching the spot found that he had esconced himself in a dense jungle of kaku grass, close to where he had been hit. His groans indicated the spot, but there was no driving him out. The two sahibs consequently took their rifles and prepared to crawl into his lair, rather groping than seeing their way, the grass and jungle was so dense and tall. Indeed, they crawled into a pool of blood without seeing it, but the tiger had decamped, having probably seen or heard them coming. The jungle beyond was now beaten up, and in a few minutes the puggees found the prints of the animal's feet, and following these up, at a smart pace, the tiger was soon seen cooling himself in a jheel within a hundred yards of them. When—oh! for the courage of the matchlockmen—in one instant Strettell and Ponsonby were left alone, even the coolies absquatulating with the guns! Mr. Strettell fortunately snatched a little breech-loader from one of them, and with this, taking advantage of the cover, he stole up to within twenty yards of the tiger, and dropped him by a couple of well-directed shots behind the shoulder. By this time the runaways, finding they were not pursued, had ventured back again, and as the beast rolled over in the water a hundred bullets came whizzing through the air from all directions, striking the branches of the trees overhead, plunging up the ground, ricocheting over the jheel—in fact, going anywhere rather than in the direction of the tiger, one ball passing through a puggee's puggery. The beast was scarcely as large as the former one, measuring 12 feet 2 inches over all.—Indian Public Opinion.

A CYCLONE.—The British ship Green Jacket, Captain S. Mitchell, which arrived in harbour on Friday last from Calcutta, reports that from 8 S. to 10 N. latitude, fine weather. On 2nd and 3rd instant experienced a cyclone, which lasted 36 hours, in 14 N. and 68 E., having had favourable weather since. The captain also reported that he was not aware of the light on the Kennery Island.—Gazette, June 10.

SUCCESSFUL NIMRODS.—A private letter from Mhow, dated the 31st ultimo, informs us that that most successful of Nimrods, Major Baigrie, Assistant Quartermaster of the Mhow Division, returned on the previous evening from a two months' shooting excursion. He had been in company with Colonel Chamberlain, Colonel Fraser and Captain Martin. They killed 36 tigers, six bears and four panthers.—Times of India, June 4.

CHINA & JAPAN.

SHANGHAI, June 7.

The arrangements made between the Tycoon and Sir Harry Parkes in reference to the establishment of foreign settlements at Hiogo and Osaka have been published.

At the invitation of Sir Rutherford Alcock a committee of merchants has been formed for the purpose of suggesting alterations to form the subject of negotiation at the approaching revision of the treaty of Tientsin.

The north of China is suffering from drought, and the price of food is rising.

Tea at Hankow rules higher than was anticipated, in consequence of Russian orders. It is expected, however, that the prices will be lowered.

THE BANK OF MADRAS.—The Bank of Madras has reduced its rates of interest and discount one per cent., except for demand loans, which are half per cent. lower.

Official Gazette.

BY THE LIEUT. GOVERNOR.

No. 2,488.—Appointments:—

June 10.—Mr. A. Weekes to be vice-chairman of the municipal commissioners for the town of Chuprah. Mr. R. Heenan to be a municipal commissioner for the town of Bhaugulpore.

REGIMENTAL PAYMASTERS.

No. 90.—Instances having occurred of deficiencies in paymasters' chests of British regts., which have been spread over many years, the C. in C. in India desires that precautions may henceforth be taken by the comdg. officers of H.M.'s British regts. serving in India to verify the balances from time to time. It is therefore ordered that, from henceforth, in the second week of January, April, July, and October, the amount in the regtl. chests be counted according to the several balances held by regtl. paymasters, under the separate heads of account.

This will take place in the presence of a committee of three officers, of whom the president will be a field officer or captain.

PAY—CLAIMS.

No. 92.—It is hereby notified for general information and guidance that the claims of officers of the British service for pay, either at British or Indian rates, for periods passed in India, are in no case to be preferred to the war dept.

If the claim is from an officer whose baty. or regt. is still serving in India, it should be sent to the baty. comdg. officer or regtl. paymr.

If the regt. or baty. is not serving in India the claim should be sent to the controller of milly. accounts of the presy. in which the officer was serving.

CONVALESCENT DEPOTS.—MOVEMENT OF TROOPS.

May 11.—No. 102.—On the occasion of his late visit to Darjeeling, the C. in C. found parties of convalescents on the road between Sahebgunge and the Hills, in the first week in April. The hot weather had then set in. His Excellency's personal attention was attracted to the weakly state of many of the invalids, who were thus marching late in the season, in contravention of G.O. dated Dec. 19, 1866.

In like manner H.E. was obliged to stop the march of a detachment of the 58th foot, which was about to leave Darjeeling for the Plains about the 1st of April. According to Standing General Orders that detachment should have marched in the previous December.

The attention of general officers is urgently requested to G.O.C.C. Dec. 19, 1866, which is re-published for general information:—

"With the sanction of Government, para. 10, Section XIX. of the Military Regulations, is cancelled, and the following is to be substituted:—

"10. The march of convalescents from their respective stations towards the Darjeeling depot is to be fixed at such time as will ensure their arrival at the foot of the Hills from the 1st to the 15th of March; and recovered men, or those whose cases do not require another year's treatment in a Hill climate, are invariably to be sent from the depot by the first week in December."

THE MUTINY MEDAL.

May 18.—The Govt. of India has announced its intention of recommending to the Right Hon. the Sec. of State for India that the mutiny medal shall be given to all those who are shown to have been actually engaged, i.e., under fire, on any of the occasions for which the medal has been granted to non-military men, or to military men in civil employ; as well as to all forces or organized parties in the field actually engaged with an enemy in India, at any time between the outbreak of the mutiny and November 1, 1859, when the operations which were held to entitle those engaged to a medal were authoritatively declared to have closed.

2. Commanding officers of regiments, brigades of artillery, and heads of departments, or the claimants themselves if on detached duty, are accordingly directed to forward to this office with as little delay as possible rolls prepared in the form laid down below of all who may be considered to come within either category.

3. Every roll must be accompanied by a certificate from some responsible officer conversant with the applicants' services, showing that they were actually under fire on the occasion for which the medal is claimed.—[Form omitted.]

Court Martial.

CAPT. M. J. CUNNINGHAM, H.M.'s 88TH REGT. OF FOOT.

Head Qrs., Simla, June 5.—At a general court-martial assembled at Rawulpindee, on Saturday, March 30, Paym. and honorary capt. M. J. Cunningham, of the 88th regt. of foot (the Connaught rangers) was arraigned on the following charges:—

Charges.

First. With having, at Cawnpore, during the months of May and June, 1866, fraudulently misapplied the sum of Rs. 21,953-4-2, or thereabouts, public money received by him as paym. of the 88th regt. of foot (particulars have already appeared in the report of the trial).

Second. With scandalous conduct, unbecoming the character of an officer and a gentleman, in having at Cawnpore, during the months of May and June, 1866, misappropriated the sum of Rs. 450-8-6, or thereabouts, the property of Qmrm. T. Lawrence and Schoolmaster P. Ewart, of the 88th regt. of foot, entrusted to him in his capacity of paymaster.

Third. With having, at Cawnpore, Oct. 7 last, while under arrest, left his arrest before being set at liberty by proper authority.

Fourth. With having, on or about Oct. 7 last, deserted H.M.'s 88th regt. of foot, then stationed at Cawnpore.

Finding.

Of the first charge—1st and 2nd Items, Guilty.

Third Item.—Guilty, as regards the amount; but the court finds that the sum of Rs. 3,460-2-7 was the balance of pay and allowances due to officers 88th regt., up to May 31, 1866.

Fourth Item.—Guilty, to the extent of Rs. (590-15-9) five hundred and ninety, annas fifteen, and pie nine.

Fifth Item.—Not Guilty, and acquitted thereof.

Sixth, Seventh, and Eighth Items.—Guilty.

Ninth Item.—Guilty, as regards the sum of Rs. (419-12) four hundred and nineteen, annas twelve. The court finds that this sum was the price of American drill realised from A, C, D, E, H, and I companies, and chin-straps from "A" company.

Tenth Item.—Guilty, as regards the sum of Rs. (270) two hundred and seventy, but the court finds that this sum was the price of necessities, realised in May, 1866, from A, B, C, D, E, F, G, and I companies.

Eleventh Item.—Guilty, with the exception of the word "June."

Twelfth Item. Guilty, as regards the sum of Rs. (151-8-3) one hundred and fifty-one, three annas three pie, but the Court finds that this sum was office allowance from May to Nov., 1865, to Lieut. Irwin, and drawn by the paymaster in March, 1866.

Thirteenth Item.—Guilty, as regards the sum of Rs. (70) seventy, but the Court finds the money withdrawn was the property of Private Conroy, 88th regt.

Fourteenth and Fifteenth Items.—Guilty.

The Court further finds the prisoner guilty of the preamble of the charge, but that the sum fraudulently misapplied by him was Rs. (20,786-10-10) twenty thousand seven hundred and eighty-six, annas ten and ten pie, instead of Rs. (21,953-4-2) twenty-one thousand nine hundred and fifty-three, annas four and two pie, as set forth in the preamble.

On the second charge the Court is of opinion that the prisoner is guilty, with the exception that the amount of the balance of pay of Qmrm. Lawrence should be Rs. (365-13-4) three hundred and sixty-five, annas thirteen and pie four, instead of Rs. (365-15-11) three hundred and sixty-five, annas fifteen and pie eleven, and the total amount Rs. (450-0-11) four hundred and fifty, and pie eleven, instead of Rs. (450-8-6) four hundred and fifty, annas three and pie six.

On the third charge the Court is of opinion that the prisoner is guilty.

On the fourth charge the Court is of opinion that the prisoner is not guilty, and do acquit him thereof.

Sentence.—To be cashiered, and to undergo penal servitude for five years; and, further, to make good the sum of Rs. 20,177-0-8.

(Signed)

EDWARD RAMSDEN PRIESTLEY, Colonel,
Lieut. Col. 42nd Royal Highland Regiment
(The Black Watch),
President.

Rawulpindee, May 2, 1867.

After the most attentive consideration of the proceedings of this trial, including not only the evidence in support of the prosecution, but also the admissions of the prisoner, the C. in C. in India is, to his great regret, unable to discover any extenuating circumstances which would justify H.E. in mitigating the sentence of the court.

The finding of the court with regard to the items contained in the first charge has been most carefully examined in the office of the Judge Advocate General, who recommends a revised confirmation of the said finding, with respect to certain items, and the total amount to be debited to the prisoner.

FINDING ON THE FIRST CHARGE.

First and Second Items.—Confirmation of the conviction is suggested, to the extent of Rs. 6,184-9-0 and Rs. 6,586-14-1, respectively.

Third Item.—Rs. 40 of Lieut. Howorth's balance not being clearly shown to be a legitimate public charge for May, confirmation of the conviction is suggested to the extent of Rs. 3,420-2-7 only.

Fourth Item.—Confirmation of the conviction is suggested to the extent of Rs. 590-15-9.

Fifth Item.—Confirmation of the acquittal is suggested.

Sixth, Seventh, and Eighth Items.—Confirmation of the conviction is suggested, to the extent of Rs. 2,397, Rs. 42-1-0, and Rs. 46, respectively.

Ninth Item.—Confirmation of the conviction is suggested, to the extent of Rs. 417-8 only, as the price of American drill realised from A, C, D, E, H, and I companies; R. 2-4, realised from A company for "chin-straps," is inadmissible, being of the nature of an addition to the charge.

Tenth Item.—Confirmation of the conviction is suggested, to the extent of Rs. 250-15 only, as the price of necessities realised from the seven companies named in the charge, A, B, C, D, E, G, and I, Rs. 19-1-0, on account of another company, F, in excess of the number alleged, is inadmissible, being an addition to the charge.

Eleventh Item.—Confirmation of the special conviction is suggested, to the extent of Rs. 188-3-6.

Twelfth Item.—Confirmation of the special conviction is suggested, to the extent of Rs. 151-8-8.

Thirteenth Item.—Variance as to the ownership of property which is the subject of a criminal charge, is so serious a flaw that confirmation of the special conviction is not suggested.

Fourteenth and Fifteenth Items.—Confirmation of the conviction is suggested, to the extent of Rs. 34-9-11 and Rs. 445-3-9 respectively.

Preamble.—Confirmation of the conviction is suggested, but the amount fraudulently misapplied should be Rs. 20,655-5-10.

The finding on the first charge is specially confirmed accordingly, to the extent of Rs. 20,655-5-10.

The finding on the second charge is approved and confirmed.

The finding on the third charge is approved and confirmed.

The finding of acquittal on the fourth charge is confirmed, with reference to the crime of desertion; but the minor offence of "absent without leave" should have been specially found in accordance with the evidence stated to the Court, and the admissions of the prisoner.

This was the more important, seeing that the offence of absence without leave, from Oct. 7 to 18, was committed when the prisoner was in a state of arrest; the absence without leave being the complement of the breach of arrest; it having been further stated in evidence that the prisoner was brought back under escort.

H.E.'s attention has been directed to the questions and documents submitted by the prisoner, which were rejected by the Court in the course of the proceedings.

These questions have been separately considered, and collated with the prisoner's defence.

H.E. is advised that the prisoner has not shown, in one single instance, that justice has suffered by the decisions of the Court with regard to the said questions and documents.

It appears that the Court was guided in its rejection of the questions and documents referred to, by the fact of their not bearing on the issues stated in the charges, but on matters connected with the conduct of some of the witnesses for the prosecution, or other parties; the said conduct not being before the Court, or in any manner connected with the issues it was required to try.

If, however, it should be conceded that some of the questions might have been exceptionally permitted, as tending to impeach the credit of witnesses, it cannot be gainsaid, on the other hand, that extraordinary license of statement and allusion was allowed to the prisoner in his defence; a license which many Courts-martial would have checked; and which, indeed, served to show that the Court had been right in its appreciation of the drift of the rejected questions. The sentence is approved and confirmed; but the amount to be made good is Rs. 20,115-11-8 only, instead of Rs. 20,177-0-8.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE INDIAN BUDGET.—On going into committee on the Indian budget Mr. Ayrton will move, as an amendment, the following resolutions:—"That the Governor-General of India should be empowered, with the sanction of her Majesty's Secretary of State for India, to conduct the business of each department of government in concert with one or more members of his council instead of the whole council. That, in order to insure both attention to the affairs of trade and agriculture, an additional member of the Council of India should be appointed to superintend those affairs. That the government of Bengal should be placed upon the same footing as the government of Bombay. That one nominated and one elected member of the council of the Secretary of State for India should cease to hold office at the end of each year. That the members of the council should retire in rotation according to their length of service, either as members of the council or as East India directors. That the existing practice of recording by resolutions of this House certain financial facts relating to India should be discontinued; and that, instead thereof, the estimates for all expenditure in Europe of her Majesty's Secretary of State for India should be approved by a vote of this House before the same is incurred."

OFFICERS DISMISSED FROM THE INDIAN ARMY.—On Thursday morning a return (moved for by Mr. Otway) was issued of the cases in which officers who have been dismissed from the Indian army during the last ten years have been granted subsistence money, the nature of the offences for which those officers were dismissed, and the amount granted in each case. It appears from this return that in 1858 a surgeon of 21 years' service was dismissed for disgraceful conduct and granted £120 subsistence money; in 1859 a captain, 15 years' service, intemperate habits, £50; in 1860, a lieutenant, 14 years' service, drunk on duty, and cashiered by sentence of court-martial, £60; in 1862, a major, 27 years' service, abuse of official authority, £292; in 1863, a captain, 23 years' service, fraud, and cashiered by sentence of court-martial, £50; in 1864, a captain, 22 years' service, intemperate habits, £100; in 1865, a lieutenant, 10 years' service, inefficiency, £50; in 1866, a captain, 19 years' service, intemperance, £50; in 1866, also, a lieutenant, 6 years' service, fraud, £35; in 1867, a captain and brevet major, 25 years' service, cashiered by sentence of court-martial for embezzlement, £50; also in 1867, a captain, 17 years' service, intemperate habits, £50.

ARRIVAL OF TROOPS FROM INDIA.—(PORTSMOUTH, July 24.)—The Marchioness of Londonderry, hired sailing transport, arrived this morning from Calcutta, with a wing of the 34th Regiment. The troops disembarked at the dockyard, and will join the other detachment now quartered in Portsmouth garrison. —The hired transport Lady Melville, 966 tons, Capt. Arthur G. Tucker, belonging to Messrs. Green, of Blackwall, 110 days from Calcutta, has arrived. She brings 127 men, thirteen women, and eighteen children, invalids from various regiments serving in India, under command of Colonel W. Middleton, C.B., Royal Horse Artillery; Captain Hoggan, 17th Bengal Cavalry (Robert's Horse); and Lieut. Wace, Royal Artillery; and in medical charge of Dr. Dunbar, 23rd Royal Welsh Fusiliers. Colonel Lamb, Bengal Army, died at sea on June 10, five days after leaving St. Helena.

EMBARKATION OF TROOPS FOR INDIA.—(PORTSMOUTH, July 26.)—About 120 soldiers of various regiments embarked on board the Malabar, iron steam troopship, Capt. Frederic D. Rich, this morning for India.

BANK OF HINDUSTAN, CHINA, AND JAPAN.—A report has been issued by the liquidators of the Bank of Hindustan, China, and Japan (Limited). It details the steps taken since their appointment in December last, and states that the liabilities of the bank have been reduced from £1,409,458. 16s. 11d. in November last to £572,127; while the assets are estimated at £595,284, showing a balance over liabilities of £23,157.

Whitmore's Compound Lincament of Arnica,

A SPECIFIC for the CURE of RHEUMA-
TISM, LUMBAGO, SCIATICA, SPRAINS, CONTU-
SIONS, WEAKNESS of the JOINTS, CHILBLAINS, &c.
It is also an excellent remedy as a stimulating application to the surface of the chest and back in bronchitis, inflammation of the lungs, pulmonary consumption, and whooping cough.
When the liver is inactive, rubbed over it, its stimulating properties have a beneficial effect, and in all cases where counter irritation is desirable, it will be found invaluable.

Wilkinson's Bronchio-Thoracic Lozenges.

Prepared from the receipt of an eminent Physician, and experience has fully justified their recommendation as the most speedy remedy in irritation of the throat, catarrhal coughs,
bronchitis, incipient consumption, spitting of blood, &c., &c.
To public speakers and vocalists they will be found invaluable, as they impart a clear and beautiful tone to the voice. Free from any preparation of opium, and of an agreeable taste,
they are applicable to all.

Whitmore's Stomachic Dinner Pills.

No Pill is so efficacious in promoting digestion, strengthening the stomach, correcting acidity, preventing or removing headache, giddiness, &c., arising from a costive habit, debilitated stomach, or torpid liver.

They require no change of diet, and those of the most delicate constitution may take them with safety.

Taken as an adjunct with WILKINSON'S SARSAPARILLA
with the greatest success.

Prepared by THOMAS WILKINSON (late Bridge and Co.),

that the words "KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES" are engraved on the Government Stamp of each box, without which none are genuine.

RUPTURES.—BY HER MAJESTY'S ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS,

Perfected and Exhibited in the Great Exhibition of 1851, is allowed by upwards of 200 Medical Gentlemen to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so often hurtful in its effects, is here avoided; a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected, and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had,
and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit) forwarded by post on the circumference of the body two inches below the hips
being sent to the Manufacturer, Mr. WHITE, 228, Piccadilly London.

Price of a Single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., and 31s. 6d.;
postage, 1s. Price of Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d.; postage, 1s. 8d. Umbilical, 42s. and 52s. 6d.;
postage, 1s. 10d.

Post-office Orders payable to JOHN WHITE, Post-office, Piccadilly.

NEW PATENT.

ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEE CAPS,

&c.—The material of which these are made is recommended by the Faculty as being peculiarly elastic and compressible, and the best invention for giving efficient and permanent support in all cases of weakness and swelling of the Legs, Varicose Veins, Sprains, &c. It is porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and is drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price, 4s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 10s. to 16s. each; postage, 6d.

CHILDREN'S WORM TABLETS

(KEATING'S).—The recently-discovered unfailing remedy for worm disorders in children and adults has now been concentrated in the form of a purely Vegetable Sweetmeat.
The Tablet is eagerly taken by children, and one to three given twice or thrice a-week, will effect a safe and certain cure.

Sold in Tins and Bottles of various sizes, by THOMAS KEATING, Chemist, &c., 79, St. Paul's Churchyard, London.
Sold Retail by all Druggists and Patent Medicine Vendors in the World.

Observe the words "KEATING'S WORM TABLETS" are engraved on the Government Stamp of each Tin, without which none are genuine.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS and OINTMENT.

Disease is common to the palace and the cottage, and the best remedies are available alike to the tenants of each.
Holloway's well-estimated Ointment and Pills can be obtained everywhere, at a moderate cost, and prove themselves the poor man's best friend when he is simply ailing; or, worse still, when the severity of his sufferings forbids the pursuance of his usual employment. Gout, rheumatic gout, rheumatism, lumbago, nervous affections, neuralgia, sciatica, stitches in the side, and pains in the joints, yield to Holloway's treatment.
In these two medicaments are combined all that science and invention can supply for the relief of suffering humanity, and the restoration of the afflicted to ease, strength, and activity.

KEATING'S PERSIAN INSECT DESTROYING POWDER.

THIS POWDER is quite harmless to animal life, but is unrivalled in destroying Fleas, Bugs, Flies, Cockroaches, Beetles, Gnats, Mosquitos, Moths in Furs, and every other species of insect.

Being the Original Importer of this now invaluable article which has found so great a sale that it has tempted others to vend a so-called article, the public are therefore cautioned to observe that the packets of the genuine Powder bear the autograph of THOMAS KEATING.

Sold in Packets, 1s., and Tins, 2s. 6d., 4s. 6d., and 6s. each;
or 1s. Packets, free by post, for fourteen postage stamps, and 2s. 6d. on receipt of thirty-six. Also in Bottles, 1s. 3d.; with Bellows, 1s. 6d. and 3s. each, by THOMAS KEATING, Chemist, 79, St. Paul's Churchyard London, E.C.

The Accumulated Profits of the UNIVERSAL, at the Thirty-third Annual Investigation in 1867 amounted to £202,978. Upwards of four-fifths of this sum is reserved to enter into the average of future years. The remaining fifth allows of a reduction of the Premium upon all Participating Policies Six Years in force on the same liberal scale as for several years past; namely, 50 per cent., or one-half the original Premium. Policies, English or Indian, upon which the Premium was originally £100, will thus be charged with £50 only of Premium for the current year, May, 1867-68.

New Policies issued in 1866 for £306,315, at an Annual Premium of £13,252. Policies in force, £2,622,000. Accumulated Funds, £804,990. Annual Income, £138,000.

The Directors in England and in India beg to draw the attention of the public to the great economy of Premiums in this Society, to its large reserves, and to its experience of a third of a century, during which it has secured the utmost possible benefit to the assured. The Policy-holders have received cash returns of upwards of £650,000, in addition to more than a Million and a Half Sterling, paid in claims upon deaths in this country, and in the Civil and Military Services of India.

EXAMPLES OF REDUCED PREMIUMS ON POLICIES.

Age in Policy.	Assured in Lives in India.	Original Premium.	Reduced Premium.	Further Reduced Premium, if in Europe.
INDIAN CIVIL.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

The Bombay mail brings us our usual papers, from Calcutta to the 3rd and Bombay to the 9th of July. We have also Madras dates via Bombay to the 3rd of July.

Notification has been issued in Calcutta, announcing the renewal of the existing settlement in Orissa, exactly as it stands, for thirty years. "This arrangement," says the Friend of India, "while it will leave thannee ryots in the advantageous position they are believed to occupy, viz., that of ryots with rents fixed during currency of the settlement, ought at the same time to operate as an inducement to Zemindars to show every consideration and reasonable indulgence to the pahee ryots, whose rents are subject to enhancement under the general law. It is certain that, notwithstanding recent calamities of famine and food, Zemindars ought speedily to recover from their difficulties under a settlement which was moderate at the time it was made, and has since become extraordinarily light, owing to the immense rise in the value of produce. This will leave a large profit to the Zemindar without affording inducement to rack-rent his tenantry. The current thirty years' settlement will expire on the 26th Bhadro 1274, equal to 9th September, 1867. There is singular and most careless confusion in the notification, which in one place fixes thirty years as above, in others twenty—the latter being the term originally fixed by Government."

The state of things in the afflicted districts is still very bad. The Commissioner of Cuttack reports that in consequence of last year's floods, a district of no less than sixteen square miles in extent has been rendered almost totally desolate.

The Government of India has ordered an inquiry into certain charges brought against the agent of the Punjab and Delhi Railway by one of the Indian papers.

Mr. Maine's term of office as legal member of Council will expire on the 12th of November next. The Friend has reason to believe that India will not be deprived of his services for some time longer. "Three successive Secretaries of State," says our contemporary, "have paid him the compliment of requesting him to undertake another term of service. In any case, we understand, he will pay a visit to England, returning to Calcutta, should he decide to continue in office, in time for the busiest part of the legislative session towards the end of January. Even those who would wish to see Mr. Maine follow in the footsteps of his less energetic colleague from England will rejoice if he returns to office. A new law member would feel bound to justify his appointment by active legislation. Mr. Maine has almost completed the great work which has fallen to his lot, and only the successive instalments of the civil code from England remain to be adapted to India. It is especially important that a jurist of such experience should be in Council when the next instalment regarding a contract law is submitted to Indian opinion. The Law Commissioners have drawn it up in a manner which disregards the progress of legislation in Europe as to the law of contract, and deliberately insults a large body of her Majesty's subjects in India. On that question, as on all difficulties relating to toleration and commercial progress, Mr. Maine has already done noble service to India. We regret that he should leave the manipulation of our revenue laws so exclusively to others. His continuance in office should have a beneficial effect in that direction."

No less than half a million sterling of the last loan has already been enfaced at Calcutta for remittance to England, owing to the continued low rates of exchange.

The Government of India has deputed Mr. J. A. Crawford, Collector of Customs, to visit the tea custom houses in British Burmah, and report on their working.

The Bishop of Calcutta, after completing his duties at Rangoon, sailed in the steamer

Nerbudda to the frontier station of Thyetmyoo, taking the short route by the Panlang creek into the Irrawaddy. At that station, assisted by three clergymen, he married a couple. On the 15th of June, having returned to Rangoon, he left for Akyab and Calcutta.

It is reported that Captain Cunningham, the convict paymaster, has made his escape.

The official correspondence upon the panic at Meerut has just been made public. It is stated that "in the opinion of the Governor-general in Council, it is clear that all the groundless alarm that took place originated in the step adopted by Mr. Watson, the magistrate, in taking to the general commanding the division a letter which he could not read, and which was nearly illegible, without having first caused its contents to be ascertained;" and Mr. Watson's apparently reasonable excuses are not listened to. "As if to soften down the opinion of the Governor-general," remarks the Bombay Gazette, "the Hon. Mr. Drummond assures Messrs. Watson and Robertson that he does not consider their conduct 'to have been in any degree censurable; and that, on the contrary, they would seem to have acted with reasonable care and judgment.' After all this, it is not surprising that the Delhi Gazette, which first proclaimed the state of mind Mr. Watson and the rest were in, should be bitterly inveighed against. But the conduct of the Delhi Gazette admits of more satisfactory explanation, and, in the estimation of the public, has been more satisfactorily explained than that of any one of the officials themselves. Measures have been adopted by the Government of India to fetter the discretion (or supply the want of it) of such men as Messrs. Williams and Watson in future; and not the least important preventive measure is the holding out of greater inducements to young 'competition wallahs' to study the native classical and vernacular languages. It is rightly supposed that if in 1877 'a pas-ed man' is no longer a phenomenon in Meerut, there will be one very good guarantee that ten years hence the effusion of a harmless lunatic will not set the empire in a shiver."

Cholera has nearly disappeared from amongst the 42nd Highlanders at Peshawur, but it still lingers among the 77th Foot and the Artillery.

Dr. G. W. Leitner, Principal of the Lahore College, has brought an action in the Deputy Commissioner's Court against the Lahore Chronicle for Rs. 10,000 for defamatory statements in that journal, to the effect that the plaintiff "was in some immoral relation to a Punditane woman," that plaintiff had committed "some disgraceful acts in Cashmere," and third, a statement conveying "a horrible imputation" upon plaintiff's character. Other actions arising out of a fracas at the club and the charges against the agent of the Punjab Railway are said to be impending. An account of the proceedings in one of these cases will be found in another column.

The adopted son of the Maharajah Scindia was married on June 15, with great ceremony.

Latest news from Afghanistan represents the rival Ameers to be preparing their forces for a battle at Cabul, which cannot apparently be much longer delayed.

The Madras news is not of much moment. A few items will be found elsewhere. There was a report in the Presidency—of course without foundation—that General Windham was to succeed Sir Gaspard le Marchant in the command in chief. The Mysore cantonment is to be abandoned, in consequence of unfavourable medical reports.

The most important news from Bombay relates to a disastrous accident on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway; thirteen persons have been reported killed and twenty wounded. A large number of the passengers by the train are still unaccounted for. Government has ordered an official investigation. A full account of the calamity will be found under the local heading.

The Bombay Government has now spoken so strongly in favour of the reconstruction of the Bombay Bank as virtually to render an amalgamation with the Bank of Bengal impossible. The banks of Bombay and Bengal have again reduced their rates of discount 1 per cent. In Bombay the rates are 6 per cent. on Government paper, and 8 per cent. on mercantile bills; the Bengal rates are 1 per cent. lower. The banks of Bengal and Madras have declared dividends of 10 per cent. per annum for the half-year ending June 30.

The Judges of the High Court of Bombay have again been chiefly occupied during the past fortnight in settling the lists of contributories of the banks and financial associations in course of liquidation. The Insolvent Court has postponed for eighteen months the discharge of Mr. Pestonjee Cursetjee Shroff, the well-known share speculator of Bombay, on the ground of reckless trading. The supposition that the majority of the 1,000 rupee notes were hoarded by dishonest insolvents has been proved groundless. Government has ascertained that out of £2,740,000 in circulation in the Bombay Presidency on a recent date, £1,640,000 were in the hands of the local banks.

The Bombay Government has now determined to refer the papers relating to the drainage of Bombay to the Secretary of State for India, for final decision.

The state of the public health in Bombay continues very satisfactory. The rainfall up to the 7th July was 25.43 inches.

An attack has been made upon Captain Stevens, of the 1st Light Cavalry, by a native trooper at parade. The man was cut down by his comrades and is not expected to survive.

The Government of India had resolved to recommend to the Secretary of State that the mutiny medal should be conferred on all who were under fire any time between the outbreak of the mutiny and the 1st November, 1859.

The latest date in Bombay from Great Britain by the Indo-European Telegraph was July 6. Owing to interruptions on the Turkish lines telegraphic communication has been very irregular during the fortnight.

The next arrival from India will be the Calcutta Mail, which is due in London on the 13th inst.

THERE have been two important "Indian debates" in the House of Commons during the past week. The first was in reference to the extraordinary policy of the Government in reference to the Overland Mails—the object being apparently to hand over the service to the Messageries Imperiales, which, practically supported as it is by the Imperial Exchequer, can of course underbid the Peninsular and Oriental or any other independent competitor. The protest against such a course was so strong that a reconsideration of the question is more than probable. The second debate was upon the Orissa Famine, the result being a condemnation of the conduct of Sir Cecil Beadon and the Board of Revenue of a most decided character. The minute of the India-office was attacked as being a great deal too mild; and Sir Stafford Northcote admitted that it would have been far stronger had Sir Cecil been still in office, in which case the first question would have been his recall.

THERE has been another "wiggling" in high quarters, Sir William Mansfield having suffered a very severe rebuke from the Duke of Cambridge, in re Captain Jervis. We have referred to this subject elsewhere.

The following extract of a letter has been received this morning from Mr. Davies, the agent of the P. and O. Company at Aden, dated the 20th June:—"Her Majesty's steamer Dalhousie arrived from Massowah on the 15th inst., latest date. She reports:—"Captives cut off from the Emperor, both parties being surrounded by the rebels; no danger of their falling into his hands again."

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

TUESDAY, August 6, 1867.

THE HORSE GUARDS ON SIR WILLIAM MANSFIELD—SIR WILLIAM MANSFIELD ON THE HORSE GUARDS.

RUMOUR for once has understated the truth. The disapproval of the conduct of Sir William Mansfield in reference to the Jervis court-martial is far stronger than was generally supposed. The despatch has just been published in a Parliamentary paper, a brief notice of its contents will assure our readers of the fact.

His Royal Highness, after the necessary official preface, proceeds to state that the protest of Captain Jervis against the jurisdiction of a military court in reference to the original charges necessitated a reference to the Judge Advocate-general. It was held by that officer that the court was legally competent to deal with the first charge, irrespective of the question whether Captain Jervis's household duties were of a civil or a military character—the charge being essentially one of fraud and dishonourable conduct; but with regard to the second charge—that of refusing to produce his accounts before the Court of Inquiry—he was not guilty of any legal offence, the order not being a lawful one, upon the principle, which, says Mr. Mowbray, is fully recognised in the administration of military as well as civil justice, that a man is not bound to criminate himself, whatever be the nature of the charge. It was incorrect, Mr. Mowbray adds, to designate Captain Jervis as a witness before the Court of Inquiry; he was the accused person, and the Court was held for the purpose of inquiring into the accusations against him. It was, therefore, quite competent to him to reserve his defence for a Court-martial. At the same time the Judge Advocate does not approve of his conduct in exercising this legal right, which his Royal Highness also considers as inconsistent with the consciousness of integrity. At the same time, the Duke, admitting the legal right of Sir William Mansfield to bring his aide-de-camp before the Court on the original charge, adds that he cannot concur in the expediency or propriety of the proceeding, of which he formally expresses his disapproval. His Royal Highness also agrees decidedly with the Judge Advocate in considering the household duties performed by Captain Jervis to have been of a purely social and domestic nature, undertaken voluntarily, and not to be regarded as strictly military duties, entailing in their execution military responsibility and military subordination. The Duke, therefore, does not concur in the propriety of the instructions so often referred to, drawn up by Sir William Mansfield for the guidance of his staff, "similar documents to which have never before come before his Royal Highness's notice;" nor can his Royal Highness admit that Captain Jervis's acknowledgment of the receipt of Sir William's instructions directing him to understand that he was to continue in charge of the establishment as a military duty would, to use the Judge Advocate's expression, "increase the measure of his responsibility to military criminal law."

But granting that Sir William Mansfield's views as to the position and duties of aides-de-camp were correct, his Royal Highness "greatly deploras" that the first steps taken by him in reference to Captain Jervis "should have been of a nature so calculated to provoke opposition," and cannot help thinking that had Sir William, in the earliest stage of these proceedings, acted in a conciliatory manner towards him (and considering the long and personal intimacy of his Excellency's relations with that officer his Royal Highness is impressed with the conviction that his aide-de-camp had a claim to such consideration), "much of what afterwards occurred might have been prevented, and a great and deplorable scandal averted." On suspecting that he had ground of complaint Sir William should have made a frank personal communication to Captain Jervis, and heard what he had to say. That his Excellency did not take such a course his Royal Highness "deeply regrets," and "still more does he regret that Sir William should have entered into a personal examination of his servant on a subject so materially affecting Captain Jervis's character without inviting the presence of that officer to explain or refute the assertions made against him. "It appears," indeed, "to his Royal Highness that it was only due to Captain Jervis to give him this opportunity to enter into a personal explanation, and that this apparent want of consideration for his feelings as an officer and a gentleman was eminently calculated to lead to continued misunderstanding, and to rash and ill-considered action on the part of your aide-de-camp."

The acts of insubordination committed by Captain Jervis his Royal Highness does not in the smallest degree excuse, but he considers that before appealing to a military tribunal upon charges such as were brought against the prisoner, Sir William Mansfield should have weighed the consequences of that measure with reference to his position as a Commander-in-Chief, and its effect on the discipline of the army.

With regard to the action taken by Sir William Mansfield in reference to the proceedings of the Court, his Royal Highness has no doubt that his Excellency conscientiously believed that he was doing nothing more than his duty; but considers, nevertheless, that he should have left a case in which he was so personally concerned in the hands of the Court without interference. The Duke finds with the "deepest regret" that this course was not adopted; and his Royal Highness adds his strong disapproval of the remarks in which Sir William Mansfield announced his disagreement with the verdict, as having "a practical tendency to weaken the independence of courts-martial, to bring contempt on military tribunals in the eyes of the public, and to affect the discipline of the army in a very material degree." And his Royal Highness adds his concurrence in the opinion of the Judge-Advocate-general that "the Court found deliberately in favour of the prisoner, and I do not find myself justified in saying that such finding was wrong."

Sir William Mansfield sought to justify his condemnation of Captain Jervis on the ground that the same course would have been taken in the case of a non-commissioned officer or a private; but this plea is held to be untenable, for "His Royal Highness's long experience of the practice of courts-martial, and of the feelings which influence the great body of officers of the army in the exercise of this most important duty, convinces him that had a non-commissioned officer or soldier been arraigned before a court-martial for an act of insubordination into which the court believed he had been led by circumstances which might be considered in extenuation, as in the case of Captain Jervis, the court, whether regimental, district, or general, would have awarded a sentence commensurate with the offence, accompanying it with such recommendation to mercy as would lead to a mitigation or remission of the punishment."

With regard to the acquittal not being "full and honourable," his Royal Highness remarks that there was, at any rate, a recommendation to mercy, and he repeats his opinion that Sir William Mansfield should not have dealt with the case, but should have adopted "the proper and obvious course of referring the proceedings to England, for submission to the Queen." In conclusion, his Royal Highness pays a compliment to the Court by endorsing the opinion of the Judge Advocate-general that they discharged their duty with "marked impartiality and sound judgment."

A more complete condemnation of Sir William Mansfield's conduct could not have been penned. Sir William is censured for his share in the proceedings from beginning to end—for the bringing of his aide-de-camp to trial, for the mode in which he proceeded against him, and for his ultimate decision against the finding of the court-martial. Captain Jervis, on the other hand, is scarcely censured at all. His insubordination is held to be excusable, and the only adverse reflection cast upon him is in reference to his refusal to produce the accounts—and this only on account of the inference which it suggests—the order being declared unlawful, and his resistance justified by legal authority. In the face of these facts it certainly seems strange that Sir William Mansfield should retain his command, while Captain Jervis forfeits his commission—upon honourable terms, to be sure, by favour of superior authority, but to the sacrifice, nevertheless, of his position and prospects. Indeed, it can scarcely be conceived that his Royal Highness anticipated such an anomaly; and but for Sir William Mansfield's despatch in answer to that of the Horse Guards, which forms part of the return, we should expect his resignation to follow as a matter of course. But Sir William gives no hint of taking such a step. On the contrary, he disputes the ground taken by the Commander-in-Chief and the Judge Advocate-General inch by inch, and arrives at the evident conclusion that he and his advisers have the argument entirely on their own side. With no more submission to authority than he is absolutely compelled to accord, he tells his Royal Highness that he cannot be consistently blamed for having followed the course prescribed by his legal advisers when the Duke does exactly the same—ignoring the fact, plainly suggested by his Royal Highness, that he recognises the position of the legal functionaries as dealing only with abstract points of law, the Commander-in-Chief being responsible for the adoption of their opinions and their application to a particular case. And surely Sir William Mansfield cannot pretend that his legal advisers are to blame for the extraordinary mode in which he managed his household, for the domestic dissensions in which he played so unworthy a part, and for the want of social courtesy and consideration towards his aide-de-camp, which compelled 'recourse to the court-martial. The quibbling and special pleading to which Sir William resorts throughout his elaborate reply might well bring upon him a rebuke even more severe than the first.

Among his minor impertinences it may be remarked is the careful manner in which he always speaks of "Mr." Jervis—the Duke having been equally careful in calling him "Captain"—a courtesy which, whatever be that officer's claim to it otherwise, has a substantial value when bestowed by authority acting with the sanction of the Crown, and is one which an officer in subordinate command was bound to recognise. But the omission is consistent with the whole character of the document, which is as little creditable to the character of Sir William Manfield as his conduct throughout this unfortunate affair.

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE LATE ROBERT COLE, ESQ.,

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—The Indian papers have announced the lamented death of one who for the last forty years has been known, by name at least, to most of those who have sojourned during that period in the Madras Presidency. The most cursory reader, on observing that—having completed his term of service—he was about to proceed to England shortly, would be led to moralise on the uncertainty of human life and the vanity of human hopes and expectations. None but those who were intimately acquainted with him are aware how intense were his longings to return to his native home; and how bitter must have been the disappointment attendant on his protracted detention in India. As I believe you have many readers who will be interested in reading them, I will make a few extracts from some of his later letters, expressive of these feelings.

As long ago as Dec. 11, 1865, he writes :—"My time for leaving India is now fast approaching. My desire to get back to my native land has become a disease with me—a nostalgia!

"Home sickness is a wasting pang;
This feel I hourly more and more,
There's healing only in thy wings—
Thou breeze that play'st on Albion's shore!"

"Whether these lines are original or not I am unable to say. At any rate, they were the genuine utterance of his heart. In a subsequent letter he informed me that circumstances had compelled him to cancel his passage, and adds :—"My detention in India is a cruel disappointment to me. Every day I remain here I look upon as so much taken from my life—or at any rate from all that is enjoyable in that life. It is very tantalising that, after such earnest longing to return to my native land, after so long an exile, I should be at the last moment kept from the fruition of my long-cherished hopes."

"I have cried over your affectionate letter, written in the expectation of our speedy reunion, and to think of its postponement to I know not what date! But we must hope for the best, and I trust I may be enabled to write, via Marseilles, by next mail, to tell you that I shall then be on the way to join you, and I hope to meet you at Southampton."

Again he writes, under date Aug. 23rd, 1865 :—"I fear I have sustained a shock which has permanently deteriorated my constitution; nevertheless, I believe I have yet mens sana in corpore sano. I have great hopes of renovation when I shall return to the Fatherland." A hope, alas! never to be realised.

His last letter was dated January 1, 1867, in which he says :—"I have no certain prospect yet of an escape from this unloved land, and am sad and depressed in mind accordingly." And afterwards, in reference to the absence of my younger son from home :—"These separations are the great bar to happiness in the families of our colonial country, where fortune takes so many away from friends and home to be wanderers far and wide. I am now seeking to quit my dear children to revisit my native land, from which I came away so many years ago, separating myself from parents, whom I was doomed never to see again, and brethren, one of whom alone—your dear self—remains to me! May we meet soon and happily, and may we live yet some years to enjoy each other's society, and when we part finally for that other and (I humbly hope) better world, where sorrow and parting are no more, may we be united with those we loved, who are gone before." He, too, has "gone before," and I verily believe has been added to that multitude of whom it may be recorded—in addition to the medical cause assigned, "died"—of that disease which no physical diagnosis can detect—"died of a broken heart!"

Should this letter be read by any who knew and loved him in life, though unknown to me, and who feel inclined to write to me, it will be a melancholy satisfaction to me to hear from them.—I am, Sir, yours very sincerely,

GEORGE COLE.

BENGAL.

RAILWAYS TO DARJEELING AND ASSAM.

The Peri who stood at the gate of Eden was disconsolate

As she listen'd to the springs
Of life within, like music flowing,
And caught the light upon her wings
Through the half-open portal glowing,
She wept to think her recreant race
Should e'er have lost that glorious place!

Had she dwelt in Calcutta with that "holy spot" Darjeeling within a few hours of her, and caught glimpses of the snow-capped peaks and the delights that dwell amid "rich flowers that never shall fade or fall," she would have shed tears much more disconsolate. From that Eden not one but thousands are shut out by no fault of their own, while the Government of an empire is demoralised in the annual search after a more distant and, to the majority, impracticable paradise.

When the next generation of Anglo-Indians luxuriate at the base of Kinchingunga, rosy-cheeked wives and children spending there and in Calcutta a perennial English summer, while every Friday takes to their midst the toiling bread-winners from the plains for the Saturday holiday and the Sunday rest, they will wonder at the folly or the misery of their predecessors, as we do when we think of the era of dak-gharries, no ice or punkahs, and eight months' voyages by the Cape. Even in Bombay the residents find their way for two days a week to cool Matheran and green Poona. But though railway enterprise has in a few years carried lines to such places as the Muttah, Kooshtea, and Burrakur, the thirty thousand Christian inhabitants of Calcutta and its suburbs are content to stew and grill and grumble for half the year without expressing a wish for such communication with the Himalayas as would place them in the snows within fifteen hours of leaving Dalhousiesquare. Yet there is a Chamber of Commerce, a Trades' Association, a Landholders' Association, and two daily papers, which are never slow to express decided opinions on other public questions not always so important to the life and comfort of Europeans or to the good of the empire. There is now a prospect of action if the public of Bengal will do their duty. The directors of the Eastern Bengal Railway are not averse to construct a railway from the new terminus of Goalundo to Darjeeling, on the one side, and Assam on the other, if the shareholders are assured, by the separation of the new guaranteed capital from the old, that the undertaking will not prove a dead weight on what they have already accomplished. The most ample information has been sent to them, showing with what ease and profit the proposed lines might be constructed, and almost all now seems to depend on the opinions of the Bengal, the India, and the home authorities as to the guarantee. Now, therefore, is the time for the panting public to lift up what little voice the heat has left to them.

First as to Darjeeling. There are two routes by which a line may be laid in continuation of the Eastern Bengal Railway—the Western or Dinapore route, 358 miles, and the Rungpore route, 368 miles from Calcutta. Both would start from Kooshtea, and of both one-third is already laid. The former, or shorter, would pass Rampore, Bauleah and Mahlah to the west, and then running due north to Dinapore find a terminus in the valley of the Teesta, a two hours' walking distance from Darjeeling. The latter would diverge to the east on leaving Kooshtea, so as to avoid the great Chellan marsh, and then run due north by Bograh and Rungpore, and along the west bank of the Teesta to Darjeeling, throwing off a short branch from Shazadpore to the great mart at Serajunge. A survey of the country shows that the Di-Dagepore, or shorter, route to Darjeeling should be adopted, for only thus will the great drainage of the Himalayas at Rungpore be avoided, as well as the competition of the water traffic. Allowing 50 per cent. for working expenses, the Dinagepore route is so easy that the line could be laid at £10,000 a mile, and would yield 7 per cent. Ultimately such a line as has been constructed over Mont Cenis might connect the terminus at the confluence of the Teesta and Rungeet with Darjeeling. It is undoubted that when every man in Calcutta worth, say, Rs. 1,500 a month has a summer villa there such a line must be made. But even without it the merchant and official might leave their desk after tiffin on Friday afternoon, cross the Ganges by ferry in daylight, and pass through the Terai, when it is safe, after sunrise on Saturday, reaching "home" to breakfast. This line would open out a pathless tract of vast fertility and trade, while it would solve the difficulty of an occasional hill residence for the Government which would not, like the present system, imperil the empire.

The Darjeeling line is first in importance, whether we look at it socially, politically, or commercially, and this, we understand, is the present Lieutenant Governor's opinion. But there is no reason why the Assam line should not go on at the same time after Sir Cecil Beadon's strong recommendations. Under a Chief Commissioner Assam and the adjoining districts will be like Ceylon in ten years. Here, again, there are two routes. From Calcutta to Gowhatty is 426 miles, of which considerably more than a third is already laid or sanctioned. Starting from Aircha, opposite Goalundo, the Eastern route would cross the Dullaserry, near Manickgunge or Sabhar, run nearly due north to Jumalpoor, where the old bed of the Brahmapootra would have to be crossed, skirt the foot of the Garrows, and run up the south valley of the Brahmapootra through Lower and Upper Assam. From the north end of the bridge over the Dullaserry it is also proposed to form a branch to Dacca and Nairaingunge, and diverging to the south is a contemplated extension to Chittagong and the east coast of the Bay of Bengal. The other, or Bograh, route would branch out of the Darjeeling line below Rungpore, cross the Teesta, Dhuriah and Menass rivers, and run up the north bank of the Brahmapootra. The advantage of the Eastern route does not lie only in the absence of engineering difficulties and consequent cheapness. It gives Assam direct communication with the important rice and produce marts of Dacca and Naraingunge, and with the upper portion of Mymensing. Moreover, it would open up the coal country, and this is of the first importance. Mr. Medlicott's report no less than the investigations of the Peninsular and Oriental and Railway Companies, show that the Eastern Bengal line may have as its terminus another Ranee-gunge, with this vast difference, that the coal is equal to Newcastle and therefore fit for sea-going steamers. The experiments of the former company in 1865 with Sylhet coal exposed for a long time to the climate show that it is inferior to West Hartley only in leaving 2 per cent. more of ash. We trust Government will order a more detailed survey of the field at the point nearest to Calcutta. This fine coal alone should induce the shareholders to raise capital for the Assam extension, for it will double their income from traffic per mile even at the low rates which the river competition renders necessary, and cheap coal means low fares and freights in every steamer which leaves Calcutta.

The Eastern Bengal Railway has during the past six months drawn a revenue of Rs. 7,712 per mile, equal to Rs. 15,424 for the year. Its earnings have nearly doubled since 1863, when they were Rs. 7,571 per mile, and this although it has hardly tapped the great Dacca trade. What it has done between Calcutta and Kooashta it is sure to exceed between Kooashta and Darjeeling when it opens up the fertile rice tracts and reaches such a terminus, which is the gate to Thibet. The moment Darjeeling is placed within a night's journey of the capital by express trains, it must become a little Calcutta. The prospects of the Assam project are second only to these. Consider the future of the new Chief Commissionership of the Eastern provinces, their rice and tea, their jute and lime, their labour and general trade. We cannot look coldly on projects not half so doubtful as the existing lines seemed to be eighteen years ago to all but Lord Dalhousie and a few advisers. If we are to have only one of the two lines, then Darjeeling should have the preference as the more promising, while a road may suffice for Assam. But even there a railway is only a question of time. And in time, too, we must see not only the proposed extension to Chittagong, but towards the only pass which crosses the Patkoi hills into Burmah and the adjoining Chinese province of Hoo-Koong. Meanwhile let the public of Bengal petition for the line nearer at hand, that years may be added to the life, and that which years cannot measure, to the happiness of all who are now doomed to swelter in the plains of Bengal.—Friend of India, June 27.

LEITNER v. STRUTT.—A CASE OF SCANDAL.

Allusion has been already made in these columns to certain scandalous scenes at the club at Lahore. One result is an action, the opening of which is thus described by a correspondent of the Delhi Gazette:—

LAHORE, June 22.—You have, I think, already been informed that the great case of Leitner v. Strutt, which should have come off on Thursday last, had been postponed to noon this day. The judge, Mr. C. U. Aitchison, Deputy Commissioner of Lahore, took his seat in court punctually, and it is no great merit to an officer of his standing and antecedents to say that the case, as far as it went to-day, was conducted by him with much tact, decision, and undoubted impartiality. I shall not attempt to give you now anything but the barest outline of the affair as far as it went, the full report taking some time to prepare with correctness.

The judge having, I repeat, taken his seat, the counsel for either party being arrayed on either side of a long table in front of the bench, the proceedings commenced. The counsel and pleaders for the plaintiff were Mr. Cunningham, Barrister-at-Law, Advocate for the Punjab Government, Mr. Rattigan and Mr. Scarlett; for the defendant, Mr. Plowden, Mr. Reynolds, Barrister-at-Law, and a native gentleman, full of great intelligence, whose name I could not catch. On the bench were almost all the judicial officers of Lahore, so that not much work can have been done elsewhere this day, while below the counsel and around were Dr. Leitner himself, Lieutenant Larminie, R.E., Lieutenant Conway Gordon, R.E., Deputy Consulting Engineer P. and D. Railway, Mr. L. Griffin, C.S., and many others, "too numerous to mention." The court room, not a very large one, was crammed, and the energetic working of a double set of punkahs alone kept the auditory from dissolving from the effects of the great heat. After a few preliminary objections by Mr. Plowden to certain alterations that had been made in the plaint, and which were disposed of to his satisfaction by the Court, and the objection to the period (three months) within which this action as one for libel should have been brought, had been in a certain manner overcome by an alleged plea of a republication in the sale of the older date newspaper in which the so-called libels had been inserted, Mr. Cunningham, in a most concise address, gave the facts of the case according to his instructions. They amounted to this, that on more than one occasion paragraphs had appeared in the Lahore Chronicle, insinuating some charge against a person who had been in Cashmere, who was generally believed to be Dr. Leitner, and that the vagueness of the charge having been removed to a certain extent by Major Strutt stating on the night of the row at the club (June 4) that if he found any allusion to himself in the article (Mr. Marshall was reading from Public Opinion) he would publish full particulars of the Kashmere outrage, he (Dr. Leitner) had been induced to bring this action, as his character suffered damage to the extent of Rs. 10,000, &c. The defendant by his counsel pleaded not guilty and justification—that is to say, that Dr. Leitner had at a certain place in the Kashmere territories named Astor or Astoora, attempted to commit an outrage on the person of a woman of the place. Several documents, chiefly letters in the vernacular and in English, were put in, but not then read, and issue joined on the plaint. (The documents, I ought to say, were put in before the defendant's pleas were recorded.) Dr. Leitner was then called as first witness in the case, and gave, in the most precise manner as to dates, circumstances, and particulars of the alleged facts connected with the publication of the so-called libels, attributing their origin to malice on account of his having set up an opposition paper, and to a conspiracy to ruin him. Amongst other things, that Major Strutt had one evening 'forced' Rs. 3,000 on him, for which he gave his I.O.U., but which he returned on reconsideration. He denied having given by any act of his at Astor, or elsewhere in Cashmere, any grounds for the accusation brought against him, and dwelt on certain vernacular communications handed to him as having first opened his eyes to the nature of the conspiracy entered into against him.

Mr. Plowden then commenced a series of cross examinations. Great stress was laid on the subject of those 3,000 rupees, on the fact or his having continued on terms of visiting and dining out many days with Major Strutt long after he had been made aware that general opinion pointed to him as the individual alluded to in the paragraphs now styled libels, and on the way in which he became possessed of the vernacular letters put in as exhibits. One of those was, it appears, handed to him by one Mahomed Hussam, secretary to the Anjuman, who told him that, though not directed to him (M. H.), he having received it in Calcutta from the postman amongst a lot of other letters, had opened, read it, and made it over to Dr. Leitner, instead of to the party to whom it was addressed. You shall have a full report as soon as possible. The trial is likely to last a long while, as there are many witnesses to examine, and commissions will have to be issued to the officer on duty in Kashmere to take evidence there.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE SERVICES OF THE LATE MAJOR FITZGERALD.—Major Fitzgerald served as a Deputy Assistant Commissary General in the Burmah war, 1852-53. He also served in the same capacity in commissariat charge of the Punjab Moveable Column, in June and July, 1857. He was present at the affair of Trimmoo Ghaut, on the 12th July, 1857, when he was dangerously wounded. Received the commendation of Government for equipping the column, 18th August, 1857. Served in Brigadier P. Seaton's Column, from Delhi to Fettehghur, November and December, 1857. Served with the army under his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, at Fettehghur, January, 1858, as Commissariat Officer. Present at the capture of Lucknow, and mentioned in his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief's Despatch, 16th April, 1858. Received the thanks of Government, 5th April, 1858. Served as principal Commissariat Officer with the troops employed in the subjugation of Oude, 1858-59. Present at the engagement with Bein Madhub's force, and the affairs of Bingidia, Majidda, and Raptee. Received the thanks of Lord Clyde, 21st January, 1859. Promoted to the rank of Brevet-Major for services during the Mutiny, August 14th, 1859. Joined the expeditionary Force to China in March, 1860. Served in the Sikhim Expedition, in 1860-61, and was honourably mentioned in G. O. G. G. 12th September, 1861.

THE PANIC AT MEERUT.—The official correspondence relating to the panic at Meerut on 19th May has just been published. It adds little (says the Friend of India) to the facts we have already published. The writer of the Nagree letter was an imbecile cloth merchant named Byjnath. He posted several such letters, but signed his name, which led to his apprehension. He is the eldest son of the late Shama Dutt, a respectable resident of Meerut, and the nephew of Gunga Ram, a Dak proprietor. The Seharunpore letter was addressed to Gunga Ram's brother. On his father's death a year ago his relations prevented him from inviting the guests to the funeral feast on 19th May, and so he issued the circular of invitation which has caused the panic. The Government of India condemns Mr. Watson, Magistrate of Meerut, for going to General Troup with a letter "which he could not read, and which was nearly illegible, without having first caused its contents to be ascertained," and considers his explanation "very unsatisfactory." Mr. Robertson had evidently been able to translate the letter, for while he sent it in original to Meerut, he despatched a Persian copy to Mr. Williams, the Commissioner. The Government of India declare it "inexplicable" how Mr. Williams could think there was any real importance in the letter. The North-West Government, on the other hand, considers that the conduct of Messrs. Watson and Robertson was not "in any degree censurable," ascribes the alarm to "a concurrence of accidental circumstances which could hardly have been anticipated," considers the panic at Ghazeeabad to have been the worst feature in the affair, and the conduct of the Delhi Gazette unaccountable, and regrets the hasty transmission of the telegram from Mr. Williams. The root of the evil was in Mr. Williams' absence at Mussorie, from his post of duty. The hills again. So it always is. A new rule has been issued forbidding the telegraph authorities to transmit messages which they believe to contain false information of an important public nature without referring to the nearest civil or military authority. It is fortunate that the London message of Reuter's Bombay agent attracted little attention. "Meerut" was rendered "Great," and it appeared on the Derby-day. There are two facts in the correspondence, to which Government has not directed the attention they seem to deserve. Byjnath, who can only write Hinduee, addressed letters in Oordoo and English as well, and must have accomplices. And Mr. H. D. Robertson, magistrate of Seharunpore, states that he had recently punished the writer of a disloyal letter, "in many respect similar" to the Meerut one, sent from the Commissioner of Umballa. In connection with this we commend to the attention of the authorities our first extract this week from the Bengalee papers. The visit of the Cashmere chief to Hurdwar seems to have been interpreted in a way most unfavourable to Government. The Russians, too, figure in the excited rumours. The Shom Prokash estimates the discontent at its proper value when it ascribes it to ignorance and recommends education as the best remedy. That, and a vigorous foreign policy both within and beyond the frontier. The time is at hand when Government will learn the political importance of educating the masses for whom, in other respects, Sir John Lawrence has done so much.

THE LICENCE TAX.—The Secretary of State having refused to veto the Licence Act, the tax will now be vigorously levied under an Act amending XXI. of 1857, passed at Simla on the 12th instant. As in England, the Act commits the assessment and collection of the tax entirely to the revenue authorities, leaving it to the magistrate to enforce a penalty of Rs. 500 on all who refuse to pay the sum at which they are assessed. One improvement in the Act is the clause which provides that a notice requiring a licence at the rate fixed to be taken out shall be served on each person. Another is, that companies need not pay more than two per cent. of their profits, instead of being assessed according to their capital. In all cases the profits are to be reckoned as those of the preceding year. So the impost has been made more and more a bad income-tax, inasmuch as there is similarly elaborate machinery, greater discontent, and much less money. And all this for a year. But for the very great importance of upholding the acts of the Governor-General in all cases—for he is more often right than wrong, as in the Mysore grant and adoption questions—we would feel regret that the Secretary of State has not ordered the conversion of the licence duty into a proper income-tax. With considerable chivalry Mr. Maine came to the rescue of Mr. Massey, on whose final declaration the only proper comment is silence—"The Bill had not been suggested by any resistance to the Act, nor had he any serious apprehension that the Act as it stood would not work." But it was right to relieve the taxpayer from all doubt as to his liabilities and to remove all possible obstacles to the collection of the tax." We wonder Sir John Lawrence allowed that to be said. The dignity of the Government is all important, and we have always been more zealous for it than Government itself. But there is such a thing as truth. If Act XXI. would work as it stood, why this new one?—Friend of India.

ANOTHER ATTORNEY STRUCK OFF THE ROLLS.—The Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Norman, and Mr. Justice Phear, have been sitting at the Town-hall to hear and dispose of a rule nisi which had been granted on the application of the Advocate-General calling upon Mr. Matthew Tom Pearson, one of the attorneys and proctors of the High Court, to show cause why he should not be struck off the roll of attorneys, or otherwise be punished for contempt of Court and breach of his duty as an attorney and officer of the Court, for that he, having acted in the matter of the insolvency of one Hurry Doss Bysack, as attorney for the insolvent, and as such having signed the said insolvent's schedule and estate paper, did, on the 14th February, 1865, after the right, title, and interest of the insolvent in certain property had been sold by the official assignee, write, address, and send to the said Hurry Doss Bysack a letter informing him that he, Matthew Tom Pearson, was instructed to take proceedings against him to set aside his insolvency on the ground of fraudulent concealment of property, unless the insolvent would give up possession of the property so sold by the official assignee. Mr. Eglington showed cause on behalf of Mr. Pearson. The Advocate-General was heard in support of the rule. The Court delivered judgment seriatim. They considered that Mr. Pearson by his conduct had shown himself unfit to be entrusted with the professional work of the public. The rule was made absolute, and Mr. Pearson's name was ordered to be struck off the rolls. A full report will be given in the usual column as soon as possible.—Englishman.

SHIPPING IN THE HOOGHLY.—There are now 92 ships lying in the river Hooghly, of an aggregate tonnage of 74,864. Of this number 44, representing a tonnage of 45,604, have not yet had their destinations fixed. Twenty-two of these are British vessels, two foreign, and twenty East Indian traders.

BRIGADE COMMANDS.—The report that Brigadier-General Fitzmayer, Commanding the Oude Division, was to receive the Inspector-Generalship of the Bengal Artillery, Southern Division, was correct. Brigadier-General Buchanan will succeed him, and Colonel R. J. Baumgartner, C.B., Commanding 27th Foot, will obtain the command of the Brigade in Fort William. When these arrangements are carried out, Major R. Free will fall into command of the 27th. Colonel Baumgartner served during the Eastern campaign of 1854-55 with her Majesty's 28th Foot, including the battles of Alma and Inkermann, siege of Sebastopol, and the affair of the Cemetery on the 18th June, and succeeded to the command of the regiment. On the 17th August he was wounded in the trenches. He has received a medal and clasps for the Crimean campaign, also the Sardinian medal, the 4th class of the order of the Mejidie, and a C.B.-ship. Brigadier-General Fitzmayer served during the Eastern campaign of 1854-55, including the affairs of Baljanac, and McKenzie's farm, the battles of Alma and Inkermann, and the siege and fall of Sebastopol, and repulse of the sortie of the 26th October, 1854. He was complimented on parade by Sir de Lacy Evans, for his manner of bringing his artillery at the Alma under the hottest fire, and was again thanked by Sir de Lacy, and twice mentioned in his despatch on the repulse, and sortie on 26th October, 1854. He has received the medal with 3 clasps; Officer of the Legion of Honour; 4th class of the Order of the Mejidie, Turkish medal, and a C.B.-ship.

THE PROPOSED NEW RAILWAYS IN THE PUNJAB.—We have already announced that the Secretary of State has forbidden the construction of the Indus Valley and Lahore and Peshawur railways. So far, says the Friend of India, Sir Bartle Frere's opinion, or his presence in Council, if he had taken his seat before this retrogressive decision was arrived at, has been fruitless. The Government of India, we see it asserted in more than one of our contemporaries, were finally unanimous in recommending these railway extensions. This is not the case. The Lahore and Peshawur line, we regret to say, was left out at an early stage in the discussion. The question lay between the Rajpootana and Indus Valley lines, the Governor-general inclining to the latter, and the majority of council to the former. All hinges on finance, and when Mr. Massey adds from three to five millions to the permanent revenue we may expect the great policy of Lord Dalhousie to receive its full development. The only step which will meanwhile be taken towards extension—and that is a considerable one—will be the junction of Delhi with Bombay. The surveys are going on, but if the Baroda Company is to do the work we trust Government will take such guarantees as will prevent a recurrence of that corruption which was greater on the Baroda line than even on the East Indian in its worst days or on the Punjab more recently.

A VERY PRETTY QUARREL.—There has been, we understand, a little fracas at Cawnpore between Colonel Crossman, commanding the 12th B.C., and the medical officer of the regiment. As the story has been told to us, the colonel sent for the native doctor to attend some one of his household. The native doctor, instead of going, sent an ill-written note, to the effect that he had orders from his superior officer, the doctor of the regiment, not to leave the hospital on any account without his permission, and on no account was medicine to be issued without the like authority. The colonel upon this went to the hospital, where he met the doctor, and some altercation ensued, which ended in the medical officer being put under arrest, from which he was released upon report being made to the brigadier. A court of enquiry, we are informed, has been ordered to investigate the affair.—Delhi Gazette.—A later number of the Delhi says:

—"The little fracas at Cawnpore we alluded to the other day is even more absurd than we supposed. It seems the medical officer himself went to Colonel Crossman's house to attend the servant, and although he did all he could for the patient, he was yet put under arrest by the colonel for disobeying orders in not sending the native doctor, and that without any notice. There ought to be some restriction put upon commanding officers acting in such an arbitrary and uncalled-for manner, or some penalty imposed for making arrests without due cause. The court of enquiry which is sitting is not investigating this affair, but another, the particulars of which have not reached us."

DEPARTURE OF SIR C. BEADON AND FAMILY.—Sir Cecil Beadon, K.C.S.I., Lady Beadon, and their infant children, sailed from Calcutta on the 20th June. The Mongolia, in which they were passengers, left the jetty at Garden Reach at about half-past six o'clock. Sir Cecil and Lady Beadon arrived considerably before six, the hour fixed for the departure of the vessel. A large body of the Calcutta European Police force was in attendance, and also a party of native constabulary under Mr. Superintendent Lyaam. Several gentlemen assembled to bid the late Lieut.-Governor farewell. Among others were the present Lieutenant-governor of Bengal, the Hon. Mr. Grey, who was accompanied by his aide-de-camp, Captain Wilson, Stuart Hogg, Esq., commissioner of police, Major Reveley, Colonel Atkinson, Major James, the Hon. Mr. Justice Norman, Messrs. Bruce, Lane, Hobhouse, Scott Moncrieff, Dampien, Schalch, Vere Haldane, C. S. Hogg (administrator-general), Mr. Lazarus, Mr. J. B. Roberts, Dr. Fayer, Dr. Faucus, Moulvie Abdool Luteef Bahador, Prince Gholam Mohamed, &c., &c. The salute in honour of Sir C. Beadon was fired on the following morning.

THE P. AND O. COMPANY.—Though the Peninsular and Oriental Company has discontinued the extra weekly steamers between Suez and Bombay, to the great discomfort of all India, it deserves great credit for the speed and regularity with which the mail service has of late been maintained. The sixteen mails which have arrived from London during the four months ending May last took, on an average, only 26 days and 16½ hours each in transit to Calcutta, reckoning the day of departure but not of arrival. The shortest was the mail of 20th April, which came in 25 days, the longest that of 4th February, which took 29 days. The completion of the Jubbulpore and Bombay railway and the addition of speed under the new contract ought to give Calcutta its mails in 24 days. But if an average even of 26 days be assumed, this will allow mails to leave Calcutta on a Friday as well as London, and secure for the large mercantile and official communities of both capitals the Saturday holiday.—Friend of India.

NATIVE ADDRESS TO SIR CECIL BEADON.—A native paper is making a good deal of an address to Sir Cecil Beadon, who leaves India on Sunday, by 20,000 Bengalees. If Serampore may be taken as an example, the most extraordinary—or to Asiatics and their agents in London, ordinary—efforts have been made to procure the signatures of persons utterly ignorant of the object and even of the existence of the late Lieutenant Governor. Suitors, poor peasants, and others at the cutchery, have been waylaid for this purpose. It is a pity that Sir C. Beadon should be thus annoyed on his departure.—Friend of India.

THE COMPETITION-WALLAHS.—Parliament has published the opinions of the Governments of India, Madras, and Bombay on the comparative efficiency of the competition civilians. Premising that the time has not yet come to pronounce a distinct opinion, all the Governments unite in the belief, which the public undoubtedly share, that "the Civil Service has on the whole been improved by the present system, for it is effective to exclude great inefficiency, which undoubtedly was not excluded under the old system," while the competition are more highly educated than the Haileybury men. And so there will be found elsewhere rules which pay the competition men the compliment of exacting more extensive and accurate knowledge of the vernacular and classical languages of India from those who aspire to the prizes of from Rs. 1,000 to Rs. 4,000, with certificates from the examiner for high proficiency and from the Viceroy for honours.

DR. MURRAY THOMPSON'S METEOROLOGICAL REPORT of the North-West Provinces for 1866 has no little local interest, but he says nothing of ozone, and does not epitomise the results of the observations for the whole year, but only month by month. There are twenty-three stations from which returns are received every month. At only six, namely, Roorkee, Nynsee Tal, Agra, Ajmere, Jhansie, and Benares, are complete sets of instruments maintained, and the observations taken at these are more or less thorough. In January the mean monthly temperature ran from 57 deg. up to 67 deg. In this expression the mean temperature of each day is deduced from four observations, made at 6 and 10 A.M. and 4 and 10 P.M. In the first fortnight of June the mean temperature ranged from 89 deg. to 100 deg. In July it fell 10 deg., thanks to the rains.

CALLING A LADY A WOMAN!—At the Police Court last week an application was made to Mr. Sconce by Mrs. Carberry, against her landlord, an attorney of the High Court. Mrs. Carberry was addressed by the magistrate as "woman;" she was of course much offended, but made no observation till her application was disposed of. It was refused; and when the officer of the court was called upon to "remove the woman out of Court," Mrs. Carberry then addressing the magistrate remarked, that it was useless for the Court to style her a "woman," when in her opinion she was as much a lady as he, Mr. Sconce, was a gentleman, and that she regretted very much that a magistrate should so far forget his position as to address a lady in such an unbecoming and offensive manner.

CIVIL CHANGES.—Mr. H. G. Keene has obtained leave to Europe for six months, and Mr. Sopte, C.B., has been gazetted for three months' privilege leave. This will place two officiating judgeships at the disposal of the Government of the N. W. Provinces. There are now two officers only, Messrs. R. T. Saunders and C. Currie, on the out-of-employment list in these provinces. Mr. Humes' promotion and Mr. S. Melville's approaching departure to Europe on furlough will vacate two magistracies, which will no doubt devolve in the regular course on the above-named officers.—Pioneer, June 19.

THE REVISED ASSESSMENT OF THE DISTRICT OF SAHARUNPORE has been completed. The whole of the upper Doab of the North-Western Provinces, especially that portion which stretches from Bolundshuhur to Dehra Doon, is not only ready for a permanent settlement, but has been led by more than one solemn promise to expect it. But it so happens that these districts are likely to be affected by canal irrigation in the next twenty years, and the quarter of a million sterling spent on their laborious assessment with a view to perpetuity will be thus thrown away.

ABUNDANT HARVEST IN BRITISH BURMAH.—We are happy to hear of an abundant harvest in British Burmah this year, and that grain is cheaper than it has been there for some years. In case the famine takes place in Upper Burmah it will be well provided from the lower country.—Indian Daily News.

THE REV. J. B. BALDWIN, at present officiating as garrison chaplain, will probably be appointed permanently to Fort William, and the Rev. M. R. Burge receive the Archdeaconry of Lahore.

REPORTED ESCAPE OF CAPTAIN CUNNINGHAM.—The Pioneer says:—A report has reached us of the escape of the prisoner Cunningham, late of the 88th Regiment. It is stated that he managed to get away from his guard, whom he had persuaded to relieve him of his irons. The story is by no means improbable, as the prisoner is plausible and insinuating in manners, when he pleases; and being well acquainted with the ways and weaknesses of the private soldier, he would not be at a loss for the best means of tampering with his honesty, or taking advantage of any relaxation of vigilance.

A CHINESE "PUNCH."—Like India, China is to have its Punch—in Hong Kong. Punch, the prospectus declares, is of Chinese origin, like printing and engineering, we presume. We are informed that "long ere the ancient Druids had ceased to sacrifice in the groves of Anglia, Punch the pigtailed was alike the envy and admiration of every man, woman, and child amongst the blackhaired race of Han. For ages he has lived in far Cathay, a pearl among princes, but as a power in the State, mute as the submissive Judy in the presence of her lord."

THE CARTOON OF "PUNCH IN INDIA" for May, only now received, is very good. It represents Sir John Lawrence as studying the map of Central Asia on a bed of roses. In the background the British Lion is asleep on the Hindoo Koosh, and at Sir John's right hand a Secretary plays, while a solitary musket keeps back rebels. The legend is—"All Koosh;—or the Piping Times of Peace and our Masterly Inactivity policy." "Why are the inhabitants of all India justified in abusing Mr. Massey the Model Financier? Because he has given them a License."

THE RED MARKS ON GATES AND WALLS IN MEERUT and elsewhere seem to be made by the native servants of the house. The Pioneer states that quite recently the bloody hand re-appeared on the gate-post of the house of Colonel Crossman, commanding the cavalry at Cawnpore. The police traced it to a khitmutgar, who has lately come from Meerut into Colonel Crossman's service. A sound flogging rewarded the artist.

THE NEW LOAN.—No less than half a million sterling of the last loan has already been enfaced in Calcutta for remittance to England, so ruinous is the present rate of exchange. The fifteen years' portion of the loan promises to bring as high a premium as the ordinary 5 per cent. loan, being quite as good in every way. The Government of India, we understand, was greatly pleased with the success of the loan.

THE BARQUE "CHARLOTTE," from Rangoon, loaded with timber, got aground in the Gasper whilst under charge of Mr. Licenced Pilot Phipson, who is to be tried before Captain H. Handley, newly-appointed marine judge, on Thursday, the 20th June.

MADRAS.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE "SACRAMENTO."—Intelligence was received in Madras yesterday morning that the United States' war-steamer Sacramento, 13 guns, which only left the Madras Roads last Tuesday, had got ashore near Point Gordenware, about fifteen miles to the southward of Coconada, at which port the steamer was to have called to take in coals. No particulars are known as yet, further than that no lives have been lost, and that Mr. Russell, the paymaster of the Sacramento, had found his way to Coconada, and invoked the aid of the master attendant of that port, who at once proceeded to the scene of the wreck to render what assistance he could, and also sent down boats to convey the officers and crew of the Sacramento to Coconada. The telegram conveying this intelligence was dated Coconada, 21st of June. As the B.I.S.N. steamer Arabia would have to call at Coconada on her way to Madras, some endeavour might be made by her means to tow the Sacramento off the bank on which she has grounded, but we fear there can be little hope of rescuing a heavy armour-plated vessel like her from her present perilous position. Madras Athenæum, June 22.—A telegram received yesterday evening, dated 26th, states that the Sacramento is a total wreck, and that the hull is fast sinking into the sand. The Master Attendant of Coconada arrived at that port yesterday morning from the wreck with a large quantity of valuables, and will return again to her immediately to save more of her stores.—Id., June 27.—H.M. steamer Star, which was despatched from Trincomalee to the assistance of the Sacramento, arrived here yesterday, having been unable to render any assistance to the wrecked vessel. Captain Thompson, the master attendant of the port, and the collector of the district, with the assistance of two hundred men, are endeavouring to save as much as possible of the stores of the wrecked vessel, and what they have already saved, independent of other stores, amounts in value to £5,000 treasure from the cash chest. The crew of the Sacramento are lodged on board the Rajpoot at Coconada, and we learn that their commander (Collins) is endeavouring to charter a vessel at Calcutta to convey them all to New York direct.—Madras Times, July 2.

WAIF FROM CEYLON.—A striking illustration of the strength of the current from the South is afforded by a ship that anchored in the roads last evening. Her captain went ashore in Galle, leaving instructions with his mate to change the ship's berth. The mate, acting on this, weighed anchor, stood out, but the current proved so strong that he was unable to bring up, and was driven up the bay, so that, choosing the least of two evils, he bore up for Madras. So here is the disconsolate ship, and in Ceylon is the disconsolate captain, no doubt anxiously awaiting news of his faithless craft.—Athenæum, June 28.

DEATH OF MAJOR STILES.—We regret to hear that accounts were received at the presidency by the last steamer that Major George Harcourt Stiles, of the Staff Corps, late of the 4th Regiment N.I., has died at Rangoon.—Athenæum, June 20.

THE GOVERNOR has declined the invitation of the Maharajah of Mysore to the annual fete given by H. H. in July. Lord Napier will proceed to Bangalore in the first instance, and from thence to Ballary, visiting, it is said, the Pulney Hills, amongst other places, before he returns to the Presidency.—Athenæum, July 2.

DREADFUL RAILWAY ACCIDENT ON THE G.I.P. RAILWAY.

[From the Bombay Gazette.]

A disastrous accident happened to a train between the stations of Bhosawul and Nimborah on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway at an early hour on the morning of Wednesday, the 26th June. Bhosawul is 275½, and Nimborah 291 miles from Bombay.

The train to which the accident occurred left Bombay on Tuesday morning, the 25th June, at 7 o'clock. At Bhosawul junction the carriages proceeding to Khundwah are separated from those which go to Nagpore, and on this occasion the train which left the junction for Khundwah consisted of an engine and tender, a guard's van, a first-class carriage, a second-class carriage, four third-class carriages (one of them for women and the others for men), and another guard's van in the rear of the train. The train was in charge of a European driver named Young, who had under him a European fireman, Millan by name, and also a "lookout man" (a native). There was also a European guard (Goodwin), and second guard (Lewin).

The train (which should have left Bhosawul, according to the time table, at two o'clock on Wednesday morning, but was twenty minutes late) proceeded on its way at the usual speed till it reached the Sootee nullah, 10½ miles distant from Bhosawul. During the most part of the year this nullah is dry, and even in the monsoon the water in the stream is usually very shallow. For an hour or more before the accident, however, a tremendous flood of water came down, rousing the inhabitants of the village of Sootee from their slumbers. Rain had been falling heavily since eight or nine o'clock on the Tuesday night. The violence of the water in the river was so great that part of the land on which the huts of the village stood was washed away, and that the natives began to seek a more secure place in which to pass the night, in anticipation of something more serious. The railway servants who were in charge of the train had passed the spot, on the "up" journey, about half-past ten o'clock on the Tuesday night (only about four hours before), and it appears that the river was at that time almost perfectly dry. The nullah, it is said, has not been flooded to an equal extent at any other time during the last twenty years.

A little above the bridge the stream divides itself and runs in two channels, which are spanned by separate bridges, there being an embankment of a hundred yards in length between them. The water, having risen to a height of about twenty feet, dashed with all its force upon this embankment and carried a great part of it away on the side of the railway where the unfortunate train ran, leaving however the rails still standing. Such was the state of things when the train came up. The engine gave a lurch on coming to the gap, but passed over; the driver, however, immediately appreciated the danger, and cried out to the fireman, "I'm going to jump," which he did, falling on the railway, whilst the fireman jumped into the stream, and is believed to have been drowned. The engine, being off the rails, did not run far; and the tender, which had become detached from the engine, also crossed the gap, but was stopped by coming in contact with the parapet of the bridge. None of the other parts of the train were fortunate enough to pass over. The guard's van in the front, the two third-class carriages following it, and also the first and second-class carriages, were completely smashed. The other two third-class carriages and the rear van were considerably damaged, but not to such an extent as to prevent most of the passengers from getting out of the windows and seeking a place of safety. The last of the third-class carriages contained twenty-five passengers, and, though it turned on its side, not one of them was hurt. There were also seventeen boxes of treasure in the rear part of the train, and every one of them has been recovered. After the melancholy accident the head guard, who had escaped, walked on to the nearest station, Nimborah, about five miles distant, where information of the occurrence was telegraphed to Bhosawul. By the time the guard had returned to the spot, with the assistance he had been able to obtain, about forty or fifty native passengers who had succeeded in getting out of the carriages had found their way to the gaum (village), where they made themselves as comfortable as they could and showed the greatest unconcern about the whole affair, taking no steps, either, to let the railway officials know that they were still in existence. They turned up very slowly, and it is still hoped that others who are missing may be found to have gone to some of the neighbouring gaums.

An engine soon went from Bhosawul to the scene of the accident, and a diligent search for the sufferers was begun and was continued throughout the whole day. A special train also, which left Bombay about noon, reached the spot after a journey of about ten hours and a half. Mr. Knox, the general traffic manager; Mr. Rushton, the consulting engineer; Mr. Downes, the storekeeper; and Mr. Blackwell, the telegraph superintendent; went by that train, and on arrival Mr. Blackwell established a temporary telegraph office. Steps were immediately taken to have the damage to the line repaired, and this was found to be a task of no great magnitude, for the rails were ready for traffic on the afternoon of the following day, and no special material was required for the work.

With regard to the sufferers it is believed, after the most careful inquiries having been made, that the European fireman and the European second guard must have been carried away by the flood and drowned. There were no first-class passengers in the train at all. Two Eurasian second class passengers (named George and Fenwick) were found dead. Three natives died after having been picked up, viz., Ragoonath Narayan, the mail guard, and another whose name was not known. Two bodies were found in the river, that of a girl four years of age, named Sukkee, daughter of a Waman Brahmin, and that of a man, supposed to be a Mussulman, found four miles down the river, with Rs. 300 on his person; other two bodies were seen in the river, and about twenty persons were more or less hurt.

One of the first steps which were taken after the receipt of intelligence of the accident was to send an officer of the company to all the stations on the line for the purpose of ascertaining how many passengers had been booked for the train to which the said accident occurred.

The result of this inquiry has been obtained, and it shows that there were 2 second-class passengers and 50 third-class passengers, in addition to which there were 10 railway officials, the total number being thus 62. It is feared, however, that there may have been a few others who, though booked for the mixed train, had taken the mail train, as natives are said to do sometimes.

FURTHER PARTICULARS.

It is not possible to state with precision the number of the lives that were lost in the sad accident, but we have received some items of information, from a perfectly reliable and independent source, unconnected with the railway company, which will be interesting to our readers as throwing a little light on the state of the case. The information we refer to was sent from Bhosawul on Friday night, the 28th ult., when the result of the inquiry as to the number of passengers who had been booked for the stations between Bhosawul and Khundwah was still unknown; but it gives the facts which it was possible to obtain on this point from the other sources that were available, and it may be satisfactory to the public to be able to compare these with the statement of the railway company's officers.

The train, we learn, consisted of the following parts, in the order named:—engine, tender, a third-class carriage (with men), a third-class carriage (with women), a second-class carriage (with passengers and mails), a first-class carriage (empty), two third-class carriages (with men), and a brake van in the rear. On the engine and tender were a European driver, a European fireman, and a native fireman or "look-out man;" in each of the brake vans there was a European guard; in the second-class there were one Portuguese, one Eurasian, one Parsee, another native, and two mail guards. So far the facts are clear, but in regard to the number of the third-class passengers the statements made by the survivors and others who had seen the train were most conflicting, and it was considered that the only reliable information on this head was that which the railway company's own return would afford. But let us hear the statements, such as they were. The assertions in reference to the number of persons in the third class carriage (for men) following the front brake van varied from 12 to nil; as to the carriage for women, from 30 to 7; as to the next third class carriage (for men), from 35 to 25; and as to the last third class carriage (also for men), from 35 to 25—the total number of third class passengers, according to the maximum statements, being 112, and according to the minimum statements 57, and it was considered probable that the number might have been about 70.

The Sootee river, or rather nullah, takes a bend at the bridge, and forms a semicircle, and on the night in question a portion of the water in the nullah took another channel, which cut across the semi-circle, and between which and the main channel was the embankment, which gave way before the increasing force of the flood. The gap in the embankment was about 50 feet long, 10 feet wide, and 20 feet deep, and over its whole extent the rails and sleepers were still suspended at the time when the train to which the accident happened arrived at the spot. The engine crossed the gap, but broke the rails, and was thrown off the line. The tender parted from the engine, but also got across the gap, coming to a standstill almost on the edge of it. The whole of the rest of the train fell in, and was smashed up, excepting the rear brake van, and, strange to say, about a half of the last third-class carriage, both of which remained upon the railway on the west side of the gap. The carriages which fell into the river had their wheels knocked off and their framework completely broken, and large pieces of them were carried away by the flood. Native passengers stated that the number of survivors whom they saw on the bridge after the accident was about forty. (This number is employed in the vernacular with a somewhat indefinite meaning, and might be taken to mean anything between forty and sixty.) This statement agrees tolerably with the numbers they gave of those who had escaped from the different carriages—viz., 25 men from the last third-class carriage, 16 from the next carriage, 5 women, and 3 second-class passengers—total, 49; and the conclusion which was come to upon this information was that from 15 to 20 third-class passengers must have been drowned.

From the same source we have received an abstract of the statement which has been made by the engine-driver (named Young), and from this it appears that the train arrived at the nullah at 3.10 A.M., and passed over the first bridge at the rate of about twenty miles an hour. On reaching the further end of the embankment the engine received three severe shocks, on the last of which the tender parted from the engine; but the night was so dark that the driver could not perceive the state of the ground or guess the cause of the accident. He shut off the steam, and jumped from the engine, falling on the right side and suffering some severe bruises. The fireman jumped before him, but unfortunately on the left side, and fell in the river. The native fireman stuck to the tender, and was severely hurt. The driver further states that he sent the guard on to Nimborah, and remained himself on the spot, where, with the assistance of about thirty passengers, who had escaped unhurt in the rear part of the train, he applied himself to the task of rescuing the others as far as was possible. In that way about nine persons were got out. Some of the carriages were so low in the water that no assistance could be rendered to the unfortunate persons who were in them, but as the water fell two natives were got out alive and two dead. Seventeen boxes of treasure and the greater part of the Khundwah mails were saved about the same time. (The whole of the mails were ultimately recovered.) The driver adds that in passing the scene of the accident on the up journey about nine o'clock on the previous night there was very little water in the nullah, and he did not notice anything wrong in the embankment.

The railway authorities have sent in a report to Government, which we expect will be placed at the disposal of the press; but we understand that it does not state any important fact which we have not already published in our accounts of the accident. The officials of the company appear to rely on the accuracy of the return they have caused to be prepared showing the number of passengers who had booked for the train. That number was fifty-two, and including ten railway officials we have as the total number sixty-two. The following appears to be the ascertained facts:—

The number dead (whether of persons drowned or killed, or who died whilst under medical treatment)	7
The number of bodies seen in the river but not recovered	2
The fireman and second guard, believed to have been drowned	2

This gives a total of 11 known to be dead. The number who escaped is somewhat uncertain, but it appears to have been about 40 (perhaps more), and—assuming this figure, and also the company's return as to the number of passengers to be correct—there would still be 11 persons to account for.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE AMALGAMATION OF THE BANKS.—Notwithstanding the determined partisanship with Bengal, maintained by the present directors of the Bank of Bombay, the ill-advised project for the amalgamation of the two banks has now been disposed of by the Bombay Government. Some correspondence between the directors and the Government has recently been published, which shows how very desirous, above all things, the board was to extort from the Government some expression of approval of their scheme and definite concessions in favour of it. A copy of the proposed terms of amalgamation was duly forwarded to the Government in May last, with the intimation that they had received the unanimous approval of the board, who were of opinion that these proposals offered greater advantages to the shareholders of the Bank of Bombay than the terms proposed for reconstruction. After the special general meeting of shareholders held on the 4th of June, a summary of proceedings was also forwarded, to which was tacked on the information that the board intended to carry out the amalgamation forthwith, and had called another meeting of shareholders for the 12th of August next, to pass the resolutions necessary to enable them to do so. It was also requested that his Excellency the Governor in Council would be pleased to state at his earliest convenience whether the proposed terms met with the approval of Government or whether any modifications were considered desirable. To these urgent representations a reply was received, dated July 1, which showed that they had calculated without their host, when they took for granted that Government would follow wherever they chose to lead. It was stated in this reply that Government could enter into no engagement until it was ascertained that the reconstruction scheme was definitely abandoned, and, looking to the result of the meeting of the 4th of June, it was considered premature to give a guarantee to meet any advance made by the Bank of Bengal. The concession by Government of certain privileges, the obtaining of which the directors admit is absolutely essential to the carrying out of their scheme, is also represented as most improbable, "as it by no means follows that it would be thought expedient to extend to an amalgamated bank concessions which might be necessary in the case of the reconstruction of the existing bank." In other words, Government is very much more favourable to the proposal for a new Bank of Bombay than to the scheme for amalgamation, which latter the virtual refusal of the essential concessions renders simply impracticable. And considering how much has already been effected by the committee appointed in favour of reconstruction, and that, too, in the face of the most determined opposition on the part of the directors, the reconstruction of the bank should now be an easy matter. Government has shown itself willing to do its share, and with the cordial co-operation of the directors—co-operation which they can now have no excuse for withholding—a new bank can be established, free from the burden of the enormous losses of the past, as well as from the domination and interference of Calcutta.—Times of India.

AN OFFICER ATTACKED ON PARADE BY A NATIVE TROOPER.—A murderous attack was made on Sunday morning last at Deesa by a trooper belonging to the 1st Light Cavalry on Captain Stevens, attached to that regiment. From the information we have received of the affair, it appears that the men were on morning parade, when the scoundrel rushed out from the ranks and delivered a sabre cut on the head of his officer before the latter was aware of his approach. Providentially the sword in descending first struck the button in the centre of Captain Stevens's cap, thus altering the direction of the cut, which merely produced a wound on the scalp. Had it not been for this circumstance, there is no doubt that the brain would have been cut into. We are glad to report, for the credit of the regiment, that before the miscreant had time to deal a second blow he was cut down by five or six men of the regiment, who promptly rushed forward on seeing their officer attacked. The assassin on being carried to the hospital and there interrogated as to his motive for making this attack on his officer, merely replied, "That it was his fate; the sahib had given him gali." The wound on Captain Stevens's head is not likely to prove fatal, but the wounds on the trooper's head are of such a nature as to render it extremely probable that he will not survive many days. We hear that the scoundrel has always borne a bad character in the corps, and on one occasion made a display of his ferocious nature by relieving his better half of her nose.—Bombay Gazette, June 29.

THE TRIALS OF THE UNHAPPY SPECULATORS OF BOMBAY have now, we hope, reached their last stage, but the present affliction promises to be one of the most trying—unless it be that people grow hardened even to misfortune. The days of allotments, the days of premiums, the days even of discounts, are gone, and now is the day of liquidations. Since the termination of the summer vacation the ordinary business of the High Court has had to a great extent to give way before the influx of official liquidations, which have been taking up a great portion of the time of two of the judges, Sir Joseph Arnould and Mr. Justice Westropp. The Eastern Financial Association, the Bombay Joint-Stock Corporation, the Mercantile Credit and Financial Association, and a number of small fry, have all been occupying the attention of the Court and the public within that short period of time. With regard to the Eastern Financial, the contributors, after much show of opposition and a long series of adjournments, have at last consented in a body to their names being retained on the list as drawn up by the liquidators,—in consideration of the terms of a compromise by which two of the old directors—Cassumbhoy Dhurumsey and Kesowjee Naik—will pay down a heavy sum towards meeting the liabilities of the company, and the contributors will not be asked to give more than Rs. 30 per share. The creditors, under this arrangement, are to get six annas in the rupee. The bank of Hindustan, a creditor for more than five lakhs of rupees, put in a decided dissent, but the Court considered the compromise a desirable one, and therefore sanctioned it, directing that it should apply to all creditors, whether they had signified an acceptance of the terms or not. The matter of the Joint-Stock Corporation—a very large concern once, and great even in its insolvency—has come before the Court in a very complicated form, but the chief part of the work of settling the list of contributories has been got through, though an important question yet remains as to the legality of the second issue of shares. The conduct of the directors of this company was the subject of special inquiry for some time, but the charges brought against them have now been withdrawn. The settlement of the list of contributories of the Mercantile Credit and Financial Association has brought to light a strange state of affairs. It appears that out of a total issue of about 21,000 shares, no less than 5,500 were appropriated by the directors themselves, but 4,000 of these were slyly enough put in the names of native employes, men of no means, who got little allotments to themselves for lending their names to the directors, but who now find they have had the worst of the bargain, for though they never had the shares in their own possession, they are held to be liable upon them to the full extent—the Court considering that as they assisted in playing a deception upon the public they must suffer the consequences. This case was also interesting in a legal point of view. There were 7,000 shares, it appeared, which had been purchased by the company itself from the original allottees, but as no transfers had been effected in the company's books the names of the original allottees were set down by the liquidator in the list of contributories. The Court, however, considers the company to have been estopped by its own act from regarding the original allottees as liable in respect of these shares, and has therefore directed that the names of the latter should be struck out and that of the company substituted. An inquiry is to be made at the instance of the official liquidator in regard to the conduct of the directors of this company—with the object of extracting some money from them if possible, for the purpose of assisting in meeting the company's liabilities.—Bombay Gazette.

CABUL AND CENTRAL ASIA.—The last Cabul letter brings down Afghanistan news to the 19th June. The rival Ameers and their respective generals are still preparing for a great trial of strength, which cannot be delayed much longer, if, indeed, it has not already taken place. Afzul Khan, the Cabul Ameer, realises the precariousness of his position, and seems convinced that he is making his last throw for power. He has repeatedly urged his brother, Azim Khan, who was posted in Candahar with 12,000 men, to hasten to Cabul, and his latest complaint to his Sardars is that that prince cannot sufficiently perceive the fact that he, the Ameer Afzul Khan, stakes his all upon the result of the coming battle. However, Azim Khan has responded to his brother's entreaties by sending on 6,000 of his men to Cabul and preparing to follow them himself. It is possible that the old antipathy and jealousy between Azim Khan and the Ameer Afzul Khan's son and general, Abdoorrahman, may break out in the face of the terrible struggle that will either win half a kingdom or lose it. If the presence of the Ameer Afzul Khan can keep down the ambitious rivalry which makes his brother and son desire each for himself to occupy the foremost place in his councils, he may fight a tough battle so long as the few lacs of rupees he has borrowed from his friends and screwed out of the Cabul merchants last. A report was current in Cabul that the Russians have embraced the cause of Ameer Shere Aly, and that a Russian force was marching against Cabul. The Ameers Azim and Afzul Khan brought this circumstance to the notice of the British Government, and asked for assistance. The Viceroy, we understand, in reply has informed the Cabul rulers that the Russians are great friends to the British, and will not molest those who are in friendly relation with England.

SEVERE STORM AT KHANDEISH.—There has been a most violent and destructive storm of wind and rain at Khandeish. At several places along the line of railway the footprints of the tempest are plainly visible; but at Julgaum, where its first fury seems to have been spent, the damage to property is very serious indeed.

GAME IN INDIA.—In the Central Provinces alone during the past year and a half 194 tigers and cubs have been killed, besides a large number of other "high game."—Bombay Gazette.

OFFICIATING SERVICES.—MEDICAL.

June 26.—No. 657.—With reference to G.G.O. No. 456, dated May 5, 1865, the following letter from the Right Hon. the Secretary of State for India is published for general information:—

Military.—No. 144.

India-office, London, May 24, 1867.

To H.E. the Right Hon. the Governor General of India in Council.

Sir,—Para. 1. In your military letters, dated 8th and 23rd March last, Nos. 47 and 72, you submit for decision a question which you state has arisen with advertence to the order which allows officiating service "on full pay in the rank of deputy inspector general of hospitals" to reckon towards the additional pension granted to an officer of that rank after five years' service therein, including only six months on medical certificate, whether the period of five years to which the tenure of that appointment, as well as that of inspector general of hospitals, is restricted, should be inclusive or exclusive of such officiating service.

2. It appears to me that, if officiating service on full salary of appointment is to count towards the additional pension, it must necessarily count likewise as part of the five years' tenure of the appointment both of inspector and deputy inspector general of hospitals. The term of five years to which the appointment is limited should, I think, be regulated as follows:—

It should include any period during which an officer may have acted as inspector or deputy inspector on full allowances before his permanent appointment. On his permanent appointment his tenure would be held to expire at the end of five years, including the period of such officiating service, whether after his permanent appointment he may have taken leave of absence or not.

3. A deputy inspector general of hospitals, who may, under these circumstances, fail to complete the required service for the additional pension of £250 a-year, may, if he shall subsequently be appointed inspector general, and shall not serve long enough in that grade to entitle him to the pension of £350 a-year, reckon his service as inspector general in addition to that as deputy inspector general, towards the period required for the additional pension of the latter grade.—I have, &c.,

(Signed) STAFFORD H. NORTHCOTE.

EXAMINATIONS IN VERNACULAR.

No. 249.—With reference to the General Orders No. 126, March 27, 1866; No. 146, April 10, 1866; No. 228, June 12, 1866; and No. 159, April 12, 1866, the Governor in Council is pleased to notify that the Govt. of India have sanctioned the following rules in modification of existing orders on the subject:—

I. A reward of Rs. 180 will be allowed to officers passing the elementary test in either of the second languages.

This rule is subject to modification hereafter, when circumstances may render it no longer necessary or desirable to grant to the officers of the Madras army a higher pecuniary reward for passing the full examination in the second standard than is given to officers of the other presidencies.

II. The full pecuniary reward of Rs. 360 will be given to officers passing the H.S. examination in Hindustani only.

III. Officers who have already passed, or who may pass the H.S. examination in Hindustani only, will be allowed to hold an appointment and to draw staff salary for twelve months, reckoned from May 29, 1867, within which they will be required to qualify in the second language.

IV. At the expiration of the period above mentioned—May 29, 1868—no officer unqualified under the examination rules in force prior to Feb. 1, 1865, will either be appointed or be allowed to retain a paid staff appointment, who has not fulfilled the requirements of the higher or second standard, by having passed in Hindustani and Hindi, or in some other language in lieu of Hindi.

V. In cases where the formation of a committee for examination in any second vernacular is certified to be impracticable, officers proceeding for the first time will be allowed their travelling expenses to and from the nearest station at which it is found possible to assemble a committee. The grant of this indulgence is however to cease on May 29, 1868.

VI. An officer, who having passed the H.S. in Hindustani may select and pass in another language in lieu of Hindi, will be considered to have fulfilled the requirements of the higher standard, and be eligible for staff employment in any part of India.

Rules I., V., and VI. will have retrospective effect from Feb. 1, 1865.

COMMISSIONS DISCONTINUED.

Fort St. George, June 13.—Under instructions from the Horse Guards, it is notified that the practice of issuing commissions to regimental officers of H.M.'s British army serving in India, who are granted local rank in that country, will be discontinued; and that the authority for such rank will henceforth be the publication thereof in G.O. by the C. in C. in India.

Officers of the British army desirous of being gazetted to local rank in India, under the provisions of G.G.O. No. 632 of Aug. 4, 1864, should in future forward to the military sec. applications, and attach a statement of their services.—(War-office Form, 360).

HOME.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—JULY 29.

THE INDIAN BUDGET.

Mr. WALDEGRAVE-LESLIE asked the Secretary of State for India on what day he would be able to give his financial statement on the Indian revenues and expenditure.

Sir S. NORTHCOTE said that much depended on the state of business, but he hoped that day week.

DISMISSED OFFICERS OF THE INDIAN ARMY.

Mr. OTWAY asked whether the sums to be granted to certain officers dismissed from the Indian army were sums to be paid to them annually, or whether they were gross sums to be paid down.

Sir S. NORTHCOTE said they would be annual payments.

THE INDIA OFFICE BALL.

Mr. OTWAY asked whether there was any limit to the sums of money which the Secretary of State for India in Council might expend in this country without obtaining the sanction of Parliament; and if the balance in the home treasury should be insufficient to meet any exceptional expenditure, whether there was any limit to the sum for which he might draw on the revenues of India. The hon. member said he would make no further reference to the recent entertainment given to the Sultan than to say that it was a most magnificent affair, and that it reflected the greatest credit upon all concerned in its organisation. With regard to its policy he would only remark that the right hon. gentleman (Sir Stafford Northcote) seemed to have been under a misapprehension in supposing that the account of so splendid a compliment being paid to the chief of the Mahomedan religion would be likely to have a good effect in India. The fact was the whole of the native press was in the hands of Hindoos; and the right hon. gentleman might judge of the real effect which would be likely to be caused by it when treated, as it would be sure to be treated, by Hindoo editors. He would only add further, that if it was desirable to give the entertainment at all, it would have been better to invite those who were more especially identified with the interests of India. But, passing by those matters, it seemed to him that the affair raised an important constitutional question. If the Secretary of State for India had power to spend £20,000 or £50,000 in this manner without asking the consent of Parliament, he possessed a power which was given to the head of no other department whatever; and it was a power capable of being abused to any extent. It appeared that the right hon. gentleman had also the power to confer considerable pensions on persons who had been guilty of improper conduct in the military service. If the Commander-in-Chief got himself into bad odour in consequence of any of his acts, he had the power of "making things square" by conferring considerable sums by way of hush money. Of that they had recently had a very flagrant instance in the case of Capt. Jervis. He had to thank the right hon. gentleman for a very curious return of grants of this description—a return which no member could read in connection with the return of the royal bounty without a blush. For instance, he found in the latter such an entry as the following:—"Mr. Henry John Doogood, in consideration of having for many years been engaged in literary pursuits, and as a Parliamentary reporter, and of being now blind and paralysed, £40 a-year." The corresponding entry in the other return was that of a lieutenant, who, having been drunk and cashiered, was awarded £60 a-year—(hear, hear). The next case to Mr. Doogood was that of "Mr. George Thomas Thompson, in consideration of his services in connection with periodical literature, and of being now afflicted with blindness, £40—the corresponding case in the other list being that of a major, who, for abusing his authority, had been dismissed with £292 a-year. He (Mr. Otway) was informed by a gallant officer, who, from the circumstance of time and place, felt certain that he was the person referred to, that he had been wrongly inserted in the list. He was stated to have been dismissed for "inefficiency;" whereas he was now claiming a court-martial, and he had indignantly refused the pension. His statement was that having taken his brother-in-law, who was of native descent, to the mess, he was desired to resign. At first he had refused, but had at length been induced to do so under protest. He now found himself stated to be receiving £50 a year, and he objected to being mixed up with fraudulent and drunken men—(hear).

Colonel SYKES altogether approved of the ball. We had 15 millions of Mahomedan subjects, the greater part of whom were of the sect to which the Sultan belonged, and who could not therefore but be gratified by the compliment paid to one that was, as it were, the Pope of their religion. As to the cost of the ball, the Secretary of State had no power to spend a shilling on it, all questions relating to finance being absolutely under the control of the council, which consisted of fifteen members—(hear).

Sir S. NORTHCOTE said the gallant gentleman had correctly answered the question of the hon. member. There was no limit to the power of the Indian Council; that was, it had a right to draw upon the whole revenues of India for any sums that might be needed for the public service in India. As to the grants referred to by the hon. member, they had been made as compassionate allowances to avoid the scandal of officers being dismissed, and being left absolutely destitute. The system had been a great many years in operation, and there was this to be said for it—it greatly facilitated the getting rid of persons whom it was not for the public interest that they should be continued in office. At the same time there was no doubt a great deal to be said against it; but it would be more convenient to take a discussion upon the matter when the hon. member (Mr. Ayrton) brought forward the motion of which he had given notice—(hear).

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—Aug. 1.

BANDA AND KIRWEE PRIZE MONEY.

Colonel NORTH asked the Secretary of State for India when the correspondence relative to the property of Narram Rao, the rebel chief of Kirwee, would be laid upon the table of the House; whether the amount of Rs. 523,253 4 6, deducted by the Government of India from the Banda and Kirwee Prize Money for lost revenue, with interest to the date of distributions, would be issued as a further grant to the troops; and whether the Government of India had taken any further funds which belonged to the rebel chiefs of Kirwee, and which might be claimable by her Majesty's prerogative as a droit of war.

Sir S. NORTHCOTE said that if the hon. member moved for the correspondence it would be produced. The subject of the rupees mentioned had been referred to the law officers of the Crown, who decided that it ought to be considered part of the prize money, and that decision had been communicated to the Indian Government. He was not aware of any other funds which could be claimed as prize money on the occasion in question.

POSTAL COMMUNICATION WITH THE EAST.

The House then went into committee of supply, and on the vote for £520,428, the amount required to complete the sum wanted for the Post-office packet service,

Mr. CRAWFORD called attention to that part of the report of the select committee of 1866 on East India communication which refers to the postal service with India, China, and Australia, and to the Treasury minute of the 4th

September on the subject. One of the recommendations was that tenders should be invited for a weekly service, and that that service should be to Bombay alone, the service to the other portions of India to be omitted, and that the service from Suez to Bombay should be an express service. A Treasury minute was made on the 4th September, which stated that the difference between the amount received for the postage and the amount paid for the conveyance of the mails was £160,000; but the fact was that the loss, so far as India was concerned, was only £48,000. The contract with the Peninsular and Oriental Company expires on the 1st of February next, and the Secretary of the Treasury had intimated that forms of tender had been sent to the Messageries Impériales, and it was to be presumed, therefore, that if that company made a lower tender they would have the contract. He submitted that this was against public policy, and, besides, it was unfair. The Peninsular and Oriental Company received a subsidy of 4s. 6d. a mile; the Messageries Impériales a subsidy of 20s., and, in fact, the latter company was supported by the French Government.

Mr. HUNT justified the Government in endeavouring to make the most economical arrangements for the carrying of the mails, and submitted that they ought not to exclude either a French or any other company. They had been entering into arrangements with the French Government, which might result in their mutual advantage, and when those were concluded they would be able to come to a decision.

Mr. CHILDERS agreed with Mr. Crawford that it would be very inexpedient to make a contract with a foreign company, and especially with one which had a contract with its own Government.

Mr. LAING considered that nothing would cause so great a loss of our prestige in the East as the disappearance of our mail packets in the East and the employment of French vessels.

After some further discussion, in the course of which Mr. GLADSTONE and Mr. AYRTON pointed out that by the resolution of the House no binding contract could be entered into by the Government without its being subject to the approval of the House, the vote was agreed to.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—AUGUST 2.

BANDA AND KIRWEE PRIZE MONEY.

Mr. DENMAN asked the Secretary of State for India when the distribution of the Banda and Kirwee booty was likely to be completed, and how much of it had been already distributed, and which portions of the forces entitled had received their share.

Sir S. NORTHCOTE said that the warrants for the payment of the money were expected from India every day. He could not say how much had been already distributed.

THE FAMINE IN ORISSA.

On the order for supply,

Mr. H. SEYMOUR directed attention to the great mortality occasioned by the famine in Orissa last year, and, in doing so, contended that the blame for the terrible loss of life which took place on the occasion rested upon Sir Cecil Beadon, the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, who had failed to discharge the duties of his high position, and when he ought to have carried out certain measures to avert the calamity, permitted the Revenue Board to step in with their theories of political economy and prevent him. The hon. member also moved for the production of the papers relating to the subject.

Mr. SMOLLETT declared that such a calamity as the loss of 700,000 lives by famine, mainly through neglect, had not been known for 1,800 years. In his view it was a great crime, and the question was with whom the responsibility lay. Sir Cecil Beadon was primarily responsible for the government of the province to the Governor-general of India, who had condoned the laches on the part of Sir Cecil. For during the whole period Sir John Lawrence was up at Simla, where he knew no more of what was passing around his capital than if he had been in California, and never moved from his apathetic indifference until he had received pressing orders from home. Not only, then, was Sir Cecil Beadon responsible, but the Governor General also, and the House would not do its duty if it did not take some serious notice of the disaster.

Mr. H. BRUCE spoke warmly in defence of his relative and friend, Sir C. Beadon, whom he eulogised for his ability and humanity, and who now, after thirty-two years' service, was returning to his native country with shattered health and reputation assailed.

Lord W. HAY imputed the chief blame for the fearful events which had culminated in the depopulation of Orissa to Sir Cecil Beadon, who, he maintained, was both mentally and physically incompetent. It was deplorable to think that his maladministration and that of his superiors should have entailed such direful results upon an entire province.

Sir J. FERGUSON admitted with sorrow that he was unable to make out a complete defence of those whose conduct in this matter had been impugned. But the capacity and humanity both of Sir J. Lawrence and Sir C. Beadon were too widely known and generally acknowledged to be damaged even by the heavy charges brought against them on this occasion, and that the blame chiefly rested with subordinates upon whom they had too implicitly relied.

Mr. STANSFELD hoped the Government would accede to the motion, and consent to the production of the papers asked for. The perusal of those already published had inspired him with a very low estimate of the administrative capacity of those who, in view of a great national calamity, had indulged in commonplace theories of political economy to check action which might have saved thousands of lives whose sacrifice now lay heavy at their doors.

Lord CRANBORNE strongly deprecated any attempt to divert from individuals the responsibility which properly belonged to them, and shift the blame to a system. There was no doubt that the revenue board were as devoted to the worship of political economy as was the African to his god. They made it their Fetish. But the real question was whether sufficient warning had been given to Sir Cecil Beadon of the imminence of the impending danger. And he held that it had, from various sources, including collectors of revenue and the police. The warnings that the Lieutenant-Governor thus received could have left him in no doubt as to the destitution which prevailed, and he must have known that unless supplies were provided for the people before the winter came on the country would be inaccessible, and frightful starvation must ensue. He had heard that it was intended by the Government to furnish the Lieutenant-Governor hereafter with a Council; but he trusted that that was not the case. If we would have our officials in India regard the lives of our fellow-subjects there with the same sympathy and zealous, quick affection with which we should regard our fellow-subjects here, we must give the tone and set the example. We must ourselves zealously and jealously watch their conduct. And until we showed a thorough earnestness in this matter we could not divest ourselves of all blame if we found that officials in India treated with coldness and indifference such a terrible calamity as that of Orissa.

Sir S. NORTHCOTE said he had no objection to produce the papers required. The right hon. baronet then, after vindicating the language of his despatch, proceeded to defend Sir J. Lawrence from the attack of Mr. Smollett. No blame whatever, he argued, could be thrown upon the Governor-General; and all that could be said of him was that, if he had acted more vigorously upon the representations he received at an early period, and had insisted on setting aside other business and looking into the matter himself, it might have been a happy thing; but whilst he said this Sir J. Lawrence could not be blamed for not doing it. What was true of Sir John was also true, though in a lesser respect, of Sir Cecil Beadon. It was not proposed to give the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal a council, and all he had stated was that as that officer had to administer a large presidency, and, unlike the other governors, was unprovided with a council or an equal secretariat, a great deal of labour devolved upon him, in performing which it was desirable that he should have some efficient assistance.

The motion was then withdrawn.

THE FAMINE IN INDIA.

Sir Stafford Northcote's despatch to the Governor-general of India in Council, relating to the Bengal and Orissa famine, was printed on Thursday. It is dated the 25th July. The Secretary of State enters into an elaborate review of the circumstances attending that heavy calamity, and observes:—

I am reluctantly brought to the conclusion that, though the melancholy loss of life which the Commissioners report may be due mainly to natural and inevitable causes, there has been a most unfortunate want of foresight and of energy on the part of those who were charged with the administration of the province where it occurred, and that some grave errors of judgment have been committed.

It is clear that Government interference with the supply of food would, in ordinary years, be not only unnecessary but mischievous; and I think the authorities in Bengal were, in the first instance, quite right in regarding proposals for such interference with distrust. I think, however, that a sufficient amount of attention to the facts, as they were gradually brought to light, would have shown them, at a comparatively early period that this was a case in which it was their duty to take such measures as were in their power for the mitigation of suffering which had become inevitable. They saw the necessity for providing the people with the means of obtaining food. I regret that they failed to discover that what was needed was not money to purchase with, but the food itself.

It appears to me, after an examination of the report, and of the evidence on which it is founded, that it would not be just to throw the blame of the failure, which is but too clearly brought to light, exclusively upon any particular individual. The prominent position of the Lieutenant-governor of Bengal, and his immediate and direct responsibility for the proper administration of his presidency, cannot fail to attract the closest attention to his conduct, and to expose him to the strictest criticism, and, I am bound to add, to some animadversions, the justice of which cannot be disputed. But it would be wrong to judge Sir Cecil Beadon by the light of subsequent events, without taking into consideration the circumstances in which he found himself placed, and the amount of assistance which he received from those on whom he had a right to rely for information and advice. His conduct, when he at last became fully alive to the magnitude of the calamity, affords sufficient proof that his previous inactivity was due not to indifference, but to an imperfect apprehension of the facts of the case; and it is fair to inquire how far that imperfection is attributable to his own failure in energy or in sagacity, and how far to the nature of the reports which he received from others.

It is not to be wondered at that, in the early period of the famine at all events, Sir Cecil Beadon should have placed implicit reliance upon the watchfulness and the sagacity of the Board of Revenue. I cannot but regret, however, that he should have continued that confidence so long. The course of events in the winter of 1865-66 must have led him to perceive the necessity for a more active personal investigation of the true state of the case. Indeed, the fact that he found it necessary to visit Orissa proves that it had done so. But even then, as far as I can judge, he seems to have been under the influence of the views which he had imbibed from the Board, and he did not take the opportunity of making a thorough investigation, such as would, I think, quickly have convinced him of the urgent need for more efficient measures of relief. While expressing my regret at this error on the part of the Lieutenant Governor of Bengal, I cannot but say that I think it unfortunate that the Government of India, although their attention appears to have been especially called to the subject, did not exercise their influence in favour of a more vigorous course of action.

It was taken for granted that there was a sufficient quantity of food either in the province or within reach of the people, which would be brought out in due time when prices had risen to a certain point; and it was argued that the interference of the Government with the regular action of the laws of supply and demand would be not only useless, but mischievous. The argument would have been just if the assumption on which it rested had been true. But, unhappily, the assumption was not true, and the reasoning founded on it was consequently fallacious. Nor did the mischief stop there. It cannot be doubted that the avowed belief of the Government in the existence of adequate stores of rice must have encouraged a like belief on the part of the people of Orissa themselves, and on that of the merchants who might otherwise have been expected to undertake the importation which was needed. Had the Government, as soon as their attention was called to the subject, instituted a strict inquiry into the actual condition of the district, and made public the result, there can be little doubt that supplies would speedily have been sent there, or that, if private enterprise had failed to provide them, the Government would have seen their way to supplement it by their own action. But this was not done; and it must be asked why it was not done. The responsibility for the omission appears to me to rest chiefly upon the Board of Revenue. The report of November 25, 1865, was written in reply to a reference made to the Board of Revenue by the Lieut.-governor, in consequence of the intelligence which had reached him, and more especially in consequence of the alarming accounts which he had received from Mr. Ravenshaw, the Officiating Commissioner of Cuttack. I cannot but regret that neither the Government of Bengal nor that of India should have taken notice of the inadequacy of the information contained in the report to which I have referred. The Government of Bengal were, I think, hardly justified in describing information of this character as a "very complete report on the present state and prospects of the crops in the Lower Provinces of Bengal."

A similar want of perception of the importance of accurate information is observable in other matters. The suggestion that prices current should be regularly published would have been an excellent one, if it had been ascertained that their correctness could be secured. As steps were not taken to ensure this, their publication was not merely useless, but had a tendency to become mischievous.

I do not think it necessary to follow in detail the narrative contained in the report of the Commissioners, or to express my opinion upon every point which they have raised. It would be easy to comment upon many of the incidents to which they have drawn attention, such as the reprimand conveyed by the Board of Revenue to Mr. Ravenshaw (January 10th), for having given instructions to Mr. Barlow to investigate some of the claims of the semindars to remission of revenue,—the refusal to allow the wages of the labourers on the public works to be paid in grain,—the confusion of responsibility between the officers of the Public Works Department and the civil authorities—the unfortunate answer given to Mr. Ravenshaw's telegram of January 31, requesting permission to import rice, and the extraordinary hesitation of the board to import rice, even at so late a date as the 22nd of May, when specially invited to do so by the Government of Bengal; but these are, in fact, only illustrations of the tenacity with which the Board of Revenue clung to the view which they had originally adopted.

I must now advert to the visit of the Lieutenant-governor to Orissa in February, 1866. That visit, which should have inaugurated the commencement of a more vigorous and effective system of action, only served to check the hopes that such a system would be adopted. It becomes necessary, therefore, to inquire whether the imperfections of Sir C. Beadon's personal investigation are to be attributed to his own fault, or to the faults of others. It appears to me, after careful consideration, that they are to be attributed partly to the one and partly to the other. Undoubtedly he had been misled by the representations which had reached him through the Board of Revenue, and had come with preconceived views, which he could not readily lay aside. Undoubtedly the information tendered to him, and the opinions advanced by the local officers with whom he came in contact during his visit, fell very short of the truth, and were calculated rather to confirm than to dispel his error. Undoubtedly, too, those who accompanied him, and who ought to have been peculiarly well qualified to form a judgment—I refer to Mr. Cockburn and Colonel Nicholls—shared his belief that matters were in a much better state than unfortunately they really were. Still, after making allowance for all these considerations, I am obliged to say that Sir C. Beadon did not, upon this occasion, show the energy or the sagacity which might have been expected from an officer of such high distinction and such well-deserved reputation.

I shall reserve for a separate letter the consideration of many questions which arise out of this important report. The suggestions which the Commissioners make for the development of the resources of the country, and for the prevention of similar calamities in future, will have my most serious attention. I shall also take into consideration the question whether any alterations are desirable in the organisation of the Government of Bengal, or in the constitution of the Board of Revenue, with a view to a better concentration of responsibility, and to greater vigour of action. These are points upon which I shall request the advice and co-operation of your Government.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE TELEGRAPH TO INDIA.—A short time ago we gave a short sketch of the project of the recently established Anglo-Indian Company, formed for the purpose of improving the telegraphic communication between England and the East. It appears that another scheme with a similar purpose is being promoted by another association, which has its directors in London and Berlin. The new company propose to lay a cable between the English and Prussian coasts, across the Channel, joining which would be an overhead line passing through Russia and Prussia to the Black Sea. Across the Black Sea a new deep sea cable, 280 miles in length, would be laid between the Crimea and the Circassian coast, which would ultimately join the existing lines through Persia and along the Persian Gulf to Kurra-chee and Bombay. With regard to the cost of construction, the new scheme seems to possess an advantage over that projected by the promoters of the Anglo-Indian Company. The line through Prussia and Russia would consist almost exclusively of overhead lines, whereas the lines to be constructed by the Anglo-Indian Company will consist of deep sea cables. With regard to cost of maintenance, however, the new scheme does not show so favourably, for that of overhead lines through Russia, where ice collects on the wires and breaks them down, would be very considerable. With regard to the probable ultimate employment of the lines, so far as through traffic between England and India is concerned, there appears no reason why both schemes should not be carried out; and the public are particularly interested in the establishment of both, for not only would the effect of competition stimulate both companies to offer the greatest possible convenience to the public, but it would also tend to keep the rates considerably below what they would be likely to be under a monopoly. The value of the respective lines in a commercial point of view being, in times of peace, probably nearly equal, there can be no hesitation in saying that politically the Anglo-Indian Company has overwhelming advantages. If a war with Russia occurred the telegraph through that country would be useless to us, while by means of the Anglo-Indian lines we could telegraph to every important station on the route from India to England. It is by all means to be desired, however, that both schemes should be carried out, for their establishment will conduce largely to the interests of peace, as well as to facilitate the carrying on of the commerce of the world.—Times, Aug. 1.

THE BANK OF HINDUSTAN, CHINA, AND JAPAN.—On Friday last a meeting of the shareholders of this bank, which is at present in liquidation, was held at the London Tavern, Bishopsgate-street, for the purpose of receiving the report of the liquidators—Mr. Alderman Allen, Captain J. R. Engledue, Mr. George Macnair, and Mr. David Chadwick. Mr. Alderman Allen presided. The report of the liquidators stated that the total liabilities of the bank on June 30, 1866, were £5,753,131. 9s. 6d., while on November 15, 1866, when the bank stopped payment, the total liabilities were £1,409,458. The liquidators had examined all the items of which the present assets were composed, and after the most careful consideration they valued the total now to be collected (amounting to £1,596,004. 10s.) to be worth, exclusive of interest, £595,264, while the ascertained liabilities of the bank, exclusive of interest and liquidation expenses, were £572,127, thus leaving an estimated balance of assets over liabilities of £23,157; the arrears of calls amounted to £63,000, of which it was estimated about £15,529 might be collected. The principal losses sustained by the bank had been incurred through the branches at Bombay and Calcutta. On the motion for the adoption of the report, Mr. Kintrea, while he reposed the greatest confidence in the liquidators, considered that they had been somewhat spare in their information to the shareholders. Why did they not state who were the chief delinquents? He also expressed a hope that no further calls would be necessary. In reply to some other questions, the Chairman stated that their losses sustained by the Bank of Bombay had been £600,000; at Calcutta, £160,000; at China, £150,000; and in England, £128,300—in all, £1,038,300. Their total liabilities at the present time were £444,500. The report was adopted, and a vote of thanks to the chairman terminated the proceedings.

THE ABYSSINIAN CAPTIVES.—The Owl understands that, although Sir William Coghlan's plan for operations to be undertaken with a view to effecting the liberation of the prisoners in Abyssinia has been adopted by the Government, the command of the expedition will probably be entrusted either to Sir William Staveley, now commanding a brigade at Poona, or to Colonel Merewether, the political agent, at Aden.—We (John Bull) understand that at the meeting of the India Council held to-day (Saturday) an important despatch by Sir Stafford Northcote will be adopted and forwarded to India by this (Saturday) night's mail. A letter has recently been received from Mr. Pridaux, one of the captives, whose father is in the India-office, stating that he and his fellow prisoners would rather that an expedition was sent out, even at the risk of King Theodore executing them, as the suspense is so trying. Of the many articles despatched for this gentleman's comfort, hardly any have reached him.

MILITARY AND CIVIL ADMINISTRATION IN THE RUSSIAN PROVINCES BORDERING CHINA AND CENTRAL ASIA.—(ST. PETERSBURG, July 29.)—An Imperial ukase has just been issued altering the military and civil administration in the Russian Provinces bordering China and Central Asia, bringing them under the same general government established for the lately erected provinces of Turkestan, and giving them the same organisation as a military district. The military and civil administration is declared indivisible, and the domestic government is to be administered by natives chosen from among the people. Adjutant-general Kaufmann has been appointed Governor-general of Turkestan.

DESPATCH OF THE BOMBAY MAIL.—(SOUTHAMPTON, July 27.)—The Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamship Tanjore, Captain Brooks, sailed hence this afternoon, with mails for Gibraltar, the Mediterranean, Egypt, Aden, and Bombay. She took out thirty-six passengers and a full cargo, including, for Bombay, emeralds, jewellery, &c., £1,235. 10s.

INDIAN CIVIL SERVICE.—The Civil Service Commissioners have determined not to award the prize of £100 offered for proficiency in law in the special examination of the selected candidates of 1865. This determination, which results from the report of the examiners that a sufficiently high standard of merit was not attained, is causing great dissatisfaction among the candidates, who worked very hard for the examination, and exhibited a creditable knowledge of legal principles, considering that they had no regular course of legal study prescribed to them. Although none of them are considered qualified for the prize, the majority of them will be deemed competent to fill magisterial offices in India.

ARRIVAL OF THE HEAVY BOMBAY MAIL.—(SOUTHAMPTON, July 28.)—The Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company's steamship Eurine, Captain Stewart, with the heavy portion of the above mail, has arrived. She brings thirty-nine passengers; specie, £47. 8s. 10d.; precious stones, value 460,709 rupees; pearls, 3,500 rupees; 2,000 sacks of wheat; and eighty-three packages of sundries. The Eurine experienced fine weather during the passage. On the 22nd she spoke the steamship Smyrna, steering for the Straits; off Cape St. Mary's, the steamship Una, and on the 28th, standing to westward, her Majesty's ship Prince Albert.

ARRIVAL OF THE HEAVY INDIA AND CHINA MAILS.—(SOUTHAMPTON, Aug. 2.)—The Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamship Columbian, Captain Kellock, with the heavy portion of the above mails, has arrived. She brings 120 passengers, specie £3,108, and a general cargo, including 1,812 bales of raw silk, value £144,000 sterling. The Columbian experienced fine weather throughout her passage. On the 28th ult., 40 miles S.W. of Cadiz, she spoke the ship Launceston, of Newcastle, which wished to be reported.

DEPARTURE OF THE CALCUTTA AND CHINA MAILS.—(SOUTHAMPTON, Aug. 4.)—The Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamship Eurine, Captain Roskell, sailed hence this morning with mails for Gibraltar, the Mediterranean, Egypt, Aden, Ceylon, Calcutta, and China. She took out sixty-four passengers, and on freight a general cargo, including dollars £5,506; gold coin, £1,095; gold thread, £1,740; pearls, £200; silver cup, £90; and watches, jewellery, &c., £828.

INDIAN BRANCH RAILWAY COMPANY.—The contract with the Secretary of State for India in Council, securing to the Indian Branch Railway Company a 5 per cent. guarantee of interest on a capital of £4,000,000 for lines of railway in Oude and Rohilkund, was duly executed on the 2nd inst.

CAPITAL OF THE DELHI RAILWAY.—We are requested to state that since the 29th July last the sum of £154,862 has been paid to the Bank of England to the credit of the Secretary of State for India on account of the capital of the Delhi Railway.

ASIATIC BANKING CORPORATION.—A call of £10 per share has been made in the matter of the Asiatic Banking Corporation, now in liquidation, payable next month.

ARRIVAL OF TROOPS FROM INDIA.—(PORTSMOUTH, July 30.)—The Cowasjee Jehangeer, with invalids and time-expired men, from Bombay on the 19th of February, arrived at Spithead yesterday afternoon.

APPOINTMENTS.—(India Office, Aug. 1.)—The Queen has been pleased to appoint Robert Spankie, Esq., of the Bengal Civil Service, to be a Judge of the High Court of the North-Western Provinces.

DEATH OF DR. MACINTIRE.—A correspondent at Peshawur, to whom we are frequently indebted for interesting communications from that place, dwells upon the loss the community have suffered in the lamented death of Dr. Macintire. The following from another correspondent is on the same painful subject. The feeling terms in which his loss is deplored, a grateful tribute to his memory, will be perhaps a source of some consolation to his sorrowing friends:—"Cholera still clings to the troops in the Peshawur valley; ten officers have fallen victims to the disease within the last four days, the last being Dr. Macintire, the Deputy Inspector General of the Division." When the disease broke out he at once proceeded to his post, and I am informed that his presence there inspired all with hope. All knew that the medical administration of the station was in the best of hands. His intelligence, too, and very extensive experience in the treatment of the disease, gave courage to the desponding. It is very hard that Dr. Macintire, just as he had got through the anxiety and fatigue attending all that has been going on here the last three weeks, where he had excited the admiration of all, should now be struck down. In feeble whispers he was heard to say to his friends around him this morning that he should like to live to see the end of the work. He ended his work like a good faithful servant, his intellect clear to the last, and up to within a few hours of his decease was able to dictate telegrams to his anxious and now sadly bereaved family at Murree. No death in the Punjab for many years has caused more real sorrow than this one has. And no wonder; a better or more honest man never lived, or one more ready than he to relieve the suffering, either by giving them the gratuitous benefit of his professional knowledge, or by opening his purse to the needy. The many virtues of Dr. John Macintire will long be remembered at Murree and Peshawur. His professional brethren one and all feel that they have lost their brightest ornament and one of the best of friends.—Dellhi Gazette, June 27.

DYSENTERY, CHOLERA, FEVER, AGUE, ETC.

CHLORODYNE.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is a certain cure in Cholera, Dysentery, Diarrhoea, Colics, &c.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Extract from the General Board of Health, London, as to its efficacy in Cholera.—“So strongly are we convinced of the immense value of this remedy, that we cannot too forcibly urge the necessity of adopting it in all cases.” From A. Montgomery, Esq., late Inspector of Hospitals, Bombay.—“Chlorodyne is a most valuable remedy in Neuralgia, Asthma, and Dysentery. To it I fairly owe my restoration to health after eighteen months' severe suffering, and when all other remedies had failed.”

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. Page Wood stated publicly in Court that Dr. J. Collis Browne was undoubtedly the inventor of Chlorodyne; that the whole story of the defendant Freeman was deliberately untrue, and he regretted to say it had been sworn to.—See the Times, July 13, 1864.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—The Right Hon. Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians and J. T. Davenport that he had received information to the effect that the only remedy of any service in Cholera was Chlorodyne.—See Lancet, Dec. 31, 1864.

DR. LOWE, Medical Missionary in India, reports (Dec., 1865) that in nearly every case of Cholera in which Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne was administered the patient recovered.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is the best and most certain remedy in Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Consumption, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, &c.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is publicly acknowledged by the most eminent Physicians of London to be the most effectual remedy every discovered. To prevent fraud, the Government have authorised a Stamp, with the words Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne engraved thereon, without which none can be genuine. Sole Manufacturer, J. T. DAVENPORT, 33, Great Russell-street, Bloomsbury, London. The immense demand enables the proprietors to reduce the price; it is now sold in bottles, 1s. 1d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d. and 11s.

Agents—Calcutta: SCOTT, THOMPSON, and Co.; W. J. PETTAR, 74, Clive-street; NEW MEDICAL HALL COMPANY. Bombay: TARACHAN and Co. Hong Kong: Mr. A. S. WATSON. Madras: J. PRATTIN, and Messrs. West and Co.

Be not misled by the statements of unscrupulous persons, as the Defendant was termed by the Vice-Chancellor.

WINDERMERE LAKE.—TO LET,
FURNISHED, by the Year, at Bowness, Windermere, a WELL-FURNISHED GENTLEMAN'S RESIDENCE, standing alone, near two good Schools, commanding views of the Lake and Mountains. Rent, £120 a year. Address J. H. TAYLOR, Esq., Solicitor, Windermere.

SARSAPARILLA.

WILKINSON'S (late Bridge's) ESSENCE
or FLUID EXTRACT of RED JAMAICA Sarsaparilla, prescribed by the Faculty for purifying the blood, debility, liver complaints, and freeing the system from the effects of mercury. Exclusively used in India and the Colonies as a prevention to tropical diseases.

"Superior preparation that may always be relied upon."—Sir Astley Cooper.

"We are in every respect satisfied with it."—Lancet.

"We recommend your Sarsaparilla as the best."—Medical Review.

Sold in quarter, half, and pint bottles.

CAUTION.—Many spurious, worthless, and injurious preparations are offered to the public. See that both bottle and label have the name and address.

Quintessence of Jamaica Ginger and Camomile.

WILKINSON'S PREPARATION OF GINGER and CAMOMILE has long been deservedly known as an excellent domestic medicine. It is a most efficient stomachic tonic, and the best remedy for flatulency and disorders arising from impaired digestion.

It is not affected by climate.
No European in India or tropical countries should be without it.

Sold in one-eighth, quarter, and half-pint bottles.

Aromatic Tincture of Quinoidine,

For the prevention of Fever, Ague, and effects of Malaria. An unfailing remedy. It may be mentioned that those who, during the campaign in the Crimea, daily took a small quantity, passed entirely unharmed through the raging fire of fever and dysentery that thinned the ranks around them.

Sold in half and quarter-pint bottles.

Prepared by THOMAS WILKINSON (late Bridge and Co.), 270, Regent-street, London, W.

COUGHS, ASTHMA, and INCIPIENT CONSUMPTION ARE EFFECTUALLY CURED BY

KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES.

This world-renowned medicine, which has obtained such celebrity in all parts of the globe, for curing the above-named complaints and other affections of the chest and pulmonary organs, is strongly recommended to all suffering from any of the above disorders, as one trial will be sufficient to prove their undoubted efficacy, being frequently used under the recommendation of the most eminent of the faculty.

Prepared and sold in boxes, 1s. 1d., and tins, 3s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 10s. 6d. each, by THOMAS KEATING, Chemist, &c., 79, St. Paul's-churchyard, London. Sold retail by all Druggists and Patent Medicine Vendors in the world.

N.B.—To prevent spurious imitations, please to observe that the words "KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES" are engraved on the Government Stamp of each box, without which none are genuine.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT and PILLS.

—No FALSE SECURITY.—The diseases threatened by the blighting winds and ever recurrent storms can only be met by early and reliable remedies. The treatment invented by Professor Holloway possesses every merit that can be desirable in a medicine for the household. They are alike available for youth, maturity and age; they extract from the blood and body all that is effete or harmful; they check all irregular or disordered action, and substitute pure blood, from which alone a sound structure can be formed or maintained. Stitches, pains in the sides, shortness of breath, palpitation, bronchitis, chronic cough, sore throats, and diphtheria, are reduced within the limits of safety by these remedies, used according to the directions.

STOPPING and RESTORING TENDER and DECAYED TEETH.—Anodyne Cement instantly as hard as enamel, allays pain, and restores the tooth to use, even though broken nearly to the gum. An entirely new description of Artificial Teeth, without springs or wires, lighter, more durable, and economical than any yet introduced. Supplied only by Mr. ALFRED JONES, Surgeon-dentist to their late R.H. the Princess Augusta, the Duchess of Gloucester, &c. Daily from Eleven till Five. Mr. Alfred Jones has no connection with any person assuming his name.—64, Grosvenor-street, Grosvenor-square.

KEATING'S PERSIAN INSECT DESTROYING POWDER.

THIS POWDER is quite harmless to animal life, but is unrivalled in destroying Fleas, Bugs, Flies, Cockroaches, Beetles, Gnats, Mosquitoes, Moths in Furs, and every other species of insect.

Being the Original Importer of this now invaluable article which has found so great a sale that it has tempted others to vend a so-called article, the public are therefore cautioned to observe that the packets of the genuine Powder bear the autograph of THOMAS KEATING.

Sold in Packets, 1s. and Tins, 3s. 6d., 4s. 6d., and 6s. each; or 1s. Packets, free by post, for fourteen postage stamps, and 2s. 6d. on receipt of thirty-six. Also in Bottles, 1s. 3d.; with Bellows, 1s. 6d. and 3s. each, by THOMAS KEATING, Chemist, 79, St. Paul's Churchyard London, E.C.

RUPTURES.—BY HER MAJESTY'S ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS,

Perfected and Exhibited in the Great Exhibition of 1861, is allowed by upwards of 200 Medical Gentlemen to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so often hurtful in its effects, is here avoided; a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected, and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit) forwarded by post on the circumference of the body two inches below the hips being sent to the Manufacturer, Mr. WHITE, 228, Piccadilly London.

Price of a Single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., and 31s. 6d.; postage, 1s. Price of Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 43s., and 52s. 6d.; postage, 1s. 8d. Umbilical, 43s. and 52s. 6d.; postage, 1s. 10d.

Post-office Orders payable to JOHN WHITE, Post-office, Piccadilly.

NEW PATENT.

ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEE CAPS,

&c.—The material of which these are made is recommended by the Faculty as being peculiarly elastic and compressible, and the best invention for giving efficient and permanent support in all cases of weakness and swelling of the Legs, Varicose Veins, Sprains, &c. It is porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and is drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price, 4s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 10s. to 16s. each; postage, 6d. JOHN WHITE, MANUFACTURER, 228, PICCADILLY, LONDON.

CHILDREN'S WORM TABLETS

Sold in Tins and Bottles of various sizes, by THOMAS KEATING, Chemist, &c., 79, St. Paul's Churchyard, London. Sold Retail by all Druggists and Patent Medicine Vendors in the World.

OBSERVE the words "KEATING'S WORM TABLETS" are engraved on the Government Stamp of each Tin, without which none are genuine.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

THE Calcutta mail brings us our usual papers, from Calcutta to the 14th of July and Madras to the 4th of that month. Our Calcutta date it will be seen is only one day later than that received by the last Bombay mail.

There was very little stirring at the Presidency, “the denizens of the ditch” (that is the favourite Calcutta phrase) having little else to talk about than the still unfavourable prospects in Orissa, and the pleasant time that other people are passing at Simla, Mussoorie, Nynce Tal, Darjeeling, and other places equally favourable to the improvement of the physique and the strenuous neglect of business. Happily, too, for the more frivolous among them, there is an up-country scandal to talk about—we allude, of course, to the Lahore affair, which, however, seems to be half-a-dozen “affairs” rolled into one. We are not quite sure where they begin and where they end, but the Friend of India writes of them in this fashion:—“In the absence of most of those institutions which make political life and opinion so vivid in England, it is perhaps well that every hot season in India should have its special scandal or catastrophe. Last year it was Simla, this year it is Lahore. But even this reflection cannot reconcile us to the occurrences which threaten to bring so much disgrace on so many officials and ex-officials. Scurrility in journals evidently conducted by men ignorant alike of their duties and responsibilities, personal encounters in the club, actions for libel in the courts, and lawyers’ letters in abundance, make us ask what has come over the Punjab of the Lawrences. The conflict is not confined to Lahore, but extends to Lucknow and Calcutta, the Englishman having instituted an action against Maharajah Man Singh, proprietor of the Oudh Gazette, that organ of the Talookdars which was to abolish infanticide and introduce enlightenment. What has Sir Donald Macleod been about? The charges against Colonel N. Elphinstone, agent of the Punjab Railway, which have given rise to this contemptible series of libels, retorts and actions, are about to be investigated by a committee appointed by the Government of India, and it would be well for all the parties concerned to lay down their brickbats and await the result.”

The Calcutta papers are not at all satisfied with the state of public opinion at home—as reflected by the press—concerning the progress of Russia in Central Asia. Thus the Friend says:—“With the exception of the Times, the leading papers received by last mail are unanimous, and even emphatic, in their condemnation of the indifference of both the English and the Indian Governments to the progress of Russia in Asia. The leading journal asks for the motive of Russia—fails to represent fairly the apprehensions it condemns, and pins its faith to the opinion of Sir Roderick Murchison. Worthy Sir Roderick will never cease to be grateful for those hospitalities which enabled him to make such an important contribution to geological science, and his opinion is more to be trusted on the physical aspect of Central Africa and Australia than on the political object of Russia in Central Asia. We must repeat for the hundredth time that no one dreads an invasion of India or its conquest by Russia. What Russia has declared to be her object is the acquisition of Constantinople at any price. She failed in this in 1854, when we sent reinforcements from India and operated against her in the provinces near the Caucasus. The whole of that country is now hers, and she hopes to seize her prize by distracting our attention in India by forcing us to keep a large army here and so to abstain from interfering with her on the Danube and Bosphorus.”

The proposed uniform system of weights and measures was, it seems, proposed more than four years ago by the Madras Government. The Trades Association of Calcutta supported the movement which, indeed, began so far back as 1837, soon after the free trade Charter of 1833 came into force. The Government of India accordingly appointed local committees to collect opinions and facts, and the Secretary of State expressed approval, with the saving clause that great care must be shown in dealing with a question so closely affecting the interests and habits of the people. The reports of these committees have now been received, but they differ much in their recommendations. The Governor General has wisely refused to appoint a central committee in deal with the whole question, which is to meet her next, is to be composed of Strachy, R.E., President, General, two members of the Bengal Chamber of Commerce, Mr. R. B. Chapman, the Hon. Shaw Stewart, a Madras civilian, three natives of Bengal and any natives of Madras and Bombay in Calcutta who may be recommended by their Governments. The committee are to draught a Bill embodying their suggestions within three months from their first sitting.

The selection of General McCleverty for the command in chief has given much satisfaction in Madras, where General Windham and other highly improbable persons had been talked about for the post. Rumour, deprived of this promising subject, seems to be concentrating itself upon the future of the Viceroyalty. Lord Napier, Mr. Seymour Fitzgerald, and Lord Cranborne have successively passed through the crucible of criticism, and have had their merits carefully separated from the ore. But the favourite successor to Sir John Lawrence, in India as at home, is now the Duke of Buckingham. There is, however, no reason to suppose that Sir John intends to go before his time.

The principal public business in Madras is the consideration in Council of the new Municipal Bill, concerning which there is some difference of opinion. A reference to the subject, as well as to some other items of news in the presidency, will be found elsewhere.

The next arrival from India will be the Bombay mail, which arrived at Suez on the 12th, and is due in London on the 21st inst.

THE Committee of the Civil Service College have recently appointed Mr. M. G. Goodliffe, of the India Office, and Mr. J. C. C. McCaul, of the Civil Service Commission, to be their honorary secretaries. The Earl of Derby and the Earl Russell have each contributed £100 to the building fund. The Committee wish it to be understood that although the school which they are endeavouring to found is primarily intended for the benefit of civil servants, the sons of gentlemen not in the civil service will be eligible for admission, and that the school will be generally conducted, as far as the different circumstances will admit, upon the model of Marlborough College, Wellington College, and other similar educational institutions.

EUROPEAN SERVANT TO INDIA.
—Messrs. ALLEN and CO. are desirous of RECOMMENDING a EUROPEAN SERVANT to notice. She wishes to accompany a Lady to India, or take charge of Children proceeding thereto. The Lady with whom she lived in India for a period of three years, and with whom she returned home, can satisfy any inquiries. A moderate remuneration would be accepted, as the woman's chief object is to join her children in Calcutta. She would not object to continue her services in India.—Address, 13, Waterloo-place, London, S.W.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

TUESDAY, August 13, 1867.

THE INDIAN MAILS.

We alluded in our last number to the strong remonstrance made in the House of Commons against the policy of inviting the Messageries Imperiales Company to tender for the conveyance of the Indian mails. That the Peninsular and Oriental Company would have no chance against its French rival is evident from the examination of a very few facts, and it is equally certain that the result of the service being transferred to the Messageries would be greatly damaging to our national interests.

With regard to the first question, it is sufficient to refer to the very different conditions under which the two companies were established and are maintained. The French company commenced operations in 1861, when the overland route was an established success; the duration of the contract was settled for twenty-four years; and the subsidy was fixed upon a sliding scale which allows 19s. 8d. per mile, payable monthly. The English company, on the other hand, commenced in 1844, when the overland route was an experiment full of risk; the duration of the contract was settled at eight years; and the subsidy was fixed at a certain amount, which has since been reduced to 5s. 5d. per mile, paid quarterly. The French Government did not invite the competition of the Peninsular and Oriental, or any other company, for the service it desired to establish; indeed, it bound itself not to create opposition to the new undertaking. The English Government, by way of contrast, have given the Peninsular and Oriental notice of the termination of its contract; the services are again thrown open to public competition; and the lines are divided and subdivided in a manner especially designed to invite the tenders of the French or any other foreign or British company. An advance of £480,000 was made by the State to assist in establishing the French company, and a sum of £75,000 was given to meet the cost of the navigation of the steamers from Europe to the Eastern Seas, via the Cape of Good Hope. No sum was advanced to the English company to start with; the whole of the capital has been subscribed by its proprietors and debenture-holders; nor has any sum been given to meet the cost of sending its steamers round the Cape. One provision of the contract of the French company is that, if in consequence of war or other unforeseen events the freight of coal-ships or the rates of insurance should advance considerably, so as to render the subsidy insufficient, an indemnity should be paid by the State. The English company has no such advantage, and since the rise in coals, caused by the American war, it has carried on its operations at a loss. In the case of the French company, the State reserves to itself the right of terminating the contract after the first twelve years, on twelve months previous notice, but in that case it binds itself, if required, to take all its ships, shore establishments, stocks of coals, naval stores, and provisions, on a valuation—the ships to be estimated, not as simple "instruments of navigation," but by their value in connection with commercial operations. In the case of maritime war the State takes upon itself the chances that may result, unless the company may elect to continue the service on its own risk. Should the service be suspended, and the State not take possession of the ships, &c., it binds itself to pay, during such suspension, 5 per cent. interest on the capital of the company, plus 5 per cent. for deterioration of the ships, stores, &c. The English company enjoys no such privileges. The Government does not interpose in any way to prevent the sacrifice of capital and property, and to secure a moderate dividend to the shareholders. Its course of action has a contrary effect. The company, in the fulfilment of its public engagements, has during the last twenty years expended £2,500,000 of share capital alone in the construction and purchase of steamships, docks, and other costly establishments. Since January last the 50,000 shares representing that capital have decreased in value by £1,500,000. The ships, the docks, and the establishments still exist in perfect efficiency, but in the interim the company have been informed that they must again pass through the ordeal of competition, and the shareholders have learned that the aid of a foreign company is sought to assist in carrying out the very services hitherto worked by means of their capital. The French Government, on the other hand, binds itself not to subsidise any opposition to the Messageries, and in the event of extending the services included in the contract, to give that company the preference.

We might cite other illustrations, to which our attention has been called, of the superior advantages enjoyed by the Messageries Company over the Peninsular and Oriental; but it may be sufficient to mention one more point. The penalty imposed upon the French company for not having a steamer ready on the appointed day is £24 for the first twelve hours, and £80 a-day afterwards. The penalty imposed upon the English company is £500 for every twenty-four hours.

In the face of these facts is it to be expected that the Peninsular and Oriental can compete for the contract with its French rival? The attempt, as we have said, could meet but with one result. And what follows? That the mail communication between this country and her most important dependency is consigned to a foreign nation—to a service expressly started in opposition to our own, for the purpose of sharing our commercial profits and counteracting our political influence in the East. For the Messageries is Imperial in functions as well as in name. It is supported by Imperial gold for the maintenance of Imperial interests, and to those interests our own will be made subservient in any service which it may undertake for this country. The French consuls, for instance, if they see any commercial advantage in so doing, may stop the mails, and this they do not unfrequently for twenty-four hours at a time. Fancy our English merchants having their own "advices" detained for such a purpose! This kind of treatment would be bad enough in time of peace. But supposing war—between France and one of our neighbours, or between France and ourselves. In the one case we should be probably compromised in a very awkward manner; in the other we should simply leave the road to India in the hands of our enemy, forfeiting, too, the assistance of the valuable commercial fleet which did us such good service during the Crimean war and the Indian mutinies. The idea is preposterous. The Messageries Imperiales is not to be considered in the light of a private, but of a political service, and its employment for the conveyance of our mails is incompatible with the national honour.

Lyrics and Lays. By Pips. Calcutta: Wyman Brothers.

The Art of Poetry—or, to be on the safe side, perhaps we should say the expression of ideas in verse—has always been popular among our countrymen in India. Their success there, as elsewhere, has been different in degree, but works of a high order have not been rare, and vers de société—especially taking the humorous form of "squibs"—never fail to flourish upon Anglo-Indian soil. What Torrens, Elliott, and others in times gone by did in this way is well-known to our readers. The author of the little volume before us is one of the best representatives of the school in the present day; and the occasional pieces which form the principal contents were well worth collecting. They are humorous for the most part, but many among them are meant in earnest, and are marked by sentiment which is always natural, and feeling which is always pure. With little attempt at what is called "finish," they are at least distinguished by pleasant carelessness and ease. The writer is most at home, perhaps, when the stream of humour has an under current of pathos, as in the "Box-wallah," which might have been written by Oliver Wendell Holmes; but the larger portion of the pieces are in the form of burlesque ballads, inspired by Bon Gaultier or Macaulay, which are equally successful in their way, such as the "Chee chee Ball," the "Great Rent Case," and others which were or are familiar to the readers of Indian journals. Among the latest events which have supplied the author with subjects are the "Vice-Regal Fancy Ball" and the "Great Darbar" of last year. For the sake of these and other associations, the volume will be especially welcome to those familiar with the scenes and persons portrayed.

THE FRENCH IN COCHIN CHINA.

PARIS, Aug. 9.

Official despatches have been received here from Admiral de la Grandiere announcing the occupation of the six western provinces of Lower Cochin China. The French troops occupied the towns of Ving Lung, Sadec, Chandoc, and Hatien without firing a shot, the mandarins of these places opening their gates with the unanimous consent of the inhabitants. The annexation of these territories to France has been effected because they served as refuge to pirates and agitators. A proclamation of Admiral de la Grandiere, dated June 25, says:—"Henceforth the six provinces of Lower Cochin China are and will remain French territory."

FESTIVITIES AT THE MARRIAGE OF SINDIA'S HEIR.

[Translated from the Gwalior Gazette, June 14.]

The ceremony of the holy "Pooja" was performed with a thousand festivities and delight in the following manner. On Friday, in the afternoon, a grand durbar was held at the Royal Palace. All the pillars of the State, Bulwunt Rao Byha Sahib (a natural son of Sindia), Rao Sahib Setowla, Trimmuck Rao Sahib Patingir, Bapoo Sahib Ghoorpray, Apa Sahib Angray, Bapoo Sahib Jadoo, Ranoojee Rao Sahib Sindia, Apa Sahib Mohrgir, Madho Rao Sahib Phalkey, Rao Raja Dinker, Rao Sahib Moontazim Bahadoor, Musheerooddowla Baba Bulwunt Sahib, Brigadier Bapoo Awar, with chiefs and officers of the Military Board of Sindia's army, Balajee Chunnajee Sahib Dewan, of the State, Major Gunput Rao Kurkey, Naib Dewan, the Nazim Sahib, the 2nd and 3rd Naib Dewan, the Assistant of Revenue in the Maratta Department, the Sur Soobeh and other Soobehs of the district, with other officials and bankers of note, were present in the Durbar. The dancing of the court-sans, fairy-like in make and peacock-like in appearance, attracted the notice of the planet Venus, and their graceful movements fixed the firmament in admiring amazement. About an hour before sunset the bridegroom left the Royal Palace for the purpose of performing the ceremony of the holy "Pooja." He was mounted on an elephant with embroidered trappings, embellished with jewels and diamonds, and a canopy made of beaten gold. The procession, consisting of the nobles and officers as above, all on elephants, high as mountains in a semicircle behind the bridegroom, the cavalry with their comely accoutrements, the battalions in their gay regimentals, the battering trains of artillery, spearmen and bannermen, followed the bridegroom through Dowlet Gunj and the New Bazaar to the Palace at the Kumpoo. The cavalry, battalions, and artillery, posted in separate squadrons, and parties from the palace at the Kumpoo to the new bazaar, performed the ceremony of salute. A court in the palace at the Kumpoo, which for the clear resplendence of its floor and the brilliancy of its furniture might be compared with the ninth heaven, and which was brighter than noon-day from the number of chandeliers and lustres, was transformed into the ball room of Indur by dancing and music, and everyone was immersed in jollity and delight. On the west side of the court a terrace with gorgeous embellishments had been erected for the Thakoorjee (Incarnation of Vishnoo the Preserver), and was surrounded with chandeliers and lustres. In the front of this terrace on one side a magnificent cushion had been fitted up for the Maharajah, and another for the bridegroom on the other. Meanwhile the triumphal procession of her Most Serene Highness the Maharanee Chunnaraja (on elephants) passed through the Surraia and reached the parade ground at the Kumpoo. After receiving a similar salute from the cavalry, battalions, and artillery, her Highness honoured with her presence another grand court of the palace, which had been most elegantly furnished with the best furniture. The courtiers paid their respects, and dancing and music continued. In the other court costly dresses and ornaments of immense value were presented to his Most Puissant and Fortunate Highness the Maharaja, the bridegroom, and to Bulwunt Rao Bhya Sahib on the part of the father of the bride. The ceremony of "Pooja" then commenced, and salute was fired when it was over. Utter and pan were then distributed among those present. The bridegroom then left the palace at the Kumpoo on an elephant, followed by other elephants with the above-mentioned nobles in a semi-circle. A salute was instantly fired, and fireworks were let off with great noise and velocity. The artificial trees on the pasteboard gardens looked blooming with blossoms, and loaded with different kinds of fruit. The brilliancy of the talc found fault with the rays of the sun, and plicades blushed with shame at the gorgeoussness of the floral pasteboards. Salutes were fired when the procession reached the Jinsee. The noise of the fireworks caused the buds to smile and open, and the moon became ashamed of herself at the excellence of "Anars" and "Mehta-bees." With slow steps the procession advanced through the Surrafa to the Kotwallee. From the Kotwallee the Royal Palace fireworks were planted on both sides of the road, and were set fire to. At every step the spectators swarmed like locusts. About midnight the procession reached the Royal Palace.

The Friend of India very appropriately calls the above "a unique production," adding:—"It was written by the native superintendent of the Durbar press, and has been translated for us by Prithee Nath, a writer in the Gwalior agency. The true oriental flavour has thus been retained. The translator is a man of infinite research and learning, being deep in the philosophy of Brown and the ethics of Paley, though little versed in the affairs of daily life. He is a Cashmere Brahmin, one of an important class in high position in many native courts. From the time that Runjeet Singh first obtained power these Cashmerees were in Lahore very much what the haughty Churchmen were in European courts in the dark ages. We publish the translation litteratim as well as verbatim. The Gwalior Gazette, which records the joyful event in Hindoe and Hindostanee, is, on this occasion, printed in festive red."

MISCELLANEOUS.

AN EX-LIEUTENANT CHARGED WITH THE THEFT OF A WATCH AND CHAIN.—Robert Anderson Lugton Walker, said to have been lately a lieutenant in her Majesty's 77th Regiment, was charged before the magistrate of the Southern Division by Lieut. Samuel, of the 32nd Regiment N. I., with having stolen from him a gold watch and chain, value Rs. 200. It would appear that Walker had made Lieutenant Samuel's acquaintance on board a steamer coming from Assam, and had frequently called on him at Wilson's Hotel. Some little time ago Lieutenant Samuel removed to Miss Nell's boarding establishment, No. 1, Middleton-row, and Walker found him out there, and called to see him on Monday morning last. He fell asleep in the room, and Lieutenant Samuel went into another room, where he remained about a couple of hours, and on his return to his own room he found Mr. Walker gone, and a watch and chain, which had been on a dressing table when he left the room, gone too. Information was given to Mr. Littlemore, who sent Inspector Fox to look after the suspected thief. It was discovered that Mr. Walker had been living at Mr. Spence's, and had been ousted thence in consequence of not paying his bill, and had taken refuge in the London, but had left there on Monday morning and not returned. No trace for a couple of days could be obtained of Mr. Walker or the watch, but at length Mr. Fox, thinking that he had not left Calcutta, so far as he could discover, made a domiciliary visit to the hospitals, and in the General Hospital found the man he wanted, and the watch and chain, which Walker had given to a patient to endeavour to sell for him. The prisoner was remanded for further evidence.—Indian Daily News, June 21.

MR. PILOT PHIPSON'S CASE.—The Judge of the Marine Court has received the opinion of the Advocate-General on the interpretation to be put upon the sixteenth clause of Act XII. of 1859, which states that "upon the completion of the trial, the jurors shall give their verdict upon the charge, or, if there be more than one, upon each separate charge." It is to the effect that this clause does not preclude the jury, in a case like the present, from acquitting on one part, and convicting on the other part, of a charge. It seems curious how any one capable of holding the situation of a judge of a court could have had any doubt upon such a point, as in courts martial cases are of almost every-day occurrence where a prisoner is found guilty of part of a charge only. Since the receipt of this opinion, the judge has passed the following sentence:—"Mr. Licenced Pilot Phipson, I have weighed the evidence that was given on your trial, and find some extenuating circumstances. The compasses in the Gasper Channel were not very accurate to steer by, and proper bearings could not be taken from the binnacle one; the light one on the round-house could not either, as it appears in evidence, be seen without a lighted sear was strongly drawn over it. As to the evidence upon the course steered it is quite unreliable, for it varies amongst the different witnesses from N. W. by W. to N. by E., six points, when one or certainly two points is enough to ground ships in so narrow and dangerous a channel as the Gasper; but you cannot be exonerated for not trusting more to the Upper and Lower Gasper-lights than to compasses, which are all more or less liable to error. A prudent and careful pilot ought at all times to trust to the former rather than to the latter. I take into consideration also that you have been acquitted of two thirds of the charge brought against you. The sentence of the Court is that you be suspended for four months from the day of trial."—Englishman, June 26.

INDIAN FISHERIES.—Colonel G. T. Haly declares that, of all our short comings in India perhaps there is not one calling forth more surprise than that of having so entirely neglected its fisheries. This is a little extravagant, and the writer is evidently ignorant of Sir J. P. Grant's futile and unjust attempt to annex the inland fisheries of Bengal. But conservancy of some kind is wanted, if the few white men in India had only time to attend to such details. The fish to be found in the Indian waters best known to Europeans are—of sea fish the seer, pomfret, mango, roebull, rockcod, sole, whiting, mullet, bonita, sardine, plaice, skate, snipefish, ricefish, sable, eels, oysters, crabs, crayfish, and prawns of all kinds, some of which last are dried and salted in large quantities for inland consumption. Turtle, likewise, are to be found all along the coast at the proper season. Of fresh-water fish there are the marseer, hilsa, maharan, mullet, caboose, carp, pike, barbel, eels, crayfish, rupchul, and innumerable small fry. For combined delicacy and richness of flavour few fish equal the mango and hilsa, but Indian appetites are not equal to English. A beginning should be made at the Andaman Islands, where officials have leisure, and there is said to be an exhaustless sardine fishery.

ANOTHER ATTEMPT HAS BEEN MADE TO UPSET A TRAIN on the Jubbulpore line. On the 19th instant, when the mail-train from Jubbulpore approached the ninety-seventh milestone, an inverted chair was observed keyed to one of the rails. Every possible effort was made to pull up the train, but all to no purpose; and as the engine was going tender foremost destruction seemed inevitable; but fortunately the chair broke in two pieces as soon as the wheel of the tender came in contact with it. This is the last of many ineffectual attempts at total destruction of life and property made in the native territory through which the Jubbulpore line passes. When the first of these was made, the matter was brought before Mr. Coles, the political assistant at Nagode, and that officer was requested by the railway company to inflict, if possible, the severest penalty of the law upon the offenders; but Mr. Coles decided, after an examination of the case, that it was the result of a drunken frolic, and no effort was accordingly made to bring the delinquents to justice, or to prevent a repetition of the crime. On the second occasion, the culprit was caught in the act by the railway company, and jealously guarded as far as Nagode. In this case Mr. Coles decided that the man was a lunatic. It is the opinion of many civil officers of Government that the native States offer a safe asylum for the worst of bad characters; and with recent experience to guide us, we confess we cannot dissent from this opinion. As long as these crimes can be committed with impunity, so long will the lives of all who venture to travel between Allahabad and Jubbulpore be imperilled. We commend the matter to the notice of Government.—Pioneer.

THE GREAT EASTERN HOTEL COMPANY.—A meeting of the shareholders of the above company was held on Friday afternoon, for the purpose of receiving the directors' report, passing the accounts, and for the transaction of any other business that might be brought forward. A large number of shareholders were present; Mr. J. B. Knight presiding. An objection was taken by Mr. Bradley that the accounts ought to have been laid before the shareholders for ten days before the meeting; owing to this the accounts were ordered to stand over till an adjourned meeting on the 6th July. The directors' report was carried, and a dividend at the rate of 7 per cent., or Rs. 17-8 per share was declared. The retiring directors, Messrs. H. L. Reed, J. Williamson, and Baboo Peary Churn Mitra were re-elected. Mr. Lloyd, one of the auditors, was also re-elected. Upon the chairman declaring the meeting special for the purposes stated in the advertisement, it was objected that notice of the special meeting had not been given thirty days previously, as required by the Act. The meeting then adjourned. A fresh meeting for this purpose will be held at a future date.—Englishman, June 29.

UNIFORM WEIGHTS AND MEASURES FOR INDIA.—The question of a uniform and amended system of weights and measures for India has been before Government for some time, and a committee has been ordered to assemble at Calcutta on the 15th of November to examine the proposed modifications, and construct such a system of weights and measures as will give general satisfaction and to submit a Bill which the Legislature may be able to adopt. The committee is to be composed as follows:—President, Col. Strachey, R.E.; members, Mr. Harrison, comptroller-general of accounts, two members to be nominated by the Chamber of Commerce at Calcutta, Mr. Chapman, Bengal Civil Service, the Hon. Mr. J. Shaw Stewart, Bombay C.S., a member of the Madras C. S. not yet named, three native members to be nominated by the Bengal Government, any gentlemen, natives of Bombay or Madras, who, being in Calcutta, may be recommended by their respective governments and may be willing to serve. The committee will have power to add to its members any gentleman present in Calcutta.—Delhi Gazette, July 2.

FATAL ACCIDENT ON THE EAST INDIA RAILWAY.—A fireman named Everett, belonging to the down passenger train from Burdwan, was killed at Chandernagore yesterday morning (June 25). It appears that the unfortunate man was engaged in screwing on the engine break as the train was nearing the station, and was suddenly missed by the driver, who afterwards found him lying dead, with his skull frightfully fractured, and the brains protruding, on the ballast near the third pillar, west of the station. It is supposed that the deceased, in applying the break, swung himself on to the outside of the tender, and was killed by his head coming in contact with one of the station pillars which stand between the up and down lines. The body was brought down to Howrah.—Englishman, June 26.

THE ACCOUNTS FROM ORISSA are unfavourable, and in all the distressed districts there were undoubted signs of the recommencement of very considerable distress. The people, however, were almost universally represented to be of good heart and in good health, and endeavours were being made to place cotton in the hands of all those persons who were in the receipt of relief and who could not do harder work. Noticing the latest reports from the Bengal famine districts, a Calcutta contemporary writes:—"In Cuttack there is a generally increasing demand for rice at all the depots, and even at this early period of the rains difficulty is experienced in keeping up sufficient stocks where road carriage only is available, partly owing to the wretched state of the roads, and partly to the bullocks being employed in cultivation. When the rivers have risen, some of these difficulties will vanish. At three of the depots sales to the general public were obliged to be discontinued, owing to the stocks on hand being not more than sufficient for relief purposes, but there were other Government depots at no great distance. In Teekun and Aul the cultivation was only being carried on to a limited extent, not more than a quarter of the land being prepared, whilst the Zemindars rendered no assistance, but in Ootikum and Assresswar nearly the whole of the lands had been sown, and the zemindars had given advances for seed. In Cooping and Kimika, Baboos Juggut Chunder Gangooly and Hurnauth Chatterjee had distributed considerable quantities of rice as well as money and cloth amongst the villages, but the system of village relief is open to serious objections, as it is not only too slow, but instances of dishonesty on the part of the inspectors, as well as extortion by the Surburrakurs and others have occurred, which cannot be checked except by constant personal supervision. The collector suggests that the price of the Government rice should be lowered. The number employed on light labour at the end of May was 8,500, in the proportion of one man to eleven women. The report of three deaths from starvation proved, on inquiry, to be untrue. Some dacoities had occurred, and generally speaking, crimes had not increased. In Balasore there was no marked increase of distress, but the village stocks of rice were rapidly decreasing, though rice was still sold at less than the Government rate. At Bherah and Ankoora the cultivation was both backward and to a small extent; whilst at Bhuddruck the people were cultivating largely as well as repairing their houses. The cotton and weaving relief, superintended by a native lady, was in considerable demand. The daily average of light labourers at the end of May was 1,148, in the proportion of one man to seven women and children. Thirteen deaths were reported by the police at Ankoora, but no reliable information as to particulars could be obtained. In Pooree the principal demand for rice was in the north-eastern and eastern parts of the district, the sales amounting to about fifty bags a-day. The cultivation was going on to a considerable extent, and no increase of distress was apparent. Cotton and weaving relief were carried on actively throughout all the districts."

NATIVE FINANCE.—Now that authorities so high as two successive Secretaries of State have expressed their delight at the superiority of Asiatic to English rule in India, we are sure Mr. Massey will next March take a hint from the able financiers who fill the Gwalior treasury. British India is shocked at the license-tax, and every vernacular paper cries out at its zoolum. This is how Feudatory India, held up as an example to the Viceroy, goes to work. The marriage of his heir-apparent has been a godsend to Sindia. He is about to levy on every banker, trader, and landowner a fixed "benevolence," and he will take from every civil and military employe whose income is above a certain low limit half a month's pay. No one will dare to refuse or will dream of complaining. Do we not keep up a large and expensive British Army to prevent revolutions in feudatory States? The result will be most satisfactory to the Gwalior treasury, for the next budget will show a surplus which Mr. Massey might envy. Yet in his fear at a graduated income-tax he imposes a miserable licence duty which irritates all India. Lord Cranborne and Sir S. Northcote were right. The Viceroy should invite Sindia's financial adviser to Council.—Friend of India.

OPIMUM SALE.—Notice is given, in the Government Gazette, that the seventh sale of opium, the provision of 1865-66, will be held at the Exchange-hall, on Wednesday, the 10th July, 1867, at 11 A.M., and will comprise 4,000 chests, viz.:—Behar opium, 2,000 chests; Benares opium, 2,000 chests; total chests, 4,000. In addition to the quantity above advertised for sale, the following quantities, more or less, of Behar and Benares opium will be brought to sale in the present year on or about the dates specified below. The board, however, reserve to themselves the right of altering these dates, should circumstances render it expedient to do so:—

On or about	Behar about Chests.	Benares about Chests.	Total about Chests.
Friday, Aug. 9, 1867 ...	2,000	2,000	4,000
Monday, Sept. 9, 1867 ...	2,000	2,000	4,000
Wednesday, Oct. 16, 1867 ...	2,000	2,000	4,000
Monday, Nov. 11, 1867 ...	2,000	2,000	4,000
Friday, Dec. 6, 1867 ...	2,000	2,000	4,000
Total ...	10,000	10,000	20,000

SERIOUS DISTURBANCE ON BOARD AN AMERICAN VESSEL IN THE HOOGLY.—We learn that a serious disturbance took place the other day on board the American ship Coringa, recently arrived from Boston, and now lying off Garden Reach. On Wednesday morning it appears that the chief officer of the ship ordered the men to turn to work, but they refused, and betook themselves for shelter to the fore-castle. Thither the mate followed them with a loaded revolver, and discharged four barrels down the fore-castle, happily without injuring anyone. The crew were then battered down, and kept down for twenty-four hours, without, our informant states, food or drink, still refusing work. On information being conveyed to the police by the captain they were all released from their confinement on board ship, but were charged with refusal of duty. The case was before the magistrate yesterday, but no one appearing to prosecute, it was struck off the roll. The matter is not yet done with, and more will be heard of it in the course of a day or two.—Indian Daily News, June 21.

EARNINGS OF THE PUNJAB RAILWAY.—The total coaching receipts of the Punjab Railway from Umritsur to Rajhat (246 miles) for the week ending May 26, 1867, were for passengers, passengers' luggage, parcels, &c., Rs. 6,399-10-2 as compared with Rs. 5,565 in the corresponding period of the previous year; for goods traffic of all kinds, up and down, Rs. 13,461-0-9, against Rs. 13,162-1-10; 34,073 maunds of goods were conveyed. The total receipts from all sources amounted to Rs. 19,860-10-11, against Rs. 18,727-10-1 of the previous year. Third class passengers paid 92-52 per cent. of the coaching receipts; second class passengers 4-30 per cent.; and first class passengers 3-18 per cent. Each first class passenger travelled on an average 355-9 miles, each second class 38 miles, and each third class passenger 39-20 miles.—Pioneer, June 21.

COLONEL HERVEY'S BONUS SCHEME, for the retirement of field officers of the Staff Corps, is in the hands of Government, who make no sign, however, of any action thereon.—Delhi Gazette, July 4.

NEW ROAD.—A road is to be constructed from Mhow through Neemuch to Nusserabad. The cost has been estimated at £26,200.

THE CIVIL SERVICE.—A case recently decided by the Government of India may be found interesting to the members of the Covenanted Civil Service. A civil servant of about fifteen years' standing, who proceeded to England some time ago on leave, submitted an application to Government, soliciting that he may be allowed full pay from the date he arrived at Galle, while returning from his leave, and that the period commencing from that date, to the date of his arrival at the Presidency, may be considered as actual residence in India. The Governor-general in Council, however, declined to accede to the request, on the ground that it was opposed to the rules of the service.

OPIMUM.—It appears that of the opium produce of 1865-66, about 148 chests still remain unsold. The Board of Revenue, at the time, instructed the Collector of Customs to dispose of all the chests, but the Government of Bengal prohibited him from doing so, for reasons yet unknown. The collector has, through the board, lately inquired of the Supreme Government whether he is still to hold the above-mentioned chests or dispose of them. The Government is said to have been surprised at this proceeding, and has called upon the local Government for an explanation. As opium forms a large portion of the public revenue, the Government of India has requested the board to exercise their own discretion in future with regard to the disposal of the drug.

DEATH OF LIEUTENANT COOK.—We regret to learn from Peshawur, 20th June, that Lieutenant Cook, adjutant of H.M.'s 77th, died on Monday last from cholera. At the time of his death he was in camp with the head quarters of his regiment. He possessed the estimable attributes of a gentleman and soldier in the highest degree, and was universally regretted. He was buried at Peshawur on Tuesday evening.—Delhi Gazette, June 25.

RICE FOR CUTTACK.—It is confidently anticipated that there will be a considerable increase in the importation of rice into Cuttack from the Sumbulpore district about the end of the current month. This will be due to the rising of the Mahanuddy, which, immediately before the rise of its waters, is difficult to navigate.

ARCHDEACON PRATT.—It will give great satisfaction to all classes of Christians to learn that Archdeacon Pratt is likely to continue in India till 1870. We trust he will compile a history of the diocese to the death of Bishop Cotton for the instruction of future Indian bishops and archdeacons.—Friend of India.

THE COMMAND OF THE GWALIOR DISTRICT.—We hear that Colonel C. T. Chamberlain, C.S.I., will succeed Major-General Tombs, C.B. and V.C., in the command of the Gwalior district.—Indian Daily News and Bengal Hurkaru, June 26.

MAJOR E. W. WARNER has been promoted to Lieut.-col.; Capt. C. McCotton, to major; Lieut. H. A. Walford, to captain; and Ensign D. C. Bridel, to lieutenant, by Col. H. J. Stanners being promoted to the command of the Agra brigade.—Indian Daily News, June 20.

MADRAS.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE PETITIONS AGAINST THE LICENCE-TAX.—Considerable disappointment is felt in Madras, as indeed all over India, that no notice has been taken of the petitions that were sent home against Mr. Massey's iniquitous Licence-tax. It shows how utterly useless it is for people with a grievance in this country to appeal to the Secretary of State only. The memorials sent to the India-office have not even been acknowledged. Their existence is probably not known beyond the walls of that office, for not a single question appears to have been put in Parliament, while a large portion of the English press has not condescended to notice the Budget at all. If the conductors of English journals knew how much good they could effect for this country by deigning to take a little more interest in our affairs, we feel sure their assistance would not be withheld. The Indian press has good reason to complain of the indifference of its English fraternity in this respect. Many a time when a helping hand might be given, and might reasonably be expected to be given, it is withheld, probably more from want of interest in Indian subjects than through any other cause. Take our licence tax as an instance in point. Rarely has any act of the Indian Government been more severely and unanimously condemned by the Indian public and press, and yet we will venture to say that it has not been seriously noticed by half a dozen respectable English newspapers. In other words, a question which affects the welfare of 150 million subjects of the British Crown does not claim a particle of the attention that is bestowed on the boa-constrictor at the Zoological Gardens! The only Indian subject that the English press can be said to have discussed lately is the Mysore question—a question which nine tenths of the population of India care little or nothing about. It would really almost seem as if the Press at home would not condescend to take up Indian questions without a consideration. The importance that has been attached to the Mysore question seems almost incomprehensible when compared with the utter neglect displayed regarding a measure like the licence tax, one that at the present day is far more likely to cause popular discontent or revolution. It is no secret in India how the affairs of the Maharajah of Mysore have been kept prominently before the British public; but the knowledge of the fact is not calculated to raise the English press in the estimation of the people of India.—Madras Times.

MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS.—Madras is still agitated with her municipal affairs, which just now absorb far more attention than any other question. Though the Bill has been reported on by two committees and tinkered and patched by nearly every member of Council, it is still far from satisfactory to the public. Notice has been given for passing the Bill at the meeting of the Council to be held this day, but unless the Government choose to ignore public feeling altogether, they will be bound to take into consideration a very strong memorial against the Bill that is to be presented to the Council at their sitting. This memorial, though rather hastily prepared, has been signed by many of the principal residents of Madras, and especially by the mercantile and trading community. It recommends that some of the honorary Commissioners should be nominated by the rate and taxpayers; that the number of Commissioners should be limited to two instead of four from each ward; and that the meetings of the board should be held twice a month instead of once in two months. It further recommends that the President's salary should be fixed at Rs. 1,200 a month, and the second and third paid Commissioners at Rs. 600 and Rs. 500 respectively. If these rates are not considered high enough, the memorialists very properly suggest that as Government retain the power of appointing and removing all the municipal officers, they should contribute a portion of their salaries. Our legislators would appear to have thought that there would be no further opposition to the Bill, as a considerable number of them have departed for the Hills. At the meeting to-day Lord Napier cannot possibly muster more than five colleagues; others are at Ooty, or Bangalore, or elsewhere. It seems very possible that the passing of the Bill may be postponed for a week or so, and in that case it would be a wholesome lesson to his defaulting councillors if Lord Napier recalled them to the sphere of their labours.—Madras Times, July 6.—Our local Municipal Bill comes before the Legislative Council again this evening, but nearly half the members being away from Madras it is not at all unlikely that its final consideration will be postponed to a more convenient season. The reasonable remonstrance of fifteen hundred rate-payers from among the most respectable portions of the community cannot fail to have its just influence upon the President, Lord Napier, if not upon the whole council, and we have little doubt that the settlement of the Bill will be further postponed. If, however, our hopes are not realised, and the Bill be passed in its present imperfect shape, great dissatisfaction must be the result, followed by an appeal both to the Indian and Home Governments.—Athenæum, July 14.

THE MADRAS COUNCIL.—The proceedings of the Legislative Council on Saturday last in regard to the Municipal Bill have furnished the most prominent topic of discussion during the week. As an instance of the interest which the Madras legislators take in their work, we may mention that five out of eleven of the councillors are absent from Madras. Sir Thomas Pycroft, recently decorated with the order of the Star of India, for his eminent services to the State, is expending the remainder of his patriotism, before leaving the country for good, in the bracing atmosphere of Ootacamund. The Hon. A. J. Arbutnot, desirous perhaps of emulating the example of the distinguished senior member of the Madras Civil Service, has joined Sir Thomas. The Hon. J. D. Mayne, being a barrister, is engaged at present in a case of some importance at Vizagapatam; the Hon. A. F. Brown, a merchant, has fled from the cares of the counting house and the council to bask in more temperate retreats at Bangalore; and the Mussulman member, Sir Shooruf Ool Oomrah, is supposed to be on his travels somewhere, though it is not generally known where. It will be seen, therefore, that the members of the Madras Legislative Council do not allow affairs of State to interfere unnecessarily with their own private affairs. The manner in which business is conducted in the Council, as witnessed at the last meeting, has created some amusement. Lord Napier, as president, sits half buried from public view in an exceedingly comfortable-looking arm chair, from the depths of which he now and then utters an observation. The other members are also all seated round the same table, and nobody seems to think it necessary to get upon his legs when he has anything to say. Altogether it was such an illustration of point de zèle as would have charmed even Talleyrand.—Madras Times.

THE VICEROY OF THE FUTURE.—There are quite as many rumours flying about regarding the probable successor of Sir John Lawrence as there were regarding the successor of Sir Gaspard Le Marchant. A short time ago the Calcutta papers would have it that Lord Napier was to be the next Governor-general. Our Governor now appears to have fallen from the position of first favourite to that of only a respectable outsider. He was first replaced by Sir Seymour Fitzgerald, the new Governor of Bombay, and now both Lord Napier and Sir Seymour give way to Lord Cranborne and the Duke of Buckingham. It seems scarcely probable that a nobleman so well off as Lord Cranborne would care to leave England unless it is that he was so pleased with his work at the India-office that he is anxious to see with his own eyes the country he has ruled. Lord Cranborne's appointment would be hailed with great satisfaction in this country, but we imagine that if he did come out as a Viceroy he would not hold the office longer than was necessary to learn how India ought to be governed from Westminster. The selection of the next Viceroy will depend chiefly on the Ministry that happens to be in power when Sir John Lawrence resigns. Should Lord Derby be then at the head of affairs, it seems by no means improbable that the Duke of Buckingham will be the next Governor-general. The Duke has been an industrious, hard-working man, has the reputation of being a man of sound judgment and business-like habits, and the emoluments of the office would be a consideration to him.—Madras Times.

STATE OF THE GANJAM DISTRICT.—A manifest improvement is reported from the Ganjam district. On Lord Napier's visit there in June, 1866, he proposed the opening of the Chilka Lake, both as a present means of relief to the distressed, as well as of completing a work of great public utility projected many years ago by Sir Arthur Cotton. The heavy rains prevented the commencement of the excavations until February last, the collection of materials having been rapidly carried on in the meantime. In March 4,000 coolies were daily employed on the works, and they were pushed on with the utmost vigour, 6,000 coolies having afterwards been engaged. Notwithstanding the very difficult nature of the excavation, mostly through water, and the prevalence of heavy storms of wind and rain throughout the working season, the project laid out with great exactness has been completed, and the canal is now open for general traffic on ordinary tides. Mr. Carmichael, the collector, having opened it in person on the 1st instant. Boats being in readiness at Ganjam for the occasion, about 9 o'clock a.m. Mr. Carmichael arrived in company with the engineer and other gentlemen, and proceeded in boats through the canal to Bimper, ten miles from Ganjam, where a small bank remained separating the water of the Roosookoolen from the lake. After Mr. Carmichael arrived this bank was cleared away as if by magic, and the waters of the Roosookoolen were connected with the Chilka Lake. The canal being thus formally opened the boats passed on through the lake to Ramba, a further distance of four miles, where they arrived by 12 o'clock, three hours only being occupied in making the journey. The canal was in many places spanned by triumphal arches, and flags and banners floated proudly over the embankments, while continual cheers greeted the arrival of the boats, there being thousands of spectators along the whole line of the canal; the greatest enthusiasm prevailed throughout.—Athenæum and Daily News, July 14.

THE KHOONDS.—The Collectors of Ganjam and Vizagapatam have furnished Government with very satisfactory accounts of the state of the hitherto troublesome tribes inhabiting the hill tracts to the west of those districts. The Collector of Ganjam reports that "the Khoonds of the eastern part of the country are disposed to yield a ready submission to the law, and to seek our intervention in disputes," and during a recent visit some of the late rebels came to him thoroughly penitent and submissive. No instances of human sacrifice, or of female infanticide were brought to light, and it is believed that no case of the former crime occurred. Amongst further measures about to be taken for the amelioration of the condition of the Khond tribes are the introduction of vaccination, increased facilities in the supply of salt, and the establishment of a higher class of school than those already in existence at Baliguda, the chief station of the district. From Vizagapatam the accounts are still more encouraging; vaccination has already been introduced with remarkable success; crime is on the decrease; roadmaking and jungle clearing has progressed satisfactorily; and in Jeypore a beginning has been made in the introduction of improvements in the administration of civil justice. This satisfactory state of things is reported to be in great measure owing to the services of Lieut. Smith, who has lived in Jeypore uninterruptedly during the last four years, has familiarised himself with the language of the people, and won the confidence and esteem of the Rajah and his retainers. The tract bordering on Bustar, owing to the lawless conduct of the Rajah, is alone reported to be in an unsatisfactory condition.—Madras Times.

THE "SACRAMENTO."—The captain and crew of the American man-of-war Sacramento are still at Coconada, but are endeavouring to make arrangements for chartering a ship at Calcutta to take them back to New York. Lord Napier's behaviour towards the Yankee is in striking contrast to the Yankee's behaviour towards this Government, and is very like the comparison of the conduct of a well-bred gentleman with that of an unmannerly snob. The Sacramento anchored in the Madras roads without saluting our flag; neither the captain (Collins) nor any of his officers had the common civility to pay the usual respects to the marine or any other authorities; and the ship left as she came, almost unnoticed. Capt. Collins's conduct, however, did not prevent Lord Napier, on his hearing of the accident, from telegraphing to Trincomallee for the immediate despatch of a war steamer to the assistance of the American ship. H. M.'s ship Star accordingly proceeded to the spot, but could do nothing, of course, towards rescuing the Sacramento, which has become a complete wreck. We should be wrong in saying that the accident has excited much popular sympathy; on the contrary, a very general feeling prevails that it served the Yankee captain right. Nothing would have been easier than to have procured proper charts of the coast from our port authorities, but this self-sufficient captain seems to have been above seeking information from the Britisher, and the consequence is that he has lost his ship. We do not know what form of trial Captain Collins may have to go through on his return to America, but the American Government ought to be informed that in the opinion of our marine authorities the Sacramento was lost through gross carelessness and neglect—such as would unquestionably have degraded a British commander, even if it had not led to his dismissal from the service. The Captain of the Sacramento has chartered a ship for the conveyance of his officers and men to New York. The General Caulfield, now discharging her cargo at this port, has been engaged for this service, and will proceed to Coconada to embark all that remains of the American war steamer.—Madras Times.

A RAILWAY TRAIN TURNED INTO A MAN-TRAP.—Now-a-days everything from a "coal-mine to a cock-pit" has its literature, and of course the railway has its, and sufficiently spiced with romance, too, it has turned out. We question, however, whether among the published anecdotes of the rail anything more amusing than the following can be met with. A branch in the Madras Presidency runs through a wild region the inhabitants of which are unsophisticated savages addicted to thievery. The first day the line was opened a number of these Arcadians conspired to intercept the train and have a glorious loot. To accomplish their object they placed some trunks of trees across the rails; but the engine-driver keeping a sharp look out, as it happened to be his first trip on the line in question, descried the trunks while yet they were at a considerable distance from him. The breaks were then put on, and when the locomotive had approached within a couple of feet of the trunks, it was brought to a stand still. Then instantaneously, like Roderick Dhue's clansmen starting from the heather, natives, previously invisible, swarmed up on all sides, and crowding into the carriages began to pillage and plunder everything they could lay their hands upon. While they were thus agreeably engaged, the guard gave the signal to the driver, who at once reversed his engine and put it to the top of its speed. The reader may judge of the consternation of the robbers when they found themselves whirled "backwards" at a pace that rendered escape from the carriages impossible. The few who attempted it were killed on the spot. Thus were our Arcadians nicely caught, and as they were transferred from this novel man-trap to the jail, they were no doubt convinced that the "fire-bandy" can move progressively and retrogressively with equal facility.

PRINCE AZEEM JAH.—The Madras Times says:—On the 1st May last certain creditors of his Highness Prince Azeem Jah forwarded a petition to his Excellency the Viceroy praying that he will withhold his sanction to the Act to provide for the examination and settlement of his Highness' claims becoming law on certain grounds, prominently among which were, that every person making a claim under the Act is required to give up all securities and abandon every means which he may now have for the recovery of his debt, without even an understanding from Government in return to pay the amount or any proportion which their commissioner may find to be justly due, and that Government, while reserving to themselves full power to refuse payment of claims even though reported on favourably by the commissioner, or to make any payment they may think fit on account thereof, the preference will be given to claims of such creditors as are in a position to enforce payment without Government assistance. In reply the Viceroy says "that the discharge of any portion of his Highness' debts is a purely voluntary Act on the part of the British Government, which is therefore at liberty to impose any conditions which it considers fair and equitable upon such creditors of his Highness as may choose to avail themselves of the Government offer; and the provisions of the law passed by the Governor in Council of Madras do not seem to him in any way unduly unfair to the interests of such creditors, and further that the Act takes away from those persons to whom his Highness is indebted no remedy which they now possess so long as they wholly abstain from accepting the advantages offered by the Government; they are precisely in the condition in which they were before the Act was passed, but if they avail themselves of those advantages, they must do so under the conditions under which the offer is made, and which the Act then renders obligatory.

SEARCH FOR COAL IN THE KISTNA DISTRICT.—Mr. A. J. Stuart, Acting Head Assistant Collector, Kistna District, reports that he has visited the villages in the neighbourhood of Juggiapettah, in which it is hoped that coal may be found, but could not learn that anything was known on the subject to the natives. He offered a reward of Rs. 20 for any information, but hitherto without success. He also made a collection of specimens from all the rocks in the neighbourhood, and an index referring to the places where they were found, as well as a geological map of the country so far as he was able to name the specimens found. Two specimens he has forwarded, with a memorandum, to Professor Oldham. Mr. Stuart also dug in several places, as indicated by Major Applegath, but was soon obliged to stop by coming to water. He nowhere found anything to lead him to hope for success. He found a considerable quantity of a soft white rock, which would be suitable for the manufacture of porcelain; he proposes to forward specimens of this to Dr. Hunter for trial at the School of Arts.—Madras Times, June 6.

THE MADRAS IRRIGATION AND CANAL COMPANY have resumed operations in Kurnool. From the Bellary district, where considerable distress prevailed, the official reports are favourable; and on the recommendation of the Collector the famine works have been discontinued. Cultivation had recommenced with the south-west monsoon, the ploughing of some of the lands having occurred even in anticipation of that event. Prices were falling and had reached the level of prosperous years; the only exception was rice. The new rice of the late (Vysack) crop had not, however, yet come into the market. The consumption of this grain is limited to the higher classes who can afford to consume it, or who, as in the case of the native army, have special compensation given during its dearth. The bulk of the population consumes cholam and raggy, which were selling at sixteen and eighteen measures respectively per rupee. The cultivation had exceeded that of the year 1865-66 up to April last by acres 68,662.—Athenæum and Daily News, July 13.

THE MADRAS BANK.—At a meeting of the directors of the Madras Bank yesterday (July 1) afternoon, a dividend at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum was declared for the half-year ended the 30th ult. It seems to have been generally anticipated that the bank would have been able to make a larger dividend, but the general stagnation of trade during the latter part of the half-year has, as might be supposed, limited the operations of the bank. We observe, however, that a balance in hand of Rs. 18,407-13-8 has been carried forward to the current half-year.

THE MADRAS COMMAND.—The telegraph has brought us intelligence that General McCleverty has been nominated to the command of the Madras Army, in succession to Sir Gaspar Le Marchant. The Home Government could not have made a more popular appointment, as General McCleverty is a great favourite here among all classes. The General's connection with India dates so far back as 1834, when he served with the 48th regt. in the campaign against the Rajah of Coorg. His tenure of the principal divisional command is so recent that we need not call attention to it.—Madras Times.

THE CHILKA LAKE CANAL, which Lord Napier set in progress when he visited Ganjam last year, has recently been opened under the auspices of Mr. Carmichael, the collector, who has succeeded Mr. Forbes in this district. Great activity has been displayed in the construction of the canal and the business-like way in which it was planned and executed is creditable to Lord Napier's administration.

THE CANTONMENT OF MYSORE TO BE ABANDONED.—The cantonment of Mysore is to be abandoned in consequence of the prevalence of sickness amongst the troops quartered there. Pending the selection of another site for a cantonment, the European troops will remain at French Rocks.

OFFICIAL CHANGES.—Mr. Newill, the Resident of Travancore, will shortly, it is said, proceed to England. In that case Mr. W. Robinson, Inspector General of the Madras police, will probably succeed Mr. Newill.

MISCELLANEOUS.

AN ELOPEMENT.—The circumstances connected with an elopement which occurred in Kurrachee on the night of the 21st have all of them come to our knowledge; but, as we are aware that the parents of the young lady who thought proper to trust more to her charmer than to those who gave her being and both protected and nourished throughout her childhood suffer deeply on her account, we shall limit ourselves to barely mentioning that a girl not sixteen years of age left her home at about ten o'clock on Friday night, and has not since been heard of, although every endeavour has been made to trace the course of her flight. With her a young man in very indigent circumstances, and one without a sous in his pocket, was also missed, and there is now no doubt, although nobody knows where the birds have flown, that they have gone together. The young lady took the precaution, ere she left the paternal roof, of getting together all her clothes and emptying her father's cash-box. What her parents wish—and it is a desire every Christian will respond to—is, that she may be happy, and that her Lothario may not tire of her ere the connubial knot be tied, and the union thereby sanctified.—Our Paper, June 25.

AN APOLOGIST FOR THE GUICOWAR OF BARODA, who was recently reprovved in such severe terms by the Government of Bombay for executing a private enemy by elephant-trampling, writes to the Bombay Gazette the following very faint praise of the chief who spends his leisure in marrying pigeons to each other:—"As Native States go the Guicowar's territories are fairly governed. The system of administration there will not bear comparison, it is true, with that obtaining under our direct rule, or even with that in a State like Travancore, but it is infinitely superior to that in the States of Rajpootana. The system of letting out districts to farmers has been abolished. A revenue survey has been set on foot, the several Pergunnahs have been placed under paid responsible officials, and courts have been instituted, modelled after the pattern of those in our own districts. I do not attempt to say that the old abuses have been all eradicated, that the spirit of our institutions has in all cases been borrowed together with the form." The writer concludes by refusing to defend the Guicowar through thick and thin, or to apologise for his childish or barbarous actions. But Colonel Barr went far beyond this. He not only apologised for but praised the Guicowar's acts. A policy of non-interference like Col. Barr's means ultimate annexation, and it is a lamentable proof of the degradation of our foreign policy that he should claim credit for doing nothing except give all moral support to oppression.

AN OFFICER KILLED BY HIS PONY.—We regret to learn of the death of Ensign Thomas Henry Peach, of H.M.'s 96th Foot, which occurred near Nemuch on the 8th inst., under somewhat extraordinary circumstances. He had been out tiger-shooting for a month, and on the expiry of his leave returned to the station, and got it extended for ten days, that he might prosecute his hunting. He had only proceeded one stage on his return journey to the jungle, when he is said to have been attacked by his own tataroo, knocked down, and mangled so severely about the throat that the injuries he sustained proved fatal. He was buried with military honours on the evening of the 6th inst.—Times of India, June 19.

THE BOMBAY POST-OFFICE.—The Delhi Gazette says:—There has been some fresh bungling in the Bombay Post-office again this time. Only a portion of what ought to have been the first despatch of the Overland Mail of the 3rd arrived here on Thursday. Another instalment reached us yesterday evening; and by the Australian mail (via Calcutta) a large batch of newspapers came to hand a day before a registered letter to our address. Are we drifting back to the state of things in which a Deputy Postmaster-General remarked that, instead of grumbling at delays, we ought to be surprised and thankful that we ever get any letters at all by the Indian Post-office?

ALLEGED ROBBERY AT THE INDIA-OFFICE.—A paragraph has appeared in the columns of some of our contemporaries, taken from an Irish paper, to the effect that a portion of the gold service supplied from the Royal table on the occasion of the entertainment of the Sultan had been stolen, and that the loss amounted to some thousands of pounds. We are glad to be able to state that this statement is quite without foundation. No portion of the Queen's plate has been lost, and the whole amount to be made good for losses and breakages is £94. 10s. 10d. It is only fair to say that, with the exception of the service lent by the Queen, the whole of the plate was supplied by Mr. Brunetti, and that, so far as "the refreshment department is concerned," he is confident that no loss has accrued to him through the neglect in attendants. Unfortunately, a large number of persons remained on the premises throughout the night, and obtained an entrance early in the morning, so that it is not surprising some portion of the plate should have been missing. In order, however, to set at rest all the alarming rumours that have been strewed about, it is sufficient to say that the total value of the plate lost by Mr. Brunetti does not exceed £34.

SOLDIERS' INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION, MEEAN MEER.

June 18.—The C. in C. in India has perused with much satisfaction the report of the Soldiers' Industrial Exhibition held at Meean Meer March 7 last.

After meeting all expenses, there is a balance credit of Rs. 4,566-8-9, which will be transferred to the account of the next Exhibition.

Many unfavourable circumstances have attended the late Exhibition. The time for preparation was short; the course of the annual reliefs had for the time removed six regiments from the circle of competition; and these causes, combined with others, reduced the number of competing regiments of cavalry and infantry to less than one-half what it was at the previous Exhibition of 1865. Yet notwithstanding these drawbacks the contributions were on the present occasion numerically equal, and in no way inferior as regards excellence of manufacture and intelligence of designs to those exhibited in 1865.

Sir William Mansfield has observed with much pleasure that Major-general Rainier, commanding the Lahore division, and the committee appointed by him, have been unremitting in their exertions to render the Exhibition a success, and H.E. would add to the satisfaction the results must afford them, his cordial acknowledgment of their services.

The prompt settlement of the accounts, and the manner in which the committee have conducted their duties generally, is extremely satisfactory.

Qrmer. Tucker, R.A., the hon. secy., especially deserves much credit for his praiseworthy exertions.

The 7th hussars stands first on the list of competing regts., the 35th second, and B baty., F. brig.,

R.H.A., third. The C. in C. congratulates these corps on their well deserved success, and at the same time desires to thank comdg. officers of other competing regts., and all who have interested themselves in the exhibition.

The fact that a cav. regt. heads the prize list reflects much credit on that branch of the service.

H.E. also particularly notices that the number of batteries of R.A. contributing to the Exhibition has increased from one in 1865 to seven on the present occasion. This is highly commendable in an arm of the service with so much to employ the time of the men professionally.

The report of the committee has been printed, and a copy will be furnished to each European regt. and baty. in this presidency. Sir William Mansfield desires that it may be circulated amongst the men, in order that the benefits which are within their reach may be fully known to them.

It should be also explained to the men that these exhibitions are not confined to the products of regimental workshops, but that prizes are freely awarded for articles displaying skill or ingenuity in every branch of industry. The only restrictive conditions are, that the articles must be "bona fide" the work of soldiers or their families; the latter should be especially encouraged to contribute.

The next Soldiers' Industrial Exhibition will be held at Lucknow, on or about March 1, 1868. The exact date will be fixed as local circumstances may suggest.

The officer commanding the Oude division will be good enough to appoint a central committee of management, and commanding officers of regiments will at once nominate regimental committees to act in concert with the central committee, and to assist and encourage their men in contributing to the forthcoming exhibition.

All British regiments of cavalry and infantry, and batteries of royal artillery which shall be quartered on Feb. 1 next in the Presidency, Benares, Oude, and Meerut divisions, the Rohilkund, Gwalior, Saugor, and Eastern Frontier districts, and the station of Delhi, will be permitted to contribute the produce of their workshops to the Lucknow Exhibition.

With the sanction of the Govt. of India, H.E. the C. in C. has the pleasure of notifying that the provisions of paras. 3 and 9 of the G.O.C.C. Oct. 11, 1865, page 215, standing orders, will apply to the ensuing exhibition.

June 20.—The local rank of capt. has been assigned to the underment. officer :—

Study of the Oriental Languages.

Simla, June 14.—No. 1,346.—The following rules have been framed for the encouragement of the study of Oriental languages among the junior members of the Bengal civil service, in supersession of the rules of Oct. 2, 1861, and are published for general information:—

The "rules for the examination and control of the newly-appointed members of the Bengal civil service," passed under date Oct. 2, 1861, are cancelled.

The following rules are prescribed for the encouragement of the study of Oriental languages among the junior members of the Bengal civil service. These rules do not in any way affect the departmental examinations in law, language, &c., which junior civilians have to pass under the orders of local Governments according to what are called the 1st and 2nd standards:—

The standards of examination, and the donations to be given to successful candidates, will be as follows, viz.:—

1. High Proficiency.—Vernacular Classical.

Hindustanee	Rs. 1,000
Hindee	1,000
Bengallee	1,000
Arabic	2,000
* Persian	2,000
Sanscrit	2,000

All with certificate from the presiding examiner.

2. Honours.

Hindustanee	Rs. 2,000
Hindee	2,000
Bengallee	2,000
Arabic	4,000
* Persian	4,000
Sanscrit	4,000

All with diploma signed by the head of the Government of India.

In respect of the classical languages (Arabic, Persian, and Sanscrit), there will also be a "preliminary examination" (intended to test the attainment of a fair knowledge of the language), which must be passed by all those who have not previously passed in the same language at any of the Indian Civil Service examinations in England, before they can be admitted to examination for higher distinctions.

4. The first language in which a civil servant will be permitted to offer himself for examination by the two higher standards will be—

For civil servants attached to the lower provinces of Bengal, Bengallee.

For civil servants attached to the upper provinces, Hindustanee or Persian.

And it is not till after a certificate of high proficiency shall have been obtained in such language that a civil servant will be eligible to present himself for distinctions in other languages.

5. No civil servant will ordinarily be permitted to appear more than twice as a candidate at any examination. But if a special recommendation be made by the examiners, a candidate will be allowed to appear at a third examination.

6. No civil servant will be permitted to present himself for any preliminary examination after the expiration of four years, counted from the date of his first arrival in India, or for the high proficiency or honour examinations after the expiration of seven and ten years respectively, similarly counted. No exception will be made to this rule on account of leave or any other cause.

7. Civil servants who may have passed examinations under the rules of 1861 (cancelled in para. 1 above), shall not be eligible to compete at corresponding examinations in the same language or languages under the rules now passed.

8. Examinations will be held quarterly on the first Mondays in January, April, July, and October of each year at Calcutta. Civil servants desirous of attending examinations must apply for leave to do so to the Local Government at least 3 months before the date of the examination.

2. The following is the test for the preliminary examination:—

(1).—Constructing with readiness and accuracy from the undermentioned books:—

Arabic.—Ajab-ul-Ajab, Nafhat-ul-Yuman (1st part).

Persian.—Iqd-i-Gul, Iqd-i-Manzum.

Sanscrit.—Riju Patba.

(2).—Translating into English with accuracy a passage, in an easy narrative style, not taken from the Test-books.

(3).—Translating intelligibly, and with accuracy of grammar, into the language in which the examination is held an English paper of an easy narrative style.

(4).—Translating in like manner a paper of English sentences.

10.—The following is the test for the High Proficiency Examination:—

1.—Constructing with readiness and accuracy from the undermen. books:—

(2).—Hindee.—Rajneeti, Prem Sagur, Vidyankur.

(3).—Bengallee.—Dasa Kumar Charita, Betal Panchabishati, Purnush Parikya.

(5).—Persian.—Gulistan, Bostan, Anwari So-hellee.

* N.B.—Persian has been placed on the same footing as Arabic and Sanscrit, because the Governor-general in Council considers it very expedient specially to encourage the study of that language by the members of the Civil Service.

(6).—Sanskrit.—Hitopadesha, Raghuvansa.

11.—Translating from and into English, as prescribed in the test for the preliminary examination, but from papers of a more difficult nature, and with greater accuracy of idiom and neatness of expression.

11. The following is the test for the honour examination:—

I.—Constructing with readiness and accuracy from the underment. books:—

(2).—Hindee.—Rukmini parinaya, Sabha Bilas, Ramayan, by Tulsi Das, Ram Geetaboli.

(3).—Bengallee.—Kadambari, Dasa Kumar Charita, Mahabharata, Prabodh Chandrika.

(4).—Arabic.—Hammassah, Talmur Namah, Muqamati Hariri.

(5).—Persian.—Akhlaiqi Julali, Inshai Abulfuzl, Sikandar Namah, Dewani Hafiz.

(6).—Sanskrit.—Viracharita, Kirtarjunia, Sakantala Nattaka.

II.—Translating into English with accuracy two passages, one in prose and the other in poetry, selected from some difficult work, not being a test-book.

III.—Translating a difficult passage from English, with accuracy, elegance, and neatness of expression, and perfect correctness of spelling and grammar.

IV.—Conversing (in the vernacular languages) with accuracy and fluency.

12. The honour examination will be of a searching nature, and the exercises, both oral and written, must be performed with such excellence as distinctly to establish a claim to eminent proficiency.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

THE SIMLA COURT-MARTIAL.

Mr. BRETT moved that an address be presented to her Majesty, praying that she would consider the sentence of the court-martial held at Simla on Captain Jervis, with a view to reinstate that officer in his rank in the army and in his regiment. Captain Jervis, he stated, was tried on charges of having fraudulently misappropriated the property of Sir W. Mansfield, the Commander-in-Chief of the forces in India, whose aide-de-camp he was, and with acts of insubordination. The Court acquitted him of the charges of fraud, but found him guilty of insubordination, and he was sentenced to be dismissed from the service; but this was accompanied with a recommendation to mercy in consideration of the extenuating circumstances disclosed in the evidence. This recommendation, however, Sir W. Mansfield, who was practically the prosecutor and a party in the case, disregarded. His decision was laid before the Commander-in-Chief in this country and the Secretary for War, who confirmed it, but they accompanied this by a direction that he be paid a sum of £1,800, the value of his commission. The hon. member then enlarged on the facts, and read extracts from the papers which have been published on the subject, showing a course of petty tyranny pursued by Sir W. Mansfield towards Captain Jervis, and that, after the verdict, Sir W. Mansfield required the court-martial to reconsider their decision, and that they did so, and adhered to their decision; but, notwithstanding this, Sir W. Mansfield issued a general order, in which he reiterated the charges.

General PEEL regretted that this motion had been brought forward, and that the Secretary for War had agreed to the production of the despatch from the Commander-in-Chief in England to the Commander-in-Chief in India. The despatch, he said, was submitted to him before it was sent, and it had his approval, but he should not have approved of it if he had known it would become public. The carrying of this motion would be virtually to censure the conduct of the Commander-in-Chief in England and the Secretary for War, and he submitted that the House ought not to make itself a court of appeal in cases of this kind, and thus interfere with the discipline of the army.

After some further discussion, in the course of which Mr. DUTTON and Mr. HOWES defended the conduct of Sir W. Mansfield, whom they both described as their near connection, Sir J. PAKINGTON justified himself for producing the despatch of the Commander-in-Chief in England, which was not a private but a public document. He insisted on the impropriety of making the House of Commons a court of appeal in matters of this kind, and he said that substantial justice had been done in this case. He did not defend Sir W. Mansfield, who had been guilty of great indiscretion, and whose conduct was open to censure and rebuke, and he had been rebuked by the highest authority in the army.

The Marquis of HARTINGTON did not go the length of General Peel in deprecating the interference of the House in matters of this nature, but thought the House should be careful in interfering in cases of a personal nature, and especially in making itself a court of appeal from a tribunal whose decision was confirmed by the Commander-in-Chief.

Mr. OTWAY moved an amendment to the effect that the address should pray her Majesty to give effect to the recommendations of mercy.

Mr. BRETT accepted the amendment; but, on a division, it was negatived by 66 to 48.

ABYSSINIA.

Mr. H. SEYMOUR asked the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs if he did not consider that it would facilitate the release of the Abyssinian captives to have an English gentleman of position and experience to perform the duties of English consul at Massowah, instead of a German gentleman, who acted as agent both for the French and English Governments.

Lord STANLEY said there were no consular duties to be performed at Massowah; and the only object of our having an agent there at all was to keep up a communication with those unfortunate gentlemen to whom the question referred. The matter had been very much left to Colonel Merewether, the resident at Aden; and that gentleman was perfectly satisfied with the qualifications of the consul.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—AUGUST 12.

THE INDIAN BUDGET.

On the motion that the House go into Committee on the Indian Budget,

Mr. ARYTON moved a series of resolutions affirming that it is desirable that the Governor-General of India be empowered to conduct the business of each department of government, in concert with one or more members of his Council, instead of the whole Council; that, in order to ensure better attention to the affairs of trade and agriculture, an additional member of Council be appointed to superintend those affairs; that the Government of Bengal be placed on the same footing as that of Bombay; that one nominated and one elected member of the Council of the Secretary of State for India should cease to hold office in rotation at the end of each year; that the existing practice of recording by resolution of this House certain financial facts relating to India be discontinued, and that the estimates for all expenditure in Europe of the Secretary of State for India be approved by the House before the same is incurred. These resolutions he enforced in a speech of some length, in which he pointed out the defects of the present system.

Mr. KINNAIRD seconded, and said with regard to the famine in Orissa he did not think the Government at home were blameless, for there was a company in existence which had for its object the construction of irrigation works in that district several years before the famine occurred, but they could not proceed with the works on account of the little encouragement given to them by the Government.

Sir S. NORTHGOTE hoped the House would not be led into a general discussion on the many subjects involved in these resolutions, but that they should proceed to the main business of the evening, which was the Indian budget. With regard to the members of the council, the practice was already in accordance with that which the hon. member recommended, each member being charged with a separate department. He admitted, however, that there were questions with regard to the council which deserved consideration. The question of retirement of the members of the Council of the Secretary of State would soon receive a solution, the members being allowed to retire on a pension after ten years' service, which had not yet expired. He did not think the House should vote the estimates of the expenditure in this country on Indian account, but he admitted that the accounts ought to be brought more under the direct supervision of the House, and he proposed to introduce certain alterations in them in order to effect that object.

Mr. LAING was not disposed to deny that there were defects in our system of government in India, for the recent occurrences in Orissa were a proof of that, but on the whole that system had been a splendid success. Since the mutiny property in India had risen 25 per cent. in value, and wages had risen in proportion, and the commerce of the country had reached a figure unparalleled in the history of that country. He believed that we were only at the commencement of the era of improvement in India. The railway system in that country he looked upon as a great success. The Government of India, he thought, should be a persona Government.

The discussion was continued by Mr. H. SEYMOUR, who contrasted our system with that of Russia, which he considered the better, and which would be preferred by the people in India; by Lord CRANBORNE, who attributed many of the defects observable in the administration of India to the system of centralisation; by Mr. J. S. MILL, who pointed out that the governors in India, when first sent from this country, were necessarily for a time dependent on their council; and by Mr. J. B. SMITH, who complained of the systematic refusal of the Government to give any assistance in promoting the growth of cotton in India.

The resolutions were then withdrawn, the House went into Committee, and

Sir S. NORTHGOTE proceeded to make the annual statement of the finances of India. The actual accounts they had received were for the year ended the 30th April, 1866; but it was not necessary for him to make a statement as to them, because the time was so long past that the interest of them had passed away. With regard to 1866-7, the receipts were estimated at £46,725,000, and the expenditure at £46,800,000. It was difficult to compare the actual results with those of the year preceding, because the year 1866-7 was curtailed of one month, with the object of bringing the Indian budget sooner before Parliament. But the general result was unsatisfactory, because whereas they had estimated a deficit of £75,000, the actual deficit was about £2,400,000. This he attributed to a deficit of revenue from opium of £952,000, of £40,000 on the receipts from the Mint, and of £524,000 from the failure of the land sales in Bombay, and to an increased payment in respect of railways to the amount of £400,000, and to an item of about £580,000 for transports. It would be asked whether it was possible to reduce the expenditure, and he did not think it possible to bring about any great reduction. The guarantee on railways was gradually decreasing. The interest on the debt of the United Kingdom was 37 per cent. of the revenue; in India it was 11 per cent. The debt had increased since the mutiny, but not at so great a rate as the revenue. The expenditure on public works in England was 1 per cent. on the revenue; in India it was 12 per cent. There had been many serious difficulties about carrying on irrigation works, but this matter was now put on a better footing both in Madras and Bombay, and also in Scinde and the North-West Provinces, and there was no fear now that these works would lag. It had been determined to borrow £700,000 to carry on irrigation works, and to advance £1,000,000 to Bombay, to be repaid by the sales of land, and to advance £520,000 to Calcutta for the purpose of executing the waterworks for that city, and which would also be repaid. For these purposes it was proposed to borrow a little more than two millions. Excluding these items, the expenditure for the ensuing year was calculated at £47,340,000, and the revenue at £46,283,000, showing a deficiency £1,057,000. To meet this Mr. Massey proposed to levy a license tax which he calculated would produce £500,000, leaving a deficiency still to be provided of £557,000, which he proposed to transfer to the loan raised for the remodelling of barracks. The license tax was very unpopular, and application had been made to him to veto it; but he had declined to do so, though he did not approve of the incidence of the tax; but he thought he saw in it a means by which local government might to some extent be carried on, and the general government be to some extent de-centralised. With regard to the income, it was estimated that there would be an increase of £200,000 in the land revenue. In regard to customs, a considerable change had taken place, there being now only sixty-five classes of articles which were charged, all others being admitted free of duty, and there were only nine articles on which an export duty was charged. These charges had caused a loss to the revenue of £140,000, and to make this up an additional anna per maund had been charged on grain. It was not a heavy charge, but he regretted that it had been imposed. The salt-tax was estimated to yield an increase of £500,000, and stamps £500,000, but the receipts for public works were estimated to fall short of those of last year by about £500,000. The right hon. gentleman concluded by moving certain formal resolutions.

Mr. CRAWFORD expressed his strong disapproval of the imposition of export duties, and Mr. LAING condemned the Licence-tax.

The discussion was continued by Mr. M'LAREN and Mr. BAZLEY, after which the resolutions were agreed to.

MISCELLANEOUS.

MONUMENT TO INDIAN OFFICERS.—101ST FUSILIERS.—A monument to the memory of the officers and men of the Royal Bengal Fusiliers who fell at the Umbayla Pass, in 1863, has just been erected in Winchester Cathedral. The monument contains the words, "Plassey and Pegu," where the regiment gained honour. The names of the honoured dead mentioned on the monument are Lieut. Chapman, Ensign Sanderson, Surgeon Pile, Corporal Dix, Drummer Newby, and three of twenty-two privates who fell at the Umbayla Pass.

ADDITIONS TO THE ZOOLOGICAL SOCIETY'S GARDENS.—The Marian Moore, from Calcutta, which came up the river on Tuesday, the 6th inst., had on board a valuable collection of living animals for the Zoological Society of London, under the care of Mr. Clarence Bartlett, the society's agent, who went out to Calcutta some months ago to bring them home. The collection embraces two of the large wild Indian cattle called gayals, a Panolia deer, two fine Indian pelicans, four demoselle cranes, a Himalayan badger, two black Tibetan wolves, and other animals, altogether upwards of twenty in number. Most of them are presents to the society from its various corresponding members in India.

BILLS ON INDIA.—The biddings for Government bills on India took place on Wednesday, the 7th inst., at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were: to Calcutta, 16,73,000 rupees; to Madras, 2,10,000 rupees; and to Bombay, 10,00,000 rupees. The minimum price was fixed at 1s. 11d. on all the presidencies. Tenders at 1s. 11½d. on Calcutta and Madras will receive in full; those at that price on Bombay about 48 per cent. All tenders above that price will receive in full. These prices indicate a slight increase in the demand for export of specie to the East.

DESPATCH OF THE BOMBAY MAIL.—(SOUTHAMPTON, Aug. 12.)—The Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamship Syria, Captain Christian, sailed hence this afternoon, with mails for Gibraltar, the Mediterranean, Egypt, Aden, Bombay, and Upper Bengal. She took out thirty-five passengers and a general cargo, including gold and silver watches, jewellery, &c., value £566.

MAJOR-GENERAL BROOK TAYLOR is about to be appointed to a division in Bengal.—Army and Navy Gazette.

Whitmore's Compound Lineament of Arnica,
A SPECIFIC for the CURE of RHEUMATISM, LUMBAGO, SCIATICA, SPRAINS, CONTUSIONS, WEAKNESS of the JOINTS, CHILBLAINS, &c.
It is also an excellent remedy as a stimulating application to the surface of the chest and back in bronchitis, inflammation of the lungs, pulmonary consumption, and whooping cough. When the liver is inactive, rubbed over it, its stimulating properties have a beneficial effect, and in all cases where counter irritation is desirable, it will be found invaluable.
In bottles, quarter-pints, half-pints, and pints.

Wilkinson's Bronchio-Thoracic Lozenges.
Prepared from the receipt of an eminent Physician, and experience has fully justified their recommendation as the most speedy remedy in irritation of the throat, catarrhal coughs, bronchitis, incipient consumption, spitting of blood, &c., &c. To public speakers and vocalists they will be found invaluable, as they impart a clear and beautiful tone to the voice. Free from any preparation of opium, and of an agreeable taste, they are applicable to all.

Whitmore's Stomachic Dinner Pills.
No Pill is so efficacious in promoting digestion, strengthening the stomach, correcting acidity, preventing or removing headache, giddiness, &c., arising from a costive habit, debilitated stomach, or torpid liver.
They require no change of diet, and those of the most delicate constitution may take them with safety.
Taken as an adjunct with WILKINSON'S SARSAPARILLA with the greatest success.
Prepared by THOMAS WILKINSON (late Bridge and Co.), 270, Regent-street, London, W.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT and PILLS.
—SURE RELIEF.—The weak and enervated suffer severely from nervous affections when storms or electric disturbances agitate the atmosphere. Neuralgia, gouty pains, and flying pains, very distressing to a delicate system, may be readily removed by rubbing this Ointment upon the affected part after it has been fomented with warm water. The Pills taken occasionally in the doses prescribed by the instructions keep the digestion in order, excite a free flow of healthy bile, and regenerate the impoverished blood with richer materials, resulting from thoroughly assimilated food; wanting which, the strongest must inevitably sink into feebleness, and the delicate find it difficult to maintain existence. Holloway's Ointment and Pills are infallible remedies.

RUPTURES.—BY HER MAJESTY'S ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS,

Perfected and Exhibited in the Great Exhibition of 1851, is allowed by upwards of 200 Medical Gentlemen to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so often hurtful in its effects, is here avoided; a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected, and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit) forwarded by post on the circumference of the body two inches below the hips being sent to the Manufacturer, MR. WHITE, 228, Piccadilly London.

Price of a Single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., and 31s. 6d.; postage, 1s. Price of Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d.; postage, 1s. 8d. Umbilical, 42s. and 52s. 6d.; postage, 1s. 10d.

ISSUED BY PERMISSION OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA IN COUNCIL.

TEXTILE MANUFACTURES and COSTUMES of the PEOPLE of INDIA

(As originally prepared under the authority of the Secretary of State for India in Council),

BY J. FORBES WATSON, M.A., M.D., F.R.A.S.,
Reporter on the Products of India.

Imperial 4to, morocco back, cloth, with numerous Coloured Photographs. £3. 5s.

This work—by affording a Key to the Fashions of the People, and to the Cotton, Silk, and Wool Textiles in actual use in India—is of special interest to Manufacturers, Merchants, and Agents; as also to the student and lover of ornamental art.

"If the manufacturer studies this book carefully he may add thousands a year to his profits, and there are not five books in the world of which that could be said. Altogether this book is thoroughly creditable to Dr. Forbes Watson's industry and acumen, and to the liberality of the India-office."—Spectator, Jan. 5, 1867.

"The conception [this splendid work reflects the highest credit upon the wisdom of the department to which we are indebted for its publication; and the manner in which it has been executed by its author, Dr. J. Forbes Watson, is conclusive evidence of his being the right man in the right place. No one can fully appreciate the value of this work without seeing it, because neither analysis nor extracts can give any idea of the immense mass of minute facts which it contains and the admirable manner in which they are grouped and made subservient to the practical requirements of the manufacturer and the merchant, and the cravings of the student of ornamental art. The illustrations are as magnificent as they are appropriate. In fact, as mere productions of beauty and taste, they give the work the air of a book of art luxury, and we have no doubt that from this feature it will find many admirers and purchasers beyond the ranks of trade and commerce. We ought to state that the Secretary of State for India not only deserves the highest praise for having had this work prepared and distributed, but likewise for having allowed a publisher to use the type and photographic plates so as to be able to produce a certain number of copies for sale. In no other way could copies of this unique and costly volume have been offered to the public at a reasonable price."—Morning Post, Jan. 3, 1867.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

THE Bombay mail brings us our usual papers from Calcutta to the 18th of July, Madras to the same date, and Bombay to the 24th of the month.

The Calcutta papers are principally occupied in discussing the Governor-General's despatch upon the Orissa famine. The opinion on the subject, it need scarcely be added, is as much against Sir Cecil Beadon as ever. In the meantime, accounts from Orissa are not encouraging. The distress has increased again with the rains, and the only consolation is that the Government have plenty of resources to meet it.

The Licence-tax is being slowly collected, but although there has been no opposition yet it continues to create considerable dissatisfaction, which is enhanced by the knowledge that the revenues of the empire are most promising, and that there is every prospect of a surplus.

The Bank of Bengal has issued its half-yearly report and declared a dividend of 10 per cent. per annum. The negotiations for amalgamation with the Bank of Bombay are still pending, but in the meantime the Bengal Bank has applied for permission to establish a branch in the Western Presidency until the question of amalgamation is disposed of.

The Lieutenant-governor of Bengal was to leave on a tour through the tea districts on the 23rd inst.

From all the districts in Bengal the reports regarding the rain, crops, and public health, continue to be very favourable. In the North-West, however, the cholera has been a great deal at work. Peshawur suffered most, and the disease made its appearance even in Simla.

The Friend of India has called attention to an old source of scandal in Burmah, in which the Government have again interfered. A report on "the state of the staff corps of the three Presidencies in 1872," lately sent in to Government by Colonel Hervey, C.B., shows that in that year of grace the liabilities of Government for "off-reckonings" will be something astounding, as all lieutenant-colonels of 1861 will be entitled to them. It also proves that in 1872, at the present rate of promotion, there will be twelve subalterns in the Bengal, one in the Madras, and four in the Bombay staff corps remaining. The colonel recommends that one hundred annuities be granted between the three presidencies yearly, until the great excess of officers of superior rank is got rid of.

In the North-West the "Lahore Scandals" are still a fruitful theme for gossip. They are more complicated than ever. In reference to one of the cases involved, the Delhi Gazette says:—"The libel suit between Dr. Leitner and Major Strutt at Lahore has ended by the latter agreeing to apologise in a public manner, and to pay a certain sum of money. The other suit, 'Hemraj v. Leitner,' has been withdrawn. As regards Dr. Leitner's attack on the agent of the Punjab and Delhi Railway Company, it is said that Government have ordered an investigation into the truth of the charges. If so, this will take the wind out of Dr. Leitner's sails. The libel case will virtually be decided by the inquiry. There are some advantages in being a servant of the Government while editing a newspaper." But the Englishman, on the other hand, declares:—"The story which has been going the round of the press, that the libel cases at Lahore had been compromised, would seem to have been premature in its conclusions. Negotiations were indeed opened with a view to compromises being carried out, but they have broken down; and Dr. Leitner goes on with his case against Major Strutt, whilst Hemraj prosecutes his action against Dr. Leitner." Two of the cases, however, appear to have been settled. The Delhi Gazette of a later date tells us that "all the parties being present in court on Saturday, the 13th of July, after a further hearing of the case of Leitner v. Strutt, the deputy commissioner of Lahore proceeded to deliver judgment in the case of Elphinstone v. Leitner. Mr. Aitcheson expressed his belief that there really was no cause of action, commented on the evidence for plaintiff, and concluded by dismissing the suit as against the plaintiff with costs. Our informant, who may not be altogether impartial, adds that the judgment is said to have been received with considerable surprise by those present, as, though heavy damages were not looked for, it was generally believed the plaintiff had made out a good case." And later still the same paper publishes the following telegram:—"Case of Leitner v. Strutt has been decided in favour of plaintiff, damages fifteen hundred, costs in proportion. Railway commission sits Saturday. Elmslie of Jullunder, member in room of Fitzpatrick, objected to."

The Russians seem to be master of the situation in Central Asia. The Emir is said to be convinced of the futility of all resistance. He has, therefore, resigned himself to his fate, and has resolved to endeavour to save by diplomacy some of that state and dignity which he has been unable to preserve by arms. Satisfied that he is entirely at the mercy of his enemies he has despatched an Elchee or ambassador to St. Petersburg to solicit the forbearance of the Czar, and to make an offer under which the Emir will hold his kingdom dependent on Russia, and subject to the payment of an annual tribute to be fixed by the Emperor. Now, however, that the Russian troops have shown that they are strong enough to hold the country in the teeth of all opposition, the Emir will probably discover that his submission has come too late.

There has been another accident on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway. A viaduct fell in on the morning of the 19th ult., but fortunately without inflicting any loss of life. The viaduct in question was on the Bhoze Ghaut, and was known as the "Mhow-Kee-Mulla," or No. 5 viaduct, being about six miles beyond Kurjut and three miles on the Bombay side of Thakoorwadee; £60,000 are set down as the estimated cost of replacing it according to one plan proposed, viz., raising a solid embankment between the abutments of the fallen viaduct, a work which would require half a million of cubic yards of earth and stone.

The Tersah, 1,446 tons, Captain Anderson, commander, bound from Newcastle, New South Wales, with a cargo of coals for Bombay, was wrecked on the 17th inst., about nine miles from Bombay, at Alihaugh, and eight of her crew drowned. On the following morning a lifeboat in tow of the steamer Sind, which had been despatched to render assistance to the wreck, was upset, and seven of her crew, which consisted of twelve Chinamen, were drowned.

The next arrival from India will be the Calcutta mail, which is due in London on the 28th inst.

ANOTHER "Simla Scandal" will be found mentioned among our extracts. Sir William Mansfield is again concerned, as well as one of his aide-de-camps, and the part of the pickles is played by a leg of mutton! The story as it has reached us from a private source is this:—A certain distinguished lady, not quite unconnected with the Jervis affair, complained to Captain Byng of the disappearance of a leg of mutton, remarking that a sheep has four feet, and that only three of them had been represented at the table. The responsibility of the loss was, it is added, thrown upon the aide-de-camp, and the mutton was actually found in his room. What would have been the consequence it is difficult to say; but fortunately the depredator was found to be a Khitmutgar, so the aide-de-camp remains sans peur et sans reproche. Those who made the mistake are very much mortified, and everybody else is laughing.

The Secretary of State for India has approved of the recommendation of the Governor-general, that one or two officers connected with each Government and administration should be nominated as a committee for assisting Mr. Dowleans in the selection of return presents for those chiefs and noblemen who have presented contributions to the Paris Exhibition, and he has accordingly decided to ask the Hon. Ashley Eden, Mr. Goodenough, and Mr. Jenkins on behalf of the Lower Provinces of Bengal and the Punjab, and, in addition to them, Dr. Braidwood, Curator of the Museum at Bombay, and Mr. C. A. Lawson, late Secretary to the Central Committee at Madras, to act in the capacity for their respective Governments.

It is expected that the Mont Cenis Railway will be opened for traffic next month. Captain Tyler, R.E., has proceeded to Paris in order to conduct a negotiation with the French Post-office authorities for the future transmission of the Eastern mails through France and Italy to Brindisi.

EUROPEAN SERVANT TO INDIA.

—Messrs. ALLEN and CO. are desirous of RECOMMENDING a EUROPEAN SERVANT to notice. She wishes to accompany a Lady to India, or take charge of Children proceeding thither. The Lady with whom she lived in India for a period of three years, and with whom she returned home, can satisfy any inquiries. A moderate remuneration would be accepted, as the woman's chief object is to join her children in Calcutta. She would not object to continue her services in India.—Address, 13, Waterloo-place, London, S.W.

DEPARTURE OF THE CALCUTTA AND CHINA MAILS.—(SOUTHAMPTON, Aug. 20.)—The Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamship Ceylon, Captain Evans, sailed hence this afternoon with mails for Gibraltar, the Mediterranean, Egypt, Aden, Ceylon, India, China, Australia, and New Zealand. She took out fifty-eight passengers, and a full cargo, including jewellery, watches, pearls, &c., £5,207. 10s.; sovereigns, £1,000; dollars, £855; and gold thread, £1,268. 13s. Amongst the passengers by the Ceylon are Captains Bromley, Stevenson, Ward, and Tonnochy; Major Field, Dr. Carroll, and Lieutenant Legge.

THE RAILWAY TO DARJEELING.—We have been told that the local authorities of the Eastern Bengal Railway Company have strongly recommended its London board of directors to take up the Darjeeling line at once, and have applied for funds for the purpose. Arrangements have already been made to commence the surveying operations on the proposed line early next cold season. The local officers here have also submitted an estimate, and have intimated to the board that the expenses for constructing the line have been computed at the cheap rate of £8,000 per mile. It is also said that after the completion of this line the company intend to take up the Assam line.

HIGH COURT INTERPRETERS.—We hear that the Chief Justices of the High Courts at Calcutta, Bombay, Madras, and the N. W. Provinces have severally recommended to the Government of India to appoint an European interpreter in the above-mentioned courts, who should be well conversant with the Urdu, Arabic, Sanskrit, Bengalee, Portuguese, and the Canarese languages, on a salary of Rs. 1,000 per mensem. The Government of India, however, declined to accede to the above recommendation, on the score that cases of the natives of Portugal and the Canara Isles residing in this country seldom come before those Courts, and that such a heavy expenditure, therefore, appeared to be unnecessary.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

WEDNESDAY, August 21, 1867.

INDIA IN PARLIAMENT.

A MEMBER of the House of Commons asked Sir Stafford Northcote a few days since when he would bring forward the Indian Budget. The question was received with laughter—so we are informed by the reports in the daily papers. The Indian Secretary has since made his statement, which, so far from being a comic affair, is rather more serious than usual. That is to say, it was the occasion of a debate of a very important character, having reference, not only to the finance of the year, but to the permanent policy of our administration.

It is remarkable, too, that the discussion took place before the budget was brought forward, being founded upon a special proposition, introduced upon the order of the day for going into committee. Sir Stafford Northcote naturally endeavoured to divert the stream from this irregular channel, but his efforts were unavailing. The stream would not be diverted. There was an evident inspiration in the starting point, and when debaters once began to make the running, you could no more have stopped them than you could have stopped the competitors for the Derby somewhere about Tattenham Corner.

Mr. Ayrton began it. His motion embraced a series of proposals, to the effect that the Governor-general of India be empowered to conduct the business of each department of Government in concert with one or more members of his Council instead of the whole Council; that, in order to ensure better attention to the affairs of trade and agriculture, an additional member of Council be appointed for their superintendence; that the Government of Bengal be placed on the same footing as the Government of Bombay; that one nominated and one elected member of the Council of the Secretary of India should cease to hold office by rotation at the end of each year; and that the existing practice of recording by resolution of the House facts relating to the Finances of India be discontinued, and the estimates for all expenditure in Europe be approved by the House before being incurred.

These are a tolerably long string of changes, and Mr. Ayrton discussed them with thorough earnestness, in which he was well supported by the speakers who followed, so that when the Budget came at last, it was looked upon as a detail of the discussion, a matter of minor importance. It happened fortunately, too, that the financial statement, besides being relatively insignificant, had not in itself any strong claims upon attention. The facts set forth, none of them very satisfactory, were for the most part known before. Mr. Massey had already broken the melancholy news of the deficit; all Sir Stafford Northcote could do was to tell us how it was to be met. This was soon done, and the expedient being one of an ordinary character, there was no temptation to continue the debate to any great length. Mr. Ayrton's motion still remains, therefore, the chief feature of the debate, and it must be said for the House of Commons that they treated it in a spirit worthy of its importance. That the changes recommended are generally desirable was very freely admitted by the Secretary of State. The first goes for nothing, as the plan recommended is already practically in force—that is to say, the Viceroy, in dealing with any particular subject, does so with the especial assistance of the member of Council most proper for the purpose, and the agreement of the general body is rather a matter of form than of fact. The next suggestion—for the appointment of an extra member—goes, of course, to complete the arrangement, and trade and agriculture certainly claim this degree of attention. But Mr. Ayrton has been to some extent anticipated in his idea by the nomination of Colonel Strachey to what seems to be called the "Irrigation Department," and it is not improbable that this officer's functions will be ultimately assigned in the general way proposed. Not, however, that Mr. Ayrton is likely to be the representative man, as he evidently ought to be according to the account which he gave of his qualifications for the office. He is an incurably "independent member," and can never be persuaded that an official man can have a conscience or be actuated by any aspiration beyond the popular idea of drawing his pay and not doing his duty. Mr. Laing, who was always a superior man, and whose views are tempered by experience of office, spoke in a very different spirit, and showed that Indian administration is very far from being the foolish failure which indiscriminate reformers suppose. That there have been great shortcomings as regards irrigation we all know, but even this ground of complaint is at an end; for, however late in the day, the Government have arrived at a policy in this respect, and are taking the best means to carry it out; while, as regards railways and the electric telegraph—which Mr. Ayrton made special subjects of attack—they may fairly claim credit for vigorous and successful action. The member for the Tower Hamlets, too, is curiously inconsistent in condemning the Government for neglecting public works, and at the same time blaming them for employing the public money for their encouragement. He ought surely to know that but for the guarantee of which he complains we should not at the present moment have a mile of railway in India, and so far from the lines being uniformly unremunerative, they are fast becoming paying concerns, and will soon become independent of the Government altogether.

That the Bengal Government will be remodelled in something like the manner proposed may safely be expected, but it is not likely that the Governor will be left without a Council. That functionary, selected, as he will be for the future, from home, instead of from the local service, will not be able to do without this assistance; nor indeed is there any reason why the Governor of Bengal should be without a council any more than the Governor of Bombay or Madras. There was a great deal of truth in what was said the other night about personal responsibility, but there was a little nonsense also; and it is absurd to suppose that a stranger sent out to rule a province could gain in self-reliance through being deprived of his proper advisers. As for the change suggested in the Indian Council, Sir Stafford Northcote showed that it is already being brought about in the natural course of things. The proposition concerning the finances was, of course, not so easily dealt with. It is of too sweeping a character to be accepted without consideration, and the consideration, we suspect, is likely to last a long time. The subject, however, was one proper to the debate, which was altogether of a useful character, and highly creditable to those who took part in it.

EXEMPTION OF NATIVES FROM ATTENDANCE AT COURTS.—There has been a correspondence between the Chamber of Commerce and the Government on the subject of the exemption of certain natives from attendance at Courts, made by Sir Cecil Beadon, under section 22 of Act VIII. of 1859, on February 7 last. The result at the time provoked a considerable amount of unfavourable comment, and has since been visited with the disapproval of the Viceroy. Sir John Lawrence has laid down a simple and plain rule, which, if followed, will save the minor governments from such scandals as that on which this correspondence treats. The Viceroy considers that exemptions from attendance at Court should only be granted in cases of "pre-existing rank;" a decision in which the present Lieutenant-Governor concurs.

BENGAL.

MANNERS AND MORALS IN BURMAH.

Now that the most serious of the Lahore squabbles have been arrested by the prompt interference of the Government of India, a far more disgraceful scandal, affecting a whole province, comes to us from the other side of India. Colonel Fyche, Chief Commissioner of British Burmah, has found it necessary to address the following "confidential circular" to the Commissioners of the three divisions and to the heads of civil departments:—

RANGOON, June 19, 1867.

The Chief Commissioner is aware that some officers holding appointments in this province openly keep women of the country domiciled in their dwelling-houses, or under very slight disguise within the limits of their compounds.

2. The immorality of such a practice the Chief Commissioner will not dilate upon—that he leaves the officers concerned to settle with their own consciences. But being responsible for the good government of the country committed to his charge, the Chief Commissioner will not tolerate what he considers must be baneful to its administration.

3. With a race like the Burmese, accustomed under their former Native Government to bribery and chicanery, it is probable that in no case is a Burmese Mistress altogether free from evil influences. It is a common belief amongst the natives of the country that such women intrigue to prevent suitors and others obtaining a hearing, or approaching officers of Government thus situated, except through a corrupt source; and the Chief Commissioner has known of instances where the practice in question has led to serious imputations against officers themselves.

4. Therefore, commissioners and heads of departments are required to issue this circular to every officer under them, and to every officer who may hereafter enter their departments. They are further required in every instance when submitting officers' names for promotion, as well as in their confidential reports, to notice any case in which an officer is addicted to this practice of keeping women in a state of concubinage in his house or about his premises. In no case will such officers be promoted; and it will, moreover, after the issue of this notice be a matter for consideration whether they should not be summarily removed from their appointments.

The extent and corrupting influence of the practice condemned may be imagined from the fact that some inspecting officials have threatened to resign rather than report cases which are notorious. So poisoned does local society seem to have become, that one of the two Rangoon papers publishes a disgraceful defence of this concubinage, in language worthy of Holywell-street, arguing that it should be let alone because it is so common. The Chief Commissioner is threatened with certain disclosures if he will not "drop the thing." When we first took possession of the Punjab and Pegu Lord Dalhousie, knowing the temptations put in the way of officers who could not take their wives with them to a new country, exacted "on honour" a promise of correct living. The conduct of our army in Afghanistan is well known, and many look on our disasters in that country as a punishment from heaven. What up to the present day English "officers and gentlemen" have been guilty of in Cashmere and the Himalayan districts the late Bishop Cotton's gentle protest testifies. Critics in more than one English journal lately pointed to a passage in a fashionable novel, in which the hero ruins and causes the suicide of a Himalayan girl, as "a charming idyll." From all our non-feudatory provinces the evil thing has been eradicated except from British Burmah. Just seven years ago Captain Grant's case revealed the same state of things which has again called forth Colonel Fyche's interference. Then, as now, the highest officials sympathised with the practice, and two of them, when sitting as judges on Captain Grant who was condemned by the Viceroy and the Secretary of State, dared to hint charges against the fair fame of Sir A. Phayre by way of retaliation for his interference. On that occasion Lord Canning heartily supported the Chief Commissioner, declaring—"There are in these proceedings frequent traces of a shameless and open profligacy which you justly consider to be a scandal to our administration. You may be assured of the support of Government." But the evil was not then eradicated, and it has so increased in the past seven years that local opinion is in its favour. The Burmese women consider such connections honourable, for with them marriage is only during the pleasure of the parties. The matter is not one merely of private immorality, and we do not expect that any number of circulars will altogether stop concubinage. But no Burmese believes that justice is pure in the hands of officers who preside over such moral piggeries. No fisheries can be rented, nor land taken up, nor crime concealed or reported in a district, with which these Burmese women have not had something to do. They are unlike the purda nushens of India, in which caste prevails. They trade on their own account, and are responsible parties in law. A woman in such a position is a fortune to a whole clan of relatives ever on the watch for the Englishman's weakness. We doubt not that the Viceroy will inform Colonel Fyche that the removal of every officer who is found living in concubinage within one month hence will not be "a matter for consideration," but be inevitable. Officers commanding cantonments should be instructed to put in force their power of excluding all disreputable characters from the officers' quarters. The evil, so far as it affects the public service, must be rooted out. If this question comes up again our Government of India will deserve to be hoisted throughout Christendom. —Friend of India.

LAST HALF-YEARLY REPORT OF THE BANK OF BENGAL.

Though there may not be much in the report of the Bank of Bengal for the half-year ending June 29th, 1867, differing from previous ones, it is sure to be examined with unusual interest, on account of the proceedings that have taken place in reference to the suggested amalgamation with other banks. In a general way, the directors have to tell a tale of simple prosperity, though some portion of the half-year has not been favourable to business operations. Notwithstanding this, there is the satisfactory result of a dividend at the rate of ten per cent. per annum. During the negotiations for amalgamation with the Bank of Bombay there have been mysterious hints as to the great losses incurred in Rangoon; and so much importance was attached to this matter, that it was made the subject of special inquiry, not to say of suspicion, in Bombay. It will be satisfactory to the friends of the bank to learn that the sum of Rs. 39,000 is all the possible loss on the advances outstanding at the Rangoon branch. Notwithstanding this drawback as regards Rangoon, the directors assure the shareholders that the progress of the branches is "satisfactory and encouraging." It has been made a point of objection to the proposed amalgamation that the large capital of the bank could not find profitable employment. This idea seems to have some support in the fact that "much difficulty has been experienced in finding profitable outlets for a portion of the bank's increased resources." Another objection has been to the extension of the branches, which are deemed sources of danger. We believe there are some facts that would go far to negative these objections. The demand for money has been exceptionally small, and the panics in, and closing of other banks, has tended to give abnormal resources to the bank. And as regards branches, they have been found on the whole exceedingly profitable, and have given good and safe employment for a large portion of the capital of the bank. Even the branches, profitable as they are, could not absorb the means of the bank, and there still appears room for profitable expansion. We are not speaking at random. Since the establishment of branches, the business of the bank has shown a progressive and enormous increase, as could easily be demonstrated by figures.

In 1862 the first agency was established in Rangoon, and in the following year several others were opened in Lower Bengal.

Before the establishment of branches the bank's yearly turn over was only Rs. 47,32,21,593, rising steadily year by year until 1866, when it reached Rs. 334,05,97,248, of which amount the Government Treasury transferred to the bank in 1862 averages yearly only Rs. 55,61,74,857. During this time too the amount of bills discounted has increased more than fivefold, or, from little over 2 crores and 11 lakhs to upwards of 12 crores. These figures are surely an evidence both of progress and stability, and speak volumes for the management of the bank. With such an encouraging career of progress to look back upon, a desire for further progress or an attempt at it, is at least excusable, whatever opinions may be honestly entertained as to its success or otherwise. It has been frequently a matter of complaint that the Bank of Bengal does not afford the facilities it might do to the mercantile community. But, looking at the enormous increase in the amount of bills discounted, this complaint does not appear to be well founded; while the small loss that has been experienced in the transaction of so large a business of this nature shows how carefully it has been done, the shareholders having meanwhile been paid an average dividend of more than 12 per cent. per annum.—Indian Daily News.

MISCELLANEOUS.

SYMPATHY FROM SIMLA.—Becky Sharp said, ever so many years ago, that it was very easy to be virtuous on thirty thousand a year; so we suppose it is exceedingly easy to offer expressions of deep sympathy from the cool and breezy heights of Simla to the suffering brigade in the Peshawur valley. And his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief in those bracing regions seizes the moment and opportunely requests the major-general commanding the Peshawur division to convey to commanding officers an expression of the deep sympathy he feels with the Royal Artillery, the 42nd Royal Highlanders, the 77th Foot, and the native troops, and requests that his deep sympathy may be communicated to the men. Of course it will be communicated, and doubtless loyally appreciated. We do not, however, quite understand how it is that, if his Excellency so deeply sympathises with the British and native soldiers when overtaken by an overwhelming scourge, he threw such a cold ghastly shadow of support over Major General Haly's anxious and earnest endeavours to lodge the men of the 42nd on Mount Cherat when they were not only stricken down with the terrible malady, but half overwhelmed with terror at the fearful blow they had received. But General Haly, as remarked by our Peshawur correspondent, acted in this matter wisely and independently. He lodged the men there on his own responsibility and at his own peril, and the General has shown his wisdom and good sense in so doing. There are objections to Cherat as a permanent sanitarium, and those objections are set forth in our correspondent's letter. But they, we presume, might be in the course of time overcome. We sincerely hope that General Haly will continue to exercise the same good judgment in his further use of Cherat as a sanitarium as he has already displayed in using it at all. About one hundred and fifty men of the 77th are now (June 27th) marching to Cherat, and thence, to make room for the 77th, about the same number of men of the 42nd will move away to different spots about six or ten miles beyond Murree. The cholera campaign is now over; and the troops have returned into quarters. We further learn that the Major-General has announced publicly that the epidemic has ceased as such; and he has, therefore, considerably opened leave to the hills to all officers under his command.—Delhi Gazette.

THE MOVEMENTS OF THE KING OF PERSIA are causing the Government of India more concern than is, perhaps, compatible with a stern adherence to a policy of "masterly inactivity." His Persian Majesty has assembled a considerable force with the intention of making a pilgrimage to Meshed. It is said that this pilgrimage will cover an attempt to retake Merv. But as Merv must be considered to belong to Russia, since the conquest of Bokhara, and as a body of Russian troops is said to have set out for the purpose of occupying the city, this tale can scarcely be true. Meshed, however, is the usual point of concentration for all Persian armies intended to operate against Herat, and hence it is argued that the Shah must have some views on this latter city, or some intention of interfering actively in Afghanistan, — an intention in which, since his interview on the Caspian with the Grand Duke Michael, he is also supposed to have the countenance of Russia. Whilst, however, the Shah is collecting his troops, affairs are proceeding to new developments in Afghanistan. The Ameer Afzul Khan sees the whole country gradually rising in favour of his rival, whilst his own troops are confined to four points, Cabool, Ghuznee, Candahar, and Jellalabad, and even at these points they are confronted with hostile tribesmen. The moment the weight of the attack from Turkistan makes itself felt at the capital, the detachments of Afzul Khan's army at Ghuznee and Jellalabad will find it extremely difficult to maintain their positions. There are, however, rumours of a disagreement between the Ameer Shere Ali and Sirdar Fyz Mahomed Khan, which, if true, would show that the ill luck of the former still pursues him. A quarrel between these two chiefs can only result in the final triumph of Afzul Khan.—Englishman.

THE SANSKRIT PROFESSORSHIP AT CAMBRIDGE.—The only two candidates for the Sanskrit Chair just established in Cambridge are Mr. E. B. Cowell and Professor Aufrecht. The latter is the distinguished German whom Dr. John Muir was so fortunate as to secure for the chair which he munificently endowed in Edinburgh. It would be a pity to deprive that University of his services. Mr. E. B. Cowell was the most able and useful member of the whole educational departments of India, was Principal of the Calcutta Sanskrit College, thoroughly knows and sympathises with the natives of India of both new and old schools, and adds to his special familiarity with Sanskrit and modern Oriental tongues, high qualifications in other branches and as an English gentleman. All these make him unique as a candidate. Cambridge will be fortunate if she secures such a professor, who, but for Horace Hayman Wilson's rather unexpected death, would have been his successor in Oxford. It should be recorded to Max Muller's credit that, though a countryman is in the field, he declares that he will not enter the lists against Mr. Cowell, and that there is no University in Europe which would not be proud to secure Mr. Cowell's services as Professor of Sanskrit.—Friend of India.

SIR CECIL BEADON.—If the bestowal of addresses on a departing official proves the capacity with which he discharged his duties, or flatters his self-approbation and consciousness of success, there was never an abler or happier man who has ruled Bengal than Sir Cecil Beadon. He has, we believe, received and answered no less than six such addresses, all couched in terms of the most fulsome encomium, setting forth the virtues of his character and administration in a diversity of lights such as the most ambitious could ever expect. But as applause is one thing and appreciation quite another, and as the greater a man's anxiety to fortify his position the greater his betrayal of weakness, we fear this accumulation of paper friendship and printed praise may not very much help Sir Cecil's reputation. Still we have no desire to diminish the feeble happiness he thus enjoys in the midst of his cruel unpopularity, and would not refer to the subject at all if not to expose the doubtful discretion of spending the whole breath of a nation's esteem upon a ruler who has at best but offered to it certain equivocal benefits not unmingled with the bane of much positive evil.—Indian Mirror.

A LEOPARD HUNT AT HOWRAH.—On Monday evening last a fine leopard in the possession of Mr. Soliaque, of Howrah, broke out of its cage, and made off. The owner, fortunately, was not long in making the discovery that the animal had escaped, and immediately seized a gun and followed in pursuit. By good luck the animal had gone no further than the adjacent compound, to the no small alarm of the inmates of the house close by. Mr. Soliaque fired twice, but as the gun was loaded only with small shot the animal received but one or two trifling wounds. A Mr. Hall next appeared on the scene with a musket loaded with ball. Approaching in rather dangerous proximity to the animal in order to get a more certain aim, his gun, unfortunately, missed fire. The animal not liking such close acquaintanceship made a spring forward, and seized the unfortunate gentleman by the arm, making a frightful gash with its teeth. By this time several persons having heard the alarm, proceeded at once to the spot, and simultaneously attacked the animal on all sides. After a good deal of hammering, his leopardship was forced to let go his hold, and one or two more blows on the head finished him.—Englishman, July 3.

SIMLA AN INSANITARIUM.—Simla (says the Friend of India) has been very unhealthy this year, and we do not wonder at it. The base of Peterhoff, on which the Viceroy lives, no less than the sides of the great curving ridge on which Simla stands, and the never-cleaned compound of almost every house, is the abode of miasma which even ozone cannot kill. Simla has the Legislative Council and Sanitary Commission all to itself, yet the house-owners are allowed to obstruct every improvement, till fever has become endemic and a change to the capital is urged as beneficial! For years the doctors have pointed out the annually increasing filth and bad water of Simla, but the vested interests of the house-owners, apothecaries, and undertakers are allowed to prevail unchecked. Were the sanitarium to be founded over again, it should be removed to the Nagkunda ridge and Kotgurbh.

NEWS FROM BURMAH.—A horrible story is told by the Rangoon papers. It is said that some Hindoostanees at the capital of Burmah Proper have confessed that they were employed to seize various individuals, and afterwards to assist in burying them alive at the different gates of the palace. This was done in obedience to some terrible rite, by which supernatural protection was invoked for the King. The story, as will be seen, rests upon a very slender foundation. It may, however, be taken as an indication of the state of popular feeling at Mandalay, where of late the most fearful cruelties have been perpetrated to maintain the fast waning royal authority. Colonel Fytche's policy appears to have had the effect of inducing the King and his counsellors to believe that the time for playing with the British Government is over. The King is said to have signified his intention to concede all demands, and to abandon his hitherto semi-hostile attitude. The S.S. Nemesis is being got ready to take the Chief Commissioner to Mandalay, where his reception will, it is thought, be very different from that accorded by the King to Sir A. Phayre. Meanwhile, however, the revolution is said to have assumed a new phase. It is reported from Mandalay that the Meingoon Mengtha has wedded the daughter of Kapogee, the great chief of the Karens, and that this people have resolved to assist him in his attempt to gain the throne of Burmah. A detachment of 2,000 men, sent by the King to arrest his progress towards the capital, is said to have been cut to pieces. This misfortune has led to the despatch of a vanguard of 5,000 men, who will be at once followed by the main force of the royal army, which is 15,000 strong. Against this army the Prince is reported to be able to muster from 40,000 to 45,000 Shans and Karens. These rumours, however, must be taken to mean, we suppose, that the King is endeavouring to concentrate as large a force as possible, in anticipation of an invasion from the Shan and Karen country, where the rebel Prince is straining every nerve to excite the Chief to attempt the conquest of Upper Burmah. Should the Prince advance on the capital the relations between the King's Government and the British will be greatly complicated, whilst any success on his side may give rise to such a state of anarchy, cruelty, and confusion as may leave the Viceroy no alternative but to step in and administer the country. Of one thing we are assured—the Indian Government will in no case repeat in Burmah the error they have committed in Afghanistan.

AN ELOPEMENT AND ITS CONSEQUENCES.—The present writer, as a rule, shrinks with the greatest abhorrence at the slightest approach of that great, though rapidly vanishing bugbear to Anglo-Indian society, scandal; but there are times and seasons when it does good, in the interest of public morality, and by way of warning. A case of the kind has just occurred, and, as a local contemporary has already published the names of all the actors in the unhappy drama, and as the matter has come before the magistrate, there can be no harm in referring to the matter here. Love and music generally go hand in hand, and in this particular instance we find no exception to the general rule. A gentleman, well known in musical circles in Calcutta, finds an introduction to the family circle with the view of teaching the art of music to the young ladies, and, as the story goes, he taught the art of love at the same time, the matter ending—as it has often done before—in an elopement. But, alas! the happiness of the rash and infatuated pair was of very short duration. Three or four days appear to have elapsed before the runaways were discovered, when the young lady was conveyed home by her friends, and the gay Lothario arrested and sent off to take his trial at the Sessions Court of Hooghly on a charge of "kidnapping." According to that fearfully and wonderfully constructed exposition of the law of the land in which we live—the Penal Code—the case is a pretty serious one.—Englishman.

DEATH OF MR. S. G. WYATT.—We regret to hear of the death, by drowning, of Mr. S. G. Wyatt, of the Financial Department. He held the post of Inspector of Accounts, and was one of the most valuable men in the department on account of his ability, experience, and high character. His loss will be severely felt. He was some time ago attacked by dysentery, which appears to have prostrated his physical system, and to have unhinged his mind. He had but one year more to serve to complete his service.—Englishman.

DISTURBANCES HAVE BROKEN OUT IN BIKANER. The Rajah attempted recently to increase the charges on land, and this measure has resulted in the revolt of the zemindars. The British political authorities will, probably, find the means of allaying the outbreak before it attains serious proportions.

A CHARGE OF INHUMANITY.—We regret to learn the death of Mr. Dunn, Chief Officer of H.M.B. steamer Arracan. The deceased was on his way to Calcutta when attacked severely with fever. Dr. William Cross, in medical charge of the cruising station, saw him professionally on board the steamer at the Sand Heads, and requested either the captain or pilot to detain the vessel a few minutes, while he repaired on board the pilot brig for such remedies as he considered should be administered without loss of time to save his patient's life. Dr. Cross had hardly left the steamer's side, however, when she pursued her course up channel, and thus cut off the invalid from the only hope left him of rescue from pressing danger—his condition being described as extremely precarious. Mr. Dunn died about the time the steamer reached Diamond Harbour. We think if this version of the story be correct, and we have very little doubt of its truth, having received it from a reliable source, that a Marine investigation should forthwith be commenced, and Dr. Cross's evidence taken, as to the condition in which he left the sick man, and the chance he had of saving him. Inadvertence may be overlooked, but deliberate inhumanity we can find no excuse for.—Indian Daily News, July 11.

ANOTHER GROWL AT THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF.—His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief appears to be quite as anxious to effect petty reforms in the service as he is to check the petty larcenies in his larder. Great and un concealed dissatisfaction is felt and expressed at the manner in which officers, whose rank at any rate entitles them to some consideration, have been treated with regard to leave. Officers who have served their country sans peur et sans reproche for upwards of a score of years hardly like to be informed that in case they find an extension of leave necessary, a report will be sent to the Horse Guards declaring them unfit for further service. The manner in which such a communication would be received at and answered from the Horse Guards would probably surprise his Excellency, who, if unable or unwilling to appreciate good service and valid reasons for extension of leave, will find that the Home authorities are not equally obtuse. Common sense clearly indicates that the maintenance of cordial relations between a chief and his subordinates is the mainspring of efficiency in an army; but, alas! sense is not common.—Pioneer.

RAILWAY ACCIDENT.—An accident, which might have been attended with serious consequences, happened on Sunday morning, July 13th, by a collision between the mail train, which left Howrah at 9.13 on Saturday night, and a coal train, which, having become disabled, was left on the line about eight miles from Ranegunge. Fortunately, the driver of the Calcutta train saw the coal train on turning the corner at the Sargaran bridge, but the collision could not be prevented, and the shock was very great. There were only three first-class passengers, and though bruised and much shaken they suffered no other injury. The driver jumped off and escaped with a few bruises, but several of the third-class passengers were hurt but not severely. Had the train not been delayed and late, so that it was broad daylight, not a soul could have escaped. There will of course be an inquiry.—Englishman.

THE COMMISSION OF ENQUIRY INTO THE AFFAIRS OF THE PUNJAB RAILWAY.—We have heard that Mr. D. Fitzpatrick, the Deputy Commissioner of Delhi, has been appointed president of the commission of enquiry into the affairs of the Punjab Railway, but we can hardly believe the information to be correct. Mr. Fitzpatrick is a young officer of some eight years' standing in the Civil Service, and, independent of his youth, was, if we remember rightly, employed as Government pleader in the great Kunkur case at Jullunder, to which allusion was made in one of the articles on railway mismanagement in the Punjab. If an impartial investigation is to be made, the president certainly should be an officer of some standing in the service, and one unconnected with the Punjab, and certainly not a gentleman whose sympathies are likely to be with one or other of the sections into which society at Lahore is now unhappily divided.—Englishman, July 5.

SCANDAL.—An amusing instance of the "development of resources" has been reported to us, and our informant vouches for its truth. A lady, wife of an officer of rank, who was on her way to England, wanted a servant for the voyage. There was a very good woman in a certain regiment who would suit exactly, but she had a husband out here, and would of course require to have all her expenses paid to England and back. How does the unsophisticated reader suppose it was managed? Why, the husband, though in sound health, was invalidated! and goes home with his wife and her mistress. A nice family party. Apropos of these "resources" and our remarks the other day upon high Government officials taking themselves and their stores up to Simla at public expense we were told the following anecdote last year during the height of the Jervis scandal. A person in high position at Simla remarked "that they would sell their surplus beer at Simla at Simla prices, and so they would be drinking their beer for nothing!" Of course, because the cost of the beer in Calcutta would be, say four rupees, at Simla probably eight or nine. The carriage cost our friends nothing, and the extra five rupees would just pay the prime cost. Such is (high) life in India.—Delhi Gazette.

THE RAILWAY BRIDGE ACROSS THE HOOGHLY.—Regarding the proposed Hooghly Bridge and the Metropolitan Railway Station, we learn that the consulting Engineer to the Government of Bengal brought forward certain modifications on the original proposal of the Hooghly Bridge and Dock Committee, and that the Lieutenant-Governor has recommended to the India Government that certain limits for the Calcutta extension of the East India Railway and the Eastern Bengal Railway should be at once laid down by Government, and negotiations entered into for their construction with the directors through the Secretary of State.—Indian Daily News.

THE NEW TROOP SHIPS.—The Secretary of State has consented to allow two of the new troop steamers to come to Calcutta. The first steamer will take away the 2nd Battalion Rifle Brigade and the 7th Dragoon Guards; the second will take the 27th Foot, the D and G Batteries, 11th Brigade Royal Artillery, and about 125 time-expired men. The Secretary of State declines to send any of the transports to Kurrachee, so the large body of troops going home by the Indus will have to proceed by coasting steamers to Bombay instead of direct from Kurrachee to Suez.—Friend of India.

SLAVERY IN NEPAL.—We hear that the negotiations, for the restoration to their country of British subjects sold into slavery in Nepal have resulted in the Maharajah Jung Bahadur's making over to the British authorities 556 women and 92 men, who have been bought by the Nepalese Government for servitude in the mountains. These poor people will be supported by the State, until sent back to their homes. During the period they may be in official keeping a sum of Rs. 3 per head will, under the orders of the Viceroy, be disbursed for their support.—Englishman.

SHIPPING IN THE HOOGHLY.—The total number of vessels now lying in the river is 106, of an aggregate tonnage of 90,238. Of these 29, representing a tonnage of 23,120, have not yet had their destinations fixed, 14 being East India traders, 14 British ships, and 1 an American vessel.—Indian Daily News and Bengal Hurkaru, July 4.

CHOLERA of a very virulent type has broken out near Bhurtpore.

THE GREAT SHOE QUESTION.—Natives of the respectable class have been relieved by the recent decision of Sir John Lawrence to the effect that they shall not have to appear barefooted, leaving their stockings and boots outside when they attend a court of justice or any other public place. The vanity of the low-bred officials in the far-off Mofussil has been snubbed by this measure, but the true reformation of the evil will not be accomplished till the present decision is enforced in the economy of private life.

THE BANK OF BENGAL DIVIDEND.—The directors of the Bank of Bengal, at their weekly meeting held yesterday, declared a dividend for the half-year ended on the 30th ult., at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum. The rates of discount and interest were reduced 1 per cent. all round.—Englishman, July 5.

LOSS OF THE SHIP "PLEIADES."—From a letter kindly placed at our disposal by a firm in this city, we regret to hear of the loss of the ship Pleiades of this port, on the Landfall Island on the night of the 11th June. The crew were landed at the Cocos Lighthouse. The same letter also reports the wreck of two vessels, laden with timber, off the port of Akyab.—Englishman, July 2.

THE CASE OF CAPTAIN CHAMBRE.—A letter from Moradabad, in the Delhi Gazette, says:—The case of Captain J. Chambre, paymaster, her Majesty's 36th Foot, is as yet sub judice. Four officers of the left wing, viz., Major R. Lloyd, Captain C. S. T. Sale, Lieutenant R. C. B. Daubeny, and Lieutenant W. F. Ashton, have gone to Shajehanpore to give evidence in the case.

THE HARVEST IN BRITISH BURMAH has been most abundant. Gram is also cheaper than it has been for some years. Unless, therefore, the folly of the King of Burmah and his advisers interpose a barrier between his subjects and the traders of Pegu, British Burmah will be fully able to minister to the necessities of Upper Burmah, where the anticipations of famine seem about to be realised.

THE RAJPOOTANA RAILWAY will most probably run from Neemuch direct to Delhi, passing through the territories of Kishengurh and Ulwar, and following for the first half of the route the old road from Neemuch to Ajmere.

ANOTHER EXEMPTION.—The Governor-general in Council has authorised the Lieutenant-governor to issue an executive order, exempting the Jynteah traders from the operation of the Licence-Tax Act.

BABOO DWARKANATH MITTER, pleader of the High Court, appellate side, has been appointed to the vacant judgeship of the High Court.

MADRAS.

MISCELLANEOUS.

LORD NAPIER started yesterday on his tour through Cuddapah, Bellary, and Kurnool. Now that he is gone Madras may be said to be almost without a Government, Messrs. Phillips, Ellis, and Clarke being the only members of Council on the spot. The migration of the Councillors this year has been criticised with deserved severity, for the absence of just one-half of the members has enabled Mr. Ellis to push the Municipal Bill through the Council in a barefaced and undignified manner. The absence on such an occasion of Messrs. Pycroft, Arbuthnot, and Mayne, who receive between them about £15,000 a-year for their services to the country, is felt to be altogether unwarrantable.—Madras Times, July 18.

SIR GASPARD LE MARCHANT's order of the 1st April is just now undergoing a good deal of discussion. The local lieutenant colonels who have been deprived of their commands are naturally very sore on the point. On the other hand, many of the staff corps officers uphold the change. Neither party is exactly a disinterested one, and probably the settlement of the difficulty will be left by Sir Gaspard as a sort of legacy to his successor, whose appointment, by the way, seems to have given universal satisfaction, both to the military and the non-combatants.

THE PASSING OF THE MUNICIPAL BILL last Saturday has created a deep and wide spread feeling of disgust, and Madras, meek and patient as she generally is, has indignantly protested against it as unbearable. There is but one feeling on the subject, and officials and non-officials alike are unanimous in condemning the conduct of Government, though the former seem to be too much afraid of Government to take part in any active opposition. No time was lost in protesting against the extraordinary proceedings of Council, and every effort will be made to induce Sir John Lawrence to withhold his sanction from the Bill in its present shape. A provisional committee was formed comprising the names of all the principal merchants and traders, and such officials as had the courage to come forward, to draw up a memorial to the Viceroy. The Provisional Committee, numbering some thirty or forty members, met this morning; Mr. John McIver, secretary and manager of the Bank of Madras, took the chair. After some discussion on the recent proceedings of Council it was resolved to appoint a sub-committee to draw up a memorial to the Governor-general in Council. It was stated by one of the speakers that such was the hurry of the local Government to get the Bill sanctioned that they had sent it off to Calcutta by the French steamer that left two days ago. On this the meeting unanimously resolved to telegraph to the Governor-general at Simla, praying him to withhold his sanction from the Bill till the petition from the inhabitants of Madras has been received. Nothing therefore is likely to be gained by the local Government by this unseemly display of misplaced energy. The public are principally indebted to Mr. Robert Staunton Ellis, C.B., who has just been appointed Acting Chief Secretary, for the strong feeling that has been displayed with regard to the Municipal Bill. This gentleman has earned some reputation as an administrative officer, but his arbitrary, not to say insolent, treatment of the memorial that was presented about a week ago, and the "sharp practice" he has adopted in getting the Bill passed through the Council, have not only annoyed the public, but made them regard with some alarm Mr. Ellis's appointment to a post where he has so many opportunities of doing mischief. The indifference that Lord Napier has displayed with regard to the Bill is loudly condemned. People complain, and unquestionably with some show of reason, that his lordship interests himself in nothing but hospitals and dispensaries and latrines. These things are all very well in their way, but the general public expect a governor to be something more than a sort of superior inspector of nuisances. The general impression is that with regard to the Municipal Bill, Lord Napier has allowed his Council to lead him by the nose. His conduct with regard to this Bill has done more to damage his popularity with the people of Madras than anything he has done or left undone since he has been governor. Lord Napier has unquestionably committed another blunder.—Madras Times, July 18.

CAROLINA RICE.—The experimental cultivation of Carolina rice in Malabar appears to have been a success. Mr. Logan, the sub-collector, has reported on various experiments that have been tried, nearly all of which are favourable to the new grain. A great demand has already arisen among the natives for seed, which is unquestionably the best criterion of success. One enthusiastic gentleman, of the name of Brown, declares that "the Carolina paddy is the most valuable gift which the English have as yet made to South India during the 100 years they have possessed the country." The same gentleman informs us that the farmers of Malabar are acquainted with 120 of known varieties of cultivated paddy, from the crops which ripen in eighty and ninety days from the time of sowing, to crops which take six or eight months; and he remarks that the production, introduction, and diffusion of so many varieties of cereals give scientific agriculture in India a commencement and a date perfectly fabulous. "Before the remoteness of this date," he writes, "the antiquity of the stone age, authenticated as it is by the numerous discoveries that are being brought to light both in England and on the Continent of Europe, becomes a comparatively recent era in human chronology." Here is a new field of inquiry for the geologist, or the philosophical farmer.

THE REPORT OF THE SUPERINTENDENT OF PEARL BANKS off the coasts of Tinnivelly and Madura has recently been published, and is not very encouraging to those who looked forward to these fisheries as a source of untold wealth to the Presidency. There seems to be plenty of oysters, but very few pearls. The Superintendent doubts if some of the banks, exposed as they are to the force of the south-west monsoon, are favourable for the breed of the pearl or any other oyster. Some of the banks examined last year were found this year "quite barren," and the Superintendent accordingly concludes that great uncertainty attends the movement of the pearl oyster. The Government fear that the nursery, in its present position, must be regarded as a failure, but has sanctioned some further experiments.—Madras Times.

VERY CONSIDERATE.—We are glad to hear that, in consequence of the precarious state of the line, the authorities of the Great Indian Peninsular Railway have issued instructions that fares are not to be charged to passengers until their safe arrival at the stations for which they are destined. It is, however, reassuring to learn that of the many bridges between this and Bombay several of the smaller ones are considered to be in a sufficiently secure condition, and estimates will soon be called for for the repair of the viaducts, regarding which immediate anxiety is entertained.—Central India Times.

DEATH OF MR. ARMSTRONG, C.S.—We regret to announce the death at the Presidency of Mr. J. E. Armstrong, C.S. Mr. Armstrong only arrived in this country in 1860, and was one of the first batch of "Competition Wal-lahs." At the time of his death he held the appointment of Acting Sub-Collector and Joint-Magistrate of Coimbatore.—Madras Times.

FALL OF A VIADUCT ON THE BHORE GHAUT.—NARROW ESCAPE.

On Friday forenoon, July 19, the authorities of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway received telegraphic information that a viaduct over a deep gorge on the Bhore Ghaut had given way. The viaduct in question was known by the names of the Mhow Kee Mulla, or No. 5 viaduct, and was about six miles beyond Kurjut and three miles on this side of Thacoowadee. The viaduct crossed over a deep ravine, which slopes down on each side into a valley of considerable extent; and was composed of eight arches, each of fifty feet span, with twelve feet piers. The height of the viaduct would be about one hundred and forty feet. At this part of the Ghaut the hills are very precipitous, and the viaduct may be said to have connected two tunnels, as the first arch would only be about two hundred and fifty yards from a tunnel on this side, and another tunnel was entered about a dozen yards from the extreme end. It appears that shortly after the building of this viaduct was finished a settlement in the masonry of two of the centre piers was observed to have taken place, and some cracks appeared. These cracks were not of such a character as to cause any apprehension of danger, but the railway authorities took the precaution of placing a signal man on each side of the bridge. The rents in the masonry were examined frequently, and orders were issued that if any enlargement of the cracks took place the fact should be immediately reported. So late as Monday last the District Engineer and the Government Deputy Consulting Engineer to Government personally inspected the bridge, but could observe no difference in its condition, there being no new cracks in the masonry, and the old vents appearing to be exactly the same as when first discovered. The report of these gentlemen, together with the opinions of the Inspector and Assistant Engineer, led to the belief that there was no immediate danger; and that belief was further strengthened by the general high character which the Bhore Ghaut works have hitherto borne.

On Friday morning the first portion of the mixed train to Poona passed safely over the bridge; but about 7 o'clock, only 20 minutes after the train had passed over, a man who was employed on the viaduct in fastening the wooden keys of the rails observed the bridge to be giving way near the centre. The man immediately rushed off from the viaduct, and fortunately reached the embankment just before its whole length collapsed with a terrific crash. This man certainly had a very narrow escape; or had he been one minute more in reaching the firm embankment he certainly would have perished. No sooner had the bridge fallen than this keeman observed the second portion of the mixed train approaching, and by shouting and holding up his hands he succeeded in attracting the attention of the engine-driver, who at once shut off the steam and pulled up his train. The driver's attention had been caught just in time to prevent a melancholy catastrophe, for before the train could be brought to a standstill the engine was within one hundred yards of the ravine. The signalman on the further side had noticed the accident, and had also immediately proceeded to stop a train from Poona which would have been due in a short time. He pushed on for the telegraph office at Thacoowadee, where he arrived in time to have the train prevented from proceeding any further. As already stated, the entire viaduct from end to end has collapsed, leaving only the abutments standing at each extremity to mark a great chasm in which the work of nearly three years lies in ruin.

Of course it cannot be said absolutely what was the cause of the accident; but it may be stated that the general impression amongst those who visited the spot was that the work must have been of a most inferior description. It seems that the lower part of the piers was built by Messrs. Faviel, the first contractors, but that afterwards they were finished by Messrs. Treadwell. The rent was observed in the lower part, that built by Messrs. Faviel, but the upper portion remained perfectly sound. Judging from an inspection of the debris, the work must have been inferior to what might be expected in a work of such magnitude.

A later number of the same journal adds:—We are informed that a proposal has been matured and adopted by the G. I. P. Railway Company for the construction of an iron girder bridge, which is to take the place of the viaduct that fell last week on the Bhore Ghaut Incline. The length of the viaduct was 400 feet, and at its highest part the height was 140 feet. It is proposed to raise a substantial stone pier in the centre, and to have girders, 200 feet in length, on each side of it. Girders of that length have been ordered from England, and part of them we understand were shipped in April, the intention being to use them for a bridge at the River Towa on the Jubbulpore line, where it is well known great difficulty has been experienced in the erection of piers. After providing for the bridge at the Bhore Ghaut there will be two girders left out of those which have been already ordered from England, and these will be sufficient for a single line across the Towa.

LOSS OF THE "TIRZAH."

Contrary to what all hoped, if not to what all feared, the monsoon of 1867 has been making fresh entries in the wreck-chart of Bombay. The first casualty this season was the loss in harbour of the ship Bombay, laden with cotton for Liverpool, which drifted from her moorings on to Karanjah shoal, under such circumstances as to lead to the suspension of the master's certificate for twelve months, the first officer's for six months, and the second officer's for three months; and we suppose the sentence of the pilot in charge will be equally severe. Vastly different were the circumstances attending the loss of the Tirzah, from New South Wales to Bombay, at Alibagh, on the 18th July. Last year saw no fewer than six vessels wrecked within a few hundred yards of each other on that fatal reef, and to prevent similar disasters in future a lighthouse was erected on Kennery Island. The existence of this lighthouse, for some reason or other, does not seem yet to be universally known to sailors visiting this port, and has led two or three vessels into dangers from which they narrowly escaped. The Tirzah, however, having been led in shore through mistaking the bright fixed light on Kennery for the outer light-ship in the fair-way of Bombay harbour, was prevented by the gale then blowing and the tremendous sea running, from beating out. Getting on shore, she broke up with such rapidity that in a few hours not a vestige of her remained visible. With the greatest difficulty the majority of the crew were saved through the heroic exertions of Mr. Shuttleworth, a Deputy Conservator of Forests, who put off to the rescue in a boat manned by Kolie fishermen, and conveyed ashore as many as could be got into the boat. Seven, we regret to say, are still missing. Two tugs had likewise been despatched from Bombay, each with a lifeboat in tow, but the thickness and boisterousness of the weather prevented them from rendering any assistance, or even seeing the unfortunate vessel. One of the lifeboats was also upset, and seven of its crew are still missing.

In connection with this disastrous wreck, and the melancholy loss of life with which it has been accompanied, there is one circumstance which can only be regarded with pleasure and pride, viz., the heroic conduct of Mr. Shuttleworth, in his endeavours, under circumstances of the greatest danger, to save the lives of the crew. No one remembering the disasters that occurred at Alibagh last monsoon, and the courage and skill displayed by Mr. Shuttleworth on a dozen occasions, would be unprepared for a similar exhibition this season; and no word of ours can enhance the feeling of admiration with which the captain of the lifeboat must be regarded by every one who reads the unadorned narrative comprised in his report to Capt. Young. The last year's services of Mr. Shuttleworth have been acknowledged by the Royal Humane Society with their bronze medal—a most inadequate recognition in the opinion of everyone acquainted with their real nature and extent. It was felt by all in Bombay that if the Albert medal could be won for gallant conduct in saving life at sea, none could ever deserve it more than Mr. Shuttleworth; and no slight disappointment was felt when it became known that he had been passed over with a less distinction. Those who know Mr. Shuttleworth best know well how little he shared in this disappointment, and how fully he reaped the only reward he cared for in the great success which attended his exertions. Notwithstanding this, however, there is due to him a debt of gratitude which, though it can never be adequately acknowledged, ought not to be left altogether unrecognised. It should be remembered that Mr. Shuttleworth has no official connection whatever with the harbour. Though formerly connected with the Indian Navy, it is no more his duty than that of anyone else to take charge of the life-boat station at Alibagh, and risk his life as he has so often done in rendering assistance to vessels in distress. All the services he has performed have been performed purely out of a desire to save life—coupled, perhaps, with a worthy pride at finding himself in positions of danger, doing what few else could do so well. Representations will again be made to the proper quarter in England to obtain for Mr. Shuttleworth the highest acknowledgment which can be bestowed for services such as his. Moreover, an influential committee is being formed in Bombay, with the object of presenting him with some suitable local testimonial as well; for it is felt that the honour of the city is concerned in due recognition being awarded to this instance of heroism in civil life.—Times of India.

THE TOTAL RECEIPTS of the Indian railways for the quarter of 1867 were £1,503,060, the miles of line open being 3,536½.

THE LAHORE SCANDALS.—A letter from Lahore in the Bombay Gazette says: "The case of Leitner versus Strutt has created immense sensation at this station. It is, as you are perhaps aware, a libel case against Major Strutt, managing proprietor of the Lahore Chronicle, for his publishing in that paper an account of a supposed outrage by Dr. Leitner at Gilgit in the Kashmir territory when the latter went to Tibet to make philosophical investigations. The defendant is now ready to make a public apology for his giving publicity to the statement although the plaintiff hesitates a little about accepting it. The case of Hemraj versus Leitner came off on the 26th inst. in the Deputy Commissioner's Court but was at once caused to be withdrawn from the file. Both these cases have very justly ended favourably to the cause of Dr. Leitner. There is, however, a third case in which our learned Principal is involved. As editor to the new Indian Public Opinion a libel case is to be filed up against him by Colonel Elphinstone, agent Punjab Railway, for an article on the railway mismanagement which appeared in that journal a short time ago. Government have ordered a commission of inquiry to make investigation relative to the alleged mismanagement, and it has been ordered according to Colonel Elphinstone's own request. The libel case will come off subsequent to the report of the commission, in case only if the statements made by the Indian Public Opinion with regard to the railway are found to be untrue." In a later issue the same journal says:—"With reference to the imputations made by the Indian Public Opinion against Colonel Elphinstone, agent of the Punjab Railway, we notice a paragraph in the Lahore Chronicle of the 3rd instant, from which it appears that his Honour the Lieut.-Governor of the Punjab has very properly refused to allow any official enquiry being instituted into the slanderous reports that have been circulated by the Indian Public Opinion to the prejudice of Colonel Elphinstone's character, until that gentleman has first had an opportunity of furnishing explanations to the Government of the Punjab on the subject of the attacks of which he has been made the butt in the columns of the Indian Public Opinion. The Lahore Chronicle also states that that journal is informed "on good authority that the Lieutenant-Governor has expressed his opinion that the course taken by Colonel Elphinstone in bringing an action against Dr. Leitner for defamation in imputing to him, in an article in the Indian Public Opinion of the 14th June, that the Colonel had attempted to bribe Dr. Leitner into silence in respect of his mismanagement of the railway is quite right."

WHO STOLE THE LEG OF MUTTON?—The "Notorious Friar Tuck," Calcutta correspondent of the Lahore Chronicle, writing to that journal, gives the following relation, from which it appears that a new attack has been committed upon the C.-in-C.'s provisions; this time the assault is on H.E.'s larder. Poor Sir M.! it is really a wonder he does not starve outright, with so many voracious, thievish A.D.C.'s about him, who are ever ready to whip up anything edible or potable they can lay their hands on, even the "legs of mutton" for H.E.'s dinner:—"But the queerest 'row' of all is the 'row' at Simla which is said to have taken place in his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief's household about a missing joint. 'Who stole the leg of mutton?' was the cry, I am told, which rang through the house about three weeks ago, and made every one laugh, until the A.D.C. found out it was a much more serious affair than they had imagined; that they were all suspected, and that the subject might form the grounds of an investigation before a 'friendly committee,' if not a higher tribunal. Now, 100 dozens of sherry, with pates, jams, and sauces enough to furnish an Italian warehouse, is something to cry spilt milk about; but a 'leg of mutton,' even a 'leg of mutton' from the farm, who ever heard of such a thing creating a sensation in high life or out of the scullery? The story is no doubt untrue or at least susceptible of explanation. In various forms it has been going the round of the clubs here for the past week; but I should not have alluded to it in print, but the editor of the Week has printed a letter from Simla on the subject, which lets the 'cat out of the bag;' so nothing is gained by my silence.—Bombay Gazette.

A PLEASANT REGIMENT.—A letter in the Bombay Gazette says:—The 88th Connaught Rangers was until lately one of the most pleasant corps to belong to, or to be stationed with; the officers pulled well together, and were really a very "jolly" set of fellows; but since Colonel G. P. Maxwell has left the regiment and has been succeeded in the command by Colonel E. H. Maxwell, a change has come over the corps; instead of good-fellowship and brotherly love there is quarrelling and back-biting, and their once pleasant mess is deserted. Within the last two years five captains, three lieutenants, and three ensigns have exchanged or sold out, and the late court-martial of the Paymaster we think might have been avoided, by a 'pull up' to that officer on his keeping a racing establishment. It is time Sir William Mansfield made inquiries as to the reasons for this change that has taken place in the interior economy of this once sociable regiment. With that scandal in this country, and the soiled dove scandal at home, and the recent heavy betting on the Derby, officers in the army have not come out with clean hands from the amusement of horse racing, but they should have borne in mind that no men suffer so heavily as they do when they are unable to meet their engagements. Any other men may visit the continent, and return when their health is improved, without any serious loss to their position; but to be 'absent without leave' simply means position in a profession lost for ever."

PESTONEE CURSETJEE SHROFF, the Bombay merchant, who in July, 1865, failed for the sum of Rs. 16,938,000, has, for a second time appeared in the Insolvency Court. After his first insolvency he compounded with some of his creditors by paying them from three to five annas on the rupee, and then entered on business again. On this occasion, his liabilities amount to upwards of sixteen lacs, of which sum he was trusted, in one instance, to the extent of £20,000 without producing any documents! The result of the inquiry in the Insolvent Court is, that his discharge has been adjourned for eighteen months, the Insolvent Commissioner having characterised the business transactions of insolvent as nothing but gambling and speculation.—Indian Daily News.

BANK OF BOMBAY.—The committee for the reconstruction of the Bank of Bombay has been increased, and now includes the Hon. A. Brown and Mr. Forman, both of these directors having definitely abandoned the amalgamation project. Three-fourths of the shares in the new bank have already been applied for. A memorial to Government is being circulated among the shareholders of the bank for signature, praying Government to bear a large proportion of the loss attending the bad management of the bank.

DOUBLE RATES ARE IN FUTURE TO BE CHARGED from Kurrachee on all messages for Great Britain and France containing groups of figures without specifying the commodity to which they refer.

THERE HAVE BEEN TWO HUNDRED AND SIXTY-FIVE ADMISSIONS into the military hospital at Peshawur, the deaths amounting to 160. The troops comprise Royal Artillery, H.M.'s 42nd Highlanders, and 77th Foot.

COLONEL STRACHEY, R.E., Director General of Irrigation, has written a minute to show that the Scinde Railway should not be extended until irrigation works have been provided.

A FEW CASES OF CHOLERA are reported to have occurred in H.M.'s 109th Regiment at Poona. Cholera is also reported at Simla and Murree.

H.H. THE BEGUM OF BHOPAL has requested the Government of India to forward to her Majesty the Queen a pair of beautifully jewelled fans, valued at £2,000.

THE INDIAN FINANCE MINISTER has completed a scheme for the introduction of a gold currency into India.

DURING THE MONTH OF MAY 89,120,416 lbs. of cotton, of the aggregate value of £3,367,356, were shipped from Bombay.

THE NATIONAL BANK OF INDIA has purchased a site for new premises in Bombay.

A HINDOO WIDOW MARRIAGE.—We are glad to learn that on Saturday last a widow marriage took place at Simla, Calcutta. The bridegroom Kalinauth Dey, of Kayast caste, an educated young man of about twenty-five years of age, is Head-master of the Seebager Government School. The bride, Surnomoye Dossee, daughter of the late Baboo Ram-doyal Roy of Dacca, is a girl of about fifteen years. She was married early and became a widow at ten. Her uncle, Baboo Kristodoyal Roy, a Pleader of the High Court, has been instrumental in bringing about this described union. We are told that he has shown considerable moral courage by this act, for regardless of the opposition of his relatives and castemen, some of whom did their best to thwart his efforts, he has done what he considers right. We may add that the father of the girl on his death-bed expressed a wish for the remarriage of his poor widowed daughter. —Hindoo Patriot, July 1.

ALLAHABAD, July 3.—People in the north-west who have indulged in the hope of making use of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway on their journey home will be disappointed when being told that through communication to Bombay will not be opened before February 1869, several important bridges, amongst which that at Sukker, not being expected to be ready before that time. Major-General Rivers, the agent for the G.I.P. Railway, is of opinion that in October next the line will probably be open as far as Etarah—463 miles from Bombay—and that by constructing temporary bridges over the Nerbudda and two other rivers, the distance by road may be reduced to only 67 miles, the rolling stock of the East Indian Railway being employed in running trains to a place some 80 miles beyond Jubbulpore, whose name has escaped my memory. —Delhi Gazette.

June 15.—The C. in C. in India directs the following alteration to be made in para. 4, section XIX. of the military regs.:—

For adjt. gen., substitute qrmr. gen.

COURTS MARTIAL.

With reference to late irregularities at trials by court martial, H.E. the C. in C. notifies, for general information, that a member who has been absent, owing to sickness or any other cause, from one or more day's sitting of a court martial, cannot resume his seat at any subsequent sitting of the court on the trial of the same prisoner.

APPLICATIONS FOR LEAVE.

Much inconvenience and unnecessary correspondence having been caused by officers sending in applications for furl. or leave to England only a few days before they wish to embark, the C. in C. directs that such applications be despatched to army head quarters in time to admit of the applicants seeing the leave in general orders, before quitting their regt. or station, after giving a margin for the contingency of explanations or deficient documents being called for.

When applications are placed before general officers comdg. divisions or districts or other trans mitting authorities they will be good enough to cause the date of commencement of the leave to be altered, if it appears to them that the allowance of time above indicated has not been made; and telegraphic communication on this subject will not be attended to except in cases of the clearest urgency.

MUSKETRY—PAY—LEAVE.

With the sanction of Government the C. in C. is pleased to notify for general information that regtl. instructors of musketry are to be on the same footing in India, as regards leave in India and allowances whilst on such leave, as other regtl. staff officers.

It must be distinctly understood that this order refers to India alone, and that an instructor going to Europe on leave forfeits all the allowances of the appt. as laid down in G.O.C.C., dated Aug. 25, 1863.

REPORTS—LEAVE—ROYAL ENGINEERS.

Considerable inconvenience having been experienced in consequence of officers of R.E., who obtain leave of absence from India to Europe, not reporting their arrival and their address while on leave, to the Horse Guards, the C. in C. in India is pleased, under instructions from H.R.H. the F.M. C. in C., to direct that in future all R.E. officers who may proceed to England will, as soon after their arrival as possible report the same, and notify their address to the deputy adj. gen., R.E., Horse Guards, in writing.

DRESS OF OFFICERS.

Her Majesty the Queen has been pleased to approve of a slight alteration in the patrol jacket now worn by the officers of the Royal Artillery.

The approval of her Majesty has also been obtained for a similar patrol jacket, with the addition of blue velvet collar and cuffs, being taken into wear by the officers of the Royal Engineers.

Standard sealed patterns of these patrol jackets are deposited at the Horse Guards, and are to be strictly adhered to.

RETIREMENT OF OFFICERS.

Referring to circular memorandum of December 27, 1866, No. 888, suspending the operation of the circular memoranda of February 15, 1861, No. 106, and February 28, 1862, No. 186, H.R.H. the Field Marshal Commanding in Chief, at the request of the Secretary of State for War, notifies to the army that the suspension is removed, and that the sale of commissions by half pay officers may now be carried out as before.

REPORTS OF ARRIVAL.

Referring to G.O. No. 750, dated May 11, 1860, the Field Marshal Commanding in Chief, at the request of the Secretary of State for War, desires that it may be understood that only general and field officers returning home on duty, or on medical certificate are entitled to claim travelling expenses from the port of disembarkation to London when coming to report themselves personally at the Horse Guards.

General and field officers who return home on private leave of absence are not entitled to travelling expenses, but H.R.H. still expects that they will continue to report themselves personally at the earliest opportunity. In the event of any inconvenience being occasioned to them by coming up to London they should report their arrival by letter to the Adjutant General, and at the same time request to be exempted from personal attendance.

EXAMINATIONS.

Many instances having lately occurred in which subalterns who have been some time in the service have not passed the necessary examination as to their qualification for promotion, the Field Marshal Commanding in Chief holds commanding officers responsible that no unnecessary delay shall take place in this important particular, as H.R.H. has decided that in all future cases of this nature he will select the senior officer who has qualified for promotion to the higher grade.

BRITISH AND INDIAN MEDICAL SERVICES.

July 10.—No. 442.—With reference to G.O. No. 619, dated Nov. 6, 1866, the circles of medical superintendence of the British and Indian medical services will, until further orders, comprise the stations detailed below:—

[Names of stations omitted.]

2. The Mhow division and Southern Maratha circle of the Indian medical department are abolished.

3. The arrangements now notified will have effect from July 4 last.

4. With adverbence to paragraphs 7 and 8 of the G.O. of Nov. 6, 1866, the distribution of duties between the deputy inspectors general of the two services will be regulated as follows:—

(1.) Duties strictly connected with the British troops, whether professional, economic, or sanitary, will be vested solely in the administrative or senior officers of the British medical service, and those connected with the native army, and bodies of men belonging to it, in the senior medical officers of the Indian service.

No returns or reports connected with such duties will consequently be required by officers of one service from those of the other, excepting those referred to in rule 7 below.

(2.) Senior medical officers of the two services on the spot, whatever their rank may be, will act as the sanitary officers and advisers of the officer commanding the station, in all matters relating to their respective departments or duties, as above indicated, and they will have the entire superintendence of the sanitation of the lines, bazaars, and establishments attached to them, and of the regiments belonging to their respective services.

(3.) Questions relating to the general health of the station, as a whole, or those in regard to which there is any doubt as to the jurisdiction, should be considered and reported on by the cantonment board of health, of which the senior medical officers present of the two services should be ex-officio members, or, if the question be a purely medical one, it may be considered by a board of medical officers of both services, the senior presiding.

(4.) When a medical board is held on officers or soldiers of either service, this president always, if practicable, and the members so far as can conveniently be arranged, should belong to the same service as those officers or soldiers.

5. The arrangement for hospital servants for British troops will be carried out by the deputy inspector general, or senior medical officer, British service, in communication with the commissariat department, under the rules which have hitherto guided the deputy inspectors general of the Indian army in similar matters.

6. The subordinate medical department will be, as heretofore, under the control of the inspector general of hospitals, Indian medical department, who will transfer to the control of the inspector general, British medical service, 16 apothecaries, 16 stewards, and 13 assistant apothecaries for regiments and artillery brigades, together with 17 assistant apothecaries for minor charges, and the apprentices attached to British military hospitals. Their education, promotion, invaliding, pensioning, transfers to civil and other medical appointments, will, however, still rest with the inspector general, Indian medical department, and be regulated as at present.

7. To enable the inspector general, Indian medical department, to carry out the above-mentioned duties, the inspector general, British medical service, will be pleased to direct that copies of all periodical returns and reports referring to the subordinate medical department under him may be forwarded regularly to the inspector general, Indian medical department.

HOME.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

PROMOTIONS IN THE 96TH REGIMENT.

Mr. HAYTER asked the Secretary of State for War whether his attention had been called to the Gazette of the 19th ult., in which three officers of the 96th regiment were promoted by purchase in succession to Major Cuppage of that regiment, who was stated in the Indian Mail to have died on the 12th of the preceding month; and whether, should such promotions be found to have been irregular as regards the medical certificate, the Secretary of State for War would advise their cancelling, in order that the senior officers of each rank might succeed, without purchase, to the vacant steps.

Sir J. PARKINGTON said the case had been brought under his consideration, and, as he had found that the rules had been complied with, he should not be justified in interrupting the sale of the commissions referred to.

INDIAN PRIZE MONEY.

Mr. WHALLEY asked the Secretary of State for India what occasioned the delay in the distribution of the prize money due to the Central Indian Army, and when such distribution might be expected.

Sir S. NORTHCOTE believed that the distribution had already begun in India. At home it had been delayed by the non-arrival of the rolls, but he was expecting these to arrive by every mail.

THE EAST INDIA REVENUE ACCOUNTS.

The report of the committee on these accounts was brought up and agreed to.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—AUGUST 15.

THE INDIA MAILS.

Mr. LAIRD asked the Secretary to the Treasury whether, before coming to any decision as to accepting tenders for the conveyance of the East India, China, and Australian mails, her Majesty's Government would afford the House an opportunity next session of giving an opinion upon the subject; if, in consequence of postponing the decision, any temporary arrangement might be requisite for the conveyance of the mails, whether her Majesty's Government had made, or were prepared to make, such arrangement; and if he would state the nature of the arrangement contemplated with the Messageries Impériales.

Mr. HUNT said there was no question with regard to the Australian mail, because notice had not yet been given to determine the contract. The contract with regard to the other mails would expire on the 2nd of February, and Parliament would not, therefore, have an opportunity of expressing their opinion upon the new contract till after it had been made. This result had not been foreseen when the notice was given; but if it had, the difficulty could not have been avoided, for the Government had received a communication from the Peninsular and Oriental Company to the effect that if the Government did not give them notice, they would give notice to the Government. In consequence, however, of the opinion expressed on the part of many hon. members that it was undesirable to conclude a new contract till Parliament had had an opportunity of stating its views upon it, the Government had endeavoured to make a temporary contract with the Peninsular and Oriental Company for six months. He had just received the answer of the company, expressing their willingness to enter into such a contract, but demanding a subsidy of 10s. per mile, which would be at the rate of a quarter of a million a year. Her Majesty's Government thought those terms were so exorbitant that they could not be accepted, but they would continue their efforts to make some temporary arrangement. There appeared to be a great misconception as to the intention of the Government with regard to the Messageries Impériales. In the first place, what was contemplated by the Government was in their view no more than carrying out the recommendations of the committee which had sat last session. Her Majesty's Government had certainly never had any idea of putting the whole service into the hands of the French Government. The Post-office had certainly sent a form of tender to the French company so as to allow them to make an offer if they thought proper to do so; but all the communications that had passed were only of an informal and semi-official character. The fact was the Messageries Impériales could not make a tender for the service unless the French Government allowed them to do so; because, while the English service was to be fortnightly, the French was once in a calendar month; and therefore it would not fit in with ours. But supposing that the French Government would alter their terms, it would be possible for them to make a tender. At present there was a ruinous competition going on between the English and the French company with regard to the China service; and if both services were to be continued for the honour and glory of their respective flags, each country would have to pay a large subsidy. It seemed to the Government, therefore, that if an arrangement could be made whereby the companies should take the mails each alternate fortnight, it would be for their mutual advantage. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. AYRTON asked the Government whether, if the Peninsular and Oriental Company took advantage of the circumstances to demand an exorbitant subsidy, it would not be well for the Government to make use of the splendid fleet which had just been constructed to ply between Suez and India. His own impression was that that would, under any circumstances, be the most economical plan.

Mr. HUNT could not give any answer to that question at the present moment.

Mr. LAIRD asked if the Government would lay before the House any arrangement they might make with the foreign company before they came to any permanent arrangement. (Cheers.)

Mr. HUNT said the answer must depend upon whether they were able to make a temporary arrangement; and that they would endeavour to do.

Mr. CHILDERS asked whether they expected to be able to make any arrangement with the French company.

Mr. HUNT said that before coming to any decision they must receive all the tenders, and said they would not bind themselves to accept the lowest.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—AUGUST 16.

INDIAN LOAN.

Mr. CRAWFORD inquired if the Secretary of State for India intended to proceed with the loan for India as proposed by Mr. Massey.

Sir S. NORTHCOTE said that Mr. Massey informed the Council of India that he proposed to raise £700,000 for irrigation, and £700,000 for the other purposes mentioned, that he had raised £600,000 for special works in Bombay, which he (Sir S. Northcote) presumed was included in the £2,000,000 to be raised, and he was confirmed in that by his having invited a loan of £1,500,000, of which he had received £1,400,000. A further sum of a million was required to complete certain barracks and it had been raised in this country. In the course of the proceedings the Government in India informed the Home Government that they should require to raise a million for this purpose. The Home Government undertook to reduce their drafts from seven millions to six millions, and to provide by the sale of stock the million required. That operation had been carried out. Mr. Massey took that into account in his statement, and he believed that no more money would have to be raised for the current year.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—AUGUST 20.
THE CESSION OF BERAS.

On the motion of Mr. STACPOOLE, a return was ordered of any correspondence that may have passed since the year 1865 between the Nizam's Government and the Indian Government on the subject of the cession of Beras; and of the political section of the administration reports for 1861 and 1862, made by Col. Davidson, resident at Hyderabad.

MISCELLANEOUS.

DEATH OF LORD DUNKELLIN, M.P.—The death of Lord Dunkellin, M.P. for Galway, occurred on the 16th inst. at the residence of his father the Marquis of Clanricarde, in Stratton-street, Piccadilly. He was the eldest son of the Marquis of Clanricarde by the Hon. Harriet Canning, only daughter of the late Right Hon. George Canning, the distinguished statesman. He was born on the 12th of July, 1827, and had, therefore, just entered his forty-first year. In March, 1846, he entered the army as ensign in the Coldstream Guards. He served with his regiment in the Crimean campaign of 1854, and was present at the battle of the Alma and the siege of Sebastopol, where he was taken prisoner but was liberated before the termination of the war. In 1856 he proceeded to Calcutta to fill the appointment of military secretary to his uncle, Lord Canning, then Governor-General of India. During his sojourn in India he served as a volunteer on the staff of General Sir James Outram during the Persian expedition of 1856-7. On his return to England in 1857 he was elected member for Galway. Lord Dunkellin was unmarried, and his brother, Lord Hubert de Burg Canning, is now heir to the title and estates of the Marquis of Clanricarde. In his regiment, in Parliament, in Ireland, in India, and in general society, Lord Dunkellin was universally popular; his abilities were far above the average.

THE NATIONAL MONUMENT TO LORD CLYDE.—A favourable site for the national monument to Lord Clyde has at last, after many delays and disappointments, been fixed upon, and the monument itself is in a fair way to completion, more than half of it being already erected. The site is in Carlton-gardens, opposite the monument recently erected to Sir John Franklin, the Arctic navigator. The design includes a full-length figure of the late general, and a large figure of a lion, both in bronze, the work of Baron Marochetti. These portions of the monument have, it is understood, long been finished, and only await the completion of the pedestal to be hoisted to their proper positions. It is anticipated that the monument will be finished in the course of a few weeks.

THE OVERLAND MAILS AND THE LIVERPOOL MERCHANTS.—The merchants and shipowners of Liverpool have long been inconvenienced by the uncertainty as to the arrival of the overland mails in England, and the probable delivery of the letters in the country. The subject was taken up by the Underwriters' Association, who first applied to the Magnetic Telegraph Company to try and procure the information in London and send it at once into the chief towns of the kingdom. Mr. E. B. Bright, the general manager of the Magnetic Company, expressed his readiness to meet the wishes of the association, and volunteered to go to London and see the postal authorities if backed up by a memorial from them. This suggestion was thankfully received, Mr. Bright went to London, and saw the "right man" at St. Martin's-le-Grand, offering to transmit all necessary information to Liverpool, Manchester, &c., if the "department" would send it to any of the London offices of the company. Simultaneously the Postmaster-General received the memorial of the Underwriters' Association. The usual official acknowledgment of the memorial was duly received, and ultimately the Postmaster-General sent a refusal. The alleged grounds for this are that to do what the association require would throw increased work on the "department," and hinder the officials in the discharge of their ordinary duties, and that if Liverpool was to receive the boon the association ask, it could not be refused to other towns.

INDIAN BRANCH RAILWAY.—On Wednesday, the 14th inst., a general meeting was held of the shareholders of the Indian Branch Railway Company. The report of the directors was adopted, and resolutions were passed authorising the alteration of the name of the company to that of the Oude and Rohilkund Railway Company, which is to possess a Government guarantee of 5 per cent., and for increasing the capital from £1,000,000 to £4,050,000. This sum will provide for the £4,000,000 of guaranteed capital included in the contract, and for the £50,000 on account of the Nulhatee Line, not guaranteed, and which will form a separate undertaking, to be called the Nulhatee Railway.

LAUNCH.—(CHATHAM, AUG. 18.)—The Beacon, which was launched at this dockyard yesterday, is one of the squadron of composite gun vessels built for service in China. She is built on the composite principle, of iron frames, with a double planking of teak timber. Her floors are perfectly flat, which will give her a very light draught of water. She is 155 feet in length, and 25 feet in breadth, and will be propelled by two screws, driven with a pair of 120-horse power engines. The Beacon was "christened" by Miss Stewart, daughter of Captain W. H. Stewart, C.B., superintendent of the dockyard, the launch being a very successful one. Her armament will consist of a couple of 7-inch 6½-ton, and 64-pounders, fitted as pivot guns.

ARRIVAL OF THE HEAVY CALCUTTA AND CHINA MAILS.—(SOUTHAMPTON, AUGUST 18.)—The Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamship Pera, Captain Jamieson, with the heavy portion of the above mails, arrived this afternoon. She brings 114 passengers, 24 packages specie, value not stated, and a general cargo, including 1,000 sacks wheat; also 713 bales raw silk, value £60,000 sterling. The Pera experienced fine weather to Finisterre, thence to Southampton thick and hazy. On the 10th instant, off the island of Pantellaria, she spoke the steamship Sea Queen, and on the 15th the steamship Syria, with the outward mails of the 12th.

KNIGHTHOOD.—(WHITEHALL, August 19.)—The Queen has been pleased to direct letters patent to be passed under the Great Seal, granting the dignity of a Knight of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland unto Harry St. George Ord, Esq., Colonel in her Majesty's army, Lieutenant-colonel in the corps of Royal Engineers, C.B., Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Straits Settlements.

CAPTAIN JERVIS.—It is more than probable that her Majesty will be advised to act upon the recommendation to mercy in the case of Captain Jervis so far as to permit that officer to retire upon half-pay.—Army and Navy Gazette.

A RAILWAY FOR ASSAM.—We see that Mr. Buckland, Commissioner of Dacca, represented to Sir Cecil Beadon, shortly before his departure for England, the advisability of his taking some action on the subject of the extension of the Eastern Bengal Railway to Assam, before quitting office. Mr. Buckland based his request on the well-known delays which must occur in making the preliminary surveys and enquiries, and on the great necessity which exists for some better means of communication with Cachar and Assam than at present. Even so early as April the journey between Dacca and Cachar occupies ten days, and is performed in a small and uncomfortable boat, and yet the distance is only two hundred miles. In the opinion of the Commissioner of Dacca, the resources of the fertile valley of Assam can never be fully developed without the establishment of a railway, which should, he thinks, run through Sabhar, Jamalpore, Gawalpara, and Gowahatty. He also remarked that the propriety of agitating this question has recently been forcibly demonstrated by the discovery of petroleum in Cachar, "and it is to petroleum that the scientific world is now looking for the novelties and improvements in steam power machinery." There can be no doubt that a railway to the tea districts would satisfy even the requirements of the Government of India, on the score of profits and usefulness, and that the preliminary investigations should be undertaken without delay. The Government would do well to ask Mr. Prestage to go over the line.

CHLORODYNE.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is a certain cure in Cholera, Dysentery, Diarrhoea, Colics, &c.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Extract from the General Board of Health, London, as to its efficacy in Cholera.—"So strongly are we convinced of the immense value of this remedy, that we cannot too forcibly urge the necessity of adopting it in all cases." From A. Montgomery, Esq., late Inspector of Hospitals, Bombay.—"Chlorodyne is a most valuable remedy in Neuralgia, Asthma, and Dysentery. To it I fairly owe my restoration to health after eighteen months' severe suffering, and when all other remedies had failed."

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. Page Wood stated publicly in Court that Dr. J. Collis Browne was undoubtedly the inventor of Chlorodyne; that the whole story of the defendant Freeman was deliberately untrue, and he regretted to say it had been sworn to.—See the Times, July 13, 1864.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—The Right Hon. Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians and J. T. Davenport that he had received information to the effect that the only remedy of any service in Cholera was Chlorodyne.—See Lancet, Dec. 31, 1864.

DR. LOWE, Medical Missionary in India, reports (Dec., 1865) that in nearly every case of Cholera in which Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne was administered the patient recovered.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is the best and most certain remedy in Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Consumption, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, &c.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is publicly acknowledged by the most eminent Physicians of London to be the most effectual remedy every discovered. To prevent fraud, the Government have authorised a Stamp, with the words Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne engraved thereon, without which none can be genuine. Sole Manufacturer, J. T. DAVENPORT, 33, Great Russell-street, Bloomsbury, London. The immense demand enables the proprietors to reduce the price; it is now sold in bottles, 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s.

SARSAPARILLA.

WILKINSON'S (late Bridge's) ESSENCE or FLUID EXTRACT of RED JAMAICA SARSAPARILLA, prescribed by the Faculty for purifying the blood, debility, liver complaints, and freeing the system from the effects of mercury. Exclusively used in India and the Colonies as a prevention to tropical diseases.

"Superior preparation that may always be relied upon."—Sir Astley Cooper.

"We are in every respect satisfied with it."—Lancet.
"We recommend your Sarsaparilla as the best."—Medical Review.

Sold in quarter, half, and pint bottles.

CAUTION.—Many spurious, worthless, and injurious preparations are offered to the public. See that both bottle and label have the name and address.

Quintessence of Jamaica Ginger and Camomile. WILKINSON'S PREPARATION OF GINGER and CAMOMILE has long been deservedly known as an excellent domestic medicine. It is a most efficient stomachic tonic, and the best remedy for flatulency and disorders arising from impaired digestion.

It is not affected by climate.
No European in India or tropical countries should be without it.

Sold in one-eighth, quarter, and half-pint bottles.

Aromatic Tincture of Quinoidine,

For the prevention of Fever, Ague, and effects of Malaria. An unfailing remedy. It may be mentioned that those who, during the campaign in the Crimea, daily took a small quantity, passed entirely unharmed through the raking fire of fever and dysentery that thinned the ranks around them.

Sold in half and quarter-pint bottles.

Prepared by THOMAS WILKINSON (late Bridge and Co.), 270, Regent-street, London, W.

COUGHS, ASTHMA, and INCIPIENT CONSUMPTION ARE EFFECTUALLY CURED BY KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—THE HOUR OF DANGER.—Disease commonly comes on with slight symptoms, which, when neglected, increase in intensity and gradually grow dangerous, a condition which betrays the grossest remissness, when these Pills, taken in accordance with their accompanying directions, would not only have checked but concurred the incipient disorder. Patients daily forward details of the most remarkable and instructive cases, in which timely attention to Holloway's advice has undoubtedly saved them from severe illness. These Pills act primarily on the digestive organs, which they stimulate when slow and imperfect; and, secondly, upon the blood, which is thoroughly purified by them—whence is derived the general tone they impart, and their power of subjugating hypochondriasis, dyspepsia, and nervous complaints.

KEATING'S PERSIAN INSECT DESTROYING POWDER.

THIS POWDER is quite harmless to animal life, but is unrivalled in destroying Fleas, Bugs, Flies, Cockroaches, Beetles, Gnats, Mosquitoes, Moths in Furs, and every other species of insect.

Being the Original Importer of this now invaluable article which has found so great a sale that it has tempted others to vend a so-called article, the public are therefore cautioned to observe that the packets of the genuine Powder bear the autograph of THOMAS KEATING.

Sold in Packets, 1s., and Tins, 2s. 6d., 4s. 6d., and 6s. each or 1s. Packets, free by post, for fourteen postage stamps, and 2s. 6d. on receipt of thirty-six. Also in Bottles, 1s. 2d.; with Bellows, 1s. 6d. and 3s. each, by THOMAS KEATING, Chemist, 79, St. Paul's Churchyard London, E.C.

RUPTURES.—BY HER MAJESTY'S ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS, Perfected and Exhibited in the Great Exhibition of 1861, is allowed by upwards of 200 Medical Gentlemen to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so often hurtful in its effects, is here avoided; a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected, and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit) forwarded by post on the circumference of the body two inches below the hips being sent to the Manufacturer, Mr. WHITE, 228, Piccadilly London.

Price of a Single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., and 31s. 6d.; postage, 1s. Price of Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d.; postage, 1s. 8d. Umbilical, 42s. and 52s. 6d.; postage, 1s. 10d.

NEW PATENT.

ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEE CAPS, &c.—The material of which these are made is recommended by the Faculty as being peculiarly elastic and compressible, and the best invention for giving efficient and permanent support in all cases of weakness and swelling of the Legs, Varicose Veins, Sprains, &c. It is porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and is drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price, 4s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 10s. to 16s. each; postage, 6d. JOHN WHITE, MANUFACTURER, 228, PICCADILLY, LONDON.

CHILDREN'S WORM TABLETS

Sold in Tins and Bottles of various sizes, by THOMAS KEATING, Chemist, &c., 79, St. Paul's Churchyard, London. Sold Retail by all Druggists and Patent Medicine Vendors in the world.

OBSERVE the words "KEATING'S WORM TABLETS" are engraved on the Government Stamp of each Tin, without which none are genuine.

IMPORTANT to OFFICERS.—Have all your BOTTLED ALES, WINES, &c., PACKED IN SEYMOUR'S REFRIGERANT STRAW ENVELOPES, which entirely prevent heating, fermentation, and breakage; will use repeatedly as Wine Coolers, prevent all litter on board ship or in quarters, and save 20 per cent. in space and freight. Supplied by all Wine Merchants at 9d. per dozen, and wholesale by THOMAS WHITEHEAD, 37, Eastcheap London, E.C.

THE INDIAN ARMY AND CIVIL SERVICE LIST.

(THE PUBLICATION HAS BEEN UNAVOIDABLY DELAYED.)

Consequent on the measures adopted by Lord Cranborne to remedy the grievances of the Indian Army—one of which was granting the right of admission to the Staff Corps of all the old officers, unconditionally—a considerable change has been made in the appearance of this volume. Although the old Cadres still exist, nearly all the names are in Italics, showing the great number of officers who have availed themselves of the privilege; whilst the Lists of the Staff Corps themselves will show what a great stimulus has been given to promotion, numbers of officers having obtained two steps of substantive (and paying) rank in one day.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

THE Calcutta mail brings no later news from that Presidency, which seems to make all its communications via Bombay. The Madras dates are to the 27th of July.

There is rather more stirring than usual in Madras—notably a monster indignation meeting against the Municipal Bill. It took place at Patcheappah's Hall, and is described as one of the largest gatherings ever witnessed in that part of India. The hall being found too small, an attempt was made to hold the proceedings in the open air, on one of the fort esplanades, but as there was no accommodation for the speakers at that place, it was decided to return to the hall, packed and heated as it was. The meeting went off very satisfactorily, and the principal speakers acquitted themselves in a manner that brought forth continued marks of approval from the audience. The petition was unanimously adopted, and was soon in course of signature. At the preliminary meeting it was stated that Government were sending off the Bill to Calcutta in order to get the sanction of the supreme authority as early as possible. The Executive Committee accordingly telegraphed to Simla, and requested that Sir John Lawrence would withhold his sanction until he had received the petition from Madras. A reply was received from Simla requesting that the petition might be sent quickly. It was accordingly to be sent by the next P. and O. steamer, and by the date of despatch it was expected that there would be thirty or forty thousand signatures attached to it. Some curiosity had been excited by the word "quickly," and suspicions were entertained that the local Government were endeavouring to steal a march on the petitioners and get sanction to the Bill by telegraph. The petition, accompanied by the Municipal Bill, and all the proceedings connected with it, is to be sent to the East India Association in London, with a request that that body will take such steps to further the views of the petitioners as may be thought desirable.

Lord Napier was out of reach of the agitation in the Presidency. He left for Bellary before the Bill was ready for his signature. It was despatched after his lordship on the 19th, but whether he had yet given his written assent to the Bill was not known. Colonel Orr, Secretary Public Works Department, was to join Lord Napier at Bellary, and it will very probably be now decided what works of irrigation shall be taken in hand for the advancement of that and the neighbouring districts.

Colonel Fytche's circular upon the subject of what some of the local papers call "the social evil" in Burmah, has not been received with general approval. The Madras Times says:—"A more extraordinary order than this we have rarely heard of. If the Friend of India had not published it, and, what is worse, had the bad taste to support it, we should have been inclined to think that it had emanated from a lunatic asylum. We are aware that the evil of which Colonel Fytche complains exists to a very deplorable extent in Burmah, but how any sane man can imagine that such an order as this will stop it is beyond our comprehension. In all probability it will do more harm than good, and make men obstinate and defiant who might otherwise have yielded to gentle persuasion. The authority given to the heads of departments of writing confidential reports on the private lives of their subalterns is altogether unwarrantable, and may obviously result in much oppression and injustice. Before issuing such an order Colonel Fytche should have recollected that as there are various ways of killing a cat, so also there are more ways than one of putting down, or attempting to put down, the social evil in Burmah. The Colonel has adopted a method that is sure to cause a widespread scandal, much bad feeling, and altogether unsatisfactory results."

The birthday fete of the Maharajah of Mysore came to a close on the 24th July, after "ten days' hard labour," into which races, reviews, equestrian and other performances, and a prodigious amount of eating and drinking, were crammed. Of real enjoyment, it is said, there was a very minute quantity indeed, and this was mostly confined to the sporting world who go to Mysore, attracted solely by their "engagements" or other interest in the race events. At the birthday feast in the palace Mr. Saunders, officiating commissioner for his Highness's territories, took the opportunity to congratulate the Maharajah upon the recognition by the Government of his adopted son.

The return of the Commander-in-Chief with his staff to the Presidency, preparatory to his final departure from India, was announced to take place towards the middle of August.

It is announced that the post of Residency Surgeon at Hyderabad, which has become vacant by the death of Dr. Pemberton, has been conferred by Sir Richard Temple upon Dr. S. J. Wyndowe, of the Madras Medical Service, and Professor of Chemistry in the Medical College. "The appointment," says the Madras Times, "is a good one, and we may certainly congratulate a Madras officer on obtaining it, considering the weakness of the Bengal Government in the matter of reserving all good appointments for its own officers. In Dr. Wyndowe the Medical College will undoubtedly lose an accomplished Professor, and Sir Richard Temple and the Residency officers at Hyderabad will secure an able medical adviser."

The next arrival from India will be the Bombay Mail, which is due in London on Wednesday next.

We publish in another column a report of a deputation to Sir Stafford Northcote, from the East India Association, upon the subject of giving further facilities for the employment of natives in the public service.

We observe in the Madras Government Gazette, just received, an announcement of the conditions for scholarships in the London University to be instituted by the Gilchrist Educational Trust for the benefit of Natives of India. It appears that two scholarships, each of the value of £100 per annum, and tenable for five years, will be annually awarded to candidates born in India, who shall become eligible by competitive examination, under the following conditions:—1. Of the parents of each candidate, one, at least, shall belong to one of the native races. 2. Every candidate must have completed his eighteenth year, and not exceeded twenty-two years. 3. Every candidate must give satisfactory proof as to personal character and social position. The subjects of examination will be Latin, English Language and History, Arithmetic and Algebra, Geometry, Natural Philosophy, and Chemistry. The examination-papers will be analogous, in character and difficulty, to those prepared in these subjects respectively for the Matriculation Examination of the University of London; and the number of hours assigned to each of the papers will be the same as those assigned to the like paper by the University of London. These papers will be sent out in sealed covers through the India-office, to the charge of sub-examiners appointed by her Majesty's Government.

MONT CENIS RAILWAY.—The works on the Mont Cenis Summit Railway, which have been most vigorously pushed, are at length finished, and on Monday last an engine ran from St. Michel to Susa, the termini of the line, conveying Captain Tyler, R.E., specially commissioned by the Board of Trade with regard to new postal arrangements, the Duke de Valombrosa, Mr. Brogden, and Mr. Fell, directors; and Mr. Brunelles, engineer to the company. There were also present, and assisting at the opening trip, which was most successful, Capt. Bomont, R.E.; Mr. Bell, resident engineer; Mr. Blake, who has carried out the reparation of the Imperial Road for Mr. Brassey; Mr. Alexander, under whose superintendence the engines required for the service have been constructed; and Mr. Barnes, the locomotive superintendent. It is expected that the line will shortly be opened for public traffic.

THE EAST INDIA ASSOCIATION.

It is some time since we noted the progress of this society, which the other day was only an idea, and now promises to become an institution. So at least we gather from the first number of the "Journal" now before us, which indicates a very healthy state of things. The little committee which, under the presidency of General North, dealt so successfully with the case of the Indian officers, has now grown into an organisation prepared to promote Indian interests generally, not only by developing its own views of the duty of this country towards her great dependency, but by influencing public opinion towards their adoption, and pressing them personally, when desirable, upon the attention of Government. It is intended, indeed, as the second rule declares, that the Association shall be for the independent and disinterested advocacy, and promotion by all legitimate means, of the interests and welfare of India generally. For this purpose it will supply to members of Parliament and the public every information at its command upon Indian subjects, and will also receive communications, direct or through local committees, from all who have information upon those subjects to convey. It carefully avoids, we are glad to see, any tendency to become a "league," or representation of class interests, the third rule expressly providing that no notice will be taken of complaints of individuals against the Governments in India or their civil and military servants, unless a question of public importance be involved therein; nor will it undertake to act in any matters that can be decided by law courts, or by appeal to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. As the Association must have a local habitation as well as a name, it will provide a library and reading-room as soon as possible; but at present it is contented with temporary accommodation at No. 55, Parliament-street.

The Association has had several general meetings, in addition to those held weekly by the managing committee, as well as an annual meeting, the proceedings of which

BENGAL.

WILL IRRIGATION IN INDIA PAY?

One of the ablest business men in England, having shares in an Indian Irrigation Company, set himself to study the probabilities of a fair return for his money. He came to the conclusion that the investment was bad, and at once sold out. Certainly all past experience justifies his want of faith in the future, whether we look at the guaranteed Madras Irrigation Company or at the pecuniary results of the Ganges Canal. The East India Irrigation Company, though far superior to that of Madras, perhaps because it is not guaranteed, has yet to justify the hopes of its shareholders. Colonel Strachey is likely soon to throw some light on the boastings of Sir A. Cotton regarding State irrigation works, which have been so singularly falsified in the company projected by that enthusiastic officer, and managed by his brother. For every reason it is important that irrigation works in India should pay, especially at a time when Government has embarked in schemes involving an estimated expenditure of thirty millions sterling. We believe that irrigation works will yield returns at least as large as the best of the railways, and it is important that only the most moderate expectations should be entertained if a good cause is not to be ruined by extravagant promises. Colonel Strachey, though apt to ride a hobby like his neighbours, is so open to lights from all quarters, and the Governor-general is so eager that every rupee should bring its full value, that we hopefully submit the following considerations as a contribution towards making the irrigation works of the future pay better than those of the past.

We can best understand how large sums of money have been spent on such works, and how we can make future outlay secure greater results, by an illustration. The Baree Doab Canal cost Government 116 lakhs of rupees up to last year. The irrigated area had extended only to 192,683 acres, or say two lakhs, which brought a direct income last year of Rs. 4,90,650, and indirect, Rs. 78,534, or say 5½ lakhs. The working expenses for the same period had been close on four lakhs, so that after the canal had been eight years in existence the annual income came to 1½ lakhs, or only 12 annas per cent. Half the water by one canal—the Lahore branch—is carried through a tract of country from 40 to 60 per cent. of which is already irrigated from wells made at an average cost of Rs. 200 each, and therefore wells can be easily extended. This line throws away water where it is not so much needed, while a great deal of the water—we should be afraid to say how much—rushes back into the Ravee through an escape below Lahore. The other canal, a main branch, reaches a point twenty-six miles below Lahore, and there becoming exhausted in the working season still often throws much of its waters also down into the river by the Alpee escape. There may be seen sometimes even two feet of water going back into that river. This line—incredible though it be—stops short of the really bleak and arid tracts in the Lahore, Montgomery, and Mooltan districts, where there is little rain, no water even for drinking in certain seasons, and scarcely any well can be made. This is one picture of how 116 lakhs is made to do its irrigating duty.

Now let us look at the other. If 116 lakhs had been spent in loans to landholders, repayable after ten years at 8 per cent., for the construction of wells in the upper region of the Doab, watered by the first-named branch of the canal, we should have had 60,000 wells made by this time, had the money been spent on a system and controlled by skilful and moderate establishments. A well can easily water in these parts from fifteen to twenty acres of land, so that by the lower rate we should have succeeded in irrigating 9 lakhs, were continued by adjournment on a second day. Upon the latter occasions plans and prospects were discussed with much interest, and Mr. F. B. Elliot made a notable proposal for increasing the sphere of operations to the colonies. That such an arrangement would be desirable for the sake of the enlarged support that it would bring, seemed to be the general impression; but, on the other hand, the operation would be distracting, and might, besides, tend to cool the ardour of Indian support. The extension would, moreover, involve a change of name—always a dangerous proceeding in any public body. So in the end the matter was compromised, and it was determined to include only China, which from position and analogy may be considered to belong to a scheme of the kind. So the name stands as it did, with this important addition to the original plan.

At the first general meeting after the annual one, Lord Lyveden, the President of the Association for the year, made some excellent remarks upon the particular objects which it should seek to fulfil. "They were aware," he said, "that of late there had been a deficiency of accurate and authentic information respecting India, as well to private individuals as to the Government of the Crown. There were more means of communication, certainly, through the East India Company than there existed at the present, for people then if they wished to learn anything respecting that country had only to go to the offices in Leadenhall-street, and there they could see the records of what was taking place. But changes had occurred; and he might say that he was one of those who were most anxious to see transferred the power to the Government of the day. He admitted there was not that facility now that there used to be in acquiring intelligence from that country—the facility had been taken away; still there was the same interest as ever manifested for obtaining it, and to afford this was one of the objects which their association had to promote. But the change in the Government had led to this result—the friends of India had more power, through members of Parliament, of getting access to the Government than they had in times gone by, for then was felt the extreme difficulty that existed of bringing questions before the Cabinet in which perhaps they were not politically interested. Again, he thought that information was much needed by the natives of India as to what was being done in this country respecting them, and assistance was required which they fairly ought to have. He would take the case of native princes who had claims upon this country, and who looked to ready assistance being given them by the Government. When he was on the Indian board those princes were continually coming over, and were constantly falling into bad hands. Some active agent or an attorney got hold of them and promised to forward their claims. Often, in fact, they submitted their case to the first person who offered himself, who might, for aught they knew, be an impostor, and who oftentimes readily got over them. He remembered one of the native princes, who was not assisted by the Government, telling him of his position on one occasion. He learned from the Prince that he had employed an attorney who was constantly drawing money from him and telling him that his suit was making rapid progress; and once the attorney actually assured him that he had dined with Prince Albert and the Queen, and that they would very soon take up his cause, and that it would readily be promoted. This sort of thing would be avoided by the establishment of their Association, for its objects would be to unite England to India,—not only to introduce young England to old India, but old India to young England."

At this and subsequent meetings some interesting papers were read by members; and these have been duly printed in the "Journal" under notice. At the adjourned annual meeting the services of Captain Barber, the secretary, were very handsomely acknowledged, and a proposal was made to remunerate him, as far as would be permitted by the limited funds at command; but that gentleman magnanimously disavowed any desire to serve himself in the matter, and preferred that the question should be waived until the establishment of the Association on a firmer and more independent basis. Altogether the spirit evinced during these proceedings was of a most creditable character, and augurs well for the future prosperity of the undertaking.

ARRIVAL OF THE HEAVY BOMBAY MAIL.—(SOUTHAMPTON, Aug. 25.)—The Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company's steamship Nyanza Captain Curling, with the heavy portion of the above mails, arrived here this evening. She brings fifty-one passengers, eighteen packages specie, value £4,975, and a general cargo. The Nyanza experienced fine weather throughout the passage. On the 18th she spoke the steamer Celia, steering north-west; 19th, steamer Syria and British barque Ambassador; 22nd, exchanged colours with steamship Ceylon; 23rd, steamship Mooltan; and on the 24th inst. the British ship Glenmark.

GREAT INDIAN PENINSULAR RAILWAY.—The directors of this company have announced that they will, in December next, be able to pay a dividend of 6 per cent., as against 5½ per cent. for the corresponding period of last year. The shareholders will thus receive 5½ per cent., being ten shillings per cent. above the guaranteed amount, and ten shillings per cent. will be paid to the Secretary of State for India, in reduction of the amount advanced for interest.

GARRISON FOR CUTTACK.—The Government of India has approved of an entire regiment of Native Infantry being posted at Cuttack, the wing of the regiment now at that place being relieved.

by the higher 12 lakhs of acres. A water rate of from 12 annas to one rupee an acre, it has been discovered, can be paid from year to year quite apart from landlord's profits. So, applying this to the mean of the acres irrigated, we learn that from 8 to 10 lakhs of enhanced land revenue could have been obtained by this time as the yearly income. Had wells been made 10 lakhs of acres would have been brought under protection against drought and have yielded from 8 to 10 lakhs of increased revenue, while the whole 116 lakhs of the loan could have been recovered by 1869 or 1870. At present from this canal we have only 2 lakhs of acres irrigated, only 5½ lakhs of revenue, and out of this only 1 lakh as profit after deducting working expenses. And the capital, where is that? Unrecovered, and bringing in an interest only of 12 annas per cent. Is it surprising that Government and the public have been so long in learning the advantage of making irrigation works that controversies have raged or that doubts and misgivings exist?

The general principles we may draw from all this are:—Encourage well irrigation wherever it can be extended with ease. Raise and give out loans for this purpose. The area irrigated and other results will be at least five times more than what the most prominent canal in the Punjab has done for the same money. Utilise and store water wherever possible. Let the people work out these schemes themselves, properly controlled by special irrigation officers. Never make canals for irrigation where there is plenty of rain and wells can be easily constructed. Confine the larger irrigation canals to really dry and rainless tracts at first; and if there is money to spare after protecting these countries against famines, then give canals to more fertile tracts to increase their productive power. Borrow money for well irrigation and minor works at 5 per cent. for the public, and lend again to landholders at 8 per cent. repayable after ten years; keep the 3 per cent. to be spent in salaries for irrigation officers, one of whom could be at once appointed to each division. All the minor works could thus be carried out through the people, and would cost nothing in the end to Government, while the area protected by irrigation from such sources would increase in ten years to twenty times as great as we could ever achieve through canals, though it would not be as cheap in the long run to the people as if they had got canal water. The plan could be carried out in six months from this date. Let the remainder of public loans be kept for the larger irrigation works in arid, rainless, unproductive tracts, for every rupee spent there on water has its full commercial and political advantages, even if, financially, the outlay does not bring in moderate or any interest. There remain the canals required for navigation. Let the data be collected, and the Government guarantees and concessions be duly advertised. Once show the expected trade results, and the probable profits to be obtained on the outlay incurred, and British capital would flow out. Companies would come forward, and the works undertaken be quite independent of the people or Government.

As it is, we fear that the enormous department about to be created by Colonel Strachey will move too slowly. But if companies on the one hand, and the people themselves on the other, be enlisted by concessions, guarantees, and loans, the most arid districts in India may be irrigated before the next cycle of famines comes round.—Friend of India.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE LUNATIC ASYLUM AT LAHORE.—The Lunatic Asylum at Lahore seems to be conducted on far sounder and healthier principles than generally characterise the management of such institutions. We are in receipt of the last report, which is the first one given to the public since the establishment of the asylum in 1849, a circumstance that is not satisfactorily accounted for in the statistics presented for public digestion in the report under notice. The asylum has been for years under the medical and executive charge of Dr. C. M. Smith, the civil surgeon, who has, it seems, had its sole conduct and management sans pay. This is, we confess, a very anomalous feature, and its peculiarity looked at from an Indian point of view is significant enough to make the reader a querist. The building, we are told, is well placed on an elevated surface, the wards are well ventilated and kept scrupulously clean, the amount of sleeping accommodation allowed to each inmate is 975 cubic feet and 80 feet of superficial space, while the quantity of food and allowance of clothing is "on the most liberal scale." There is matter for much speculation in the circumstance that there has been a "progressive increase" in the proportion of admissions between Mahomedans and Hindoos, the former having a preponderance over the latter. There can be none, or at any rate very small doubt that this fact is owing in a very great degree to the difference of aliment and regimen in observance between the two classes, the Hindoos being stringently simple in their course of living, while the followers of the Crescent are greatly the reverse. The asylum owes its origin, however to a Hindoo Prince—Maharajah Dulcep Sing.—Oude Gazette, July 3.

THE TRADE OF WESTERN CHINA.—Burmese papers speak in glowing terms of the riches of Western China, and of the gigantic character of the trade which is there struggling to be opened up. That a railway from the sea at Rangoon to the frontiers of China would be a most remunerative undertaking has long ceased to be a matter of doubt. But so long as the King of Mandalay and his favourites and advisers are allowed to beard the English authorities, and to keep their native country in a chronic state of rebellion and anarchy, a railway through the Burman State cannot possibly be undertaken. It may be accepted that the annexation of Burmah will be forced upon the English Government sooner or latter. At present, however, the Government of India appears in no haste to quarrel with the King; in fact, its intentions are quite the other way. How, then, is China to be reached without a railway? At Bhammo there is a large Chinese colony, who act as the middlemen between their compatriots and the Burmese and Rangoon merchants, and with these it would be perfectly feasible to open up direct communication by water, if the Government of India would only insist upon a faithful and intelligent interpretation being put upon the existing treaty. Colonel Fyche's first endeavours should be to secure large powers for the British Agent at Mandalay, and the establishment of a colony at Bhammo under a British Consul. The existing treaty gives the right of settlement, but the state of Burmah requires that English subjects shall not be amenable to Burmese Courts, unless through the recognised official channel strong enough to compel a respect for the claims of justice. It is a disgrace to British India that so magnificent a commercial highway as the Irrawaddy should remain, comparatively speaking, useless.

DEATH OF COLONEL RENNY, C.B.—We are sorry to have to record the death of Colonel Renny, C.B., officiating Assistant Adjutant General, Oude Division. He died at Lucknow on Thursday night. The immediate cause of his death was cancer in the liver, said to have resulted from injuries he received some two years ago from an accident when skating. His illness has been a long and lingering one, for India, and a fortnight ago he was not expected to live a day.—Delhi Gazette, July 13.

THE MEMORIAL TO THE LATE COLONEL BAIRD SMITH.—The subscribers to the memorial in honour of the late Colonel Baird Smith, will be glad to learn that the monument has at length been erected in St. Paul's Cathedral, Calcutta. The monument, however, was received from London so seriously injured that the committee was under the necessity of sending to England for a supply of Caen stone in order to work it up in Calcutta, and thereby replace those portions which it was impossible to repair. The completion and erection of the monument have consequently been attended by an expense not originally contemplated, and the committee has incurred a liability amounting to Rs. 2,300. This liability the committee is of course very anxious to discharge at an early date, and it consequently calls upon subscribers for aid in doing so; a call, considering the object, we have no doubt will readily be responded to. It is estimated that a payment by each subscriber of twenty rupees will cover the deficit; if those who have not previously had the opportunity of subscribing will now contribute, it will of course reduce the share.

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS ON RAILWAYS.—A comparative abstract of traffic on the guaranteed railways throughout India for the first quarters of 1867 and 1866 gives the following results:—On the E.I. Railway the average receipt per week per mile open has increased by £4. 2s.; on the Eastern Bengal it has fallen by £1; on the Calcutta and South-Eastern it has fallen by a little more than £22; on Punjab Railway by £1. 1s.; on the Madras Railway by £4; on the Great Southern of India Railway it has increased by £4; on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway it has fallen by £8. 2s.; on the B.B. and Central India Railway by £5; and on the Sindh Railway increased by £4. 1s. The E.I. Railway, it will thus be seen, shows the most favourable result, the total earnings for the first quarter of 1867 having been £645,730, against £570,403 of the preceding year.

EARNINGS OF THE EAST INDIA RAILWAY.—For week ending 23rd June, 1867, £35,093. 2s.; or £31. 0s. 7d. per mile open. Traffic of corresponding week last year, £33,118. 11s. 11d.; or £29. 6s. 7d. per mile. Increase, £1,974. 10s. 1d.; or £1. 14s. per mile. Traffic during twenty-five weeks, 1867, £1,157,116. 5s. 9d.; during twenty-five weeks, 1866, £1,040,273. 0s. 11d.; increase, £116,843. 4s. 10d. For the week ending 30th June, 1867, shows the coaching receipts to have been £10,015. 18s. 4d., and the goods' receipts, £24,138. 6s. 3d.; total, £34,154. 4s. 7d., or per mile of railway, £30. 4s. For week ending 7th July, 1867, miles open, 1,131. Coaching receipts, £9,486. 18s. 3d. Goods' receipts, £22,988. 15s. 2d. Total, £32,475. 13s. 5d. Per mile of railway, £28. 14s. 3d.

MEAN MEER, July 3.—I regret to say that cholera has reappeared with considerable violence amongst the troops at this station, or rather, more properly speaking, amongst H.M.'s 106th Foot, for, singular to say, the men of the artillery continue free. Of six cases on Monday, four proved fatal in a short time, and a fifth died in his doocoe on the way from this to Shadara, to which place the regiment was ordered at once. Some instances have also been reported in our Sudder bazaar. Altogether the prospects of the season are not very satisfactory. We are wishing for rain and yet rain may tend to make matters worse.

THE HEAT AT PESHAWUR AND NOWSHERA.—We regret exceedingly to hear that so lately as the first of this month the heat at Peshawur and Nowshera continued unabated. The recent melancholy deaths of three officers at the latter station are attributed directly to the intense heat. Captain Wilson of the 45th Native Infantry died of heat apoplexy; Lieutenant Wells of the 19th Regiment of typhoid fever; and Captain Palmer, paymaster of the same regiment, of apoplexy within three days of each other. The heat in the mess-rooms and hospitals at midnight is said to range from 102 to 105 degs.—Pioneer, July 10.

MADRAS.

AGRICULTURAL PROGRESS IN MADRAS.

The following extract of a letter from Dr. Hunter, Superintendent of the School of Arts, to Colonel MacLagan, Superintending Engineer, Punjab, will be read with interest:—

Considerable success has attended the employment of European agricultural implements that have been lately received from England. The implements that have been most useful are the Howard's iron ploughs. We have made about twenty-eight of them, and more have been made at the Gun Carriage Manufactory, Mint, and D. P. workshops. One of the winnowing machines is in great favour with the natives, and so are the large and small scythes. The natives soon learn to handle these, and they become very dexterous in the use of the plough and scythe; the light steel hoes and rakes they soon get accustomed to, but the spade and the steel fork do not suit our hard soils. The coffee planters and cultivators of potatoes and vegetables on our hill stations get the natives to use the fork freely, but General Otley's mammoth beats all our European spades for efficiency and rapidity of digging.

The horse drill, the hand sower, and the barrow sower, are gradually coming into favour because they resemble some of the native dibbling and sowing machines, and are more durable and efficient, from being of a larger size, and light. Several gentlemen got chaff-cutting machines made at the Mint, and find them of use for feeding horses and cattle. Several have also got from Europe lawnmowing machines for croquet grounds and neat plots of grass; they answer well. The horse mowing machine has been found very serviceable at the Government Farm and the Remount Depot, Oosoor, and there is no difficulty in introducing the use of any of the above machines where you can command skilled European and Native workmen who will pull together. Colonel Thompson has tried a great many ploughs, reaping, harrows, machines, grubbers, winnowing and thrashing machines, both with horses and bullocks at Oosoor, and has had very fine crops of ragly, cholam, rice, guinea grass, and oats. I would recommend you to apply to him for information regarding some of the agricultural machines. I have seen a good many of the above tried at the Government farm, and a few at the Horticultural Gardens. We find that Howard's iron plough, with two wheels and the small pony plough, can both be used with very moderately sized bullocks, and that the horse-reaping machine works fully better with bullocks than with horses. We have two very fine breeds of bullocks in this presidency, one Tippoo's breed, formerly much used in the Artillery and by the Commissariat; a strong, well bred, active, and lively animal, now bred of a smaller size as a fast trotting carriage bullock. The other a large, heavy, but well bred animal, from the Nellore and Cuddapah districts, with elegant head, deer-like muzzle, and thin light long ears, good strong powerful bone, and showing good blood, with thin skin, and heavy dew lap. This breed is slow, but very enduring, and draws very heavy loads—2½ tons. Both of these breeds plough remarkably well, and a pair will do about two-thirds of an acre daily. I have tried them in competition with horses, and find that they are cheaper and more enduring than horses, as they stand exposure to the hot sun of Madras. At hill stations or cool localities I believe the horse would do as much work as in England, and the Pegu pony perhaps as much. I have tried the well bred Arab in the plough against the country bred and the Australian. The Arab did the most work, but he was impetuous, and the European ploughman said it was killing work to keep up with him. One Arab horse ploughed an acre and a half of sandy loam six inches deep in eight hours. The country bred horses ploughed one acre of the same in eight hours, while the Australian did not plough more than fifty yards square. I marked off the ground into seventy yards square, which is close upon an acre. I tried a part of it with horses and part with bullocks. The soil is one that used to bake very hard in the dry weather. I ploughed in sixty loads of burnt bratties to the acre and got two fine crops of hay from it without irrigation. This season I propose irrigating the same land, as several people now get twelve crops of hay in Madras from the use of manure and water. Each acre should yield one ton of Hurriallee grass per month; this is the Dooab grass of Bengal. I find that Cholam or Guinea grass gives heavier crops, but both are more exhausting. We can get about eight crops of them in the year from the same roots, cutting down the crops every six weeks and running in tank bed earth or fine road dust, and about an inch depth of water after each crop is cut, and then watering twice a week. The heaviest crops are cut in the hot dry weather. I am going to publish the results of my experiments in growing grasses in a pamphlet form, illustrated, and will send you a copy if you wish it. I can also give you the results of some experiments in breeding cattle if you wish it. In Madras we have introduced English, Australian, and Aden breeds, and tried to improve the Mysore, Nellore, Guntur, and Poonganor cattle, and we find that they all can be improved in size and milking quantities if they are well looked after and groomed like horses. I could send you photographs of our cattle if you wish it, and engravings of the various tools and agricultural implements that we have made and tried. I am expecting some very fine musters of garden implements shortly. Will you kindly inform the Lieutenant-governor of the Punjab, Sir Donald Macleod, that we shall be most happy to reciprocate information from Madras, and to send samples of manures, soils, garden and agricultural implements, if you will pay for them.—Madras Times.

A NEW PHASE OF LOAFERISM.

[From the Madras Times, July 27.]

We published recently a return of convicts who have escaped from Western Australia, which, we fear, throws a new and somewhat startling light on the "loafer" question in India. We are informed that not a ship brings us horses from Western Australia but also brings us a batch of what are there called "conditional pardon men"—conditionally pardoned because they have completed a certain portion of their original sentences; or, it may be, that they are not conditionally pardoned at all, but simply runaways, who have succeeded in eluding the vigilance of their keepers. But whether conditionally pardoned or runaways, it matters not to us; they are both equally objectionable, equally dangerous; in a word, they are convicted felons of the first water, capable of undertaking any outrage. Years ago, no doubt, people were transported for offences which are now considered trivial, such as poaching; and then, it is well known, some convicts became useful members in the rough state of society which prevailed in the colonies whither they were sent; but it is equally well known that, under the more merciful criminal code which now prevails in Great Britain, a man is very rarely transported until he has graduated in and become deeply imbued with crime—until, in fact, he has become a dangerous criminal. To some extent this convict element may come among us when horses are brought from the other Australian colonies; but, if it does, it is only to a very small extent. It is upon our imports from Western Australia that we desire to fix attention. Thence our shipments are more frequent than from all the other Australian colonies put together. The character of the men is so well known in the adjoining colonies—two of which, Tasmania and New South Wales, were originally, and until a few years ago, convict settlements, and all of which are more or less tainted with the convict element—that in the case of Victoria, the most wealthy and populous of the group, exceptional, almost objectionable, laws have been enacted and rigorously enforced to endeavour to exclude them. One law especially we remember, which, although considered an infringement of the Royal prerogative, and disallowed by the home authorities at first, is now, and has been for several years, in operation, and would, we believe, meet the circumstances in which we are now placed. It may require some modification to adapt it to this country, but the principle of the measure is as essentially necessary here as it is there. Its title is the "Conviction Prevention Act," and admirably it has fulfilled its object, which, of course, is exclusion. Under its provisions, captains of vessels bringing any man from Western Australia without vouchers to prove him to be free are fined Rs. 1,000, and the suspected person is confined in prison till an opportunity offers for sending him back. Notwithstanding, instances have occurred of convicts finding their way into the coveted land. One remarkable case happened about two years ago, when three desperadoes hid themselves at King George's Sound among the mail steamer's coals, and thus secured a passage to, and landed at, Melbourne without detection. They had not been there a week, however, before they attempted to rob a branch of the English and Scottish Chartered Bank in open day. One scoundrel placed himself at the door, a second attacked the clerks, while the third walked into the manager's room. All were armed, and no doubt, judging by the sequel, prepared to commit murder, if that became necessary to secure their object. Happily their intentions were frustrated in every way. The clerks were brave and active, and repulsed the enemy, and the manager, instead of handing over the key of his safe, knocked down the applicant with a large plated candlestick which stood upon the table, and closed with him. In the struggle which followed the robber pulled the trigger of his pistol, but the ball entered the ceiling instead of the manager's body. The report of this pistol alarmed the passers-by and caused the scoundrels to decamp; they were all apprehended within a week, and tried in due course of law.

Now, what have we to prevent such an outrage being attempted here? A few timid native clerks and a physically inefficient police—a score of whom could not offer an equal amount of resistance to that of the manager and the clerks just mentioned. It would be desirable, we think, that some inquiry should be made as to the antecedents of the men who are implicated in the outrages that were recently committed at Perambore and at the Master-Attendant's office. But we may be told that our Legislative Council has not power to do what we ask at their hands. If so, why can we not protect ourselves as they do in Batavia, where no European who is not a Dutchman is allowed to land and remain unless he can prove that he has the means of living a certain length of time—unless, in fact, he is unlikely to become a dangerous loafer? Or, if this should be considered too great a stretch of arbitrary power for a country under the British Crown, can we not, as they did in Melbourne, when the Home Government refused to abolish transportation to every part of Australia, catch some of the greatest criminals and ship them off to England with fifty rupees in each man's pocket to land with?

There is another Australian Act which we are certain would be found most useful here. We allude to the "Vagrant Act." Under its provisions the police are authorised to arrest any person they may see idling about, and police magistrates can impose as much as twelve months' imprisonment, with hard labour, upon any one so brought before them who cannot prove that he has some "visible lawful means of support." Can any one doubt, if such a law were in existence in this Presidency, that loafers would rapidly vanish from our midst?

THE ADMINISTRATION OF THE CENTRAL PROVINCES.

It is extremely probable that the battery of horse artillery, now stationed at Kamptee, will, towards the fall of the year, be relieved by a battery of the brigade now serving in the Bombay presidency. In itself this is a thing of no importance whatever to anybody out of the particular batteries concerned, but the present is a critical point in the history of the Central Provinces, and the relief understood to be in contemplation looks as if it were part of a scheme for the withdrawal of the rest of the Madras troops from that part of India. It is well known that Mr. Temple made his labours converge towards the one object of founding a new lieutenant governorship, and that idea lent a zest to his endeavours that was very beneficial to the districts he ruled, but there were causes in operation which rendered it almost impossible that they should meet with the exact kind of reward he pictured to himself. It was no use annexing Nimar on one side, and some of the hill tribes on the other, navigating the Godavary, or casting patronising glances at the officials in Berar, for such petty attempts—and it was all the Chief Commissioner had it in his power to do—availed nothing in comparison with the advancing railway with Bombay as its base of operations. This year has witnessed the opening of the branch line of the G.I.P. Railway right through to Nagpore, and very shortly after declaring it open, and as if the first of its consequences, Mr. Temple took leave of the districts for which he had done so much. The fruit of his exertions is now peacefully ripening. There is nearly as much Conservatism in the Government of India as there is in the natives themselves, and it requires either a most obvious rottenness in the state of affairs, or some catastrophe, or else some signal alteration in physical and territorial conditions, to induce it to amend any of its traditions, and to accommodate itself to the teachings and necessities of the age. The extension of the railway to Nagpore, which, had it not been for the cotton traffic of Oomrawuttee, might not have been thought of these hundred years, has completely altered the situation of the Central Provinces, and the absurdity of keeping up the old Madras connection is at last fairly thrust into notice. That the Bombay troops which already hold Asseerghur should garrison the other military posts, is a matter that does not appear to admit of argument; and as there is not even a plausible reason for delay, we may expect, before the season is out, to find the military society of Kamptee revolutionized. What will happen contemporaneously can only yet be a subject for speculation, but hitherto, whenever the evacuation of the Central Provinces by the Madras troops has been talked of, something has generally been said about the cession of part of the Southern Mahratta country—of Darwar and Belgaum—to the sister Presidency. It does not much signify which holds it in reality, but since it is necessary to maintain the Madras forces at their present strength some arrangement of the sort is required. Belgaum is more accessible from the Mysore side than from the Sattara side, especially during the monsoon, and it needs much the same garrison as Kamptee does.

When, however, we come to take other considerations into account, such as the future of the Central Provinces, it makes all the difference how Madras is to be compensated for the loss of Kamptee. There is a civil as well as a military aspect of the question. Belgaum and Darwar are two Collectorates of the Bombay Presidency, and their transfer would cause a redundancy for the time being in the numbers of the Bombay Civil Service. The Central Provinces, on the other hand, are administered upon the "non-regulation" principle, as it is termed. It would be difficult to absorb the surplus civilians did it remain untouched. The non-regulation system is more a cheap and handy than a thorough and efficient system. It of course has its advocates, for some think it counteracts the torpor which would otherwise steal over a single civilian order, and others are, by its means, put in positions from which they are excluded in regulation districts. As it exists in the Central Provinces the leading features of the non-regulation system are the sub-division of the territory into much larger collectorates than is usual elsewhere, and placing each division under a functionary styled "commissioner," who also exercises in his own person the functions of a sessions judge. He is assisted by a bevy of deputy commissioners who have entrusted to them many of the powers of a collector in the Madras Presidency, with, in addition, pretty extensive judicial and magisterial powers. These again have generally had under them, in charge of talooks, many assistant commissioners whose modest salaries served but to whet their appetite for often long deferred step upwards. The two former are, however, the main characteristics of "non-regulation," and having large districts, and making the collectors of the revenue do the judges' duties as well as their own, enables the cost of establishments to be kept down at what the Government of India would style a praiseworthy level. The system had quite a different origin from the regulation system; it was the offspring of disturbance and not of peace; of the Punjab and not of Benares. For a newly-conquered or an unsettled State it might be an object to submit it to a small number of almost absolute dictators. Operating in a circle, they could easily command, and turning them loose with a sword in one hand and the scales of justice—rough-handed justice—in the other, was not a bad means of enforcing loyalty and obedience in such places. But when a tract is once opened up by roads, is dotted over with trading marts, is beginning to be filled with independent and wealthy merchants, and above all to be brought within a few hours run of a town like Bombay, and is, to boot, all purely British territory, a division of labour becomes desirable and judge-collectors are obsolete institutions. The administration of the law can scarcely be hedged round with too many safe guards, nor can too much be done towards maintaining the dignity of those who dispense it. "Mofussil justice" is a stereotyped phrase, and it will perhaps never be known what the exact share of the non-regulation system has been in causing it to be thus classed by itself as something inherently imperfect. It is not in the nature of things that an official can take up two distinct branches of the civil service and practice them with success. The day has happily gone by when ability to flog and hang made the work of collection smooth. Yet in the Central Provinces the Commissioner may be laying out new streets or planning new wells and cesspits in the morning, may be issuing licences or arranging local taxes or writing an abkari minute in the forenoon, and have the black cap on before the close of the day. His deputies and their assistants are equally versatile, and it is by sheer good luck that no mischief comes of it. It is true that the Central Provinces are somewhat exceptionally situated, and that the simplicity of the tenure upon which land is held facilitates the collections, and thus leaves Commissioners more time for the judicial part of their vocation. But even this should not, and no doubt will not, be allowed to have influence when the non-regulation system is supplanted by that of Bombay, when they are used to thirty year settlements and to big collectorates. To be incorporated with the Bombay Presidency is the best thing that could befall the Central Provinces. It was all well enough that when the territory was first escheated to the Crown it should have been given over to Mr. Temple and those associated with him in the wielding of as nearly as may be uncontrolled power, and that the procedure should not be in advance either of the men who were to apply it, or of the people who had to bend to the yoke. Now that improvement has taken root, the system of administration must keep pace, and this it certainly is not likely to do if left as it is. Happily there is small chance of this, should the Government of Bombay take the matter up in earnest as it generally does questions of the important kind. It is not too difficult to prognosticate in what direction it will at first move. For the most obvious want of the Central Provinces is Judges who give all their attention to dispensing justice, and these officers have to be sought out and brought in. Perhaps four Sessions and four Small Cause Judges would suffice in addition to the present establishments. Turning to the commissioners and deputy-commissioners, it would be advantageous to transform the former class into collectors, increasing their number at the same time, and making the deputy-commissioners sub-collectors, which could easily be managed without their losing salary. Everything else would then be assimilated with the utmost ease. Whether the very expensive machinery of Government and the numerous heads of departments now maintained at Nagpore would be necessary any longer would be extremely doubtful. Scinde has its Chief Commissioner, but then Scinde is a tremendous way off from the Presidency, and could not do without; but Nagpore is close at hand. Be this as it may, reduction in some measure would, it may be surmised, be expedient, and the possibility of saving by the incorporation with Bombay is a point worth considering at a period of financial pressure. Setting collectors free also to attend to the material instead of the legal interests of the people would be a further and inestimable gain. For it is just in our more recent annexations that officials with leisure and capacity can have the freest opportunity of reaching the masses and influencing them, and where there is also the greatest need of instruction. Much of this is lost at present in the Central Provinces, for the work that should be performed by collectors is done by a class of district officers termed settlement officers, who go about among the villages collecting statistics and registering titles, while the deputy commissioner is trying cases or repairing roads morning and afternoon. Although there has been a steady advance of the provinces under the non-regulation system, yet it is the nature of it to give a fine gloss to the surface and to produce vigorous and startling reports. The variety of topics that a commissioner has to handle of itself affords the contrasts which are requisite to make the tableau effective. As yet most of us only know Nagpore through these highly coloured representations. Whenever Bombay steps in, as it must shortly do, we may perhaps find that they are mere dissolving views got up for the occasion.—Madras Times.

THE MUNICIPAL BILL.

(From the Madras Times, July 19.)

As our readers are aware, a provisional committee was formed comprising the names of all the principal merchants and traders, and such officials has had the courage to come forward, to consider what steps should be taken to prevent the Bill becoming law; and this committee, numbering some thirty or forty members, met yesterday morning at Messrs. Shands' office. It may be taken as some proof of the feeling of the public in regard to the Municipal Bill when we state that nearly all the gentlemen whose names appeared in the list which we published two days ago put in an appearance. The proceedings commenced by Mr. Macfadyen proposing, and Mr. Estill seconding, that Mr. John Melver, secretary and manager of the Bank of Madras, should take the chair.

Mr. Melver, having taken the chair, observed that all present were well aware of the circumstances that had brought them together. They had met that day more particularly to decide in what shape their opposition to the Municipal Bill should be made. The chief object of the present committee was to appoint an executive committee who should draw up a memorial to the Governor-general in Council praying him to withhold his sanction from the Bill in its present shape. Another object was to receive any suggestions from different members of the meeting on special points in the Bill which it might be desirable to embody in the petition.

Mr. Macfadyen urged upon the meeting the desirability of speedy action. It had been reported to him that an hon. member of Council had stated that if the public intended taking any action they had better be quick about it, as the Bill would be sent to Calcutta for sanction immediately. If the people of Madras, therefore, did not use despatch, the Governor General would be giving his usual reply and telling them that they were too late with their appeal. He thought the public meeting should be held on Saturday next.

Mr. Robert Orr then proposed that the following gentlemen should be asked to draw up the memorial:—Messrs. Janny Jehan Khan, Honorary Municipal Commissioner; Mr. Venkatasawmy Naidoo, Mr. C. V. Parthasardiah, Mr. T. Helmer, Mr. J. Oakes, Mr. H. Cornish, and Mr. P. Macfadyen.

The proposition was seconded by C. V. Iyasawmy and carried.

On the motion of Mr. Taylor, Agent Agra Bank, the name of Mr. Parthasardiy Naidoo, Honorary Municipal Commissioner, was added to the Committee.

Mr. Oakes stated that he had been asked by one of the boatowners who had petitioned the Legislative Council—with no effect—to bring the boatowners' petition to the notice of the Executive Committee. In the Bill provision had been made for collecting the sea tolls from the boat owner, but supposing the owner of goods declined to recognise such a demand, the poor boatowner had no claim on anybody.

It was accordingly resolved that the petition of the boatowners should be handed over for the consideration of the Executive Committee.

Mr. Peter Orr pointed out that in the petition presented to the local Legislative Council no allusion had been made to the holders of funded property. It appeared to him that these persons enjoyed just the same benefits from the municipality as all other rate-payers, and far from seeing any objection to their being taxed, he thought there were very strong reasons why they should contribute towards the resources of the municipality.

Mr. Macfadyen observed that funded property came rather within the scope of imperial than municipal taxation, and he thought the committee had better not interfere with this subject.

Mr. Oakes, however, supported Mr. Orr in the opinion that people who drew their income from Government securities should be liable to municipal taxes; and, on the question being put to the vote, it was decided that Mr. Orr's suggestion should be embodied in the petition to be sent to the Governor-General in Council.

The proposed constitution of the municipality then came under discussion. Mr. Oakes thought that every man who could produce his receipt for the last half-year's payment of rates and taxes should be entitled to a municipal vote, and that if the natives believed this system would not work well with them, the privilege of a vote should, at all events, be conceded to the European and East Indian portion of the community.

Mr. Taylor thought Mr. Oakes's scheme would not meet with much support from Government, as it flavoured somewhat of class legislation.

Mr. Macfadyen considered it would be impossible to get anything done with thirty-two commissioners; sixteen, or two to each ward, would be much more manageable. He would accordingly propose that the number of honorary commissioners should be reduced to two in each ward, and that the Government should nominate one and the ratepayers elect the other.

Mr. Taylor proposed that there should be three commissioners for each ward, and that they should all be elected by the ratepayers, subject to the approval of Government.

Mr. Rajarathnum Moodeliar said that the object which Government had in view in nominating four commissioners to each ward was to ensure having a representative from each class of the community, namely, European, East Indian, Hindu, and Mahomedan. He accordingly proposed that the number of honorary commissioners should be thirty-two, as provided in the Bill.

On the Chairman's putting Mr. Macfadyen's resolution to the meeting it was carried by a considerable majority.

Mr. Peter Orr referred to a suggestion he had himself recommended to Government, that the four honorary commissioners which Government proposed to nominate should decide amongst themselves which of their number should represent the ratepayers at the weekly meetings of the municipality. He was quite convinced that the honorary commissioners would never learn or understand their business without they met every week at the board meetings. If only one member attended from each ward it would avoid crowding at the board meetings, and he thought that it might be left to the four commissioners to decide which was fittest to represent the rate and taxpayers at the municipality.

The general feeling of the meeting, however, was that it would be a rather delicate question to leave four honorary commissioners to decide amongst themselves who was the fittest man for a seat at the municipal board; and it was suggested that if the question was to be decided by ballot it might happen that each honorary commissioner would vote for himself.

Mr. Oakes then proposed that honorary commissioners should be elected for two years only. He thought this would be ample time to test the abilities of a commissioner; the time provided in the Bill, namely, three years, was far too long for an inefficient man.

Mr. Boyd, agent of the Oriental Bank, proposed as an amendment that the commissioners should be elected for one year only, and Mr. W. Scott seconded the amendment. On a show of hands Mr. Oakes' resolution was carried.

Mr. Rajarathnum Moodeliar impressed upon the meeting the necessity of having a paid native commissioner at the board. A large number of natives went every day to the Municipal office to appeal, and with a president unacquainted with the native languages there would, he thought, be an obstruction to business. He would propose that if Government were not prepared to have a native commissioner, the assistant to the president should be a native.

It was pointed out to Mr. Rajarathnum that in the petition presented to the local Legislative Council it had been recommended that there should be a paid native commissioner, and that a copy of that petition would be forwarded to the Governor-general in Council.

On the proposition of Mr. Oakes it was then decided that the sheriff should be called on to convene a public meeting on Tuesday next at 5 p.m., and that the trustees of Patheappah's Hall should be addressed for the use of their room.

Mr. W. Arbuthnot, in referring to the unseemly haste that had characterised the proceedings of Government in regard to the passing of the Bill, suggested that it would be as well, in order to avoid all possibility of being too late, to telegraph to the Government of India at Simla, requesting that the Governor-general would be pleased to withhold his sanction from the Bill till the memorial from the inhabitants of Madras had been received.

This suggestion was cordially approved of. A message to this effect was accordingly prepared and despatched to the Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department, Simla.

A vote of thanks to Mr. McIver for his conduct in the chair closed the proceedings, which occupied about an hour and a-half.

THE BATTLE OF BANDA.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "ATHENÆUM AND DAILY NEWS."

SIR,—In your issue of the 17th inst. you announce the joyful intelligence that the long-expected Banda and Kirwee prize money is at length to be disbursed. Apropos of that event, I remember being amused at a statement in the Times of India some two years ago to the effect that Whitlock's column did not fire a shot for the contested booty. Doubtless none of the "actual captors" who saw the article alluded to considered the Bombay Times a Delphian Oracle in such matters, and consequently treated the article with the silence it deserved. But as the Athenæum of old was where the poets, philosophers, and rhetoricians generally declaimed their compositions, so let the modern Athenæum chronicle the events of that brisk, decisive, and stategetic engagement, the Battle of Banda.

Well, Sir, on that auspicious morning, the 19th of April, 1858, ere old Sol threw off his night cap, and made his appearance from behind the distant hills, to pour down his burning rays on the devoted heads of the "avenging army,"—

"The neighbouring plain with arms was covered o'er,

The vale an iron harvest seems to yield
Of thick sprung lances in a waving field,
The polished steel gleams terribly from far,
And every moment, nearer shows the war."

The flying column, under that excellent old soldier, General Whitlock, had bivouacked on the plain before Banda the night before the battle, and long before the sun was up the command was given "Stand by." Every man was on his feet in an instant, and brushing off the loose feathers of the bed whereon he lay. The ranks were formed, and the column advanced in order of battle. Early as General Whitlock was on the move, the enemy appeared to have been as early risers, and had assumed a well-chosen position, from whence they saluted their visitors with a brisk cannonade. Whatever Whitlock's idea of a quietude might have been, he was in no hurry to return the morning salutation thus accorded him. It involved an exchange of courtesies for which he had to make some little preparation. And having an excellent master of ceremonies to consult, in the person of his adjutant-general, who, by the way, was as brave a soldier as he was a perfect gentleman—in proof of which Ali Bahadoor (then Nawab of Banda) found that his morning salutation was amply returned; in fact he felt "overpowered" with the compliments which were paid him. "Bring the artillery into action," cried the general. And now the morning's work began. The cavalry and infantry remained passive spectators while the opposing artillery exchanged shot and shell. At length an enfilading fire of musketry was opened on our centre from an ambuscade. The infantry was now called into action. The Third Madras European Regiment steadily advanced under a destructive fire, poured a volley in the direction of the ambuscade, and immediately took up the charge. When lo! they all at once disappeared; not long, however, they remained behind the scenes, for helter-skelter rushed the rebel sepoys out of their lair, routed pell-mell by the Third, some of whom were trundling the sepoys over with the bayonet like haymakers; others again were practising the Donnybrook style, "bating them down with the butt-end." The Third did not, however, get off "scot free." When they were carried on by the impetus of the charge they came suddenly to the brink of a ravine bristling with bayonets, into which many of them were hastily precipitated, but the greater number happily checked their pace, and deliberately jumped into the yawning gulf, and now began

"Stroke and thrust
And flash and cry,
For quarter or for victory;
Mingling there with the vollying thunder."

It did not last long, however. Jack Pandey knew he was no match for the "goralog" who thus unceremoniously bearded the tiger in his lair. He therefore beat a hasty retreat, and as the rats are driven out of their holes on the common by the fall of the first heavy monsoon shower (not a very Homeric simile 'tis true), so were the rebels chased out of their ambuscade, which by the way one might form an idea of who has been on Woolwich common for the first time, and walking leisurely without seeing any obstacle to break the level plain, until all at once he comes to a dead halt on the brink of a deep ravine, which is aptly termed the Hah-hah. But let him fancy the Woolwich Hah-hah to be five times wider and three times deeper, and he can form a good idea of the ravine in which the Banda rebels formed their ambuscade.

As the Third emerged from the "bear garden" into which they had fallen, or deliberately jumped, now driving the rebels before them at the point of the bayonet, the general was surveying the battle from a mound (like Sir Hugh Gough, on the mound of Chillianwallah). In close consultation with the general was seen the noble commanding figure of his admirable adjutant-general and chief of the staff, per se. The general was in great glee as he witnessed the havoc his own regiment was making among the rebels. "Look at the youngers," he exclaimed (he always had something humorous to say), "I taught them that, you know, since they were that height, look" (stooping down and placing his hand parallel with the ground below his knee). Our Madras Native Infantry well supported "Whitlock's youngers." They could have no sympathy, however, with the Bengal Hindoo sepoy, as we may judge from the reply of a bandsman of the 19th N.I. upon being asked of what caste was his regiment. "Oh, Sir," he replied, with the greatest bon-homme, "all our regiment are Christians but two of the band, and they are Protestants!" Whatever their creed may be Jack Pandey was too fleet for them, from being under arms so long and wind blown from the charge, together with the melee in the ravine, our brave infantry lost distance in the pursuit. "Let the cavalry loose on them," cried the General. As greyhounds held in the leash (that is a better metaphor, I think) our cavalry now prepared to charge. A wing of the 12th Lancers (a regiment by the way which was unrivalled in the allied army in the Crimea) were on the right, and about the same number of Hyderabad cavalry were on the left flank. It was a splendid spectacle to behold this "handful" of cavalry as they "let out" their horses, which seemed to be as eager for the fray as their riders, in pursuit of the now retreating columns of the enemy. "Look out," "War-hawk," "Here is a nullah," broke out several voices as the "Hah-hah" yawned in front of them, and into which some few horses were precipitated, to experience the sensation of having fallen into a "hornet's nest." There were but few, however, of the "hornets" remaining, when they found the earth shake beneath them, from the shock of the charge. They thought of performing a simple manœuvre by which they could "fight another day," and "took to their heels," but they were soon overtaken and left grovelling on the plain. Quite a shikaree style of hog-spearer now began, and "spare none, spare none," was passed along the line, but there was no incentive required. "Remember the ladies, remember the babies," was a sufficient stimulation. The rebel artillery maintained a steady fire on our position until seeing our cavalry bearing down on them they "limbered up" and joined in the retreat. Four of their guns were captured, and the pursuit was vigorously maintained, until the last of the rebels jumped into the river Kane; but he was not allowed to escape thus, for as he was swimming for very life one of the Lancers rode up to his saddle flaps in the water, and speared him just as he was getting in the middle of the river.

Thus far the Battle of Banda was one of the most dashing, brilliant engagements ever fought by British arms—the paucity of our troops being taken into consideration. But a little episode occurred which was never intended for Stoequeler in compiling his "Historical records," and, as the sequel will show, not very creditable to those concerned, but as a faithful chronicler of the events of that engagement, I cannot overlook the digression.

As our cavalry were retiring on the main body, when the general with his staff were scanning the horizon with their glasses in anxious suspense for the fate of the few troopers, the half of that fine old regiment, "Tait's Irregulars," who had mutinied, rode along in column of threes, "with the precision and accuracy of an ordinary field day"—as Sir Harry Smith would term it—and afforded a splendid opportunity for the lancers to charge; but, unfortunately, they were now broken, and a "weeping dragoon" in the midst of them cried out, "look here, look here, some d—d fellow shot my horse, here is the enemy bearing down on us, will any of you fellows lend me a horse?" Two villagers with their wives and children fled from the cross fire to which their houses were subjected, and concealed themselves in a nullah on the common. They were discovered, however, and though the brave Captain Chandos Clifton begged for God's sake not to shed innocent blood, another Captain came up, exclaiming, "shoot the niggers!" and suiting the action to the word, drew his maiden revolver and fired on the poor helpless creatures in the nullah. Pop, pop, pop, pop, went a volley of pistols, following suit with the gallant (?) captain. At length a fair-haired "flunky," rushing up to have a crack shot, also levelled his pistol on the poor victims below, but his pistol "kicked" in his hand, and the recoil threw up the muzzle. The bullet, instead of finding a "billet" in the body of one of the poor creatures in the nullah, lodged in the breast of the captain's horse. The noble animal gave a few convulsive kicks, and expired in a few minutes. The captain had the bullet extracted next day, and got one of the hoofs cut off, which he got shod with silver. No doubt the bullet and "hoof with the silver tip" are to be preserved as family heirlooms. The horse was returned as a casualty of the Battle of Banda, as though he had been shot by the enemy. He got a horse, however, from one of the "fellows," a little episode happening to one of the sergeants by some one drawing the trigger of his pistol whilst in his holster pipe, and wounding him in the knee. Of course, the sergeant being "wounded in action" could not ride, which happened luckily for the captain, who mounted the sergeant's horse. Meanwhile the sergeant bestrode a pony which had been captured. It was a most ludicrous sight to see the sergeant mounted on the tat, with his sword at the "carry," as a squadron leader. A wag in the regiment strung together a few doggerel verses on the occasion, of which, though not a very elegant specimen of poetry, there were about five hundred copies taken in "no time," and as they have received sufficient circulation ere now it is unnecessary to impose them on your page.

The cavalry rejoined headquarters, and were joyfully received by the General, who listened eagerly to the account of their exploits since they got "out of sight." Of course the gallant captain whose horse was shot under him received ample congratulations.

The same gallant captain (?) now enjoying a higher rank brought himself to more public notice at a rising of the peasantry in the south of Ireland lately.

"Where have the enemy got to?" was now the anxious inquiry, while echoes were answering where? Ali Bahadoor gave the required information by opening a cannonade on the mound which was now covered by the staff, and everyone who thought he was entitled to ascend that eminence and hear the news. "Horse artillery and cavalry to the front," cried the general. In a short space of time every man was mounted, and with loose reins and tight legs was flying across the common in a contrary line of direction from whence they came. Brigadier Miller, of the artillery, was the first up to the guns of the enemy, and with praiseworthy gallantry he attacked the gunners, without a moment's thought of the odds he had to contend with. But the gallant brigadier was overpowered, and when the 12th Lancers came up, a Gollundauze was delivering his blows sharp and quick on the almost inanimate brigadier. A "prod" from two simultaneous Lancers diverted the attention of the Gollundauze from the brigadier and changed the aspect of affairs in a very signal manner. A trumpeter dismounted, and fortunately having a handkerchief he tied up a severe wound on the brigadier's arm. Surgical aid was promptly afforded, and happily the gallant brigadier survived his wounds, and received his share of "prize-money" nine years after. Four of the Lancers attacked the remaining gun detachment, and after spearing the gunners one of the Lancers gave his horse to be led, and drove the captured gun into the "park" where the camp was formed. The enemy determined on making a desperate final stand now in front of his stronghold, a fort on the river Kane, in front of Banda, but they could not resist the impetuosity of the charge of another six hundred. And they were driven in routed bands across the river, and fugitives across the country. Thus ended the Battle of Banda, one of the most brilliant, well-executed, and decisive engagements enrolled on the annals of British warfare; and it is but common justice to the brave "actual captors" to check the sneer of those who would assert that they never fired a shot for the prize of which they are to be the envied recipients in a few days.

Ex MILITARE.

MISCELLANEOUS.

DR. BUCKLAND WANTED.—Two or three attempts have been made to introduce the Gourami fish from Mauritius. Sir William Denison and his brother, our irrepressible municipal commissioner, took great interest in the experiment. The latter, on the arrival of the first batch, used to write daily bulletins to the papers on the health and progress of the fish. We forget the exact cause of failure in the first instance, but the last experiment has just had a rather ludicrous result. The fish, it appears, were placed in one of the ornamental lakes in the People's Park, in which lake some ornamental geese were also allowed to disport themselves. This they have done to the utter destruction of the poor fish. A kind of piscatorial inquest was held by Colonel Denison a few days since, and after a careful dragging of the lake he was obliged to give a verdict of non inventus. Not a single Gourami was found—not so much even as a "dem fin," as Mr. Mantalini would put it.—Madras Times.

COLONEL CRAWFORD'S LAW SCHEME.—We had almost given up hearing again of Colonel Crawford and his Tasmanian Land scheme, but the last mail from Australia brings us a few particulars of interest. The Government geologist has discovered copper in the Castra district—which the colonel proposed to take up—and it is believed that the land will rise rapidly in value. Colonel Crawford grieves at the fright his brother officers took, and believes that had the scheme been supported to the extent he wished, the settlers might now have been working their allotments with a bright prospect before them. The Colonel attributes the want of support to his "anonymous opponents in the Indian papers." As we have from time to time discussed the scheme in these columns, and watched carefully the discussion in other papers, we may be permitted to deny the correctness of the colonel's conclusions. Support was withheld, we fancy, for the very good reason that the scheme did not give sufficient promise of a successful working.—Madras Times.

MR. MASSEY'S LICENSE TAX.—The following is the reply of the India Office to the petition against Mr. Massey's License Tax, which was forwarded from Madras in April last:—"To the Hon. A. F. Brown, Chairman of the Chamber of Commerce, Madras.—Sir, —I am directed by the Secretary of State for India in Council to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 27th of April last, forwarding on behalf of the Madras Chamber of Commerce a petition from the inhabitants of Madras exercising trades, professions, and callings, against the License Tax recently imposed by the Government of India. In reply, I am directed to acquaint you that the petition has received that anxious consideration by the Secretary of State in Council which a representation from so influential a body is justly entitled to, but after carefully reviewing the financial position of the Government of India, he has not deemed it expedient to disallow Act 21 of 1867.—I have the honour to be, Sir, your obedient servant (signed) HERMAN MERIVALE.—India Office, S.W., 13th June, 1867."

REFORM IN TRAVANCORE AND COCHIN.—Another and a bold step is to be made by these two native States with the view of placing the legislature of the countries and the rights of their subjects on a firm and respectable footing. Both Sir Madava Row and Mr. Shungoonny Menon are now acting in concert for the purpose of giving their countries an enactment authorising prisoners to resort to counsel in all criminal cases. For the last eighteen months we have not failed to impress on the two Governments the propriety of assimilating their criminal law to ours in this respect, and the measure now in progress cannot fail to receive the warmest support of every lover of justice and humanity. How such an essential element in the administration of justice came to be overlooked by two Ministers of such wide and intelligent views as Sir Madava Row and Mr. Shungoonny Menon is a perfect problem to ourselves; but the warm and ready manner in which the former Minister has at last proposed to act in concert with the latter in this matter, and the equally prompt and sensible manner in which the latter officer is said to have tendered his support, are in a measure compensatory of the loss the States have sustained by this oversight; and their action can never be condemned for want of deliberation. The measure has yet to receive, we believe, the sanction of the British Resident; and as the man who vetoed such an enactment would be false to his race, we have not the slightest doubts as to its passing into law soon.—Western Star.

BANDA AND KIRWEE PRIZE MONEY.—Contrary to our statement in a late issue, several claimants for the Banda and Kirwee Prize Money attended at the committee-room in the Fort yesterday morning (the 26th July), and no small amount of dissatisfaction occurred from the fact of several having to go away without being settled with, the amount of Rs. 4,500, as previously stated by us, being all the money that was disbursed. No doubt it is disagreeable to the gentlemen on the committee not to be able to settle with every claimant at once, but a reference to the Fort St. George Gazette will show that it was only on the 23rd inst. that the verified prize rolls of H.M.'s 43rd L.I. and engineer department were received in the prize department. We feel quite certain that the committee will get the duty off their hands as soon as practicable, and we therefore look upon it as probable that the remaining claimants will get paid next committee day.—Athenæum.

THE "ALLUM GHIER."—The ship Allum Ghier, 900 tons, Captain W. Mosey, left Port Louis on the 5th of July and has arrived here. She brought 326 coolies, three cabin passengers and three steerage passengers for Calcutta and fifty-seven coolies, and one steerage passenger for Madras. The crew consists of fifty-nine souls, including the captain and other officers. Surgeon Partridge, in charge of the vessel, reports that no fever prevailed on board when he took charge, and that during the voyage seventeen were sick among the Calcutta coolies, of which number there were only four cases of simple intermittent fever, which were cured after three or four days. Two deaths occurred among them, one from diarrhoea and one from dysentery. Among the Madras coolies there were four cases of simple intermittent fever, which were cured within two or three days. The last cases of fever occurred on the 15th. By the last Mauritius paper, dated the 4th July, brought by this opportunity, we learn that the number of deaths from fever had fallen to twenty-nine daily.—Madras Times. [The ship having since been declared free from fever, the passengers were landed].

THE LICENCE TAX V. THE MUNICIPAL TAX.—Are we to pay both the Municipal Tax to our local publicans and the Licence Tax to Mr. Massey's publicans? is a question that concerns everybody here. We already pay a local licence tax, and it is manifestly absurd, to say nothing of the grossness of the injustice, that we should be called on to pay again towards the imperial coffers. In point of fact, a man getting only one income is made to pay as though he got two, for he has to get two licences for the same profession and from the same Government. This is absurd, and is as fraudulent as it is absurd. What would Mr. Massey say to being asked by a Calcutta tradesman to pay him five rupees for an article and to pay his tender five rupees for the same article? If the Government does not intend that we should be cheated of our earnings in this careless and thoughtless fashion, why does it not say so, and why does it not tell its Licence Tax collector so? Here we are between the cross fires of the Municipal Commissioners and the Licence Tax collector, the one pulling at one side of our purse, and the other pulling at the other side. The question is shall we have anything left? Why not have a Poll Tax next?—Western Star.

THE DEPUTY INSPECTOR-GENERAL OF HOSPITALS.—The Hon. the Governor in Council has directed that Dr. Barclay, Deputy Inspector-general of Hospitals, British Medical Service, who has his office now in working order, should proceed on a tour of inspection to Bangalore, as it is highly desirable that he should have a personal acquaintance with the localities at which British troops are stationed, and the buildings occupied by them, and be in a position confidently to advise the Government in all points connected with his department. Dr. Barclay will draw the regulated mileage allowance during the tour.—Madras Times.

THE "ROXBURGH CASTLE."—Messrs. Green's fine passenger ship Roxburgh Castle, of 1,100 tons, arrived on the afternoon of July 26. She left Gravesend on the 16th April and parted with her pilot on the 23rd idem, and has therefore made the passage in eighty-six days. At the commencement of the voyage contrary winds prevailed, but from the Equator the ship had uninterrupted fine weather, which brought her to Madras in fifty-four days after crossing the line.

THE OVERFLOW OF THE THOOTHU.—From a telegram received by Mr. Anderson, acting chief engineer Madras Railway, we are given to understand that the Thoothu river, which runs between Pattamby and Cootypoonne, overflowed and washed down a portion of the bridge which is constructed over it, at the 377th mile of the South West Line, Madras Railway. In consequence of this the trains running beyond that place have been stopped. The acting chief engineer, and the deputy chief engineer, and the agent have gone there to inspect the spot.

MORTUARY REGISTER.—The official return for the week ending the 19th instant shows the total number of deaths to be 216, being eight more than the total of the preceding week, and forty-nine less than the mean of the corresponding week in the past four years. There were no deaths from cholera during the past week. The number of deaths from dysentery and diarrhoea has decreased from thirty-two, the number in the preceding week, to thirty-one. The mortality from fever was fifty-four. The casualties are thus classified:—Europeans, 4; Hindoos, 182; East Indians, 8; Mahomedans, 22.

TELEGRAPHIC INSTRUCTION.—The Government have determined on erecting two telegraph houses in the premises of the Military Male Orphan Asylum, Madras, the line of communication running from one house to another, for the purpose of instructing the lads of the institution in that line of business preparatory to their admission to the Government Telegraph Department. They will be instructed by one of the officials of the department appointed for that purpose.

THE RESIDENCY SURGEONSHIP AT HYDERABAD.—Sir Richard Temple has conferred the appointment of Residency Surgeon at Hyderabad, vacant by the melancholy death of Dr. Pemberton, upon Dr. S. J. Wyndowe, of the Madras Medical Service. Dr. Wyndowe at present holds the appointment of Chemical Examiner to the Madras Government, and is Lecturer on Chemistry at the Medical College. He served in Central India during the mutiny.—Madras Times.

GOVERNMENT TELEGRAMS.—Arrangements are being made by the Officiating Director-general of Telegraphs in India for the supply, for the use of Government, of a daily telegram from London, which, in addition to being forwarded to H.E. the Viceroy at Simla, is also to be supplied to all the local Governments and Administrations, including the Commissioners of Mysore and Sind, and the Resident at Hyderabad.—Athenæum.

HISTORY OF INDIAN FAMINES.—Major Etheridge has been appointed to draw up a report of past famines in the Bombay Presidency, and Mr. Dickens is to do the same for Bengal; but who is to draw up the report for this Presidency we are not aware. The object of the reports is to provide an historical record of Indian Famines.—Athenæum.

MAJOR C. S. HEARN.—This officer will be relieved of his duties as Commissioner of Police on the 27th instant by Major Drever, who will act for him till the expiration of his leave.

MISCELLANEOUS.

CENTRAL PROVINCES, JUNE 28.—The Exhibition at Akola, in Berar, of which I have already written to you, is now a settled matter, and Sir Richard Temple, the resident at Hyderabad, has called on the various Governments in India to support the Exhibition. The Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces has responded warmly to the call by directing that every district should send a specimen of any manufacture, art, product, or live stock, for which it may have gained a prize at either the Jubbulpore or the Nagpore Exhibitions, but with rather a want of grace to the Local Committees, has also ordered that "the local funds, or local contributions of each district will have to bear the cost of preparing contributions and sending them to Berar." You will thus see that although the district officers are not directly told to squeeze the people for money contributions, a very good hint is conveyed to that effect in the order. Perhaps Sir Richard Temple is after all correct in his policy of adopting exhibitions as an element of his administration, thereby trusting to draw the minds of the people away from all evil conspiracies, to peace and prosperity. And who will doubt that the present Paris Exhibition had something to do with the amicable settlement of the bone of contention. Exhibitions in India are of course as yet in the reign of experiment, because the people have not set their hearts on them. When that has been attained, strife and sedition will have been given up for peaceful pursuits, and it is manifestly the present duty of the British Government to pave the way to that end by getting up exhibitions themselves. The appointment of the Superintendent of Stamps for the Central Provinces has been sanctioned on a salary of Rs. 700 a-month. The name of the first superintendent has not yet oozed out. Mr. Jordan is, after all, not to officiate for Mr. Hutchinson, as Mr. Kimpton has been appointed to act. The general verdict was in favour of Mr. Jordan, as he has all the energy and zeal necessary for a Chief Inspectorship of Post-offices in such young provinces. Mr. Kimpton is not known here; but he may do well.—Delhi Gazette.

EXAMINATION IN THE MAHRATTI LANGUAGE.

—The Government of India has sanctioned a donation of Rs. 500 being awarded to every European Assistant Commissioner, Extra Assistant Commissioner, or Police officer, who will pass a successful examination in the Marathi language according to the standard adopted for junior civil servants in the Bombay Presidency. Three-fourths of the examination will be viva voce, and the Government pleader at Nagpore, if he be a Marathi scholar, will be a standing member of the divisional examination committee. This appointment of Government pleader is another recent creation. In the donation sanctioned, Mr Temple has developed another of his ideas, that is, to drive the Hindoostanes away from the provinces by discouraging their employment, and reviving the Marathi element for our own purposes and ends should the Hindoostanes again try on the game of 1857. This game was one of the first questions which Mr. Temple struck out for the local administration when he joined the provinces, and he has no doubt brought the Supreme Government to coincide with his views.—Delhi Gazette.

THE DEBT OF INDIA.—The public debt of India has expanded very considerably of late years. In 1840 it amounted to £34,484,997, and it gradually crept up in consequence of annual deficits for the next fourteen years. Thus it stood, in April, 1841, at £35,922,127; in 1842, at £38,404,473; in 1843, at £40,478,640; in 1844, at £41,883,451; in 1845, at £43,502,750; in 1846, at £43,891,849; in 1847, at £46,884,225; in 1848, at £48,757,213; in 1849, at £51,050,518; in 1850, at £53,934,768; in 1851, at £55,099,315; in 1852, at £55,114,693; and in 1853, at £56,233,686. It should be remarked that during several of these years wars of more or less magnitude prevailed. In 1854 the debt was reduced to £53,683,468; but it rose in 1855 to £55,531,120, and in 1856 to £57,764,239. Then came the great mutiny. In April, 1857, the debt stood at £59,461,969, but it had risen in April, 1858, to £69,473,484; in April, 1859, to £81,171,308; and in April, 1860, to £98,107,460. Since then no very material addition has been made to the debt. In April, 1861, it stood at £101,877,081, and although it had risen in April, 1862, to £107,514,159, it had receded in April, 1863, to £104,495,235; in April, 1864, to £98,518,145; and in April, 1865, to £98,477,555. During the last two years there has again been some increase, and we may take the debt of India at present in round figures at £100,000,000. The charge for interest in 1840 was £1,595,778; in 1845 it had risen to £2,009,039; and in 1850 to £2,558,939. In 1855 it had fallen to £2,189,433; but in 1860 it had risen again to £3,889,191, and in 1865 to £4,482,385. It is worthy of remark that, comparing 1865 with 1860, the increased charge for interest was £593,194, while the increase in the capital of the debt was only £370,095. India has thus to pay a higher rate of interest on her loans than formerly.

HOME.

THE EAST INDIA ASSOCIATION.

A deputation from the East India Association, consisting of Colonel Sykes, M.P., Mr. R. N. Fowler, Captain Poulett, Capt. Harby Barber, Mr. S. P. Low, Mr. Hodgson Pratt, Mr. Dadabhai Naoroje, &c., waited on Sir Stafford Northcote on Wednesday, the 21st inst., for the purpose of presenting the following petition:—

"We, the members of the East India Association, beg respectfully to submit that the time has come when it is desirable to admit the natives of India to a larger share in the administration of India than hitherto. To you, sir, it is quite unnecessary to point out the justice, necessity, and importance of this step, as in the debate in Parliament, on the 24th May last, you pointed out this so emphatically and clearly, that it is enough for us to quote your own noble and statesmanlike sentiments. You said:—'Nothing could be more wonderful than our empire in India, but we ought to consider on what conditions we hold it and how our predecessors held it. The greatness of the Mogul empire depended upon the liberal policy that was pursued by men like Akbar availing themselves of Hindu talent and assistance and identifying themselves as far as possible with the people of the country. He thought that they ought to take a lesson from such a circumstance, and if they were to do their duty towards India they could only discharge that duty by obtaining the assistance and counsel of all who were great and good in that country. It would be absurd in them to say there was not a large fund of statesmanship and ability in the Indian character.'—Times, of 25th May, 1867. With these friendly and just sentiments towards the people of India we fully concur, and therefore, instead of trespassing any more upon your time, we beg to lay before you our views as to the best mode of accomplishing the object. We think that the competitive examinations for a portion of the appointments to the Indian civil service should be held in India, under such rules and arrangements as you may think proper. What portion of the appointments should be thus competed for in India we cannot do better than leave to your own judgment. After the selection is made in India, by the first examination, we think it essential that the selected candidates be required to come to England to pass further examinations with the selected candidates of this country. In the same spirit, and with kindred objects in view for the general good of India, we would ask you to extend your kind encouragement to native youths of promise and ability to come to England for the completion of their education. We believe that if scholarships, tenable for five years in this country, were to be annually awarded by competitive examination in India to native candidates between the ages of 15 and 17, some would compete successfully in England for the Indian civil service, while others would return in various professions to India, and where by degrees they would form an enlightened and unprejudiced class, exercising a great and beneficial influence on native society, and constituting a link between the masses of the people and their English rulers. In laying before you this memorial we feel assured, and we trust that you will also agree with us, that this measure, which has now become necessary by the advancement of education in India, will promote and strengthen the loyalty of the natives of India to the British rule, while it will also be a satisfaction to the British people to have thus, by one more instance, practically proved its desire to advance the condition of their Indian fellow-subjects, and to act justly by them. We need not point out to you, Sir, how great an encouragement these examinations in India will be to education. The great prizes of the appointments will naturally increase vastly the desire for education among the people."

Colonel Sykes, M.P., dwelt upon the absolute necessity of the successful candidates for civil appointments visiting England. He enlarged on the change which contact with English society, English industry, English influence produces in the views of a native. He told how when in Durbar all the Nepaul chiefs clamoured to be led against the English during the mutinies, Jung Bahadur alone declared such a course to be a fatal one, because from what he had seen in England, and from his personal intercourse with Englishmen, he was certain that, however successful an attack might be for a time, the English in the end would prevail. Colonel Sykes went on to speak of the ability of the natives to pass high examinations, as the examinations in the Indian Universities proved. He pointed out that the proposal to award scholarships for competition in India, to enable natives to come to England to complete their education, emanated from Sir Herbert Edwardes, who, from his experience and ability, must carry weight in such a matter.

Sir Stafford Northcote said that he had the question under consideration, and had conferred with Sir Herbert Edwardes and others, and Sir Herbert had furnished him with a paper on it. Two plans were suggested: the one proposed that appointments should be assigned for competition in India; the other, that scholarships should be given to enable natives to come to finish their education in England. The first would manifestly be the most convenient for the natives themselves; but it was urged in favour of the second, that it would secure a more enterprising class than the first men, with more backbone; and he admitted the force of that—moreover, he quite saw the advantage to India of a more efficient class which had had an English training. He took a very great interest in the matter, and was inclined to approve of both proposals. He was corresponding with Sir John Lawrence and the Indian Government on the subject. Sir Stafford Northcote then conversed with Mr. Dadabhai Naoroje and other members of the association on the Gilchrist scholarships, which are worth £100 annually, and are tenable by natives of India for five years. He thought it would be feasible to give the scholars a free passage in the Government transit ships. He further questioned Mr. Dadabhai about the expense of the Indian students under his care.

Mr. HODGSON PRATT thought that it was very important that natives should be brought to this country when young, before their habits and prejudices were confirmed. He hoped that both proposals would be approved. He dreaded the disposition to look upon Government office as the one thing needful, and he hoped that steps would be taken to encourage the growth of an English trained independent class. He was of opinion that experience has shown that something more than scholastic education is needful by the natives of India; they have shown great receptive power, but they have not shown the love of learning and independence of thought that it was expected the universities would develop, and he believed that early training in England would do much to arouse them.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE ABYSSINIAN EXPEDITION.—The Government having made up their minds to despatch an expedition to Abyssinia, for the purpose of attempting to rescue the Europeans so long held in captivity there, on Saturday notices were issued by the Admiralty authorities requesting tenders for steam transports to be sent in by Tuesday, the 27th inst. The following are the chief points in the official notice issued on Saturday:—"Notice.—Transport Department, Admiralty, Somerset-house, London, 22nd Aug., 1867. The Commissioners for executing the office of Lord High Admiral of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, do hereby give notice, that on Tuesday next, the 27th inst., at twelve o'clock, they will be ready to receive tenders for transports for Indian seas. None need tender but such ships as are in all respects in good condition as to hull, engines, boilers, general equipment, boats, &c., and ready to leave the country immediately. No vessel of less than 1,000 tons gross measurement to be tendered, nor any ship that is not fitted with a distil, or will not be so fitted within ten days from acceptance, capable of distilling 1,000 gallons in each twenty-four hours, and also to be amply provided with iron water-tanks. To be employed for six months certain, and as much longer as may be required after that. Tenders to specify rate if discharged at Bombay or in England." Should the Admiralty obtain suitable vessels, we believe that they could—under ordinary circumstances—reach Bombay in about fifty days, and their fitting-up need not take up much more time. About 18,000 tons of steam-shipping will be required for the conveyance of 10,000 troops from Bombay to the Abyssinian coasts, for the war and commissariat matériel, for such a peculiar service will, of course, be unusually bulky. There are but few steamships in the Indian seas which can be taken up for the service, and the bulk of the tonnage will consequently have to be despatched from Great Britain. The shipping trade "got wind" of the expedition late on Friday night, and the freight market was consequently in a state of great excitement on Saturday. Telegrams were flying about from port to port in unprecedented numbers, and shipbrokers suddenly awoke from a state of comparative stagnation to one of extraordinary bustle. During the day freights rose considerably, and as the vessels will be required at least a year, the profitable engagement of so much tonnage will give new life to the long-depressed steamship trade of the kingdom.

PRESENTATION OF A SILVER TEA SERVICE TO MISS MARY CARPENTER.—A meeting for the above purpose was held on the 23rd inst., at the rooms of the East India Association. Among those present were Sir Bartle and Lady Frere, Mrs. M. Naoroji, and Mrs. G. Dadabhoy Cama (both Parsee ladies), Mr. H. A. Palmer, Mrs. Clarke, Mr. N. Furdoonjee, Mr. M. Cussetjee, Mr. G. Lynch, Mr. K. Mooljee, Mr. G. W. Hastings, Mr. D. D. Cama, and many other natives and English ladies and gentlemen. Mr. Cussetjee proposed Sir B. Frere in the chair. The chairman read a letter from the subscribers of the present, and Mr. N. Furdoonjee presented the service to Miss Carpenter, on behalf of certain native gentlemen of Bombay, requesting her acceptance of the present as a small token of their esteem, admiration, and gratitude, and as a memento of her visit to their country. Miss M. Carpenter replied at length, expressing her deep gratification that her visit to and conduct in India had met with the approbation of her native friends. She explained the objects of her visit to India, and mentioned the reasons why she thought Government ought now to assist in supplying qualified female teachers by establishing Normal schools on the plan suggested by her. At the request of the chairman, Mr. D. Naoroji, Mr. Mooljee, Mr. M. Cussetjee, and Mr. N. Furdoonjee addressed the meeting, expressing their approval of Miss Carpenter's plans, and their desire to see them carried out. The chairman recommended the speakers and the natives present to communicate their views to Government. A vote of cordial thanks to the chairman terminated the interesting proceedings.

BILLS ON INDIA.—The biddings for Government bills on India took place on Wednesday, the 21st inst., at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were: to Calcutta, 16,23,000 rupees; to Madras, 77,000 rupees; and to Bombay, 10,00,000 rupees. The minimum price was fixed at 1s. 11d. on all the presidencies. Tenders at 1s. 11½d. on Calcutta and Madras will receive about 90 per cent., and on Bombay about 47 per cent. All tenders above that price will receive in full.

APPOINTMENTS.—(St. James's Palace, Aug. 18).—The Queen has been pleased, on the nomination of the Marquis of Exeter, to appoint Captain the Hon. Frederic Barnewell Best, late of her Majesty's 2nd Bengal Fusiliers, one of her Majesty's Hon. Corps of Gentlemen-at-Arms, vice Lieut.-Colonel George Bridge. The Queen has been pleased, on the nomination of the Marquis of Exeter, to appoint Captain William Cuninghame Cuninghame, late 79th Highlanders, one of her Majesty's Hon. Corps of Gentlemen-at-Arms, vice Captain A. S. Bolton.

CIVIL SERVICE COLLEGE.—Lord Strathairn and Mr. Edward Romilly (late chairman of the Board of Audit) have accepted the invitation of the committee to become vice-presidents of the proposed college. Contributions are now flowing in from members of both Houses of the Legislature and friends of the Civil Service generally. Amongst the former may be mentioned a donation of £100 from Admiral the Earl of Egmont.

DESPATCH OF THE BOMBAY MAIL.—(SOUTHAMPTON, Aug. 27.)—The Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamship Pera, Captain Coleman, sailed hence this afternoon, with mails for Gibraltar, the Mediterranean, Egypt, Aden, Bombay, &c. She took out thirty-six passengers and a general cargo, including bar gold, £32,000; emeralds, £800; and jewellery, &c., £240. Amongst the passengers are Captains Mostyn and Smith, Lieutenant Baines, Surgeon-Major Toss, Ensign Phipps, Dr. Brady, and Lieut.-Colonel Lucas.

TELEGRAPHIC COMMUNICATION BETWEEN ENGLAND AND INDIA THROUGH RUSSIA.—St. Petersburg, Aug. 20.—The Council of Ministers have approved the concession which has been granted to Messrs. Siemens Brothers for the construction of a direct and special telegraph line connecting England and India through Russia.

"Of all the structures erected by Shah Jehan there is none which bears any comparison with the Taj Mahal at Agra, a mausoleum of white marble decorated with mosaics, which for the richness of the material, the chasteness of the design, and the effect, at once brilliant and solemn, is not surpassed by any other edifice in Europe or Asia."—Elphinstone's India.

Whitmore's Compound Linctament of Arnica,

A SPECIFIC for the CURE of RHEUMATISM, LUMBAGO, SCIATICA, SPRAINS, CONTUSIONS, WEAKNESS of the JOINTS, CHILBLAINS, &c. It is also an excellent remedy as a stimulating application to the surface of the chest and back in bronchitis, inflammation of the lungs, pulmonary consumption, and whooping cough. When the liver is inactive, rubbed over it, its stimulating properties have a beneficial effect, and in all cases where counter irritation is desirable, it will be found invaluable.

In bottles, quarter-pints, half-pints, and pints.

Wilkinson's Bronchio-Thoracic Lozenges.

Prepared from the receipt of an eminent Physician, and experience has fully justified their recommendation as the most speedy remedy in irritation of the throat, catarrhal coughs, bronchitis, incipient consumption, spitting of blood, &c., &c. To public speakers and vocalists they will be found invaluable, as they impart a clear and beautiful tone to the voice. Free from any preparation of opium, and of an agreeable taste, they are applicable to all.

Whitmore's Stomachic Dinner Pills.

No Pill is so efficacious in promoting digestion, strengthening the stomach, correcting acidity, preventing or removing headache, giddiness, &c., arising from a costive habit, debilitated stomach, or torpid liver.

They require no change of diet, and those of the most delicate constitution may take them with safety.

DINNEFORD'S FLUID MAGNESIA.—

The Medical Profession for thirty years have approved of this pure solution of Magnesia as the best remedy for Acidity of the Stomach, Heartburn, Headache, Gout, and Indigestion; and as the best mild aperient for delicate constitutions, for Ladies, Children, and Infants; and for REGULAR Use in Warm Climates. KEATING'S PERSIAN INSECT DESTROYING POWDER.

THIS POWDER is quite harmless to animal life, but is unrivalled in destroying Fleas, Bugs, Flies, Cockroaches, Beetles, Gnats, Mosquitoes, Moths in Furs, and every other species of insect.

Being the Original Importer of this now invaluable article which has found so great a sale that it has tempted others to vend a so-called article, the public are therefore cautioned to observe that the packets of the genuine Powder bear the autograph of THOMAS KEATING.

Sold in Packets, 1s., and Tins, 2s. 6d., 4s. 6d., and 6s. each, or 1s. Packets, free by post, for fourteen postage stamps, and 2s. 6d. on receipt of thirty-six. Also in Bottles, 1s. 2d., with Bellows, 1s. 6d. and 3s. each, by THOMAS KEATING, Chemist, 79, St. Paul's Churchyard London, E.C.

RUPTURES.—BY HER MAJESTY'S ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS, Perfected and Exhibited in the Great Exhibition of 1851, is allowed by upwards of 200 Medical Gentlemen to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so often hurtful in its effects, is here avoided; a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected, and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit) forwarded by post on the circumference of the body two inches below the hips being sent to the Manufacturer, Mr. WHITE, 228, Piccadilly London.

Price of a Single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., and 31s. 6d.; postage, 1s. Price of Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d.; postage, 1s. 8d. Umbilical, 42s. and 52s. 6d.; postage, 1s. 10d.

&c.—The material of which these are made is recommended by the Faculty as being peculiarly elastic and compressible, and the best invention for giving efficient and permanent support in all cases of weakness and swelling of the Legs, Varicose Veins, Sprains, &c. It is porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and is drawn in like an ordinary stocking. Price 1s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 10s. to 16s. each; postage, 6d. JOHN WHITE, MANUFACTURER, 228, PICCADILLY, LONDON.

KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES.

This world-renowned medicine, which has obtained such celebrity in all parts of the globe, for curing the above-named complaints and other affections of the chest and pulmonary organs, is strongly recommended to all suffering from any of the above disorders, as one trial will be sufficient to prove their undoubted efficacy, being frequently used under the recommendation of the most eminent of the Faculty.

Prepared and sold in boxes, 1s. 1d., and tins, 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 10s. 6d. each, by THOMAS KEATING, Chemist, &c., 79, St. Paul's Churchyard, London. Sold retail by all Druggists and Patent Medicine Vendors in the world.

N.B.—To prevent spurious imitations, please to observe that the words "KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES" are engraved on the Government Stamp of each box, without which none are genuine.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT and PILLS.

Lumbago, derangement of the kidneys, rheumatism, tie douloureux, all excruciating pains of the muscles and nerves, are relieved with astonishing rapidity by the use of this extraordinary Ointment. The affected part, previously fomented with warm water, have only to be briskly rubbed with this soothing unguent to obtain instant cure. Whilst the Ointment cures the local ailment, the Pills remove the constitutional disturbance, and regulate every impaired function of every organ throughout the human body. The cure is neither temporary nor superficial, but permanent and complete, and the disease rarely recurs, so perfect has been the purification performed by these searching yet harmless preparations.

THE INDIAN ARMY AND CIVIL SERVICE LIST.

(THE PUBLICATION HAS BEEN UNAVOIDABLY DELAYED.)

Consequent on the measures adopted by Lord Cranborne to remedy the grievances of the Indian Army—one of which was granting the right of admission to the Staff Corps of all the old officers, unconditionally—a considerable change has been made in the appearance of this volume. Although the old Cadres still exist, nearly all the names are in italics, showing the great number of officers who have availed themselves of the privilege; whilst the Lists of the Staff Corps themselves will show what a great stimulus has been given to promotion, numbers of officers having obtained two steps of substantive (and paying) rank in one day.

The Accumulated Profits of the UNIVERSAL, at the Thirty-third Annual Investigation in 1867 amounted to £202,973. Upwards of four-fifths of this sum is reserved to enter into the average of future years. The remaining fifth allows of a reduction of the Premium upon all Participating Policies Six Years in force on the same liberal scale as for several years past; namely 50 per cent., or one-half the original Premium. Policies, English or Indian, upon which the Premium was originally £100, will thus be charged with £50 only of Premium for the current year, May, 1867-68.

New Policies issued in 1866 for £306,315, at an Annual Premium of £13,252. Policies in force, £2,622,000. Accumulated Funds, £804,990. Annual Income, £138,000.

The Directors in England and in India beg to draw the attention of the public to the great economy of Premiums in this Society, to its large reserves, and to its experience of a third of a century, during which it has secured the utmost possible benefit to the assured. The Policy-holders have received cash returns of upwards of £650,000, in addition to more than a Million and a Half Sterling, paid in claims upon deaths in this country, and in the Civil and Military Services of India.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

THE Bombay mail of this morning brings news from Calcutta up to August 2, and from Bombay to August 9. There is not much of special interest to glean from either side of India.

The Bombay Gazette discourses on the likelihood of a change in the proceedings of the Supreme Council. It is going henceforth, they say, to divide its sittings between the Presidencies. This, thinks the Gazette, will be hardly palatable to the heads of the lesser Governments in Bengal, the North-West, and the Punjab. The reason suggested for the new move is curious. Simla having lost its character for healthiness, its official frequenters would like to transfer their patronage to Poona and the Neilgherries. We should think the alleged reason as problematical as the rumoured fact. The heat of the weather at Bombay may have something to do with such speculations. The Presidency has enjoyed the hottest season and the latest monsoon known within living memory. Latterly, however, the heavy rains were beginning to cool the air to some purpose.

Weather notwithstanding, the Bombay trades had been hotly agitating against Mr. Massey's obnoxious income-tax. Meetings had been held in turn by large bodies of tailors, weavers, shoemakers, carpenters, bricklayers, and milkmen, and deputations from each had been sent to speak their minds to the collector of the licence-tax.

The Calcutta papers were still commenting on the Orissa famine, and discussing the question who was most to blame for the terrible results. Of all the culprits apparent or alleged, the Board of Revenue comes off worst on all hands. Nobody has a good word to say for it—from the Friend of India to the Englishman. The latter journal, however, reserves a large share of blame for the Governor-General, who quietly folded his hands over the progress of a disaster which timely interference with the Lieutenant-Governor and others might largely have alleviated.

Of Orissa itself, the accounts are more favourable. There is less of sharp suffering in most parts of the country; and the relief committees, working concurrently with the larger imports, are doing an immense deal of good. Sad exceptions are still of course too many, and in some districts the prospects of a sufficient harvest were not so certain as they might be.

The cholera season had set in with unusual severity all over the North-Western Provinces and the Punjab, as well as about Poona. The 106th at Lahore had lost fifty-six men in two months. At Simla the cholera has been but one of several diseases which have lately gained ground in that airy but undrained and filth-surrounded station. In Cashmere the same plague is killing the natives so fast, that the English visitors had all fled to a high table-land called Gulmergh, some 9,000 feet above the sea.

The railway between Allahabad and Jubbulpore has been opened to the public. The trains are appointed to start at five in the morning, and to reach Jubbulpore at half-past ten at night.

After some unaccountable delay, the Bombay Government has done the right thing by appointing a commission of inquiry into the late dreadful accident on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway. A few smaller accidents have since occurred, one near Meerut, and two or three on the East India and Madras lines.

Private enterprise seems determined to solve the problem of irrigation for India. At least the East India Irrigation Company, which has already done good work in Orissa, is now seeking to raise capital for the Soane Canals. It asks for a million sterling in £10 shares.

The first payment of the Jhansi prize-money, amounting to forty rupees a share, is at last authorised. The claims of the Cawnpore movable column, under Maxwell, and of Smith's column, are still, it seems, under consideration.

The new Bishop of Calcutta, Dr. Milman, seems likely to tread in the steps of the Evangelical Bishop Wilson. A sermon of his preaching at Barrackpore, on the conviction of sin, is pronounced to have been thoroughly refreshing from the Evangelical point of view.

An inquiry was said to be going on at Peshawur into a case of official blundering connected with the march of the Horse Artillery through a place where cholera was raging, which ended in much loss of life. It is hard to say why the troop was moved at all from its own healthy station. But the truth will come out, we trust, in good time, and punishment be awarded to the real offenders.

The claims of officers on the Indian staff to something like fair treatment in the matter of furloughs to Europe, have been sedulously urged of late in the leading columns of the Times. They have also been tellingly handled in the Spectator and the Saturday Review. It seems absurd that, in these days of swift travelling, English officers in India should be virtually debarred from running home to look after their private concerns, or to take in a fresh stock of European energy. Why, as the Spectator asks, should they not be allowed to spend one year in five at home, if their absence should not prove inconvenient to the State? They may take plenty of leave in India, if they like; but who would do so, if he could get home?

The "silly season" in the press and the Abyssinian expedition coming together have brought out a fine crop of letters to the Times, in which the most conflicting counsels and assertions are offered to a bewildered public and an anxious Government. In the multitude of counsellors there might be safety, if you had any means of picking out the best. Happily, in the present instance, there may prove to be no need for trying any of them. One of Reuter's telegrams just received informs us, through the British Embassy at Constantinople, that King Theodore has released his prisoners at the intercession of the Armenian Bishop Isaac. If this should only prove true, the expedition will of course be indefinitely adjourned.

The Indian journals betray no small amusement at the notion of our giving the Sultan a ball at the India-office by way of a compliment to the Mahomedans of India. They point to the comparatively small minority of Indian Mussulmans, and assert, with much show of truth, that if those people hear or think of the matter at all they will probably interpret the Sultan's visit into a triumph for his creed.

The next arrival from India will be the Calcutta mail, which left Alexandria yesterday morning, and may be expected in London on Thursday next.

A CORRESPONDENT of the Standard, touching on the long delay in issuing the Banda and Kirwee prize money, talks of a rumour being generally current that the prize-rolls have reached this country, but that no payments can be made because the staff of the India House are away for their long vacation. This rumour, we assure our readers on good authority, is altogether groundless. No rolls have yet arrived; whenever they do come, payment will be made at once, whether the holidays are going on or no.

An Act of Parliament which has just come into play empowers trustees, executors, and administrators to invest their trust money in East Indian stock, or in any securities the interest of which may have been guaranteed by Parliament. For one set of Indian securities, such as guaranteed railways, irrigation works, and so forth, the result will necessarily work well. Investments will flow into them from less productive or more uncertain channels. Trustees will readily do with a good conscience what some of them have hitherto done with hesitation, and others have been deterred from doing at all. Consols will have fewer purchasers at 94 when five per cent. can be got at par or so, on conditions virtually as free from danger. But what will be the effect on such securities as the Five and a-Half per Cent. paper, for which the Imperial guarantee has been sought in vain? It is rather hard that their holders should suffer because Parliament refuses to be logical. What real difference is there between their claims and those of Indian railways? The new Act will expose them to the very injustice pointed out by those who condemn the issuing of "preference shares," as hurtful to the claims of debenture-holders.

MISMANAGEMENT IN MOVING OF TROOPS.—We are informed that an inquiry is being made at Peshawur into the circumstances attending alleged mismanagement in the moving of troops, not altogether unlike that which occurred at Morar the other day, and which now turns out to be anything but what we fondly hoped it would be, a solitary and exceptional instance. It seems that when the troops were ordered into camp from Peshawur the Horse Artillery were removed to a most eligible spot, where they remained eight days without a single case of cholera occurring. Meanwhile H.M.'s 77th were attacked by cholera in Peshawur, when the authorities there, strange to say, issued orders for the immediate removal of the Horse Artillery from the healthy place they were located at to another spot twenty miles off to make room for the 77th Regiment. Now, such a move as this could scarcely be upheld under any circumstances, but when, in addition to the place being twenty miles distant, the Horse Artillery on their way to it would have to pass in close proximity to a spot where cholera was raging, it must be allowed that it was a most extraordinary measure. The medical officer of the artillery most strongly protested, and gave it as his opinion that disastrous consequences would ensue. All, however, to no purpose, and next morning at day-break the march commenced. The road was across country, and several watercourses had to be traversed. The result was that the Horse Artillery did not reach the new encampment until past mid-day, and before the evening of that day more than a dozen cases of cholera had occurred among the men! Up to this time they had not had a single case in camp, and the probability is, had they been left where they were they might have escaped altogether, instead of which the Horse Artillery were found in the end to have suffered more in proportion than any other regiment in Peshawur. Moreover the place to which they were moved was much more accessible to the 77th from Peshawur, being on the high road to Michnee, whereas the Horse Artillery had to march across country to get there. Why in the world the latter were so unceremoniously bundled out of a healthy encampment to make room for an already contaminated regiment is a mystery which the general will have to explain to a court of enquiry which is, we hear, to be shortly assembled. This muddle appears to have been owing to error of judgment. At Morar it was a general break down of the various departments that together constitute our army.—Delhi Gazette, Aug. 3.

FEMALE EDUCATION.—We take the following from a vernacular contemporary:—The good and improvement of this country in many respects mainly depend upon the elevation of her women by a thorough and a systematic education. Considering the early age at which they are married, and the manner in which their progress is at once put a stop to along with the marriage, it is needless to say that the various female schools established in India do afford but little assistance in moulding their minds. We are glad to learn that the principal authorities in the educational department are already aware of this, and are endeavouring to find out means calculated to remedy the evil. Amongst them we find that Mr. Woodrow, the inspector, has proposed the establishment of schools during the night, and that Government, it is said, has sanctioned his proposition. Female teachers are to be appointed in such schools, and elderly ladies and women of the country are to receive education in them. We give our hearty thanks to Mr. Woodrow for his disinterested motives, and love for anything good to the emancipation of India's daughters. But, from the proposal he has pointed out, and already confirmed, we regret to conclude that he knows very little of the actual state of this country, nay, less of the minds of her inhabitants. The men of the land do not like their women to come out of the zenana after they are married, and more especially during the night. Hence it is unreasonable to expect that they will let their wives and daughters be educated in a night school. We accordingly trust that Government will not allow such an unnecessary waste of money for a project which will prove to be but futile. In spite of this fruitless attempt, we believe much good will accrue, if exertions on a greater scale are directed to the improvement of the female schools of the country already in existence, and efficient school mistresses be appointed to conduct them in a way that will remove the doubts of many, and create confidence in the minds of the inhabitants. In such a case there will be much hope that girls should continue their studies, even after they are married for some years. In consequence of improper arrangements, and the want of female teachers, the parents and guardians are reluctant to send their wives and daughters to such schools."

HILL-RAILWAYS FOR INDIA.

THE late successful trip by the new railway over Mont Cenis inaugurates a new era in the records of steam-travelling. What has been achieved in one place may at least be tried in another. If a railway train can be driven with perfect ease over forty-eight miles of steep gradients in the Swiss Alps, cannot a similar feat be accomplished among the Himalayas? Take for instance the new or Kennedy road to Simla from the foot of the Hills. It is already wide enough for at least one line of rails throughout; in many places it is wide enough for two. Its zigzags rise more gradually than those on the Mont Cenis road. The distance from the plains would be very little greater than that from St. Michel to Susa. It would cost comparatively little to widen the road and to lay down a double line of rails. Against avalanches there would be no need of providing, though a certain reckoning would have to be made with the yearly rains, and possibly with the snows of winter. The same sort of labour that built the present road would probably suffice, under due supervision, to metamorphose it. Once completed, the new line would give steady employment to a certain number of hill-men, without involving those periodical forced levies with which Indian officials have to meet the demands of their countrymen, great or small, whenever the time comes for returning to their duties in the plains.

There can be no difficulty in applying the principle of the new system. Mr. Fell's invention is no secret, and English engineers have brains in India as well as elsewhere. The experiment once made with success in the direction of Simla, other lines of the same sort could be carried up in time to all the chief hill-stations where British troops are or may be quartered. On the advantages of such a course it is needless to dwell. The mere saving of time and labour in the march of a regiment up or down would more than justify its adoption; while an extended system of hill railways would remove one of the last objections to quartering a large proportion of our white soldiers on the bracing ridges of the Neilgherries and the Himalayas.

THE DEAD-LOCK ON THE BONUS QUESTION.

THE letter of "An Army Agent" in the Daily News of August 29—which appears in another column—deserves the heedful consideration of all whom it specially and ultimately concerns. Here is a grievance for which Parliament, press, and a large body of long-suffering officers have, year after year, been engaged in praying, counselling, demanding, or decreeing redress. And yet, seven years after the amalgamation of the armies, nine after the extinction of the Company's rule, and eighteen months after the sending out of Lord Cranborne's despatch, the officers of the Indian Army seem as far as ever from gaining even that modicum of compensation for the loss of their bonuses, which a niggardly Government was forced by public clamour to yield. A concession wrung from close-fisted statesmen by steady hammering on the brains of an easy-going Legislature, has so far failed to put a single penny into the pocket of any of those officers who have so long been tasting the full sweetness of pecuniary hopes deferred.

More than a twelvemonth has passed since claimants for the small amount of compensation at length granted by the Indian Secretary were free to forward applications to the several committees in India. And what sort of an answer have they got? Nothing as yet but a series of elaborate devices for putting them off, ad libitum. How the authorities must laugh in their sleeves at the results producible from the simple process of occasionally printing off a few hundred fresh forms, and requesting the far-off applicants to fill them up at their leisure! They cannot cost much to print, and they take several weeks travelling from Simla to London. When the luckless claimant has filled up and started his form back on its long journey, what easier than to forestall its appearance by sending off another differently worded; which being duly filled up and signed by the same applicant, his claim shall then receive "careful consideration?" Is it not an excellent plan for wasting other people's time and labour, for keeping Penelope's web unfinished, for ruining those you seem so willing to befriend? The delay may make all the difference to the real sufferers; but what of that? If some of them should be driven into the Bankruptcy Court, or prefer dying in India to starving at home, let that be their own affair: the country, at any rate, will have saved a few thousand pounds; and public documents will show that justice was anyhow ordered to be done!

A third form has just been issued; for a third time officers at home are requested to answer a number of questions drawn up by the Indian committees as a means of guiding them to the truth. For all purposes of justice, what can be more absurd than to ask an officer how much his promotion was accelerated by the purchasing of steps? How can he tell? If he cannot, who else can? What the authorities themselves have often declared impossible, they now call on individual claimants to do. As for the justice of such a demand, it seems almost needless to observe that it would virtually set aside the great concession made last year, and reduce the whole question of compensation to an insulting farce. Compensation implies loss; if you are to set off the increased promotion against the alleged outlay, the whole struggle for reimbursement of money spent becomes or may become a meaningless waste of time. It is so easy to make out that such a one has gained in accelerated promotion more than he has lost in buying steps. Is it not bad enough that so many officers are to receive nothing at all for the value of their rank on retirement? Let them at any rate be allowed a full refund of the sums actually paid by them towards the buying out of others.

And the whole cost of this scant justice would be so ridiculously small. Lord Cranborne reckoned it at £160,000; not many years' pay for the whole India Council. Economy is a good thing in its place, but there are times when penny-wisdom becomes a dangerous blunder. It is not the Indian Government, we believe, who are at fault in this case. The home Council hold the purse-strings, and no pressure on earth can force them against their will into an act of wise generosity. They have an absolute veto on all home expenditure, and are absolutely irresponsible for their way of using it. Have they no memory, no bowels of compassion, no sense of practical justice, no prudent fear of coming Nemesis under the guise of the newly enfranchised British householder? Whose is the power, his, as Lord Cranborne lately pointed out, should surely be the responsibility. At present, the rule in matters financial seems to be, that the Indian Secretary shall order what he pleases, but do only what his Council wills.

THE FOUR MONTHS' BILL CHANGE adopted by the banks, and adopted unnecessarily, as if they and not the merchants were to blame, last year is not succeeding. The Bombay Review suspects that the banks themselves begin to find that the movement was not quite so sound as they thought it would be. It has undoubtedly contracted and crippled business in a serious way, and in quarters where it cannot be for the interest of banks to see business crippled. A system of four months' bills in circumstances in which it takes nearly six months to send the goods to market against which the bills are drawn cannot be a sound one.—Friend of India.

BENGAL.

ROYAL (LATE BENGAL) ARTILLERY.
—CIRCULAR.

SUPPOSITION.

It is supposed that the reason why every attempt to establish anything like a purchase system in the regiment has failed is because we have gone on the wrong principle of first getting our steps, and then trying to find out who will pay for them.

It is supposed that all acknowledge the benefit resulting from a system of purchase in the way of increasing promotion; we have only to look at the Bombay list, where they have kept up their purchase system, to be convinced of this fact.

PROPOSITION.

It is proposed now that the mode of procedure be reversed, that we first of all find out if the officers of the late Bengal Artillery are willing to subscribe money for the purpose of increasing promotion. 2ndly, that we establish some infallible system for realising the sums subscribed. And lastly, when the sum has been realised, we find some one who is willing to retire and take it.

This sum it is proposed should be a fixed sum of £1,000, which shall always be available for any officer, senior to the grade of second captain wishing to retire, or if junior to that limit provided his juniors agree to raise the money. (No doubt some years hence this limit will have to be altered.) But the limit of compulsory subscription has been placed here, in case a very junior officer should ask for the bonus of £1,000, and those junior to him might not think his step worth the sum they would be called upon to pay.

It is supposed that the step of most value to one is the one next above one's own, and a fixed sum of £1,000 available to any one above the grade of 2nd captain is supposed to be more beneficial to the regiment for the purpose of increasing promotion than the system which was adopted in the old benefit fund when the longer an officer remained in the regiment the greater his bonus became though the actual value of his step to the regiment decreased with advancing years. Here an inducement was held out to remain longer in the regiment with ultimate better prospects in view; but here in this proposition an inducement simply is offered to retire, and none whatever to remain.

MODE OF PROCEDURE.

The first step in the mode of procedure, it is proposed, should be to find out if the regiment generally is willing to subscribe for the purpose of increasing promotion. It is supposed then that it would, did each individual know how far he would be supported by the regiment generally. To start this scheme then, it is proposed that some such question as this should be put to the regiment individually:—"If the regiment generally subscribed to purchase steps, would you do so too? If so, sign the agreement contained in this circular, in order that we may find out how many there are who would." When the names of all have been obtained, and this scheme we say has been agreed to, the next thing to consider will be the best system we can establish for realising the money. Monthly subscriptions have proved a failure, at least as far as the old benefit fund was concerned; promissory notes entail a great deal of trouble, and would probably turn out as great a failure as monthly subscriptions. The system of lodging money for purchase as it exists in the Cavalry and Infantry is supposed to be the only feasible mode of realising the money. A plan applicable to a seniority service, such as the Artillery, where all subscribe, is attached to this circular, and example given to show its working. But all must acknowledge, and it must be thoroughly understood, that they have no power over their quotas of subscriptions, as long as their names are included in the purchase list; and they must agree to authorise their paymasters, whoever they may be, without further reference to them, to pay their respective quotas within two months of the same being called for. Paymasters will be called upon to pay the quotas at the same time that subscribers receive intimation of there being a step for purchase. When the names of all have been collected, the officers on staff, &c., will be called upon to name their paymaster. The paymaster of those performing regimental duty will of course be the C. O.s of their batteries. A copy of this scheme has been sent home, and they are told that it is imperative that the money be lodged at Cox's; and should Cox not be their agent, they must authorise their agents to pay their quotas into Cox's when called for.

The last thing to consider is when the money is lodged to get some one to retire and take the money. It is supposed that so many will want it that the bonus will have to be put up to auction to the highest bidder, and that there never will be any difficulty in finding some one who will take it.

This proposition was first circulated in manuscript to a few stations, and with such unexpected success, as the names already recorded will show, that it is proposed that adjutants of brigades be asked to kindly circulate this and obtain the wishes of the officers in their brigade by getting their signatures to the following agreement.

FORM OF AGREEMENT.

We the undersigned do hereby agree to subscribe our quota to every step there may be for purchase in accordance with this circular.

And we do also agree to authorise our paymasters, whoever they may be, to pay our quota of the lodgment money for purchase within two months' notice of the same being called for, and also pay every subsequent quota for a step within two months of notice being given without further reference to us.

THE ARMY FURLOUGH REGULATIONS.

Lord Cranborne's decision, giving to all officers who had not joined the Staff Corps the option of doing so within a fixed period, went far towards annihilating the grievances of the Indian Army. But one step has still to be taken before these can be said to be entirely removed. The furlough regulations must be amended till they harmonise with the other measures by which the constitution of the army has become so completely changed during the last six years. All work and no play notoriously makes Jack a dull boy, and it will scarcely be contended that the conditions of life in India are such as to warrant the Government in looking for success in an attempt to establish the converse of this proverb in the case of its military servants. And yet it would seem as if the ruling powers were bent on trying the experiment, for it is not too much to say that, under the existing rules, no military officer can obtain furlough to Europe except on sick certificate. It would seem as if the authorities, while devising other reforms, had altogether omitted to take into consideration how entirely the formation of the Staff Corps and the reorganisation of the army on an altered footing have changed the bearing of the so-called new furlough regulations on the members of the army at large. These rules were framed for an army on a regular regimental organisation, under which each officer knew that, although he could not keep his appointment while on furlough, still he was certain of returning to a fixed position in his own regiment without loss of rank or position. This is now no longer the case, for practically every one is on staff employ, and if an officer takes his furlough, thereby forfeiting his appointment, what has he to fall back upon? Not his regiment, for the staff corps is a mere unattached list of officers serving in all departments of the service. He has to do what is styled "general duty," which, in the case of officers under the rank of major, means doing duty with any corps to which they may be attached, often in positions junior to their juniors; and in the case of field officers signifies the taking their share of station duties, looked upon, while so employed, in the light of military pariahs, without any rallying point and without hope or aim.

Is it surprising that with such a prospect before him the Indian officer should abandon all idea of revisiting his home, and that the portion of the leave rules which relates to furlough to Europe should virtually have become a dead letter? Surely the Government of India will do justice in this matter to a large and deserving body of its servants, and surely it only requires to have its attention drawn to the subject to redress what is daily growing into a greater and more intolerable grievance! The grievance is the more keenly felt, because while every day the mother-country is being brought into closer connection with the shores of India the artificial restraints imposed by the leave rules neutralise, for one class of Government servants, the advantages which science has secured to the rest of the European community of this country. It cannot be urged that the remedy for this state of things would entail any great sacrifice on the State. On the contrary, the remedy is inexpensive, easy of accomplishment, and in its results would be equally advantageous to both the parties concerned. All that is asked for by reasonable men is that furlough and sick leave, as regards pay and tenure of appointment, shall be placed on the same footing; and we presume the Government scarcely requires to be told, on the one hand, that it is a simple act of justice to grant to the officer who by continuous hard work for a certain period has earned his holiday what can be demanded almost at any time by his sickly and less efficient brother; and on the other hand, that it is not to the advantage of the State to lose the services of men who by long apprenticeship in separate branches of the service have acquired special knowledge and aptitude for the work of their own departments. So long as only a fixed number of officers were allowed to be absent from their regiments, as was the case under the old organisation, there might be some show of reason for requiring officers to vacate their appointments when going home on furlough. But no such reason now exists, and to demand from every officer whose health has not failed him the sacrifice of a position acquired by long years of honest labour as the price of a brief respite from work, appears to fall little short of barbarity, and certainly deserves the character of gratuitous and short-sighted injustice—gratuitous because injurious alike to employer and employed; short-sighted, because it fails to perceive that such treatment can never secure willing service.

We are only echoing the feeling of the army at large when we add, that relying on their well-known love of fair play, it looks to the Governor-General and the military member of Council, to the same John Lawrence and Col. Durand who on a former occasion so nobly stood forward as the champions of its rights to redress the last of its grievances.—Friend of India.

THE BOARD OF REVENUE AND THE FAMINE.

Whatever difference of opinion there may be with regard to the action of Sir Cecil Beadon in the matter of the Orissa famine there seems to be none with respect to that of the Board of Revenue. The action of the board has been fully and unreservedly condemned by all parties. All the vices of obstinacy and obstructiveness that usually apply to boards have been manifested in the highest degree by the Board of Revenue. The Governor-general in his minute charges the board with serious errors in their management of the affairs in Orissa from the very commencement of the crisis even to the end. The board regarded the occurrence of a famine as an event that might lead to a remission of revenue, and therefore at the outset they set their faces against the wishes of the officers of districts to go about and to ascertain the real state of things, and the actual out-turn of the harvest, under the delusion that inquiry was useless, and even pernicious, unless followed by remission of revenue, and this, says the Governor-general, "they were determined not to grant or recommend." The officers of the districts, however, regardless of the orders of the board, did visit the district, and ascertained enough to show at an early period that a great calamity was about to fall on the Province, and that vigorous measures should be taken to meet it. But the board, says the Governor-general, "having once taken up the opinion that importation of grain by State agency was inexpedient, adhered to that conclusion, it may be said, to the last. Even when the Lieutenant-governor, on the 10th and 17th of May, suggested to them the expediency of importing, the board declined to do so, and nothing, therefore, was done until the 29th of that month, when his Honour directed that grain should be imported." The board not only obstructed the local officers in the discharge of their duty, but absolutely disregarded the suggestions of the head of the Bengal Government to whom they are supposed to be subordinate. And what responsibility, we would ask, attaches to a collective body called a board? The unfortunate Lieutenant-governor has been compelled to come forward and defend his acts, and he has still further to undergo the ordeal of a trial in England; but the board is unassailable, and maintains a calm and imperturbable silence. Has not the time arrived for the abolition of this imperium in imperio, this irresponsible body, which is of no real use in the administration of affairs, and is known only to the public by the obstinacy of its views, and the obstructiveness of its action? The whole business of the board could be managed far more simply and efficaciously by a single secretary, under the direct control of the Lieutenant-governor. The establishment of boards of revenue is part of an old system, which has been found to be cumbersome and unnecessary, and has not been adopted in the more recently acquired provinces of the Punjab and Oudh. Why, then, should it be continued in Bengal? The only answer is that interests have grown up, and valuable appointments are open to the service which the authorities have a disinclination to meddle with; and so long as the shortcomings and pernicious action of the board did not come prominently before the Government and the public, such toleration of a quasi sinecure body might be excusable. But in the face of a great calamity like the Orissa famine, caused to a considerable extent, or at least largely aggravated, by the obstinacy and immobility of the board, there should be no hesitation in decreeing its extinction. If one of the results of the Orissa famine be the abolition of the Board of Revenue, it will not have been altogether without its uses. The economical considerations also ought not to be overlooked by a Government that is uneasy with regard to its finances, and is engaged in retrenching its present establishments, as far as they will admit of retrenchment without impairing their efficacy.—Englishman, July 22.

MISCELLANEOUS.

LUCKNOW, July 25.—A very mysterious adventure, which might have resulted in a most calamitous manner to the well-known paymaster of the 5th Lancers, has given us something to talk about lately. This gentleman one day last week drove over to Chinbut, probably to see if the birds had arrived on the lake for which this village is famous. Leaving his conveyance with his syce on the road, he took his umbrella and walked in the direction of the lake, having told his syce he would be back in half an hour. A long time elapsed and the "sahib" not returning the syce alarmed gave information at the police thanah. Night came on and the "sahib" was still missing. The search was resumed at day-break. Footmarks were discovered and tracked, and late in the afternoon the unfortunate gentleman was found lying in a state of utter insensibility in a jungle of high grass more than four miles away from the lake. The only explanation of the mystery that we can have until Major Biggs is sufficiently recovered to tell his own story is, that in walking round the lake he lost his way in the high grass and among the numerous nullahs and water-courses, filled to overflowing at this season of the year. While seeking a way out night overtook him, and in the morning, worn out and famished, and falling an easy prey to the rays of the sun, he was reduced to the fearful state in which he was found by the police. Favourable accounts are given of the unfortunate gentleman's chances of recovery.

ODDH POLICE COMMISSION.—We hear that the Chief Commissioner of Oudh has submitted a proposition to the Government of India to do away with the existing armed force belonging to the Oudh Police Commission, on political grounds. The force consists of about 1,600 men, including the European officers. These men are well-disciplined and are skilled in musketry, sword, and other drill. Mr. Strachey is said to be of opinion that it is not desirable to keep so large a number of armed men together in a place of which most of them are natives. The Chief Commissioner has suggested that a separate regiment may be formed of the Christian officers belonging to that police force, who may be very useful in times of war, and that they may be transferred to some other stations. The men may be transferred to other native regiments. He has also proposed to raise a new police constabulary force who should be mere guards, and that no offensive weapon should be supplied to them, except a bayonet. The Governor-general in Council has concurred in the views expressed by Mr. Strachey. Might not even the bayonet be dispensed with?

MUNICIPAL RAILWAY.—In 1864 the Justices of Calcutta determined to construct a railway for the purpose of removing the daily sweepings of the town to the Salt Lake, and in the budget of 1865 a sum of four lacs of rupees was provided for this work, which was duly sanctioned by the Lieutenant-Governor. The line of rail extends from Theatre Road along the Circular Road to the River at Baugh Bazaar, and at Entally there is a branch line as far as the Salt Lake, the whole length of the line being nearly eight miles. This important work is now approaching completion, but there is little doubt the cost will not be less than about 5,50,000 rupees. One of the chief reasons for this large increased expenditure is that the late Chairman of the Justices, subsequent to the preparation of the estimate, extended the line further north than was at first contemplated.

DEATH OF THE NANA'S FATHER-IN-LAW.—The settlement made by the rebel refugees from Oudh in the Dhang Valley in Nepal was recently the scene of a serious conflagration. Several persons were burnt to death, among them Ram Chunder Punt, father-in-law of the Nana Sahib of Bithoor. Only seventeen refugees succeeded in escaping unharmed.

BRIGADIER C. CHAMBERLAIN, C.S.I., temporarily employed on the brigade staff, is brought permanently on the establishment, in succession to Brigadier General Tombs, C.B., V.C., promoted.

BEER TASTERS.—The Secretary of State, as a matter of economy we presume, lately directed the Indian Government to cease employing professional tasters of the beer sent out for the troops, on its arrival in India. The Government of India remonstrated but in vain—officers at stations are to do the work if it is needed. However carefully beer may be selected at home it sometimes sours on the voyage. The Commissariat authorities have accordingly directed, the Indian Daily News states, that all sour beer be "cured" by putting half a pound of soda in each cask, allowing the acidity to escape with the effervescence, and then dissolving in it from 4 to 6 oz. of salt to "bring up the body" of the beer again. The Government chemist declares this treatment to be perfectly healthy—it certainly should not be confounded with adulteration. But to prevent all mistake and misrepresentations, physiological as well as chemical opinions should be taken by Government. We spend nearly half a million sterling in giving cheap beer to our soldiers, and should be as economical as possible. Still the expense of "tasters" in India is trifling compared with the risk to our soldiers from bad beer, and the Secretary of State's orders smell of jobbery in the Home Stores Department which "tasters" here would check.—Friend of India, Aug. 1.

ANOTHER RAILWAY ACCIDENT.—We are sorry to hear of an accident on the Meerut and Ghazeeabad line, which occurred on the evening of the 22nd, which has resulted in the death of Mr. Stone, the district engineer, who died of the injuries received. The following details have reached us, and from another source we hear that Mr. Stone's leg was amputated, but the shock had been too great for him to survive the operation.—"Rain fell in torrents yesterday, causing great damage to property here, and the Delhi Railway authorities fearing that the line from Gazeabad to Meerut might not be safe for the up evening's train from Delhi, despatched a pilot engine from Gazeabad to see that all was safe and clear. Henry Stone, Esq., district engineer, Punjab Railway, Mr. Tatlock, contractor's agent, and Mr. Thompson, assistant engineer, Delhi Railway, accompanied the engine to examine the line. They proceeded at a slow pace, and found all right until they got within five miles of the Meerut station, when they came upon part of the embankment which had given way, and before the engine driver could pull up the engine, they came upon a culvert which unfortunately gave way, the engine falling through. Mr. Stone was severely injured. The European fireman lost the fingers of one of his hands, and I hear Mr. Thompson was also severely hurt. Mr. Stone was, however, the most dangerously so, and must have been much exhausted from loss of blood, before they could convey him to his bungalow, and it is now my most painful duty to say, that he has since died from the injuries. He was a gentleman much respected by all the railway officials, in fact by all who had the honour of his acquaintance." We believe it is usual in such cases for the inspector to go over the line with his trolley and check or stop trains by telegraph or signals. The running off of a trolley would be of no consequence, while the practised eye of the inspector could detect the slightest danger. There is, we are informed, likely to be some delay in getting the line clear as the engine is standing in the centre of a tank of water. Many other parts of the line too, we are told, are unsafe.—Delhi Gazette, July 25.

THE LIABILITY OF MESS SECRETARIES.—The case of Payne and Co. v. J. R. Pearson, tried at the Small Cause Court on the 19th instant, and reported in yesterday's Englishman, contains several points of interest to the trade and to military men. Messrs. Payne and Co. had, in April, 1859, upon the order of Major Mayne, secretary to the mess of the 3rd Irregular Cavalry, supplied certain stores, amounting in value to Rs. 2,762. Major

Mayne had up to the 22nd of April, 1861, remitted several sums in part payment of this debt, leaving a balance due to Messrs. Payne and Co. of Rs. 638-5-3, which balance, he wrote to say, would be discharged by the succeeding mess secretary, Lieut. J. R. Pearson. On receiving the last remittance from Major Mayne, Messrs. Payne and Co., in acknowledgment of it, distinctly stated the balance still due to them. The regiment was broken up in June, 1861, and before Messrs. Payne and Co. again applied for payment, Major Mayne had died. Lieutenant Pearson repudiated his responsibility, but allowed that the mess on the breaking up of the regiment was perfectly solvent. Messrs. Payne and Co. upon this appealed to the Commander-in-Chief, but his Excellency referred them to the Civil Court for redress. An action was therefore instituted against Lieutenant Pearson. Mr. Pearson's attorney pleaded the Statute of Limitation, which alone would of course have thrown the plaintiffs out of Court; but the learned judge (Mr. Fagan) held that Lieutenant Pearson was not liable because "it was not shown that Major Mayne had any authority to incur the debt on account of the mess." The Court held also that the secretary of a mess has no authority to order the supply of a larger quantity of goods than the average of one month's consumption, as, according to general orders the mess accounts must be adjusted at the end of each month. If a larger quantity be ordered, the secretary renders himself personally liable. In the present case Messrs. Payne and Co. had a good claim against the estate of the late Major Mayne, but none against his successor in the office of mess secretary—Lieutenant Pearson. So ruled Mr. Fagan. Now, if this decision be correct, there are two things clear. First, that no tradesman can safely give credit to an officers' mess, and second, that no officer can be forced to accept the position of mess secretary or president, as he may at any moment become personally liable for the whole mess debt of his regiment. But without credit from the trade no mess hardly could get on, and the office of mess secretary or president is not a voluntary one, but a duty which must be taken in rotation by the officers qualified by rank to hold it. The decision of Mr. Fagan is hard upon the trade and the individual mess secretary or president. Messrs. Payne and Co. were surely perfectly justified in considering that Major Mayne had authority to order the stores for the mess ordering them, as he did, in his official capacity as mess secretary. If a similar order had come from the secretary to the Bengal Club, would the learned judge have ruled that it was Messrs. Payne and Co.'s duty to have made sure that the secretary had the authority of the club to give such an order? We trow not. Mr. Fagan is, however, perhaps right that in law the person ordering the stores is the only person against whom the supplier can have any ground of action. According to this, therefore, the estate of the late Major Mayne is alone liable.—Englishman, July 25.

ROBBERY AT THE AGRA ARSENAL.—A month or two ago a rope was discovered suspended outside one of the walls of the arsenal in the fort at Agra, intended apparently to give access to the armoury and magazine; and there was a ladder at the foot of the wall, doubtless there for the same purpose. An inquiry was made, but nothing elicited, and a report having been sent to Government about it, Government ruled it was of no importance. Considering what had occurred at the Agra arsenal before, this conclusion may seem to some of our readers to be rather remarkable. A few days ago, however, the arsenal was robbed. The thieves managed to effect an entry through some old doorway that had been blocked up, and carried off a number of component parts of musketry, one account says 300 gun locks. Another enquiry has been held out without discovering anything.

Some changes however have been made in the native establishment, two men having been removed, one of whom was the durwan over the unserviceable arms, who was called up as a witness at Captain Harward's trial. This man's books and accounts underwent a most searching investigation at that time or immediately afterwards, but nothing whatever could be laid to his charge, and he was allowed to remain. The police, we hear, are making very great efforts to find out this new secret, and their enquiries, if we are rightly informed, have a tendency to one conclusion, and it is not much to be wondered at, for they are but mortals after all, and no doubt would be glad to see a stain wiped off their escutcheon. If by any possibility any of the native subordinates who were known to be well disposed towards Captain Harward, can be shown to be implicated in these robberies, a great point will be gained. The men are therefore in a critical position, and we think Colonel Turner would be only doing his duty if he were to transfer these men to another arsenal. As long as they remain here they will be constantly exposed to the danger of some plot or intrigue which may be too powerful for them. We are informed too that the two vacancies are to be filled by men who if not of the police are intimately connected with it. It is no business of ours, but we think Colonel Turner will be doing very wrong if he allows any man connected directly or indirectly with the Agra police, or recommended from that quarter, to be placed in any office in the Agra arsenal. While these things are going on the would-be-investigators go beating about in the dark and have not yet stumbled upon the clue, which ought to have been in their hands a year ago at least.—Delhi Gazette, July 25.

THE FAMINE IN ORISSA.—On the 19th July Mr. Molony, the Special Commissioner, reported to the Calcutta Committee that the state of the country generally is good, or better than could have been expected. But for the large importations and extensive relief operations there would have been a very great amount of misery and starvation.—Cuttack.—The demand for rice still continues very great in the whole of the distressed tracts. The committee's sales to the public and to light labourers are not less than from 400 to 500 bags a day, and the Government sales, during June, came to upwards of 12,500 bags. The house to house relief has increased the quantity given away gratuitously, and has also tended to keep down the numbers at the centres. The Government rate of sale has been reduced for clean rice to 2-8 per maund in the most distressed parts. In Daogong pergunnah the state of the habitations is particularly bad, and an endeavour is being made, by sending coolies to cut and bring thatching grass from a distance, to improve them in some measure. In many instances in which assistance in money has been given, a portion of it has been expended in repairing the roofs of houses. The prospects as regards extent of cultivation in Aul and Coojung in particular are bad. In other distressed parts, too, there will be a deficiency in the cultivated area, but with the reduced population, and with an average crop, there should be plenty of food after the harvest. The light labour rates have been raised to Rs. 5-3-4 per 1,000 cubic feet for the rains. Cotton and weaving relief are still very extensively carried on, and large numbers are supported thereby who would, otherwise, become inmates of the clutter or recipients of gratuitous relief outside. It is unfortunate that salt should be so scarce in the north-east of the district as to be procured with difficulty. Rice sells at 9½ Cuttack seers per rupee at the river side. Poorce.—The price of rice has lately gone down. The crops are generally reported on favourably. The portions of the district in which house to house relief was undertaken have been finished. The tickets issued number over 3,000. There is no general sickness or mortality at present. Mr. Ravenshaw has interested himself in the formation of two villages for paupers on the Khoordah estate, which are now ready. Paupers will be selected from the centres and settled in these villages, and will receive rations from the relief until they can reap the crop. A great deal of money has been expended from the funds of the estate in the establishment of these villages.—Englishman.

CHEERING PROSPECTS FROM BALASORE.—The latest reports from the Balasore districts up to the 8th July are of a most encouraging nature. There had been no increase of distress, and prices had generally fallen to 16 or 17 seers per rupee. This was owing partly to increased importations, and partly to the healthy appearance of the crops. The Asana crops had been cut in some parts of Byang, whilst the out-turn of the Beallee crop was expected to be fully 15 annas. In Bherub and Dhamnuggur rain was required, but in other parts the weather had been most favourable, and the continuance of this favourable aspect depends almost entirely on the weather.

A CAUTION TO TRADERS.—(In re William Molloy Stewart).—Insolvent lately carried on business as an indigo planter at Jeetwarepore, in the district of Tirhoot, and now resided in Old Post-office-street. Debts due, Rs. 4,07,750-0-0; ditto under amended schedule, Rs. 1,45,710-0-0; assets, viz., interest in land, &c., Rs. 150,000-0; goods choses in action, Rs. 30,000; excepted articles, Rs. 300. This was an adjourned hearing from Saturday, the 13th, and was disposed of this day by insolvent's discharge being postponed for ten months without protection. His lordship (Mr. Justice Phear) also committed the insolvent for contempt of Court to two weeks' imprisonment, on the ground of his having induced one of the creditors to petition the Court to annul the adjudication.—Englishman, July 30.

COMMAND OF THE EASTERN FRONTIER.—Colonel Nuthall has been appointed to the command of the Eastern Frontier. It was offered to Colonel Kaye, R.A., but as that officer prefers a command in which there are English as well as native troops, he will get Mooltan as soon as the promotion of Brigadier-General W. B. Wemyss is gazetted. The Gualior district has fallen to Brigadier Chamberlain, who has been acting in that command. The appointment of Colonel Huyshe as Inspector of Royal Artillery in Bengal is due, we believe, to the Governor-General, who preferred that distinguished officer to Colonel Fitzmayer, the selection of the Commander-in-Chief.—Friend of India.

SIMLA, July 17:—Cholera is now very prevalent here. A good many cases have occurred among the natives and few among the European residents; in fact it bears rather a serious aspect just now. The doctors have found it necessary to issue a supply of medicine to each of the offices up here, for immediate use, in case any of the hands are taken ill at office; it is to be administered by the head of each office, and doubts are entertained as to whether there won't now be more fatal cases than otherwise!

FURLOUGH RULES.—The Government of the N.W. Provinces lately recommended the Supreme Government to grant to Mr. Bradford, the collector of customs, Muthra Division, a pension of Rs. 376 per mensem—a sum exceeding the maximum one fixed by the rules—as a special case, under the old Uncovenanted Service Pension Rules. In the absence of any specific explanation from the local government, the Viceroy in council declined to accede to the recommendation, on the ground that the old pension rules have already been abrogated, and that no relaxation of the new ones can be made. The case has been referred for the favourable consideration of the Home Government.

JHANSI PRIZE MONEY.—The first payment of the Jhansi prize money is authorised—forty rupees per share. As far as can be ascertained, the following corps and detachments formed the Central India field force engaged at the action of the Betwa (1st April), fall of Jhansi (2nd April), capture of Calpee (22nd May), and recapture of Gwalior (19th June). The payment of this prize will be carried out in all respects under the rules in G. G. O. No. 346, 28th March, 1867, applied on the distribution of the Banda and Kirwee prize money. 1st Troop Bombay Horse Artillery, 2nd Company reserve Artillery and 18th Light Field Battery, 4th Company 2nd Battalion Bombay Artillery, No. 6 Field Battery Royal Artillery. Cavalry.—H.M.'s 14th Light Dragoons, 3rd Regiment Bombay Light Cavalry. Infantry.—H.M.'s 71st Highlanders, H.M.'s 86th Regiment, 3rd Bombay Europeans, 24th Bombay N. I., 25th Bombay N. I. Miscellaneous.—21st Company Royal Engineers, 2nd Company Bombay Sappers and Miners, 5th Company Bombay Sappers and Miners, 1st, 2nd, and 4th Companies Artillery Hyderabad Contingent, 1st, 3rd, and 4th Regiments of Hyderabad Cavalry, 3rd and 5th Regiment Infantry Hyderabad Cavalry. The claims of the Cawnpore movable column under Brigadier Maxwell and that under Brigadier R. Smith are under reference to the Secretary of State.—Delhi Gazette.

THE GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY, Jubbulpore line, will probably be opened from Kundwah (the present terminus) to Seonee, a length of 92 miles, about the 1st August next; and a further length of 21 miles to Etarsee will be ready before the end of the year. The distance from Etarsee to the Towa viaduct is 15 miles. The rails can be laid up to the viaduct by the end of the year. The Towa viaduct, however, cannot be finished under two years, probably not till the end of 1869. The next 20 miles to Sahagpore is nearly finished. The most backward portion of the line is the next 40 miles; or from Sahagpore to the Sukker viaduct, at Gurramae. There are several unfinished bridges, and the Doodleye and Sukker viaducts, which will take fully two years to complete. From the Sukker river to Jubbulpore, 80 miles, the line might be finished in a year, with perhaps one break at the Jhair viaduct, 47 miles from Jubbulpore, one abutment of which has to be rebuilt. The Nerbudda viaduct is almost ready for the girders, and this erection may be commenced immediately after the rains.

ENGLISH PAPERS THE PROPERTY OF NATIVES.—We hear with profound regret that the combination between several of the Rajas to buy up a number of English newspapers has already succeeded in the purchase of four. That these papers will not continue to exercise any influence in future is, of course, certain, but it is to be deeply deplored that men of any education can be found, who, under such auspices, are ready to take up the editorship of such papers. The fact is that Englishmen in India do not seem to have the money to purchase papers that change hands, and that the papers, therefore, naturally fall into the hands of those who find it easier and cheaper to be puffed in their own journal than to have to pay for every paragraph that may be inserted in their favour in other papers not their own.—Public Opinion, July 19.

THE MARCH FROM GWALIOR.—Some further details respecting this extraordinary march have reached us, which we think should be made public. From reading the story one would infer that it was the first time a British regiment ever made a march at all. On the morning of the 15th the regiment received orders to hold itself in readiness to move the same evening. The men were at once put on fatigue duty, and had to carry their cots and traps to some distance in the sun to be ready for packing, and only came off fatigue duty on the second bugle for parade sounding at 5.45 P.M. A little after six the regiment marched out of cantonments, leaving nearly all the cots behind them in consequence of there being no carriage ready. The old story. When the regiment left there were only four bheesties to supply the whole corps with water, two of whom ran away before they had proceeded a mile and a half. There was not a single doolie or cart with the column. The men, thoroughly fatigued with the day's work kept falling out, and there was no one to help them or to give them water except the two bheesties. They reached camp about 8 o'clock, where they found no camp pitched and no arrangements. Later in the night the doolies arrived and were taken back to look for the stragglers, two of whom were found in a dying state and died before they arrived in camp. A colour sergeant was found dead in the jungle next morning, and four more privates died in the camp hospital, all from sun-stroke or heat apoplexy. The Quartermaster and an assistant-surgeon were sent on to the camping ground at twelve in the day; when they arrived there, of course there was nothing for them to do, no camp being up. Both these officers were knocked up by exposure to the sun, and are both suffering from it still. As we stated before, a court of inquiry has been ordered to investigate the matter. We offer no opinion whatever as to the officials upon whom the blame is to be laid. The affair is sure to attract attention at home. We might safely leave it to be dealt with by the authorities who, under the pressure that will be brought to bear upon them from home, will be forced to see that the proper steps are taken to remove those through whose mismanagement the disaster occurred. But prevention is better than cure, and we trust this public exposure will be a warning to others who may be placed in like circumstances not to disregard the inevitable law of cause and effect.—Delhi Gazette.

INCREASE OF PAY TO THE INSPECTOR-GENERAL, MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.—On the recommendation of the Inspector-General of the Medical Department, and of the Government of Bengal, the Government of India has raised the salary of the Professor of Medical Jurisprudence of the Medical College and police surgeon of this town from Rs. 900 to the consolidated pay of Rs. 1,400 per mensem, on the ground that the duties and responsibility of the office have of late heavily increased. During the last two years some 160 post mortem examinations were held by that officer, both at the College and the Police Hospitals. Besides the substantive duties of his office, the above-mentioned officer has frequently to attend the Coroner's, the Police, and the High Courts, to give evidence in cases of murders and accidental deaths, in which he holds the post mortem examinations on the bodies of the deceased.—Indian Daily News, July 20.

CHOLERA continues its ravages in the North Western Himalayas. It is decimating the natives of Cashmere, so that the English residents have moved to Gulmurgue, a plateau 9,000 feet above the sea. Dr. Tulloch, of H.M.'s 42nd, has died of the disease at Murree. The deceased had overworked himself in the cholera camps at Peshawur. It continues to cause considerable mortality in Chota Simla, especially among natives and English children. Such is the sickness in the filthy bazaar that coolies and many jampannies have fled. From reports from Lahore we learn that that excellent regiment, the 106th Light Infantry, has suffered and is still suffering very severely from cholera; the deaths from the first appearance of the epidemic on the 27th May numbered 56 on the 23rd July, so that in the short space of two months every sixteenth man of the regiment has been carried off by cholera, while amongst the other troops at the station not one single case has appeared, conclusively showing that the attack is due to the state of the men's general health.

AMRITSUR, July 18.—Cholera has again made its appearance in the city and its suburbs. There are cases in the general dispensary and police hospital. Two or three prisoners in jail have been attacked and some of the boys in the Government college. The establishment of a cholera hospital is talked of in the city; other preventive measures have and are being adopted, but the principal cause of the sickness does not at all attract attention. In this city there are some six or eight extensive reservoirs of stagnant putrid matter, formed by the collection of the drainage of different portions of the city. The effluvia which rises from these cesspools of venom and poisons the atmosphere is incredible. Experience, the severest of tutors, has often and often taught the inestimable benefits resulting from the remedying of all such evils; yet with regard to these particular and most pregnant sources of sickness, the authorities appear to continue in a state of somnolence. It is undeniable that the exertion of the powers that be at the commencement of the season were most egregious, setting aside the one or two glaring blunders that were made in flushing the city ditch with water from the canal at a cost of Rs. 10,000, and thus making the last state of things worse than the first; also in turning all the milkmen out of the city, and thus causing to them in one night the loss of some 400 head of cattle from wind and rain and the effects of the ditch, on the banks of which they were located. If only half of the Rs. 10,000, so conveniently pocketed by the canal department, had been expended in simply absorbing the venom above alluded to by the use of dry earth, we should not now be seated on thorns, contemplating the inevitable devastation of a populous and prosperous city should cholera become general. Even yet there is time. If money cannot be procured and necessity drives, postpone at once the architectural works of simple ornamentation which are on hand, they can be completed next year or the year following, and expend the money in hand on their account to the removal of the existing evil. If such are not feasible, reduce the "bloated armament" by at least one-fifth its cost, which is at present maintained at a cost of a lac and a quarter, the result will be most beneficial. Should this hobby be too dear to allow of its being pained, I have one other proposal—raise loans on security of the octroi tax. One lac will enable the filling in of every hole now and for ever. The land reclaimed, if reserved for ten years, will fetch double and treble the proposed outlay.—Delhi Gazette.

OPIUM REVENUE.—We congratulate Mr. Massey on the extent to which the revenue from opium this year has exceeded his wisely cautious estimate. Bengal opium alone has yielded £3,518,600 in the past seven months, or £438,600 more than his estimate. There can be little doubt that he will receive from this source alone, including Bombay, about a million sterling more than he expected. The deduction from this is not that further wise taxation was unnecessary, but that it is prudent to form a low estimate of the revenue from a source so precarious, in order that the surplus of a good year may be set against the deficit of a bad one, and the variable element be reduced to a minimum. Will he not eliminate that element almost altogether by the excise system?—Friend of India, July 18.

PIRATES OFF THE ANDAMANS.—We trust the statement of the Englishman is correct, that the islands of Carmotra, Trincut, Nuncowry, and Katchali belonging to the Nicobar group are to be blockaded. The piracies there and off the Andaman group have of late been as bad as in the Malay and China seas.—Friend of India.

COLONEL W. F. NUTHALL is appointed to the brigade staff of the army, in succession to Brigadier General Reid, C.B., promoted.

DEATH OF MR. ROBERTSON.—On Sunday, the 13th, Saharunpore lost an officer who played no small part in saving that district during the mutiny. Up to that day Mr. Robertson's health did not seem to be worse than usual. Indeed, scarcely a week had elapsed since he had completed his share in the onerous duty of making the settlement of the district. At half-past four o'clock in the afternoon Mr. Robertson was seized with a sudden and alarming faintness. Dr. Cutcliffe, on being informed of his condition, immediately visited him, but hardly had he entered the room than Mr. Robertson gasped and died. A post mortem examination proved that the cause of his death was the rupture of a blood cyst which had formed on his brain in consequence of a severe fall from horseback, which he got when Special Commissioner for the investigation and trial of cases connected with the mutiny. On that occasion Mr. Robertson lay insensible in the jungle for a whole night, and was only found the next morning; he remained speechless for three days. From that time he suffered almost continuous pain in the head and face, attributed to neuralgia, but clearly the result of the accident which eventually caused his death. Even in the performance of his public duties his life was one continued struggle with nature, against which, however, he fought with fortitude, displaying a passive endurance only to be equalled by the courage he had formerly shown in confronting personal danger.—Indian Daily News.

THE LAWRENCE ASYLUM.—At the end of the last official year there were 228 boys and 210 girls in the Lawrence Military Asylum at Sunawur—all children of soldiers. There were forty on their way to the asylum and sixty-nine applicants awaiting admission. The Rev. J. Cole, the principal, regrets—and with justice—that while the asylum is open to all children whose soldier-fathers die in India, motherless girls, exposed to greater evils, are not provided for. The satisfactory physical condition of the boys in the asylum is proved by the fact that the average height of a boy of fourteen is 4 feet 8½ inches, while in the Chelsea asylum it is 4 feet 6 and 7.10ths, and in Greenwich 4 feet 8 and 9.10ths. So as to weight—in Chelsea the average is 71 lbs. 14 oz.; in Greenwich, 75 lbs. 2 oz., and in Sunawur 74 lbs. 8 oz. So as to powers of endurance. The Eurasians are quite equal in these respects to the Europeans. Mr. Cole's report is unusually complete, and his suggestions should receive the immediate attention of a government only a few miles from Sunawur. The present Viceroy, after a visit in October 1865, expressed "general satisfaction" with the improved condition of this noble memorial of the philanthropy of Sir Henry Lawrence and his wife. In his review of the report Sir D. Macleod quotes Bishop Cotton's record of his inspection in 1860, in which this, now melancholy, passage occurs:—"On Easter Monday I consecrated the church; additional interest was given to the celebration by the presence amongst them of Sir Alexander Lawrence, the founder's son."

REPORT ON THE FAMINE IN 1866.—The Calcutta Gazette publishes a very interesting report on the Famine of 1866 in Midnapore, by Mr. Herschel, the magistrate. He puts the mortality in a very curious way—"If men's lives were fractions of cowries the account could not be so little trustworthy. But Midnapore is not Lancashire. I believe that upwards of 50,000 souls were in danger of starvation; that of these probably 20,000 received food from us, and that no less than 10,000 were saved thereby. Such was my estimate a few months ago. Since then I have seen out-of-the-way places on the banks of the Suburnoreka where deaths occurred, of which I knew nothing, and which should be added to the mortality. After such tremendous calamities it cannot but be that such discoveries will be made. But they can make no great difference in the total." That we doubt. If the relief afforded had been three times as wide as it was, the wants of the district would have been met. There were few orphans, because the Calcutta market and the recruiters got all who escaped death, or who had not the good fortune to be adopted by the richer classes. Two or three recruiters were convicted of stealing children, and many cases were discovered by the police of prostitutes taking children in as an "act of charity." Only one instance occurred in Midnapore of a prostitute attempting to obtain quasi sanction to her possession of a number of girls, by presenting a petition praying for recognition of her honourable intention. Formerly this trick was very common, and was tolerated by our courts.

ELICHPORE THE HEAD-QUARTERS OF A NEW DISTRICT.—Orders have been received for Elichpore to be made the head-quarters of a new district, of which Major Stubbs, at present at Hyderabad, will be appointed deputy commissioner, Mr. Corderoy, c. s., succeeding to Major Stubbs's appointment as 1st Assistant to the Resident. Captain Bushby, at present deputy commissioner of the Woon district, will probably be transferred to Akolah. There will be thirteen tehsildars in the province, and we are glad to hear that the Government at last have sanctioned the officers of the commission getting the same salaries as those of the neighbouring Central Provinces.

DEMISE OF CAPTAIN DYSART.—Death has made a breach among the officers of H.M.'s 107th Regiment, hitherto so singularly healthy. We record with regret the decease of Captain George Sale Dysart, which took place, after a short illness, on the evening of Sunday last. We believe that acute dysentery was the immediate cause of death. Captain Dysart was a grandson of Sir Robert Sale, whose name the bloody battle of Moodkee has made historical.

PROJECTED TOUR OF THE LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR OF BENGAL.—His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor is about to proceed on a tour to some of the Eastern districts of Bengal and Assam. His Honour will leave Calcutta on the 23rd inst., Dacca on the 29th inst., Cachar on the 5th proximo, and will arrive at Sylhet about the 6th proximo.—Indian Daily News and Bengal Hurkaru, July 18.

MR. R. ADAM has been appointed to officiate as assistant conservator of Oude forests. In his new appointment Mr. Adam will have a good field for the pursuit of his favourite studies, and we trust he will not forget the wants of the Agra museum, in the claims of the Lucknow institution for contributions towards the illustration of the natural history of Upper India.

PRISONERS TO BE EMPLOYED AS WEAVERS.—The question of employing prisoners as weavers is nearer a practical experiment than most people believed. The Home Government, it appears, allowed Dr. Mouat to select and despatch the jute-spinning machinery for the Alipore gaol, at a cost of £13,260. 5s. 8d., a sum which is to be recovered from the convict labour fund.

ENFACED PAPER.—The total amount of Government promissory notes enfaced for payment of interest in London (under deduction of amount re-transferred to India), and outstanding in the books of the Bank of Bengal on the 22nd June, 1867, was Rs. 13,22,46,218. Of this sum Rs. 43,89,000 represented the Five per Cent. Loan of 1867.

MR. WYLLIE, the able Under Secretary in the Foreign-office, proposes to take a three years' furlough at the end of the year, when he is likely to be succeeded by Mr. Le Poer Wynne, or Mr. Auckland Colvin. As Sir W. Muir will be promoted to a lieutenant-governorship, the Foreign-office will again undergo a radical change of occupants, as it did on the transfer of Sir H. Durand and Mr. C. U. Aitchison.

THE EARNINGS OF THE EAST INDIA RAILWAY during the week ending 14th July, 1867, were £32,641. 17s. 4d., or £28. 17s. 3d. per mile. In the corresponding week last year they amounted to £15,414. 4s. 5d. only, or £13. 13s. per mile. The earnings of the first two weeks of the second half of 1867 represent £65,117. 10s. 9d., or more than double those of the corresponding fortnight last year, which amounted to £32,223. 2s. 4d. only.

COLONEL MORTON'S REPORTED RESIGNATION.—It is stated on good authority that Lieut.-Colonel W. E. Morton, R.E., Secretary to the Government N.W.P., in the Public Works Department, will retire at the close of this year. Lieut.-Colonel C. J. Hodgson is believed to be the favourite for the appointment.

FIVE COMPANIES OF H. M.'s 107th Regiment moved yesterday from the Chatham Lines into camp at Papamow. We hope that the change will prove beneficial to the general health of the men.—Pioneer, July 31.

MR. R. S. MONCRIEFF, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce, having proceeded to Europe, Mr. Henry Crooke has been elected to succeed him.

MR. S. S. MELVILLE, of the Civil Service, magistrate and collector of Etawah, North-Western Provinces, has obtained furlough for three years to England.

ATTEMPT TO MURDER AN OFFICER AT HURRYHUR.—On Monday, the 22nd July, at about 8 A.M., as Captain Johnson, the officer in charge of the Hurryhur bridge works, was driving down to the bridge from Hurryhur, he saw near the Parsee's well, about half a mile from the bridge, a man wrapped in a black cumby walking in the middle of the road in the same direction. Both he and his horse-keeper (who was seated on the back seat of the dogcart) shouted to the man to get out of the way, without effect, and Captain Johnson pulled his horse to the near side in order to pass him. When the horse was two paces from the man the latter suddenly faced about, and throwing back his cumby, produced a double barrelled gun, previously concealed, and presented it at Captain Johnson. Both the horsekeeper and Captain Johnson shouted at the man, and the latter cut at him with his whip. He, however, resolutely kept his place and pulled the trigger, the muzzle of the gun being at that time within three feet of Captain Johnson's chest. From some unexplained cause the gun providentially did not go off, and the man was obliged to jump aside to prevent the wheel going over him. As Captain Johnson passed, the man again presented the gun, but again providentially failed to discharge it. He then ran a few yards after the dog-cart, stopped, apparently recapped the gun, took a deliberate aim at Captain Johnson, and fired. The man was at this time from 20 to 25 yards from the cart, but fortunately missed. Captain Johnson, who had at once recognised the man, thought at first it was a mere piece of buffoonery, got up perhaps with the idea of intimidating him. But when the gun went off matters became serious, and Captain Johnson's first impulse was to jump out and secure the fellow. Considering, however, that he had still one barrel loaded, this course would have given the man the very opportunity he wanted, he therefore drove on. The man followed for a few paces, and then turned back and walked quietly towards the lines. The horsekeeper, who had previously to the discharge of the gun jumped off from behind, and in doing so fallen, ran up to seize the man, who threatened to shoot him if he came any nearer. As the man walked away Captain Johnson told the horsekeeper and two men that were on the road a short distance ahead to watch him and see where he went to, and that he would go on and send assistance from the bridge, which was close by. They watched him into his house, where he was immediately taken in charge by the regimental cutwall. The man's name was Booden Khan, a pensioned private of the 35th Madras native infantry. He lived in the regimental bazaar, and was a shopkeeper and a soucar on a small scale. He was not connected with the bridge works in any way. He was, however, it appears, a partner with a soucar in Hurryhur, who had been in the habit of cashing the tickets issued to the coolies for such discount as he could make out of them, realising their full value on pay day at the end of each week. This was a practice with a number of the shopkeepers at Hurryhur, and no objection was made to it. On one occasion, however, a number of false tickets were discovered among those presented by this man's partner. The genuine tickets were made of zinc, and stamped. The false ones were apparently made of tin, and the stamp was very cleverly imitated. Captain Johnson refused to pay for the tickets on that occasion, until it had been shown from whence the false tickets had been obtained. Booden Khan then came to the front and solicited payment, which was refused. He petitioned, and received a written answer in reply, explaining ground of refusal. This answer was given to him on the 21st of June, and nothing more was heard of him till the date of the occurrence above noted. The value of the tickets for which payment was refused was about Rs. 67. There were no words about the matter, which was conducted as an ordinary business transaction from first to last. The matter had been inquired into by the Amildar, who could, however, discover nothing regarding the origin of the false tickets. The Courts were, of course, open to the petitioners, but Booden Khan apparently wished to give sentence in his own case, in which he was providentially frustrated.—Bangalore Herald, July 27.

A POISONED COW EATEN BY A CHEETAH.—A few nights past, on the high-road between Ooty and Lovedale, at a place called "James' Sholah," a full-grown cheetah killed a cow, the property of a poor European pensioner who resides there. The animal enjoyed its repast unmolested, leaving a portion for the next day's meal. We are informed that the poor man who had met with this loss endeavoured to destroy the cheetah by poisoning the remains of the cow with a quantity of arsenic, but the strategy does not seem to have proved effectual, as the cheetah was seen the next day devouring the remainder of its prey, and on the following morning in apparent health.—Neilgherry Excelsior.

THE BANK OF MADRAS has declared a dividend at the rate of 10 per cent. a year for the half-year ending 30th June, like the Bank of Bengal. The sum of Rs. 7,581 has been written off as bad or doubtful. Since the date of last report branches have been established at Tuticorin and Ootacamund. A branch is now being established at Colombo, and arrangements are in progress to open one at Trichinopoly. The bank has not yet received a reply to its application to Government to be allowed to establish an agency in Bombay. Of the amalgamation the report says—"The Directors are satisfied that in rejecting this proposal the shareholders consulted the best interests of the Bank."

DEATH OF THE OLDEST INHABITANT.—The local paper records the death of the oldest European inhabitant of Bangalore, a Scotch lady, Mrs. Nelson, at the age of eighty-eight. She has lived in Bangalore since 1810. That station is certainly the healthiest and most pleasant in India out of the hills.
